BETHEL.

Who said Bethel was dead? Not so just yet, only dormant after the usual festivities of Yuletide.—Christmas was ushered in with beautiful weather which gave everyone a chance to go or cause their plans were laid for spending a merry Christmas with their friends. —The Yarker Rural Telephone Company have extended their telephone wires to Camden East, via the river roadroad, and unloading several of our subscribers from this line by cutting the line in two, which is not very satisfactory for a great many subscribers who were the first to install telephones, and have a rural telephone system of their own in this neighborhood, and many there are who are rather sore, but owing to being so heavily loaded the company could see no other way to lighten the said line.—Miss Ethel Benn has returned home from a pleasant holiday with her friends, the Misses McCormick at Switzerville.—Mr. Jay Hamilton is recovering from another attack of asthma, which we hope does not re-occur. —Mrs. Archie Hamilton, of Yarker East, is spending a few days with Mrs. Sam Hamilton.—Miss Jessie Druce, of Inverary, is spending some time with Mrs. Wm. Jackson.—Mrs. Earl Salisbury spent Friday afternoon and to tea with Mrs. Wm. Jackson.—Mr. and Mrs. Ira Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Shangraw, of Colebrook, spent Thursday night to dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jackson and Mrs. N. N. Sutton. — Mrs. Wm. Jackson spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Arley Clark.—The Ladies' Aid of Colebrook will meet at Mrs. George Husband's, Colebrook East, on Wednesday night. —Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Edgar and family and Mr. John McDonald, of Yarker, with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Alkenbrack and mother for Christmas. — Mr. and Mrs. Edmund McKnight and family with Mrs. McKnight's mother and family, at Piccadilly, for Christmas.—Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jackson, of Yarker, with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hamilton, for Christmas.—Mr. George Lewis, of Rochester, N.Y., with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Lewis.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Robinson with Mr. and Mrs. Acton Robinson, Bicknell's Corners, for Christmas.—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Galbraith, with the latter's parents at Holleford, for Christmas.—Mr. and Mrs. N. N. Sutton and daughter, Naydene, of Toronto, with their parents for Christmas; Mrs. Sutton and Naydene remaining over for New Years.—Mr. and Mrs. Hurrell Huffman and family, of Napanee, with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Galbraith.—Mr. and Mrs. Jih Hamilton spent New Years night with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Doyle.—Mr. Sam Hamilton and family with Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Jackson, Yarker, for New Years dinner.—Mr. and Mrs. Levi Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dunn with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Salisbury, Colebrook, for Christmas.—Mr. and Mrs. Ira Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. Max Shangraw, Alexandria Bay, N.Y., with Mr. and Mrs. Levi Salisbury to dinner on Monday night following Christmas.—Mr. and Mrs. Seymore Ball and son spent Christmas with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Burgess.—Mr. and Mrs. Russel Gilligan and son, of Shannonville, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gilligan, for Christmas. — Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hannah and family, of Desmond, spent Christmas with his sister, Mrs. Wilbur Benn, and family.—Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Allen and family with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McVeigh.—Mrs. Peter Hart, of Colebrook, spent Christmas with her daughter, Mrs. Harry Gilligan. — Miss Helen Reid is spending an unlimited time with Mrs. Harry Gilligan.

ROBLIN

Several from this vicinity attended the funeral of the late Sam Brown, at Tiberonee on Monday afternoon.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Oliver and baby, June, of Nyack, N.Y., and Mrs. Kelly, of Kingston, visited Mrs. and Mrs. Oliver, during the holidays. — Our school has re-opened, with Miss Joyce, of Gretna, as teacher. — Miss Jean Paul has returned to resume her studies at Toronto Normal School, after spending the holidays with her parents here.—Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Asselstine and family and Mrs. Ruth York, of Maribank, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Kimmett for tea and the evening on Monday.—Mr. Fred Bradshaw, of Tindale, Sask., is renewing old acquaintances here. — The monthly meeting of the Mission Circle was held at the home of the President, Miss Marion McCondra, on Friday evening last.—Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Telford have returned here, after spending their honeymoon in Toronto, Holland Centre and Bath.—Mrs. Ida McLaughlin, of Maribank, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John H. Kimmett.

FOURTH LINE

(Por last week)

On Thursday evening, December 22nd, the Fourth Line Sunday School was the centre of a very interesting Christmas tree and entertainment. The church was crowded to capacity as usual, by a very enthusiastic and appreciative audience. The programme, which was presented by the members of the Sunday School, consisted of a wide variety of numbers, including readings, dialogues, darkey quartettes, duets, tableaux, and choruses, by the school, which were presented in first class form. At the close of the programme, Santa arrived, and with his fine generosity began giving out things to the fortunate ones present, and did not forget the usual gift to the Pastor, Rev. W. R. Merrick, a fine goose, in appreciation of their visits by the Fourth Line Sunday School. The entertainment was brought to a close by singing of the National Anthem.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

A large vote was polled at the Municipal Election in Napanee on Monday. The weather was fine, but quite cold. Mr. John G. Daly headed the poll with the magnificent vote of 657, perhaps the largest ever polled by a candidate at an election of this kind in Napanee.

Three new faces will be seen at the Council Board this year, Messrs. John G. Daly, Elgin O. Unger and Charles Loucks.

The by-law to enlarge and repair the Town Hall carried by a majority of 97.

Following are the returns :—

Town Hall	West Ward		Centre Ward		East
By-Law,—	No. 1	No. 2	No. 1	No. 2	Ward	Total
For the By-law	41	72	48	79	66	306
Against the By-law	42	56	23	39	49	209
Majority for the By-law						97

For Councillors,—

John G. Daly	126	132	124	148	127	657
Elgin O. Unger	94	140	91	81	108	514
Geo. J. Tustin	117	121	99	80	92	509
Charles Loucks	66	108	88	112	112	486
Arthur S. Kimmerly	94	100	80	85	83	442
J. M. Simpson	80	92	84	87	95	438
W. H. Dunbar	41	99	72	106	108	426
W. J. Jewell	53	85	71	113	81	403
A. S. Hughson	58	98	38	81	60	335

The first six Councillors are elected.

During the compilation of the returns, Mayor-elect Roy was called to the platform and briefly addressed the electors. It was a surprise to him to be on the platform to-night, as he had fully made up his mind not to accept nomination again. He had wanted a holiday this year, as he thought last year's Council had done two years' work in one. He had attended all the meetings but one, and all committee meetings. They had a very busy year last year and work was done that the citizens in years to come will appreciate. While he regretted the defeat of some of his colleagues of last year, still he thought they would have a good Council for 1928. The by-law to enlarge the Town Hall had carried and he was of the opinion that the ratepayers would all be pleased when the work was completed and they could see what a great improvement it would make in the looks of our town. He hoped to see the town better lighted this year, and said the expense would be carried by the Hydro on a percentage basis and cost of extra current. Mayor Roy closed by wishing all a Happy New Year.

John G. Daly said this was a new experience for him, as it was the first time he had ever asked for anything from his fellow ratepayers. He thanked every person for the splendid vote given him, and hoped he would be able to fill the job. He fully concurred in what Mayor Roy had said, and wished all the Compliments of the Season.

Elgin O. Unger hardly knew how to thank the electors for the large vote given him. He would do his very best in the interests of the town and would endeavor to keep down expenses.

Geo. J. Justin had told the electors at the nomination meeting that he would, if elected, do his part in managing the town's business as he would his own, and he again repeated that statement. He is a loyal ratepayer and will was in the interests of the taxpayers generally was in his own interests. He thanked them heartily for the large vote given him, and wished them all a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Charles Loucks said this was his first appearance on a public platform. He was proud of his election and thanked all for the support given him.

Arthur S. Kimmerly said it was very gratifying to him to be re-elected in a field of nine good reliable candidates, and he was thankful that the leadership was again under Mayor Roy. He closed by wishing them all the Compliments of the Season.

J. M. Simpson was grateful and thankful to have been left on the Council Board. He had fully intended to retire. A large vote had been polled and he was particularly pleased that the by-law had carried. He would endeavor to use his past experience on the Council to good advantage for the benefit of the town.

W. H. Dunbar was defeated, but did not know why. He had no ill will against any person, and hoped the new Council would serve the town well. The new members would find that there was plenty to learn in municipal life. He was glad the by-law had been sustained, as the extra tax would not be a burden to anyone.

Capt. Hughson thanked the electors for leaving him at home, as he thought he would be happier at the end of the year. He came here three years ago a total stranger and was not ashamed of the vote given him, as he had not asked any person to vote for him.

Ex-Councillor Howitt was invited to address the electors. He apologized for not having been in the fight, and told the electors that they should be thankful and grateful to the defeated candidates of last year's Council for the work they had done. He spoke very feelingly of the defeat of Mr. Dunbar, as the latter had been a conscientious and hard worker. He hoped the Council of this year would meet together as a whole and select the best man to head each committee. He was very pleased that the by-law had carried. He trusted the Street Committee would consider very carefully the traffic conditions of the town for the coming year, and draft a by-law to govern same. Some time in the future he might again ask the electors for their support.

HAWLEY W. M. S.

The regular meeting of the Hawley Women's Missionary Society, which was held at the home of Mrs. Ebb Fretts, last Wednesday, January 4th, was perhaps the most gratifying and encouraging of all the year. Despite the inclemency of the weather a good-sized number of ladies were present.

After devotional exercises were over, a summary of last year's work and the financial report were read. One of the several interesting features was that of the seventy-five dollars that donations were read and thankfully received.

Another feature of much interest was that of making delegates for the coming year, when each accept the voice of the ballot unhesitatingly. The officers are as follows:

President—Mrs. Clayton Fretts.
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. Issac Asselstine.

Presentation and Address

On Friday evening, December 2nd, about seventy-five friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Denison, and presented them with a beautiful kitchen cabinet before their removal to their new home in Napanee.

Following is the address :—

Mr. and Mrs. A. Denison and Family.

Dear Friends,—Having learned from your immediate friends and from you as a family are about to move from our midst, we, your neighbours and friends, have gathered here this evening to spend a few hours in social intercourse and to enjoy your ever well come hospitality.

We all realize that the duties of friends must part some day; and it brings to us one and all a keen sense of our loss in your removal from our midst, for we have always found yourself and Mrs. Denison ever ready and willing to assist in any good that the community desired.

And as we are brought close with the reality of your going out from us, and as we look back on the past, we see your real sterling worth and value as a true friend and neighbour, and we can but prepare ourselves to meet the unestimable loss, knowing it will be some others gain. For we know that wherever you may choose to reside your true worth will work itself out as it is ever bound to do, and we all unite in asking God's richest blessing on each one of your family, more especially yourselves, who are the heads of the home whose motto is "In God we trust".

Now we will ask you, Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson, in your own and family's behalf, to accept this kitchen cabinet, as a very small token of our respect and esteem, and we hope as it fills a part of your daily service, so may we hope to share a very part of your happy recollection of a worthy neighbourhood in which yourselves formed a part.

Signed on behalf of your many friends and neighbours.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Graham.
Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Kerr.

Mr. and Mrs. Denison replied in a few words, thanking their many friends for their kind remembrances.

A very pleasant evening was spent, and after singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow", the crowd dispersed, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Denison every success in their new home.

On December 25th, the Sunday School class "The Winners", presented Miss Edna Denison with a little clock, and the following address :—

Dear Edna,—We are sorry you are leaving us, but we know what is our loss will be another's gain.

We will miss you in our Sunday School class. We hope you will visit us often as you wont be far away.

We ask you to accept this little clock as a small remembrance from "The Winners". As it ticks on the mantle think of your friends at Selby. From us to you is bridge that passes Over the space that between us lies, Only ourselves know ought about it. Friendship can cross it, save us and you. There's never a moment but something passes

Of thoughts and prayers that are fond and true;

Straight from my heart to your heart I speed them,

Messages tender from us to you.

We are not parted one from another, Although our bridge may be hid from view;

We know it is there, and ever and always,

Fond thoughts are crossing from us to you.

THE WINNERS.

FOURTH LINE

The weather man has favoured us with some nice warm weather during Xmas holidays, which makes us wish they would last a while longer. The Christmas tree given by the Sunday School, was a decided success, the church being filled to capacity and all enjoyed the items on the programme very much. The proceeds amounted to $31.90.—Miss Gladys Parrott entertained a number of her friends at a party last Monday night. The evening was spent progressive Lost Heir and contests. A dainty lunch was served at 11.30 o'clock, after which Ethel and Arthur left to fill their positions in Toronto and Smiths Falls. —Miss Ethel Parrott, Toronto, and Mr. Arthur Parrott, Smiths Falls, spent Christmas with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Parrott. —Mr. Clifford Reid, Queen's University, Kingston, with Mr. and Mrs. Fenton Reid.—Mr. Geo. Gunn and family, of Belleville, with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McFarlane.—Mr. Stanley Reid met with a very painful accident last week. While trying to put a belt on the pulley of his sawing outfit he caught his hand between the belt and pulley, badly lacerating it. He was taken to Dr. Mabee's, and received eight stitches to close the wound. He is getting along very nicely at present writing. — Messrs. Cecil and Karl Denyes spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fretts, Hawley.—A large number enjoyed the Christmas service at this church last Sunday. Rev. Mr. Merrick having charge. During the service Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sagger, Violet, had their baby baptized. —Miss Hazel Reid has been accepted as teacher for Sharpton school for the New Year. We wish her every success for 1928.—Mrs. James Robson and baby, Betty, are spending the week end with friends in Odessa.—Master Jennie, Marjorie and Ruth Sharp, Violet, entertained their Sunday School classes at a party last Friday night. All who were present reported an A 1 time.—Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Sagger, also entertained a number of their friends one night recently.—Mrs. Wilfred Hagerman and daughter, of Mowen, have been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hagerman.—Mr. Gerald Hill arrived home on Friday last, after spending three years in Florida.—Mr. Herbert Smith is opening a new Ford coach.—Mr. Cecil Denyes has returned to his duties in Cornwall, after spending one week under the parental roof.—Mr. Alfred Jackson was appointed caretaker for the school for the new year.—Keep in mind service will be held in this church Sunday evening instead of afternoon next Sunday, January 8th.

Address and Presentation

Dearly Beloved Teacher,—We, the pupils of Separate S. S. No. 18, Tyendinaga, take this opportunity of expressing to you our regret at your resignation as our teacher, and also our appreciation of all you have done for us during the past year.

Words can but feebly convey our sentiments to you. You were always solicitour regarding all that concerned our welfare.

You spared neither time nor labour in your efforts to lead us on in the paths of knowledge.

By word and example you have encouraged us in the practise of those qualities that would make us the good and dutiful you wished us to be.

By your patience, forbearance, and loving manner toward us you created a bond of love and friendship between pupil and teacher, that it can be truly said you ruled us rather by love than fear.

Not only shall we pupils regret your departure, but also a large circle of friends whom you have made during the time you were with us, for by your amiable disposition you have practically won the friendship of all with whom you came in contact.

But let us hope as your home is not too remote that you will often be re-visited our homes and social entertainments where you are now so welcomed.

And now, dear teacher, we ask you to accept this simple gift as a token of remembrance of the pupils who will always carry fond remembrances of you in their hearts.

Signed on behalf of the pupils of S. S. No. 18.

DENBIGH

(For last week)

Splendid congregations greeted Rev. P. A. Scott at Madoc and Denbigh, on Christmas Sunday, and enjoyed hearing a most excellent sermon. —The Christmas tree and entertainment held in the United Church on Christmas eve, was a splendid success. Mrs. (Doctor) Adams deserves much credit for the excellent programme.—Miss Anna Lane, teacher at North Bay, and Aubrey Lane, who is attending school at North Bay, with Vernon Lane of Toronto, are spending their Christmas holidays with their mother, Mrs. J. W. Lane, Denbigh.—Mr. Carl Stein returned from Kingston last week, where he had been visiting relatives.—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Beith enjoyed a very merry Christmas by a family reunion at their sons and daughters with their respective families, who came home for the happy occasion.—Mr. and Mrs. D. Teeple, of Toronto, are spending Christmas with Mrs. Teeple's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. John, Sr.—The Municipal nomination passed off as usual with a large attendance and much interest. Mr. Chas. Beith, Reeve for 4 years, was returned by acclomation, as the other candidate withdrew. Two new men are seeking election, along with the four old members.—Miss Bertha Stein is expected home from Kitchener, where she has spent the last two months.—The teachers in and around Denbigh have all returned to their respective homes for the Christmas holidays.—Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Scott, with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bebee, took Christmas dinner on Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Phil Platz.—There is enough snow to make good sleighing.

LIEUT. E. P. HAM MEETS DEATH IN PHOENIX, ALTA.

A private despatch received Thursday afternoon by the family reports the accidental death at Phoenix, Alberta, 20 miles south of Banff, mining district, of Lieut. Earl P. Ham, second son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Ham, of 240 Ruby street. No particulars of the accident were given in the telegram. Lieut. Ham had been a resident of Alberta for over ten years. He was 35 years of age and born and educated in Winnipeg. He enlisted for service in the Great War with the 44th battalion and was wounded while in action at the front with the 43rd battalion. Previous to the war he was engaged in the clothing business. In addition to his parents he is survived by five brothers, all residents of Winnipeg.

The body will be brought to Winnipeg for burial.

Rocky Mountain House, Alta., Dec. 23.—Lieut. E. P. Ham, a homesteader of Caroline, thirty miles south of here, was accidentally killed shortly after 3.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 21st, when he fell from a load of ties under the rear runner of his sleigh while hauling ties between camp number three and six at the Phoenix Lumber Company's camp, 35 miles west of Rocky Mountain House.

At the time of the accident Lieut. Ham was alone and it is thought that while proceeding down a hill his four-horse team slipped, jerking the sleigh and throwing him off the loan under the rear runner.

When discovered shortly after the accident it was found that his chest had been badly crushed.

Dr. O. H. Wilson, the camp doctor, was on the scene of the accident twenty minutes after and pronounced man dead. Dr. W. Hill, coroner, announced that an inquest would not be necessary.

Constable B. W. Pattie, A.P.P., stationed at Rocky Mountain House, was also called to Phoenix.

The body was brought down from Phoenix and will be forwarded to Winnipeg for burial.

Lieut. Ham had a sub-contract for getting out ties for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

A French Heroine.

Renee Chassenotte, the signalman's daughter at Prunay, near the Rheims-Chalons line in France, has been recommended for the French Bronze Medal for devotion.

A short time ago her father was lighting the lamps when a train dashed by and knocked him down. She found him lying by the line and had to be carried into the station waiting-room, where he died in a few minutes. Then the poor girl suddenly remembered that other trains were due. Forcing back her tears and forgetting her misery for the sake of others' lives, she went to her father's signal-box and for five hours she worked the signals till relief came, and saved hundreds lives on that busy iron thoroughfare.

If You See It In The Beaver It's So

WHAT I EAT--AND WHY

FACTS ABOUT FOOD FOR THE WISE MAN AND WOMAN.

President of New Health Society In England Says the Best Way to Keep Healthy Is a Matter of Diet —His Own Menu.

I drink a pint of tepid water first thing in the morning, writes Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane, Bart., in Answers. I do this with the object of stimulating the entire gastro-intestinal canal. What precisely happens when I drink that water? It is picked up by the blood-vessels and later eliminated through the kidneys and bladder.

I start breakfast with half a grape-fruit. It is a fruit of which one never tires. It is delicious, it cleans the mouth and prepares one for the meal.

The grape-fruit is followed by a large basinful of cooked, rolled wheat, to which a considerable quantity of uncooked rolled wheat is added. This is eaten with plenty of milk.

This is a very simple meal, but it is completely satisfying.

The object of adding a proportion of uncooked wheat is to supply what is known as roughage, or the necessary bulk of material to stimulate the digestive tract to perform its function properly. The uncooked wheat also contains salts which assist the digestive process.

I start my lunch and dinner as I do my breakfast, with half a grape-fruit. After that, soup, white fish, wholemeal bread or Swedish biscuit, steamed vegetables, eggs cooked in various forms, salads of all sorts, cooked fruit and cheese.

Should one drink with meals? In my opinion, a moderate amount of alcohol taken with the evening meal and a pleasant smoke after it serve to make the meal and the subsequent rest from one's labors more enjoyable.

The condition of the mind during meals is a very important factor in getting the best from the food eaten. Everything likely to distract or worry should be firmly put on one side.

It is therefore wisest whenever possible to take one's meal in pleasant company, for in solitude the mind is apt to hark back to worries and anxieties of the day's work.

For the same reason the wise woman sees to it that the dining-table is gay. It should be brightened with a few simple flowers, or made beautiful with bowls of fruit, according to the diner's means. Flowers are happy things and help more than we realize to induce the cheery mental state that makes for good digestion.

The same applies to the use of alcohol at dinner. Moderation is to dispense with one of the most valuable and attractive foods we have. The truth has been recognized as far back as history goes.

There comes a time when one's diet and habits must be modified if full vigor and health are to be maintained. After a man or woman has passed life's meridian little or no animal food is necessary. After reaching that peak, then, it is wise to dispense with animal food except in the strictest moderation. If this is done, degeneration and disease will not follow as legacies of injudicious feeding.

Having indicated briefly what I eat, and why, I would say a word about the manner of eating.

The first stage of the digestive process takes place in the mouth. The cardinal rule, then, is masticate, masticate, masticate. Nature has not given our excellent assortment of teeth without an adequate reason. They are there to masticate food. Yet few people trouble to perform this fundamental function efficiently, and the sloppy food which is commonly and even the possibility of mastication.

Let us follow the food after it leaves the mouth, having been there duly masticated and mixed by saliva, which plays a very important part. It passes to the stomach, where a second stage of work takes place in the entire gastro-intestinal tract, the contents of the several segments of the canal being propelled automatically along it, till eventually that portion occupying the end of the large bowel is reached.

When this normal sequence breaks down — generally speaking — the abnormal habits of life—and the vast majority of people have recourse to purgatives. It is the most foolish thing they could do, for such drastics act as irritants of the mucous lining of the bowel and cause unnatural contraction of its muscular coating. The causes of cancer may be summed up as meat, constipation, and purgatives.

What, then, is the remedy for this? That is my opinion, a fresh scourge of all civilized peoples?

The answer is: Diet—diet and exercise.

When I outlined the menu of my simple breakfast I stressed quantity. The reason for this is very obvious. By eating an abundance of natural foods the bowels may be made to function normally. And when they fail to do so, systematic exercises will help to achieve that end.

Study your diet, but do not become a faddist. Never eat to repletion. Eliminate all waste matter completely. Avoid artificial foods. Take red meat only sparingly if at all, and eat largely of fruit and green foods.

By following these few simple directions and adhering to the simple diet that I have sketched I will be assured of six and a half to seven hours of delightful sleep, from which you shall awake fresh and vigorous, able to tackle a new day's problems and difficulties.

A Miracle at Painted Rock

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright, 1929, by American Press Associations

THERE was a clatter of small hoofs on the hard road, a flurry of summer dust at the gate, and Pete Loring gracefully rounded Little Nelly before Miss Susie's door, scattering the chickens into terrified retreat.

"Afternoon, Miss Susie," called Pete cheerily.

"Afternoon," responded Miss Susie, peering through the morning glory vines.

Mr. Loring mopped his face vigorously. "Don't seem to be any letup in the heat," he resumed.

"I guess it will shrivel up if it keeps on much longer," replied Miss Susie from behind her screen.

Mr. Loring coughed appreciatingly. "You ain't changed your mind, I suppose?" he queried anxiously.

"No, I ain't!" snapped Miss Susie so readily that one could almost suspect that she had been awaiting the question. She withdrew her rosy face with a jerk and went on: "I don't feel no more favorable to marryin' than I did yesterday or last Monday. This makes three times in one week!"

Mr. Loring chuckled. "Well, I ain't asked you today as I know on," he drawled, turning a twinkling blue eye upon the opening in the vines.

An ominous silence brooded behind the morning glories, where Miss Susie's plump form rocked to and fro as she knitted.

"Them there kids are gettin' wilder and raggeder every day. Old Mahona lit out last night, and we're keepin' house mighty lonely. He had promised mush three times so far, an' I reckon we'll have it for supper." His voice trailed pathetically into silence.

There was a contemptuous snort from Miss Susie. "I didn't come out to Kanuck to be mid-wived by the afore widder men of Painted Rock. I ain't a Mormon," she added sententiously. "Judge Lyon was around this mornin'. His four children have the measles."

Mr. Loring frowned jealously. "That there Jake Lyon is a how, sneakin' cuss!" he exclaimed bitterly. "He knows you wouldn't have him nohow, and he's—"

"How do you know I wouldn't have him?"

Pete's fairly jumped with surprise. He could dimly see the outline of the sunbonnet peeker and its plump occupant, but he felt all the influence of the baleful glance he knew Miss Susie had directed at him.

"The he it from me to express any opinion again, nohow," returned Pete humbly. "Only you'll excuse what I had to say about Jake, bein' as I know how matters was fixed between you."

"I don't know what you're talkin' about, Pete Loring," she retorted.

"You ain't changed your mind, I suppose?"

have told you twenty times that if I wanted to marry I'd have done it before I come west, where the men don't do nothin' but swear and ride around all day long, neglectin' their wives and children and—"

"Now, Miss Susie," returned Pete remonstratingly, "you know plumb well that we don't all do it. Some of us is just as God fearin', hardworkin' men as you'll find back east, where they's all tied to their engines and machines like so many cattle."

"That's as it may be," returned Miss Susie tartly. "Lady I don't see why, just because a lone woman—I went to keep house for her brother, even from jack in the county, shows up and proposes to her. I don't want to get married; I can take care of myself without help from no nihn."

"Well, me self if you should change your mind, Miss Susie, you can send Swanson over to my place and let me know, and I'll get there so quick you'll think I've been setting by the gate all the time, but I'm likely to be to home mosin' around the kitchen," returned Mr. Loring gloomily as a whiff of warm berry pie came temptingly through the front door.

Again there was silence behind the morning glories.

Mr. Loring's manner changed to one of grave anxiety. "You heard what I said, Miss Susie?"

"I heard," snapped Miss Susie. "When I change my mind I'll not send Swanson. I'll come right over myself and tell you!"

"I ain't lookin' for no miracles in these days," retorted Mr. Loring good naturedly. Then the voice became serious. "I hope you're keepin' watch on the river, Miss Susie. Last year your brother pretty near got floated off, and it wasn't anything to what it is now. It's rained for nearly a week up in the Harpers, and if that bridge goes —well, your house and crop 'll go too."

"I'm not afraid so long as we don't get no more rain here," returned Miss Susie comfortably.

"You better make that lazy Swede keep an eye on the river, and if it looks any more serious, you come and help you. Well, I must be movin' along! Afternoon, Miss Susie."

"Afternoon," returned the lady behind the morning glories.

Miss Susie strained her eyes for a backward glimpse of Pete Loring's hand when he reached the corner of the east field, but his head was turned toward the river, whose yellow current was gradually rising to the level of the steep banks. Once or twice he glowed back at the low drowned home-lying near the bank and felt some degree of relief in the recollection that his comfortable dwelling was perched on a knoll above highest water mark and must necessarily be a place of refuge for his less fortunate neighbors. Six months previous Miss Susie had come from her eastern home to live with her widowed brother, but scarcely three months had passed before he had succumbed to an attack of heart disease and thus had left Miss Susie mistress of the hundred acre farm and the well meaning but sluggish Swanson and his capable wife. Selma Cassely, dark eyed Miss Susie had not lacked for advice and vigorous assistance in managing the farm, for she found kindly neighbors all about her and Pete Loring had been her chief adviser in caring for the crops that had been planted by the executive brother, but Pete had spelled all things by desiring Miss Susie to change her quarters and become the mistress of the Loring home, and his wife's insistence had vexed the usually amiable little woman to the point of an ultimatum.

"He might know I couldn't make up my mind all of a sudden after being single for forty-five years," she murmured as she watched him ride out of sight. She thought of the miles of whispering grain fields that divided her farm from Pete Loring's place, and her face grew somewhat anxious.

In the northern counties rain had fallen ghoulishly, but in Painted Rock the crops were slowly crisping in the merciless heat, and now this swelling tributary of the Missouri, fed by the copious rains at its source, threatened complete annihilation of the harvest.

With a little sigh and a sense of guilt Miss Susie responded to Selma's call to dinner. As she ate of the buttermilk biscuits and tasted the delicious berry pie she thought of the hungry little Loring's dining on mush and milk. They were heedless children, helpful, obedient little things, and it was too bad that they were motherless; there was only the lazy, kindly father and the drinking, ignorant old Indian woman, Mahona, to care for them.

"Take one of these pies and a pail-ful of the dinner over to Mr. Loring's, Swanson," she said, going around to the kitchen door after dinner, and she was with some relief that she watched the slouching figure of the Swede riding down the road, a large basket swinging from one hand.

It was long after midnight when she awoke to the drip of rain on the roof and the soft rush of water outside her window. There was a sickening motion to her bed, and she was conscious that the furniture in the room was creaking and stirring ominously.

She called Swanson desperately. There was no response, but she thought she heard a faint cry from outside. It came from above.

"The roof!" she said blankly. "He is up there! Why, the house is afloat!"

The floor slanted perilously as she slipped to the edge of the bed and tried to stand upon her feet. Somehow she managed to strike a match and light a candle in the dark room.

The room was in the utmost disorder. The lighter furniture had gravitated to the outer wall and the heavy pieces rocked to and fro, the entire house partaking of the rocking house. Ornaments and bits of china strewed the floor, and her clothes were huddled among them.

She dressed herself hurriedly, choosing the warmest wraps she could find. She half walked, half slid to the window and held back the curtain. It was dense blackness outside, but she saw the wavering reflection of her candle flame and knew that the water was all about the house.

With chattering teeth she extinguished her candle and, felt her way into the entry and toward the ladder which led to the scuttle in the roof. This scuttle led to what Franklin had called his "observatory," a small platform built on the apex of the roof and which now offered the only refuge to the frightened little woman. She could hear the water swashing about the lower rooms as she clung to the ladder and as she neared the top a gust of cool air and the sweep of rain in her face told her that the scuttle was open and that her farm hand and his wife had doubtless sought refuge there.

As her head appeared above the opening and she emerged into the inky darkness the voice of the Swede came joyfully, "Tank Gott!"

"Why didn't you call me?" she asked crossly, balancing her plump form precariously on the edge of the opening and placing her feet on the top rung of the ladder below. She could make out the dim outline of the figure of the doughty Swanson hugging the chimneys, while bulky Selma was safely wedged in an angle of the roof.

Rocked to and fro.

Swanson took refuge in silence. And thus the three clung desperately to their several places of retreat, bending their heads before the beating rain, while the little house heeled along in the embrace of the strong current. After awhile it stopped raining, and the black desolation of the night was relieved by the pale, intermittent rays of a watery moon. The gray, scudding clouds grew lighter as daylight stole over the dripping world. The three people on the roof looked curiously about them as objects came into prominence with the coming light. The house had been lifted from its fluid foundation and swung out from the shore and was drifting slowly down stream. The water had now crept into the upper rooms, and the eaves of the roof dipped in and out of the swirling current.

Strange craft sailed by them. Trees, boats of houses, wild tufts of furniture pathetically arranged in homely comfort, floated slowly by; then the body of a horse or a cow—all silent objects in the flood. A cock crowing insistently somewhere along his half drowned lives clinging about him on the top of a tree.

Then came a floating timber with a man lounging desperately to one end. He crouched at the extreme end of the log, which was thus kept in the proper position to float evenly, and as he drifted by the shouts from the party on the roof, drew himself upon the log and rode by in silence with dignity.

Miss Susie called to him encouragingly as he floated by, but he never so much as looked at the plaintive, white face she thrust toward him.

"Why, Mr. Rockwell, this ain't never you!" she exclaimed. "Your wife and your house and—"

"Safe, thank God!" he panted. "I was called out to assist the sufferers at Hogan's farm, just where the pond broke, and the house went all to pieces without any warning, and I am afraid some of them were drowned before I got there. The young minister leaned his head and sighed as he thought of the fervent prayers of his flock for deliverance from the devouring deluge!

Miss Susie shivered, cold and miserable on the peak of her roof. The world looked very dreary this early morning. Her home was swept away, her crops perhaps ruined and—

Just then the house swung around a sharp bend in the shore and, carried swiftly forward by the rushing river, struck for a moment in the soft mud of the bank. A group of men ran forward and thrust hooks into the window openings. A great hawser had been thrown around a large butternut tree on the knoll, and to this end there was a hook. The house strained away from the bank, but the rope was strong, and presently Pete Loring's voice called cheerily:

"All's you all right, Miss Susie?"

"Yes, I be!" she called back meekly.

Five minutes later they were all walking up the muddy hill to the Loring house, where Pete assured them there was plenty of hot coffee. "Old Mahona, she's come back," he said, with a significant look at Miss Susie, who clung dejectedly to his strong arm.

"I reckon that there is the preacher from Painted Rock," he ventured presently, with a backward movement of his thumb.

"You know it is," said Miss Susie, with a faint return of spirit in her manner. There was a queer feeling in her throat, and she knew she wanted to either laugh or cry.

"You said you'd come if you changed your mind," resumed Mr. Loring as he assisted Miss Susie up the steps and into the house, "but you didn't say nothin' about bringin' the house—or the preacher—along too."

"It's better call it a miracle."

The little Lorings fell upon Miss Susie joyfully. They clung to her hands and twined themselves about her neck. She looked over their heads and encountered the wistful gaze of the father, and her eyes filled with happy tears.

"I guess we better call it a miracle, Pete," she said.

Early Time Systems.

The gnomon, the predecessor of the sundial, was probably one of the earliest devices for the reckoning of time, and it may reasonably be concluded that the Egyptian pyramids, with their great altitude, formed part of a design for timekeeping by the shadow thrown on the desert sands. The obelisk, too, in all probability served the purpose, for as a matter of history an obelisk at Rome was actually used for a sundial in the time of Emperor Augustus.

If we could step on board of a Malay proa we should see floating in a bucket of water a cocoanut shell having a small hole in the bottom through which the water by slow degrees finds its way into the shell. The hole in the shell is so proportioned that the shell will sink in an hour, when the man on watch calls the time and sets it afloat.

The Chinese have a water clock in use at the present time, which invention they ascribe to Hwangti, who lived, according to their chronology, more than twenty-five centuries before Christ.

The time system of early Rome was of the rudest character. The day and night each were divided into four watches, the periods of which were roughly determined by observations of the course of the sun and stars.

Chain the Baby Up.

Put the baby on a dog leash! That's the latest freak of society; but, unlike many society freaks, it is the invention of neither men, who claim that it is a bit better to have a child on a dog leash, for it saves the trouble of dragging its arms out of their sockets. Already a few women have been seen in the gardens with their children on leash, and from the appearance of mothers and children it seems as though all are pleased. The child has a little more freedom than it would have if it were being held by the hand, and the women, well, they have more freedom too. The baby leash is undoubtedly like a dog leash, and it is bought at any of the harness stores. The more elaborate leashes have a regular little harness, but the simplest ones consist of the ordinary strap used once around the middle of the child's body, fastened with a buckle and with a long enough end to give baby a yard of freedom. In the neighborhood of the parks the baby leash has already become very popular, for it gives the nursemaids a chance to take their charges for a walk and not to speak, while turning their minds to the gossip of the nursemaid world.—Boston Post.

A Monument to a Bomb Thrower.

Italians love statues and occasionally erect them to some gifted person. In the little town of Meldola, near Ravenna, Italy, has just been the scene of an imposing ceremony. In the presence of the town grandees the people have unveiled a monument to Fil Orsini, who made the historic attempt on the life of Napoleon III. on March 14, 1858, in Paris, when the casualties numbered 120. The statue represents Orsini as the way to his execution. Meldola is the birthplace of Orsini.

Stopped in Time.

Congressman John T. Lenihan of the Luzerne bar was once engaged in a bribery case and was questioning a prominent witness. "Have you yourself ever refused a bribe?" he asked. "No, but"— "That's all," thundered John. Later on Mr. Lenihan was asked why he dismissed the witness so soon. "Because," he replied, "I knew by the 'but' that he was going to tell me no one had ever attempted to bribe him."—Philadelphia Record.

"Gone to Pot."

The phrase, "Gone to pot," is of Oriental origin. A taller in Samarcand, who lived near a burial ground, kept count of the deaths by dropping a stone into a pot for every corpse that passed. When he died someone remarked that he had gone into the pot himself.

Miss Flora McFlimsey has long since passed on, the girl who complained she had nothing to dare, but changed our girls' worry from that 20 far off, to now that they've hardly a thing left to doff.

BRITAIN'S HOLY SHRINE

WESTMINSTER ABBEY MAY BE ENLARGED.

Canadian Links With Edward the Confessor's Hoary Church — Ancient Abbey Is Crowded With Memorials.

England's most sacred shrine, Westminster Abbey, may be enlarged as it contains room for more "storied urns and animated busts." From time immemorial the ancient pile has been undergoing enlargement. Its origin is lost in the mists of antiquity. Tradition says that in Roman times a temple of Apollo stood on the site, that about 170 A.D. King Lucius built the first Christian church, and that in later years St. Peter came in the spirit from Rome to bless the place. So much for legend. It is known, however that a Saxon monarch built a church there and that about 1050 A.D. Edward the Confessor began the erection of the present magnificent edifice, which successive Kings of England expanded into its present form during the centuries. Its most modern portion, the two western towers, was not completed until 1740.

Entering its northern doorway the visitor finds himself in the transept and presently in the nave, which, nearly 100 feet long, is flanked by mighty pillars massing overhead in an exquisitely groined roof of stone, 102 feet above the floor. Through stained glass windows the yellow sunlight of old London filters down into the church whose annals tell not only England's "rough is and story," but the story of the British Empire. Here in the church as it then stood was anointed the Confessor whose tomb stands behind the High altar. Here William the Conqueror was crowned on Christmas Day, 1066, when the cheers from his unwilling Saxon subjects in the Abbey, causing the Norman soldiers outside to think that trouble had arisen, the Normans set fire to the surrounding buildings. Here, in fact, every subsequent British monarch, with the exception of Edward V., has been crowned, and most of them lie buried. Ere long, the present Prince of Wales may sit in the big arm chair made for Edward II. in 1297, and holding the two-handled sword and shield of that old Plantagenet, prepare to receive upon his brow the diadem of empire at the hands of the Archbishop of Canterbury. An exact replica of the chair, it is said, already in the J. Ross Robertson historical collection in the Public Library, College street, Toronto.

Canada has many links with Westminster Abbey, says the Toronto Telegram. Its first association with it was Wolfe's monument. On that memorial, by the singing of "The Maple Leaf" and other anthems, on 20th June, 1922, the colors of a Canadian regiment were dedicated. It must not be forgotten, too, that in 1923 a memorial service was held at Westminster for Sir John A. Macdonald.

Canadians attired in court dress —the men in knee breeches, silk stockings, full coats, and carrying cocked hats and swords, and the ladies in wonderful dresses and wearing ostrich feathers in their hair—have sat near the graves of statesmen in robes and coronets at the last two coronations. During the latter Canadians went there to worship. In this connection we recall the service held to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of Confederation, in July, 1917. Those were dark days, with the submarine menace at its worst and British feeling the pinch of food shortage. The King and Queen attended in person and "The Maple Leaf" rang joyously through the great cathedral spaces which, in medieval times, had heard the chanting of the mass.

Magnificent tombs of early Kings, all recorded groups of statuary, massive figures and inscribed tablets fairly jostle each other in the abbey today. Hardly a spot in the ancient building lacks some memorial to the dead. Even the floor is dotted with carven epitaphs and bright brass plates. Mary, Queen of Scots, lies there, and her luckless grandson, Charles I. Henry V., "the warrior king," victor of Agincourt, dying in France, was brought home in 1422, and after a ten weeks procession in state through Paris, Boulogne and London, was laid to rest amid great ceremony. Hard by lies another warrior slain in France nearly 400 years later—the unknown Soldier—buried with far greater honors.

Though St. Paul's holds Nelson, Wellington and other great men, the abbey is richer in its tributes to the mighty. Soldiers, sailors, statesmen, scientists, artists, philanthropists, are commemorated in its dim aisles, and the names of bards in the sacred Poets' Corner. To-day none but those of highest merit may gain admittance to the abbey, but such was not always the case. Even a century ago the relatives of nonentities were able to erect memorials in the Confessor's hoary church. The visitor is amazed at the number of nobodies and even unknown people who are sometimes honored with pretentious monuments. Obviously these monuments cannot be removed, building lacks some memorial to the dead. Even the floor is dotted with carven epitaphs and bright brass plates. IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear Daddy Gordon Storey, who died on January 6th, 1925.

Though his loving voice is silent,
And his true heart ceases to beat.
Yes, we miss your well-known footsteps.
And the face we used to greet.
A better father never lived,
His equals are but few.
I cannot clasp your hand, dear dad,
But I often think of you.

DESMOND

The holiday season has passed and again we see the exchanging of greeting and intermingling of friends which brought the message of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to wards Men" to all. Our teacher, Miss Muriel Milligan, is to be congratulated on the training of the children for their Christmas Concert. Each one did his or her part very creditably.—Among the Christmas recess visitors we noticed Mr. Davy Drew and family, Tamworth at Mr. Geo. Drews; Mrs. Geo. Switzer, Brockville, and Mrs. Elgin Vanwest at Fred Switzers; Mrs. M. J. Switzer, Newburgh at Frank Switzers; Mr. Joe Tate and family at H. A. Bell's; Mr. and Mrs. McGillivray Aylesworth and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Aylesworth, of Toronto, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Aylesworth, Newburgh, during the Xmas holidays.—Mr. and Mrs. Cecil King, Moscow at Derval Haleys; Mr. and Mrs. Anthony McKurin and children visited a few days with friends in Tweed.—Mr. Frank Switzers entertained Mr. W. Wartman, Bath on New Years.—Mr. Richard Quinn is visiting friends at Brockville and Landsdowne.

MORVEN

The funeral service of the late Mr. Charles Fox was held in the White Church on Sunday afternoon, in charge of his pastor, Rev. W. R. Merrick, who spoke comforting words from the twenty third psalm. Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wilton have returned to their home after a pleasant week spent at Ivanhoe, Belleville and Morven.—Mrs. W. H. Milling is absent from home on a holiday visit.—Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Fralick and Harold visited Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Miller on New Year's Day.—Mr. Jas. Hawley visited his son in Kingston, recently.—The quarterly service will be held in the Brick Church on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

OBITUARY.

On December 14th, 1927, there passed to his reward Edward Milling, a much beloved Christian gentleman, only recently a citizen of our town, having spent almost all his life a successful farmer in the Township of Richmond.

Apparently in his usual health and cheerfulness, he was suddenly stricken, and, after a brief illness of two days, slipped peacefully away to the Great Beyond, leaving to mourn his loss his four children, Eugene, of Lindsay; Martha, at home; Mrs. Chrysler, Toronto, and Fred, Toronto. Mrs. Milling had gone on before eleven years ago. Two brothers and a sister also survive, John, Kingston Road; Robert, of San Jose, and Mrs. Flournoy, of Danville, California.

Mr. Milling was a man of unusual physical strength, boundless energy, and great perseverance in whatever he undertook. He had a very high standard of honor and justice, and was broadminded and kindly in spirit to all. Unselfishness and generosity characterized his everyday life in the home and in the community endearing him to those who knew him. Many years ago he was converted to God, and through the years, his religious life was marked by a simple, strong, ever-increasing faith and confidence in his God, and a deepening love and devotion for His cause.

Service was conducted at the home by Rev. Mr. Pawson, of Trinity United Church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Batstone, of Selby, and Rev. Mr. Anderson, of Newburgh, two former Pastors. Interment was made in the family plot at Riverside.

YARKER SOUTH.

(For last week).

Christmas passed very pleasantly, the weather and roads being ideal for the many family gatherings.—Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sanderson, of Yarker, spent Xmas Day at Cassen Davey's. — Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Love and family with their son, Milford, near Wilton.—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Huff and children and Mrs. M. Love at John Robinson's, at Camden East.—Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Curl with their granddaughter, Mrs. Kenneth Babcock, at Wilton. — Mr. Wesley Salisbury at Arthur Wilson's.—Miss Annie Love returned home on Saturday last to spend a week's holidays, after completing her course in Kingston Business College. — Several from here attended the euchre and dance at Camden East, on Tuesday last, and report it the best of the season.—Miss Ruby Davey, of Kingston, spent the holidays at her home here.—Mrs. M. Love and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Huff and children spent Monday with the former's niece, Mrs. Kenneth Martin, Wilton.

(For this week).

We were favoured with real cold weather for the ushering in of the new year.—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Newman, of Wilton; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Newman, of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Milford Love, of Wilton, and Mr. and Mrs. Gierman Wagar, of Newburgh, spent New Years Day at John Love's. — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Huff and children and Mrs. M. Love spent Sunday at Jas. Huff's.—Mr. and Mrs. Cassen Davey, and Mrs. Jane Davey and Ruby spent Sunday at Garman Ashley's, at Petworth.—Several from here attended the watch night service on Saturday night, in St. Luke's Church, Camden East. Despite the terrible rainy night a goodly number attended.

1928 was heralded in by a real snappy orchestra of wind and rain. Here's hoping we see some lovely warm weather now.—Miss Ruby Davy, of Kingston, spent New Years at home.—Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Huff, who were married recently.—Miss Annie Love returned to Kingston on Monday, where she has secured a position in the office of W. J. Fair, North American Life Insurance.—Mr. Wesley Salisbury has installed a radio.—The dances which have been held during the past week have been well attended.—Mr. and Mrs J. A. Love entertained at New Years dinner; Mr. and Mrs. J. Newman, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Newman, Mr. and Mrs. German Wagar, Newburgh; Mr. and Mrs. J. Bowman, Yarker; Mr. and Mrs. Milford Love, Wilton.

STRATHCONA

The December meeting of the W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Hoare. This meeting ended the nine months year of the missionary society, and reports from both Circle and Band were handed in. Our treasurers reported respectively, W. M. S. $126.00; Circle $87.00, and Band $26.00, making a total of $239.00; thus exceeding our allocation by $39.00. We are very glad to make this report and feel that our W. M. S. with its junior branches, the Circle and Band, has made a worthy effort this past year. The election of officers for the new year is as follows :—

Pres.—Mrs. Jas. Wilson.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. E. Rook.
Cor. Secty.—Mrs. Geo. Finlay.
Rec. Secty.—Mrs. Bruce Finlay.
Treas.—Mrs. Frank Luther.

The meeting closed with a social hour, refreshments being served by Mrs. Hoare.

TAMWORTH

Xmas was a beautiful day. The bright sunshine and snow made it very pleasant. Everyone seemed to enjoy the annual coming and going, partaking of the season's festivities.—The services in the churches were bright and in keeping with the season. —Rev. Mr. Irving, of Kingston, who has been in charge of the Anglican Church, took his Christmas dinner and spent the day at Mr. James Wheeler's. Also Captain Amey and Mrs. Amey, of Moscow.—Mr. and Mrs. George Reid, of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Reid, of Napanee, were guests of Mr. H. Reid, for the holiday.—The regular meeting of the Women's Institute met at Mrs. Redden's, on Thursday.

For Scalds or Burns.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is a standard remedy for the prompt treatment of scalds and burns. Its healing power quickly soothes the pain and aids a speedy recovery from the injury. It is also an excellent remedy for all manner of cuts, bruises and sprains, as well as for relieving the pains arising from inflammation of various kinds. A bottle in the house and stable saves many a doctor's and veterinary's fee.

Sure Sinkers.

"The late Ethan Allen Hitchcock," said a diplomat, "had a trenchant, outspoken way with him. Once at a reception I heard an inventor describing in his presence a new kind of warship.

"'This ship of mine,' the inventor said, 'is modeled on the duck.'

"'It dies, eh?' said Hitchcock.

"'No, no; of course it doesn't fly,' said the inventor impatiently; 'it isn't an aeroplane. It's a ship. But it goes over the water like a duck.'

"'Suppose an enemy fires at it?' said Mr. Hitchcock.

"'Then it dives like a duck,' replied the inventor.

"'Right out of sight?' said Mr. Hitchcock.

"'Right down to the bottom,' said the inventor proudly.

"'Humph!' said Mr. Hitchcock. 'Seems a good deal like those we have already, doesn't it?'"

GIFTS FROM THE KING.

When His Majesty "Visits" It Means Presents All Round.

Sometimes you will see articles in the newspapers telling how much it costs a member of Society's Inner Circle to entertain the King for a few days. Even for a shooting party, where, of course, simplicity is the keynote, the figures may astonish you.

But there is another side to the picture—what it costs his Majesty to visit one of his subjects.

Say that the King is at Bolton Abbey or Abbeystead for a shoot. First of all, a saloon is attached to the ordinary train. This is paid for out of the Privy Purse.

Then there are railway tickets. It is the duty of the Sergeant Footman to find out how many of the party are going, and then order tickets for everybody—the King included.

The Sergeant Footman occupies a highly responsible position, and the King knows his worth. He has been with his Majesty since the Marlborough House days.

Another trusted servant is the Superintendent of the Wardrobe. It is one of his duties to see that enough presents are taken along to enable the King to make gifts to everybody before leaving. No one must be forgotten.

From the station-master to the scullery-maid at the abbey, or wherever the King is staying, there is an appropriate gift for everyone. A station-master generally gets a scarf-pin in enamel, with the letters "G.V." engraved on it. If the Queen accompanies his Majesty, the legend on the pin is slightly different. In this case it is "G. M."

The host is never forgotten. He may receive a pin or cuff-links in diamonds, or a signed photograph of his royal guest.

All these gifts are made by London jewellers and submitted for approval. Then, if they are approved, an order is given. The Superintendent of the Wardrobe, who is really the valet, has a considerable say in placing these orders.

Other gifts are made as follows. The butler gets a enamel pin, and the chauffeur a silver watch, with "G.V." on the back. The underservants get money, notes being given to the housekeeper, who shares them out. The head keeper gets a pin.

Then, stable-hands generally get pipes; and sometimes the head chauffeur gets the medal of the M.V.O.

It costs his Majesty roughly £150 for a week at each of the "stately homes of England."

OUR NEXT ECLIPSE.

Already Our Scientists Are Making Plans For the 1954 Spectacle.

Those people who, last June, viewed the total eclipse of the sun, were told by the scientists that there was no possibility of our seeing another total eclipse before 1999, but Dr. C. A. Crommelin, the famous astronomer, until recently actively associated with Greenwich Observatory, has now announced that there will be another of these phenomena forty-five years earlier than that.

Though the total eclipse which Dr. Crommelin forecasts for 1954 will be practically complete in all parts of Great Britain, those living in the south and wishing to observe it in complete totality will have to journey further north than they did last June. The best observation point will be in Unst, one of the Shetland Islands.

It was Dr. Crommelin, in connection with Prof. Cowell, who worked out the progress of Halley's Comet from 240 B.C. to A.D. 1910, which was not a fraction wrong in nearly 2,200 years.

He has also given us some additional information regarding the eclipse of 1999. It appears that the totality belt on that occasion will embrace the southern half of Cornwall, as well as parts of Devonshire and Dorset, the belt being about sixty miles wide.

Air Notes.

Vancouver, B.C., will form a branch of the Canadian Air League.

A proposal of an air line from Halifax to New York is announced by Capt. Gibson of the Canadian Air Force as one of the progressive features of Halifax's development program.

Sir Philip Sasson, Under Secretary for Air in the British Government, reports that the first of the two huge 5,000,000 cubic feet dirigibles being built in England for inter-Imperial commercial communication will be completed in about two years and that the maiden trip will likely be to Canada.

Most Talkative M.P.

The most persistent speaker in the British House of Commons up to the adjournment for the summer recess was Mr. Winston Churchill, whose speeches filled 245 columns of Hansard. Sir Douglas Hogg is second in the list with 222, Mr. Lloyd George third with 168, and Commander Kenworthy fourth with 153 columns. The greatest number of oral questions answered by a Minister was 632, addressed to Sir William Joynson-Hicks.

Forests In Maritimes.

Three-quarters of the area of the Maritime Provinces is best suited for growing forests, and 65 per cent. of New Brunswick must continue to grow trees if it is to continue to produce a crop of any kind.

Straw Plaiting Dying Out.

Straw plaiting would seem to be a dying industry, as Luton, England, has now 30 straw platters as compared with 30,000 half a century ago.

An Ancient Drill.

The Egyptians invented a crank drill before 3,000 B.C.

Radio Accessories.

1 Tunger Battery Charger; 1 Balkite Battery Charger; also high grade Chargers at $5.00 each; 6 pairs Ear Phones at $2.00 a pair; 1 Northern Electric Radio, 5 tube, in good condition, for $25.00.

Saves Half the Operating Costs

Through the development of the new Westinghouse UX-201-B Radiotron, owners of the Westinghouse Model 57 can enjoy radio at half the former cost of charging "A" Batteries. This new Westinghouse tube consumes only half the filament current of similar tubes of equal power, consequently operating costs are cut in half.

This model is the greatest value in radio. Costs but $78.00, yet you get as much value as in a set at double the price. One dial control makes it the simplest to operate. Distant stations are brought in loud and clear. The tone is mellow and sweet, and for selectivity and sensitivity it sets a new record for moderate priced receiving sets.

Let us demonstrate the 57 in your home without cost or obligation.

The Count

By T. W. WYNDHAM

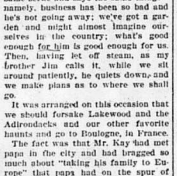
Copyright, 1923, by American Press Association.

WHEN we returned from our summer holiday last year we felt that we had spent it to great advantage. Besides the enjoyment we had derived from a trip to France, we secured the acquaintanceship—I might say the friendship—of the count. This fact acted like a match applied to the touch-wood of local esteem. But I must explain.

Every year about the end of July, when Pawtucket begins to pall upon us, we broach the subject of "going away" to papa. He always makes the same scene and says the same things—namely, business has been so bad and he's not going away; we've got a garden and might almost imagine ourselves in the country; what's good enough for him is good enough for us. Then, having let off steam, as my brother Jim calls it, while we sit around patiently, he quiets down and we make plans as to where we shall go.

It was arranged on this occasion that we should forsake Lakewood and the Adirondacks and our other favorite haunts and go to Boulogne, in France.

The fact was that Mr. Kay had met papa in the city and had bragged so much about "taking his family to Europe" that papa had on the spur of the moment declared that he had the same plan in view. The Kays live opposite us and consider themselves



"Helas, the gift is poor!"

"some one," though why I am sure I don't know unless it's because Mrs. Kay's brother is on the city council.

Papa was quite offhand about the matter.

"It will rub up the girls' French and give us all a thorough change of scene, Mario," he said to mamma. "I quite long to 'parley-voo' again and to taste some of those delicious little French dishes. Ah! I tell you, traveling enlarges the mind."

Adolph went off to smoke in high good humor.

We were recommended to a boarding house by the Kays. They assured us that "only the best people will be found there. We're often stayed there ourselves."

We engaged rooms and after a horrible crossing arrived at our destination. The "pension" was rather dingy and unprepossessing, and the "best people" were certainly very dull. They were mostly English, and they steadily avoided one another. If it had not been for a bright little Frenchwoman and her husband it would have been deadly, but we went about with them for the first few days, and then—the count came.

The whole place was in a flutter of excitement, and we were simply longing for the evening meal, when, as our portly landlady assured us, with bated breath and earrings twinkling from emotion, "M. le Comte de Marabout will give us the honor of his distinguished company. He is not proud, M. le Comte Mon Dieu, no! But an aristocrat—Jusqu'au bout des ongles! No nouveau riches for Antoinette Bannard! Bah! They should not show their noses inside her pension! Mais vous verrez, mam'selle, vous verrez—you shall acquaint yourself with elite of France. Attendons-jusqu'a ce soir."

And she bustled away in the voluminous bombazine which she had donned in honor of her illustrious guest. I was surprised to find a countess made so much of in a republican country, but then, as papa says, "traveling does enlarge the mind."

We smartened ourselves up a good deal for the evening. My sister Laura, who is very romantic—I think it must come from reading the Woman's Home Gazette, for it doesn't run in the family—made up all kinds of castles in the air while we were dressing. Suffice to say, distracted me that I heated the curling irons too hot and burned off my fringe. I was very vexed, for I knew that the count would never look at me with it. But as Jim called me, when he met us going down to dinner, And Laura looked particularly pretty that evening.

The count almost came up to our expectations. It's true he was rather short and inclined to embonpoint (that's a delightful word for "fat," which we learned from our trip abroad), but he had beautiful dark eyes and a very lovely waxed moustache and a little pointed beard and white hands, with two diamond rings on them. He sat opposite to us, and to our delight papa began a conversation with him over handing the sauce. (He had looked at Laura pretty often during dinner.) The whole dinner was over we were all on very friendly terms, and he spoke English very well, so we hadn't to trouble about French. I must add that, though papa had been so anxious to "parley-voo" again while we were still at Pawtucket, yet he never let us hear any of it. He always sent us on in front when he had to speak to a native.

Boulogne was quite a different place to us from the day the count came. He was our constant companion, and it was delightful to go about with a real live nobleman. We used to say "count" especially loud when we passed English people. It made them "sit up," as Jim said. It was a pity the count was so poor—papa always had to pay for him—but he used to surprise in such a charming way and bring us bunches of flowers (the flowers arranged in wreath of paper frilled with paper round them) and say: "I wish I could lay the treasure of the east at your feet, mesdemoiselles. How poor the gift is poor, but it is rich with thoughts of esteem and regard!" with more in the same strain, which Laura thought perfectly lovely. It was rather too poetical for me. The count told us that the reason he was so poor was that his estates were confiscated owing to the part his ancestors had played in some revolution or war, but he had a hewait on to recover them. He showed us photos of them, and they certainly looked beautiful.

I never saw papa so generous before. We were always driving or going for excursions. However, I heard him say to mamma after a certain very heavy lunch bill, "After all, one doesn't meet a count every day."

I had noticed his attentions to Laura, and I knew which way the wind blew.

But papa grew more and more enthusiastic as our friendship ripened. He used to dilate on the count's charming manners when we were alone.

"That's the advantage of associating with the aristocracy," he would say. "I'm a plain man myself, but I respect blood. Nobility of birth produces nobility of character and manners." Which sounded beautiful and made Laura blush.

Mamma also took a violent fancy to him. He spoke so feelingly, she said, of his mother, who was dead, and of marriage and a man's duty to a woman. And Laura blushed still more.

We were very sorry when our stay at Boulogne came to an end, for we feared our friendship with the count might end too. But he said he was coming over to "the States" on business (he looked at Laura as he said it), and he hoped that he would be permitted to visit one of those merchant princes in his home. You should have seen papa's face when he heard himself described as a merchant prince! Of course we said we should be delighted to see him, and we parted with many expressions of mutual regret. I don't know what he said to Laura as we walked to the station the morning we left, but I do know that he held her hand much longer than was necessary, although I pretended to look the other way. She was very silent and pensive on the home journey, and papa and mamma exchanged knowing nods. I knew mamma was picturing to herself the sensation it would cause in the neighborhood if her daughter were to become a lady of title. I also felt it would be distinctly pleasant to speak in an offhand way of "my sister the Countess de Marabout." I wasn't the least bit jealous of her triumph, because I really prefer Americans to foreigners, counts though they may be. There's a young man in the Pawtucket National bank—well, but that has nothing to do with the count.

The return journey did not seem as "flat" as usual since we had the count's visit to look forward to. Mamma contrived to let the Kays and old Miss Briggs know about it, and the news was all over Pawtucket in a few hours. I know that the Kays were green with envy. The girls, who had always been very stiff and condescending to us, took to dropping in on some pretext or other in the afternoon. We were quite nice to them, but we had our little turn at patronizing.

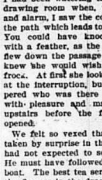
He held her hand.

Well, it happened that Laura and I wanted new blouses for the autumn, and we thought we might as well have them by the time the count came. So mamma answered a dressmaker's advertisement in the Herald, and we were so charmed with her when she called that we engaged her on the spot. She was quite unlike the usual dressmaker with goes out by the day. Miss Croft looked quite a lady. She was tall and pale, and she must have been very beautiful once. What struck us particularly, however, was her sad and spiritless air. Laura was much interested in her and, of course, invented a romantic story about her. We gave up our little sitting room at the end of the hall to her when she came to work, for, although the count appreciently regarded papa as a "merchant prince," I shouldn't call our house palatial. Laura and I took it in turns to help Miss Croft with the work, but I did not find her very companionable. With Laura, it appeared, she was different; but then, Laura has a way of drawing people out. In fact, one day Miss Croft told her history, which greatly relieved my sister's romantic soul. I confess it interested me not a little when Laura told it to me. It seemed that Miss Croft was married, but she had resumed her maiden name, as her marriage had been such an unhappy one and she wished her husband to lose all trace of her. Her parents had kept a hotel, and once when she came home for the holidays from boarding school a gentleman guest much above her in social position had paid her great attention and had eventually proposed to her.

Her parents were ambitious and were most desirous of the match, but she herself was not much attracted by him, though the difference in rank troubled her. He overcame all her misgivings, however, by protests that undying affection like his rendered difference in birth an empty phrase. So she consented, and her parents gave her a handsome dowry, for her husband was poor in worldly goods. He gave out, however, that [illegible] was ideal. She had a rude awakening. Her husband ran through all her money in a year, then ill treated her and finally deserted her. She refused to ask her parents for more. Just as she had reached this point of the story I broke in upon it. I had been watering the plants in the drawing room when, to my surprise and alarm, I saw the count walking up the path which leads to our front door. You could have knocked me down with a feather, as the saying goes. I flew down the passage to Laura, but we knew she would wish to change her frock. At first she looked a little cross at the interruption, but when I explained who was there she colored up with pleasure and managed to rush upstairs before the front door was opened.

We felt so vexed that we had been taken by surprise in that untidy state as we expected to see him so soon. He must have followed us on the next boat. The best tea service wasn't out, the flowers in the drawing room were faded, and we hadn't our new blouses after all. Still, things always do happen "contrariwise," and it didn't really matter, for the count was just as charming and amiable.

He professed himself charmed with our house, and his compliments were just as flowery. While we were at tea (young Peters, a great admirer of Laura's, came in, and the count looked quite jealous when he called Laura by her name. I must say that Peters didn't seem quite at his ease in the presence of a nobleman and appeared rather suspicious of our familiarity with him. The climax of our triumph, however, was when Ethel Kay came in. When we introduced her to the count she seemed to be overcome with confusion and addressed a remark to her she colored up and grew so confused that she could hardly answer. It was delightful to be able to show her how easily and unconcernedly we treated aristocracy.



"Laura is engaged to the count."

For the next few days we saw as much of the count as we did in Boulogne, and the Kays fairly writhed when they saw how attentive he was to Laura. Mrs. Kay swept our dining room all day long with her opera glasses and sent the two girls in at all hours of the day with trivial messages, but it was of no avail. On the fifth day after his arrival the count, who was boarding near us, sent a note round to papa, and in the evening he came and was shut up with papa for a long while in his study. Then Laura was summoned, and papa and mamma and I were on tenterhooks till papa burst into the room, very red in the face and excited, and exclaimed:

"Laura is engaged to the count!"

We quite expected it, and still we were very excited. A titled son and brother in law was beyond our wildest dreams!

Papa said the count had spoken so beautifully when he asked for Laura's hand. He had compared woman to the tender fern, which man, the strong forest tree, must shelter and protect from the storms of the world. He would be able, he said, to surround her with luxuries fit for a princess when the lawsuit should be decided in his favor. Meanwhile they would live the happiest of lives on the princely allowance which his "illness and dear Laura papa" had decided to confer upon them, from which I gather that papa had, as Jim terms it, "coughed up" to a considerable amount. Still, no one could blame him for sacrificing something to such an alliance. After all —though I wouldn't own it to the Kays—papa used to serve in the store.

Well, the news didn't take long to travel round Pawtucket, and the next day the papers were filled with it, and a whole host of congratulatory visitors poured in. We were the sensation of Pawtucket, and it was an hour of unalloyed triumph. Mamma sat in state in her best satin dress, and the front lauded round the room, highlighted every one by his affability. Many people who had patronized us for years and had only honored us by a call once a year looked in to see "the lion" and were most gushing. Such is the way of the world.

When every one except the Kay girls had gone and we were feeling quite tired out some one proposed a stroll in the garden. The suggestion was eagerly welcomed. We had to pass through our little sitting room, where Miss Croft was fixing an evening frock of Laura's, for the count was going with us to a dance the next evening.

As we came in Miss Croft rose in a deprecating way. The count and Laura had fallen behind the rest of us, but I heard him saying in his soft foreign accents as they entered the room, "I am much enchanted, my dearest Laura, to make the acquaintance of your boudoir—if anything that belongs to you, my goddess."

I was stooping to unbolt the door which led to the garden when a sudden sharp cry from Miss Croft made me look round.

"Pierre!"

The count started and looked at her for the first time. He grew pale; his jaw fell. We stood breathless, but the next second he recovered.

Laura was the first to speak. Her hand rested in the count's.

"What is the matter, Miss Croft?" she said. "Do you know my fiance?"

Miss Croft tottered.

"God forgive him!" she gasped. "He is my husband!"

I don't know what happened then. A confused cry broke from every one, for the count had fled like a flash of lightning, gained the hall door and, hatless and coatless, rushed out of the house. His guilt was evident—he had condemned himself. With the utmost difficulty we restrained papa from following him. There is no knowing what he might have done in his rage. But how describe the scene? Poor Laura fainted, and the two Kay girls, who had stood open mouthed and bewildered, stole quietly out.

I cannot write. The incident is too recent, the wound too fresh. But if this serve as a warning to others it will not have been written in vain. I need only add that young Peters looked very happy, and papa has become violently socialistic.

Oh, but that was a grand day for the Kays in Pawtucket!

What a College Girl Can Do.

The college girl who lives in a small town has perhaps the greatest power for influence. Her education and experience raise her to a position which commands the respect of those others who have not had her advantages, and this position she should use not as an excuse for egotism or self sufficiency, but as a means of accomplishing reforms in the life of the community. Starting a village improvement society is an excellent way of interesting people in their surroundings and opens to many an entirely new world—a world which teaches that the useful is not necessarily the ugly and that environment is the inspiration of action. Beautifying the village or town is bound to bring the citizens together in a new and more intimate association and does much to abolish those dens of vice which flourish under the aspect, but the moral life of a town.

Of course this is but one phase of civic improvement; there are many others. In the factory town especially there is a wide scope for the college bred woman's activity. There is no reason why the factory town should be unsightly or why the employees of the factory should live in ugly, insanitary dwellings; no reason why the women of the town should not be roused to interest in their surroundings and, above all, to self respect.

The woman of education owes it to her less fortunate sister to encourage that feeling of self respect which lies dormant in the breasts of so many factory women. Give them the vision of something broader and higher than is comprehended in their own horizon and they will try to conform their lives to it.

MEDICINE AND SURGERY.

Rules of To-day Were In Vogue In India Centuries Before Christ.

An interesting story of surgical practices which would seem to show that many of the rules of to-day were in vogue in India before civilization dawned in Europe is told by Dr. David C. Muthu in "A Short Account of the Antiquity of Hindu Medicine."

In the course of fifty pages Dr. Muthu relates some curious facts about the practice of medicine and surgery among Hindus in times when Western civilization knew practically nothing of either. Suruta, who lived many centuries before Christ, had a knowledge of anesthetic properties which we did not acquire until the last century. "The sick-room should be fumigated with the vapors of cedronus gums, etc., and incense should be burnt in the operating room, and after the wounds sterilized by fumigation."

Clean hands and boiled water for the surgeon were advocated by Suruta. Indeed, Dr. Muthu proves that in many ways he anticipated Lister.

The other great discovery of modern surgery—the use of anaesthetics —was not unknown to Hindus. They used the fumes of burning Indian hemp as a anaesthetic at remote periods. "In A.D. 927 a cranial operation was performed on King Bhojo of Dhar by two brother surgeons, who made the king insensible by a drug called samobini, trephined the skull, removing a growth from the brain, closed the opening and stitched the wound. Another drug (sanjivani) was given to restore consciousness after the operation."

Had Private Mints.

Both housewives and police would have something to say against the tradesman of to-day who gave change to his customers in home-made money; but in the good old days of Queen Anne, as a recent find at Dartmouth, England, recalls.

This is a coin dated 1662 and bearing a tradesman's name. Such tokens evidently were issued very extensively in the seventeenth century, and some of them were still current even in the nineteenth. For instance, eighty-three traders in Exeter issued their own tokens in the seventeenth century, but Manchester and Liverpool could only muster twenty-five such shopkeepers between them, and Brighton only had two.

He Was a Wise One.

A certain man in a country town owns a row of houses, and in one of them lives a married son of his who is noted for his parsimonious habits.

This had got to such a pitch that for several years his father had been using to get a single penny of the rent due to him.

As he did not want to take harsh measures he at last went to his son and said:

"Look here, Tom. It's plainly no use my trying to get any rent out of you for that house of mine, so I've decided to give it to you."

"No fear," interposed the son. "I shan't have it."

"Why not, pray?" exclaimed the astonished parent.

"Because then," replied the unabashed son, "I'd have to pay the taxes, and goodness knows they are heavy enough in this town."

REAL ROBOTS.

Endless Possibilities Are Opened Up By a New Wonder-Machine.

The latest marvel of 1927 is a real robot—a machine that obeys spoken commands and, still more wonderful, can reply to spoken questions.

Machines that come into action at the word of command are not altogether new, but up to the present they have been interesting scientific toys rather than anything more practical. For instance, an automatic dog was produced some time ago. He was kept in a small kennel and would run out when called by name. It has also been found possible to make an "Arabian Nights" mingle come true, and to produce a mechanism that opens a door at the words "Open Sesame."

But the new invention, which was demonstrated by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at New York the other day, has a wider range. The televox, as this super-machine has been named by Mr. R. J. Wensley, the Westinghouse engineer who invented it, is practically a mechanical man. When ordered it will switch on a series of lights, start an electric fan, turn on a searchlight or a signal lamp, and so on.

These orders need not be given in person in the same room or workshop as the "robot"—the commands can be transmitted by telephone over any distance and will be promptly obeyed.

A very interesting application of the new invention has already been made. The reservoirs which contain the water supply of the United States capital were formerly looked after by watchmen; now three of the "robots" are employed at this work. When questioned over the telephone these machines report how high the water is in any of the reservoirs. They then, on receiving an instruction, either raise or lower the level.

It is easy to visualize further possibilities, says a writer in Answers. Where lighthouses are situated on the mainland and there are difficulties in getting provisions and stores to the keepers in stormy weather, it might be found convenient to replace the human watchers with wireless-controlled televox machines.

Then many readers will remember the wonderful results obtain recently by Major Raymond Phillips in sound control of model trains.

All these developments lend point to the prophecy recently made by the Italian savant, Signor Azari, when he declared that the machine was destined to relieve humanity from the slavery of manual labor and definitely to eliminate poverty and all traces of class struggle."

CURIOUS MARRIAGE CUSTOM.

Indian Must Steal His Bride While Parents Make a Great Fuss.

Much among the Santal tribe of the Amazon river is a curious business. The young man brings presents to the parents of the girl he wishes to wed, then institute a great festival, in the course of which the father-in-law solemnly gives the girl to the prospective bridegroom. The girl wanders down to the river near the village, and the bridegroom, who has sprung into a canoe, and paddles away.

The father and mother of the bride rush down to the river and wail and howl over the loss of their daughter, although they really consider themselves very lucky to have got the girl safely married.

There is no divorce. Theoretically, the man and woman are free to get rid of each other, but there is no great difference in their position. The man can, it is true, send his wife packing at any moment; but this is considered a great insult, not only to the woman, but also to the woman's tribe, and without real justification such a proceeding is likely to lead to a tribal war, and seldom occurs. On the other hand, if a woman returns to her own people no tribal offence can be taken, as it is considered the man must be very wicked indeed to cause his wife to desert him.

Lamp Detective.

A lamp, manufactured by a German, gives out invisible rays that read secret writing, test foods, and detect forgeries.

The ultra-violet lamp is made of quartz, to permit the passage of ultra-violet light, and is equipped with a filter which absorbs all the visible rays of the spectrum. When the powerful "black light" of the lamp falls on any one of a large class of substances, the substance "tells its story" by giving off a deep violet, green, or brilliant orange light.

Different kinds of papers glow with different shades of ultra-violet rays, depending on how, and of what, they are made. Thus it is easy to detect the substitution of bank-notes or rare postage-stamps by comparing under the rays the one in doubt with others known to be authentic.

500 Feet Down.

A specially-built schooner will sail from San Francisco shortly with an expedition to the west coast of Mexico. Mr. G. W. Williamson, who assisted in filming Jules Verne's Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," will be one of three men who will be lowered to a depth of 500 feet in a steel ball-shaped chamber, fitted with heavy glass portholes, to make a study of deep-sea life 500 feet below the surface. A series of descents will be made in different localities, and it is hoped to carry out a number of research investigations.

Seals and Sea Lions Increasing.

Seals and sea lions are increasing so rapidly on the coast of California that the fishing industry is seriously menaced. In at least one American State an official hunter is employed to exterminate them.

CAREER OF A CONDIMENT

Mustard Was In Use Over 3,000 Years Ago—Effective Remedy for Various Ills.

The discoverer of the valuable properties of mustard is unknown, but the earliest reference we have that it was in use three thousand years ago. Tribute must be paid to Aesculapius, the god-physician, who proclaimed to the people of his time the value of mustard as an effective remedy for various ills and as a powerful brain stimulant.

Romans used mustard extensively as a medium and knew its virtues as a liniment, an embrocation, a poultice, an emetic, and so on. They also fermented the seeds in a fiery kind of spirit not unlike brandy, and the liquor produced they called "mustum ardens"—burning wine. From "mustum" we get our word "mustard!"

The date of the introduction of mustard into the Old Country cannot be fixed, but it was in general use in the thirteenth century, for household accounts of the period show that it was distributed to retainers and adherents by feudal lords and abbots. But the mustard of those times was not the commodity we know to-day.

Seeds were brought to table as crown, and users had to crush them on their plates and mix the coarse particles with vinegar or water. This was no easy task, for the seeds is hard and awkward to handle. Some people carried mustard seeds in their pockets and chewed them.

It was a Mrs. Clements, of Durham, who in 1720 first conceived the idea of grinding the seed in the same way as wheat. Her "Durham Mustard" rapidly became noted and received royal patronage. To the time of her death she preserved the mystery which surrounded her simple process of manufacture.

A few years after her death a young East Anglian miller had to make a business decision. After ten years at a mill on the outskirts of Norwich he had prospered sufficiently to acquire a larger one in a neighboring village. This mill had been a paper factory, but was then manufacturing mustard on a small scale, and the young miller had to decide between paper and mustard.

His choice was mustard, and his name was Jeremiah Colman. "Old Jeremiah," as he lived to be affectionately called. The vast business at Carrow, Norwich, with its 5,000 employes, is the result of his choice. Not far from the site of the mill is a mustard-making town covering thirty-two acres.

Two main species are cultivated—the black and the white. The latter, which most of us have grown with cress, is not at all valuable as the black, which is the most important component of the familiar yellow tins. Black mustard requires a rich soil, and for that reason the Fens is now the chief growing area. Experiments have proved that a blend of the two varieties, after the seeds have been treated separately, makes the best condiment. As a softener and a preservative a certain quantity of the finest wheaten flour, specially grown, is added.

The mustard fields are reaped after the blossoms have fallen, and the first step after the seed arrives at the works is grading. Then the seed is crushed; the husks are broken up and the yellow powder within is extracted. The powder is full of intensity portions, and is sieved through the finest silk.

Refining done, there comes the blending—a secret process—and then it is ready for packing by skilled labor cooperating with ingenious machinery. No hand touches the mustard.

Mustard is valuable because the seeds contain so many chemical substances which act differently, powerfully but harmlessly, on the organs of the body. Thus it is the finest natural digestive.

200 Apples Per Head Per Year.

Britons eat, on an average, 120 apples per head of the population every year, while in the United States and Canada the average stands at 200.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Forester.

Mrs. John Forester, whose maiden name was Jane Fralick, was born in the Township of Fredericksburgh, on the 27th day of December, 1849, and died at her home in the Village of Latta, on Wednesday morning, December 27th, 1927, in the 77th year of her age.

In early life the deceased was converted to God, identified herself with the Methodist Church, entered heartily into its activities, and until her demise, remained faithful to all its interests and services. She was kind, courteous, and unassuming, and much beloved by all to whom she was known.

At the age of 22 years she was united in marriage to Mr. John Keller, of Ernest, Victoria County, and blessed by two children, namely Frank Keller, of Buffalo, N.Y., and Mary T. Keller, of Guelph, Ont.

On March 15th, 1884, having passed through the sorrows of widowhood she became the wife of Mr. John Forester, of Bath, which union was also blessed by four daughters, namely Margaret, of Niagara Falls; Edith, of Edmonton; Mrs. Irene Stevenson, of Windsor, Ont., and Mrs. Allison, of Scolpmustown.

For the past two years the deceased lady had been failing in health, but only very recently was able to be about her varied domestic duties, take part in some of the church activities, and never failed to find her way to the house of God.

On Saturday evening, November 19th, she was taken suddenly ill, and although all was done that medical skill and faithful nursing could devise, on the morning of December 7th, God counted her and she fell asleep to awake on a fairer morning, and rise into the white light of an endless day. Her passing was calm and beautiful, and no struggle marked the wondrous change.

The funeral service was conducted by her Pastor, Rev. G. E. Ross, M.A., of Bath Pastoral Charge, and was held in the United Church, of which deceased was a member. We spend our years as a tale that is told", were the beautiful words upon which the speaker based his address; the music by the Choir was also most fitting to the occasion. After the service the funeral cortege proceeded to the Morven cemetery, where the remains were laid to slumber until the resurrection of the Just, the following acting as pall-bearers: Messrs. John Creighton, G. A. Wartman, Geo. Loyst, D. Robinson, J. Cuppage and A. Tompkins.

The following remain and mourn the departure of a loving wife and tender and devoted mother: Frank and Mary T. Keller, Margaret and Edith Forester, Mrs. Irene Stevenson and Mrs. Allison. Those loved ones will ever twine their united sympathy with cords of tender affection around a bereaved husband and father.

Melissa Lake.

On Christmas Day, there passed away at the home of her nephew, Mr. Charles Amey, at Yarker, Melissa Lake, the last surviving member of the family of Mr. George Lake, of Hallowell. The deceased lady was in her usual good health until a few days before her death, when she had the misfortune to fall, breaking her hip, and in spite of all that medical skill and loving care could accomplish, she passed peacefully away four days later.

Miss Lake was predeceased by her parents, two brothers and three sisters. She was born at Moscow in 1847, and is a Methodist in religion.

In the absence of Rev. G. McKenzie, the funeral service conducted by Rev. R. W. Spencer, of Camden East, who gave a beautiful address, taking as his text "The days of our years are three score years and ten and if by reason of strength they be four score years, yet is their strength, labour and sorrow." The remains were placed in the vault to await interment in the family plot at Moscow cemetery in the spring. Beautiful floral tributes were given by nieces, nephews and friends.

The deceased was of a very affectionate disposition, and was never happier than when surrounded by her friends and relatives. The pall-bearers were her three nephews, Morley Huffman, of Moscow; Charles Amey, of Yarker, and Frank Amey, of Toronto; her three great nephews, Claude Huffman, and Allan Huffman, Moscow, and Dr. Ralph Huffman, of Toronto.

"Well, perhaps it is, dad, but it strikes me you have done pretty well anyway."

BOSUN'S BOX OF TRICKS.

Legend Has It That This Wonder House Contains Everything.

When you go to sea, the part of a ship which most arouses your curiosity is the bosun's locker, says a writer in Tit-Bits. The bosun is the vessel's magician; his locker is a marine magical box—the Mecca to which sailormen flock when they need any gear.

Legend has it that this wonder house contains everything. No sailor would join a ship that did not possess a bosun's locker.

Here the deck hands and stewards drew everything concerned with the cleaning of cabins and decks—hoses, squeegees, buckets, brooms, soap, seda and sand. Here are flags and fireworks; paints, oils, tools, shackles, chains, hooks, nets, spikes, and spares of every kind for ordinary purposes and emergencies.

When a captain was called to officiate at an ocean wedding, it was found there was no ring for the bride. The bosun supplied the ring. True, it was only a brass eyelet; but it served.

In the old days the boatswain, or boatman, was responsible for the complete construction of the small boats which every ship carried, and for all repairs on the vessel herself. Even to-day no ship damaged at sea could possibly reach port if she did not carry a bosun's locker.

The lockers vary according to the craft. Windjammers, tankers, yachts, tramps, liners, and battleships each have requirements of their own. One ship may carry trawling nets or divers' gear, another has huge slings for hauling elephants aboard.

One is given to think of the locker as a dark hole stuffed with rope, sails, tallow, and lamps, but that of a modern vessel is a big affair.

When anything is lost, the loser is invariably chaffed with the information that what he is seeking will be found in the bosun's locker.

Tradition would seem to justify the joke. Once a corpse that had been missing for several days was found "laid out" among old coils of rope on the fo'k'sl port shelf of the bosun's locker.

MARRIED TO A TREE.

Peculiar Custom of Certain Tribes in India.

There are certain tribes in India the male members of which sometimes contract marriage with a tree. When a man loses two wives by death and wants to marry a third, the fear lurks that she too may die. So before the marriage the man is married to a banana tree or some other plant. All the ceremonies pertaining to an actual marriage are gone through, and at the end the tree it cut down and mourned over. Now the way is clear for the man's real marriage, the new wife being considered immune from evil influences.

From Bombay comes news of an extraordinary wedding ceremony at Bardoli, near Ahmedabad, the principals being a Brahmin girl and a pipal tree, the sacred fig of India.

The girl became blind through smallpox at the age of six, and her father, knowing that no one would accept her in marriage, expressed the desire before he died last year, that she should wed a pipal tree. He advised her to stay at home all her life, dedicating her spare moments to the contemplation of Divine Providence.

A caste dinner was held in honor of the marriage, which was celebrated with the prescribed Hindu rites.

Sometimes when a suitable husband for a girl cannot be obtained, she is married to a sword, a bow and arrow, a grinding-stone, or other inanimate object. She is thus freed from the reproaches which would otherwise be showered on her by her fellow people, for in India marriage is regarded as a sacred duty which must be entered into by every man and woman.

Good News for Farmers.

A wet season usually means a bad time for farmers, but there is hope, however, that a wet season will not be so serious for them in future, if an invention referred to by the Marquess of Lincolnshire at a recent agricultural show in England proves successful.

When seed and corn crops cannot be dried out of doors, as is usual in fine weather, they can, by this new method, be brought into a barn and heaped around hot-water pipes, which soon dry them with the aid of an electric fan that drives hot air through the crops. Ten tons of oats can be dried in eight hours by this method.

Day Getting Shorter.

Every hundred years the earth's day gets shorter by a minute fraction of a second. In a recent lecture on the eclipse of the sun, Sir Frank Dyson, the Astronomer Royal, told of investigations by two Cambridge astronomers.

They proved that the earth's day is getting shorter by one-thousandth part of a second in one hundred years. This, it is said, is due to the action of the tides, which form a sort of friction belt and cause a noticeable check in the earth's rotation.

200-Year-Old Carp.

A carp said to be about 200 years old has been caught in the pond in the Long Water at Hampton Court, England. It weighed nearly 16 pounds, and was caught with a cheap rod and line with bread as bait.

Twelve Thousand Parts.

When a motorist changes gear awkwardly, he is ill-treating between 500 and 1,000 parts; there are 12,000 parts in a mass-produced automobile.

Grow While They Sleep.

A doctor says that the growth of children takes place entirely when they are asleep.

Mineral Area Discovered.

A new mineral area, thought to be rich in lead, zinc, silver and gold is reported discovered in Northern Manitoba, north of Mile 200 on the Hudson Bay Railway and farther east than any outstanding mineral property discovered in Northern Manitoba.

YOUNG WOMEN SUFFER MOST

These Two Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ayer's Cliff, Quebec.—"I have been teaching for three years, and at the end of the year I always feel tired and have no appetite. I was a wreck each month, too, having pains in my back until sometimes I was obliged to stop working. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I heard many women telling how good it was so I thought it would help me. And it did. Now I take six bottles every year and recommend it to others."—DONALDA FANTEUX, Ayer's Cliff, Quebec.

"Unable to Work"

Canning, Nova Scotia.—"I had irregular periods and great suffering at those times, the pains causing vomiting and fainting. I was teaching school and often for some hours I would be unable to attend to my work. Through an advertisement in the papers I knew of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has been of great benefit to me, the trouble being completely relieved."—LAURA J. EATON, Canning, King's County, Nova Scotia. C

"QUICK" PROFITS.

Some Workshops Find It Pays to "Go Slow."

A trade film shown in England a few weeks ago proved beyond doubt how pace pays in the laundry industry. By the aid of the latest high-speed machinery, the cost of washing has been reduced to a little more than half what it was formerly.

The modern automobile is a wonderful example of mass production, and mass production depends on speed. Some years ago considerable interest was caused by a description of how an automobile was built in twenty-five minutes in certain United States works. Shortly afterwards, this feat was eclipsed on the other side of the Atlantic, a car was built in eleven minutes, and put on the road in nineteen minutes from the start of operations.

A firm of chain makers, whose works are near Manchester, England, found that they were being undersold by foreign competitors. Instead of giving up in disgust, they standardized all their tools, started a store in which were kept sets of tools ready sharpened for every job, and installed an electric bell on each machine.

Whenever a tool needed renewing, the man in charge of the machine had only to ring. A boy came hurrying, took away the worn-out tool away, and brought a fresh one.

Then the firm made a study of output hour by hour during the day, and, nothing that it fell away during the latter part of the afternoon, made the men break off for fifteen minutes and supplied them with milk.

The result was that output has been doubled.

"Going slow" may increase output. Short rests in the middle of the morning and afternoon freshen up the workers and actually make them do more. The British Industrial Fatigue Research Board discovered this fact during the war, and now hundreds of firms are acting upon it. One firm that employs girls in teams of six has found that these rest pauses have increased output from forty-five to seventy-five per cent.

Workers who are keen, interested, well-fed, and not over-tired do three times as much as the old-fashioned, take-it-easy sort.

Some of the quickest work to be seen anywhere in England is at the Wolverton works of the L. M. S. Railway, where twelve-ton covered goods wagons are being turned out at the rate of one every hour and three-quarters. In this brief times the various parts are shaped, cut, drilled, painted, and assembled, and the complete vehicle put on the rail.

THE LAND-YACHT.

Advantages of a Home With Those of a Motor-Car.

Combining the advantages of a home with those of a motor-car, a land-yacht claimed to be a home on wheels was seen at the recent Motor Show in England. The vehicle, which has five compartments, gives one the impression of touring in a house. At the back are two single berth cabins each with a seven-foot bed, wardrobe drawers, a commodious hand-basin cupboard, and usual dressing-table fittings.

The living room can accommodate five people for meals at a centre table, the top of which lifts up. Underneath is an aluminium washing sink, with hot water and "run away." Cooking, water-heating, and lighting are also done by electricity supplied from a special power plant.

Between the living room and the sleeping berths are two more rooms, one a well-equipped kitchen with oven, the other containing a standing lavatory basin. The whole vehicle weighs less than half a ton, is eighteen feet long, and does not look cumbersome on the road. It might almost be taken for a small omnibus. The price of the body is £300.

No Gold Coins In Palestine.

The new money in use in Palestine bears inscriptions in English, Arabic, and Hebrew. There are no gold coins; the "pound" is a paper note, with silver and copper coins.

Earth's Coldest Spot.

The earth's coldest spot is Verkhoyansk, Siberia, just within the Arctic Circle, which experienced 90.4 degrees below zero in January, 1885.

Speed of Moon.

The moon's speed in its orbit is 2,288 miles an hour.

YARKER

The regular meeting of the Yarker-Colebrooke Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Cowdy on Wednesday, Dec. 21st, with twenty-nine present. The meeting opened with the Ode. Roll Call was answered by a "do" and a "don't" for the kitchen. It was decided to hold the social evening in the League Hall, for which the Institute pays $5.50. A hearty vote of thanks was to be tendered to Mr. Alfred Martin for his kindness in typing several copies of a play for the Institute.

The Course on Food Values was discussed, and Mrs. Leonard, Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Harold Freeman were appointed a Committee to look after it. It was decided to hold this class in Mr. Cowdy's Hall, January 16th.

An address was given by our Provincial representative, Mrs. John Shibley, of Harrowsmith, on the subject "Good Citizenship", and was much enjoyed by all.

Letters of appreciation for fruit sent them during their illness were received from Mrs. Switzer and Mrs. Curran.

Refreshments were served and the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem. The next meeting will be held in Cowdy's Hall.

Seven new members were added to the roll, making a total of thirty-nine members.

The social evening held by the W. I. in the League Hall, on December 26th, was a decided success, as the hall was packed, and the proceeds were in the neighborhood of $37.00, although the admission fee was small. — Misses Hazel Amey and Marion Freeman have returned to their respective schools at Croydon and Humberstone, after spending their holidays at their homes.—Miss Hattie Amey has returned to Toronto, where she is attending the Shaw Business College.—Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane, are visiting his parents.—Rev. Mr. McKenzie has returned from a short vacation. — Mr. Frank Amey and Dr. Ralph Huffman, of Toronto, attended the funeral of their aunt, the late Miss Melissa Lake, on Thursday.—A baby girl has come to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kozah Lee.

TAMWORTH WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

A special meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Bruce Richardson on Monday evening, Jan. 2nd. The meeting opened with the President, Mrs. V. R. McCallum, in the chair. The usual ode was sung, the minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted, and then the business was discussed.

It was decided that the Institute hold a birthday tea on Tuesday, Jan. 3rd, between the hours of five and seven. A progressive euchre party will be held at eight o'clock of the same day.

Owing to the intended departure of the President, the following address was read by Mrs. Huffman:

To our President.

Dear Mrs. McCallum,—We, the members of the Women's Institute of Tamworth, approach you this evening to express the personal regard and respect you have merited during the three years you have given your services as President of this Institute.

Your kindly forbearance has been a means of drawing us into a closer relationship as Institute workers and will leave grateful memories of your kindness and sympathy in all our associations of the past.

Let us, therefore, assure you of our heartfelt appreciation of your willingness and noble example to co-operate in all our Institute work, and now that you are about to move from our midst we desire to show in a more tangible form our good will on your behalf. We therefore ask you to accept this purse, not for its intrinsic value, but as a token of good will, and may the gracious Father vouchsafe for you an inheritance in the Heavenly Kingdom when life and its work ends below.

Wishing you the choicest of blessings and a prosperous and happy New Year, and that all your career in this life may be crowned with joy.

Signed by
MRS. J. W. SHIER.

"B" CO., FRONTENAC REGT. RE-UNION

The Officers and members of "B" Co., Frontenacs, "blew the lights out" of the old year, and welcomed the New Year in, in the good old army style. The tables were artistically decorated, and a bright Christmas tree blended with the red decorations on the table, forming the letters FRONTENAC. The usual two-minute silence was observed, after which the waiters got busy, and as the platters, well filled with goose, were placed on the tables, the "boys" took the offensive, and the slaughter that followed, left no doubt as to who won the war.

Capt. H. L. Babcock, the O.C., gave a short address on the history of the Frontenac Regiment.

Lieut. Mills proposed a toast to "The Canadian Militia", responded to by Capt. Babcock. Reg. Wiseman then favored the boys with a solo.

A very pleasing incident followed, when Lieut. Mills, on behalf of the Company, presented Sergt. Richardson with a travelling bag. "Nemo" was taken completely by surprise, but thanked the boys for their useful gift.

Lieut. MacGillivray was then called upon, and the stories he told will be found in another column.

The next item on the program was a cornet solo by Chas. Cornwell, Lieut. Paul then gave a humorous reading.

Percy Robinson, an old favourite, also spoke; and Sergt. Allan, one of the original members, did his "bit", and proved himself an old campaigner when it comes to shifting goose.

The singing of patriotic songs and speeches was carried on until the midnight hour, and as the bells struck twelve, the members joined hands, and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne", followed by a toast to the King, put the finishing touches to a perfect night.

GRACE CHURCH CONGREGATIONAL MEETING

The annual Congregational meeting of Grace United Church was held on Wednesday night. After devotional exercises led by the minister, reports were given by the various organizations. Mrs. Stanley Wales reported for the Ladies' Aid, and Mrs. F. L. Hooper for the Women's Missionary Society. The latter organization reached their financial objective with a safe margin. The Young People's League was reported for by Mr. Fred B. Russell, and Mr. Wilfrid G. Smith, Treasurer of the Sunday School, gave its standing. The enrollment stands at 400, and the average attendance 261. This year the envelope system was adopted, which has exceeded all expectations in financial results, enabling all accounts to be paid and a balance on hand. The various Adult Bible Classes were reported by Mr. R. B. Allen, Miss Violet Hall, Mr. Chas. N. Loucks, and Mr. Escott Rose, and the Mission Circle by Miss E. Vanalstyne. The report of the Treasurer of the Church, Mr. O. S. Reddick, showed that while the church began the year with a considerable overdraft, the splendid response through the Duplex Envelope system had resulted in the year closing with a splendid balance on the right side of the ledger. Mr. J. W. Hanaby Treasurer of the Maintenance and Extension Fund, reported the amount sent to headquarters, and it was stated while the church was somewhat behind in its allotment, due to the extra effort put forth for the renovation fund, beginning the new year the prospects were bright. Mr. H. Dunbar gave a statement of the Renovation Fund. While all accounts were not yet in, it was estimated that the total cost of the renovation of the Sunday School rooms, and other repairs to the building, would be $3500. The amount has been raised with the exception of about $300, for which provision will be made.

The reports were interspersed by music rendered by Mr. Reginald Wiseman, Mrs. Harold Denison, Mrs. B. M. Ketcheson, Mr. Bert Seymour.

A very hearty vote of appreciation was given to Rev. and Mrs. W. P. Woodger by the congregation for their leadership and inspiration received during the year, which was responded to by Mr. Woodger.

After the benediction, refreshments were served by the ladies.

Market and Police—Geo. J. Tustin, Chairman; E. O. Ungar, J. M. Simpson.

On motion Mayor Roy, Reeve Boyes, and Councillors Simpson, Daly and Loucks were appointed members of the Court of Revision.

On motion the Council adjourned until 7.30 p.m.

Council met at 7.30 p.m., as per adjournment.

In the absence of the mayor, Mayor Roy in the chair.

Coun. H. J. Dumbrille opened the session with prayer.

Mayor Roy's Inaugural Address.

To the Reeve and Councillors for 1928 I extend a hearty greeting.

I am pleased very much to again be with you for another year, although I had planned otherwise, but I found it impossible to resist what I might term the insistence of a great many prominent citizens that I again take the chief magistrate's chair, especially as there are two important works yet unfinished, the first being the Town Hall alterations and improvements, which I am now sure will be carried out in a very satisfactory manner. The plans and specifications should be in the hands of the Town Property Committee at once, so they can thoroughly go over them, making any alterations necessary, so when the contract is let there will be as few changes as possible. Tenders should be advertised and everything made ready, so building can be commenced early in the spring. The second is the much needed change and improvement in our street lighting system, the cost of which I hope will be made at once, so when the automobile traffic east and west starts it will be established.

With these questions settled we should have a very successful and economical year. I would advise the Council to go slow with any expenditures outside those actually necessary.

At the present time our town is in excellent condition, financially and otherwise. Our streets appropriation should be cut down considerably this year owing to the paving done last year. The unforseen expenditures should be small. The fire hall should be completely done over. The lot of the trash which is now stored there should be disposed of, and the hall walls and ceiling replastered to make the place look like a fire hall, not a storage barn.

It may be possible the County will surface the Selby Road into the town limits. If so, the Council should see if it cannot have the present 15 miles per hour speed limit will not be tolerated. I would also suggest that a centre hanging Stop-and-Go automobile electric sign be placed at the intersection of John and Dundas Sts. This would in a great measure stop any trouble at this point and relieve the traffic officers for other duties.

The tourist trade also should be encouraged by every means in our power. Other towns are doing their best to have tourists stop over with them and we should do the same. To do this our town should present an inviting appearance by clean streets, attractive stores, garages, facilities, information bureau, and last, but not least, courtesy and friendliness. In other words, make them feel at home so they will want to come back and also send others, all of which means that they will spend their money here. I think that a creditable piece of advertising could be handed to every tourist who stays in our tourist camp, and a quantity should be kept in the principal stores to be handed to tourists. I am sure the Board of Commerce would be glad to help in this work.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the press for their accurate and complete reports of the Council meetings. The Council and myself appreciate this very much.

It is at this time, more than ever, we appreciate the value of old associations and old friendships, and my thoughts quite naturally turn to those with whom I have been pleasantly associated during the past year. May the new year be the happiest and most prosperous you have ever known.

Respectfully yours,
ED. J. ROY,
Mayor.

On motion the address of the Mayor was received and adopted.

A deputation was presented from the Carters of the town, complaining that some persons were doing carting and were not paying any license fee. Also that the present Carters' stand in the Campbell House yard was not available for the Carters this year.

Referred to Market and Police Committee to investigate and report.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed.

Councillor Tustin, Chairman of the Market and Police Committee, presented the annual report of Chief-of-Police Barrett, for the year ending December 31st, 1927.

Chief Barrett's Report.

To the Mayor and Members of the Town Council of the Corporation of the Town of Napanee.

Gentlemen,—I herewith present the report of the Police Department for the past year, and in doing so would like to make a few recommendations, or rather suggestions, with reference to the matters which come under the jurisdiction of this Department.

The first is, that all the revenue-producing by-laws, such as the Streets By-law, Transients Traders By-law, Hawkers and Peddlers By-law, Dog By-law, Livery By-law, Carters By-law, Poolroom By-law, and the Traffic By-law be consolidated and printed in book form, so that they may be available for use. In order to do this it may be necessary to pass new by-laws to replace the old ones in some cases, as there are some of them that I have not got, due to the fact that I loaned some to the late G. F. Ruttan, K.C., Police Magistrate, so that copies might be made for use in his office, and they cannot now be found. The original By-laws apparently also are missing, so that effective enforcement cannot be made until this situation is remedied.

I would also call the attention of the Council to the provisions of the Traffic By-law, which calls for suitable signs to be erected in respect to the parking of cars. This matter has been delayed previously, and apparently up to the present no attempt has been made to secure these signs.

I would suggest that enamelled signs with the words "Saturday Night Park" ing, 6 to 12 p.m., 15 minutes", be procured and erected on Dundas St., where they could be seen by automobile drivers, in fact, according to Section 21 of the Traffic By-law, none of the provisions as to the parking of cars are effective until this is done.

The matter of providing a stand for the carters will have to be dealt with again this year, as the proprietor of the yard where they now stand have notified me that he wants them removed as soon as possible.

Referring again to the matter of Traffic Control, which constitutes the major portion of our duties during the summer and fall months, some means evidently must be found to curb and reduce to a minimum the reckless and careless driving, especially on Dundas street. It is practically impossible to do this without some further equipment. To stand on a street corner and watch them go by, with no change in the same means of enforcing the law, as was prevalent thirty or forty years ago, when there was no traffic problems. We have the same difficulties to contend with as in larger centres, only on a smaller scale, but as yet we have no means to meet them with. I would direct your attention to the roll of accidents, nearly all of them contributed to by motor vehicles on our streets. I am glad to say that the most of them were of a minor nature, but in some serious injury and death resulted.

Apart from these accidents, the Town has been singularly free from any serious crime. The offences dealt with were more or less of a petty nature, and the most of them were committed by persons from out of town.

The tabulated report attached hereto, is as far as possible, the work of the year, except that it is not possible to record the innumerable complaints, inquiries, etc., that are responded to, besides other calls upon our time, which are not entered to accurately record.

In conclusion I would again press the attention of the Council to the matters mentioned previously, and earnestly hope that some action may be taken along the lines suggested.

Number of arrests, 61; arrested for other Departments, 7; arrested, but allowed to go after investigation, 12; Police Court cases, 87; convictions, 82; dismissed, 4; withdrawn on payment of costs, 1.

Cases made up as follows :—Theft, 9; assault, 10; shoplifting, 6; vagrancy, 3; fraud, 8; Highway Traffic Act, 10; Town By-laws, 9; disorderly conduct, 3; Liquor Control Act, 1; driving auto, intoxicated, 1; criminal negligence, 2; arson, 1; wife desertion, 1; housebreaking, 4; cruelty to animals, 3; bigamy, 1; trespass, 1; pointing dangerous weapon, 1; Industrial School Act, 2; Children's Protection Act, 1.

Number of summons served, including those served for other Departments, 230; complaints investigated, 385; communications received, 465; communications sent out, 441; "Occasionals" given protection in cells, 367; doors in business buildings found unfastened at night, 149; calls to attend, 41; calls to fires, 6.

Lost and stolen property recovered, including three autos, bicycles, money, and miscellaneous articles, $3,127.66; fines and fees, $305.00; Licenses, $997.65.

Inquests, 4; persons taken to outside Institutions, 9.

The amount of time, energy, consideration, etc., expended upon the preparation of the foregoing cases and the successful bringing them before the Courts is something that cannot be put down in cold figures; therefore I conclude this report, wishing the Council of 1928 a fruitful year, and one that can be looked back upon with satisfaction.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Your obedient servant,
F. W. BARRETT,
Chief Constable.

On motion the report of the Chief Constable was referred back to the Market and Police Committee to confer with the several committees interested, and report.

Moved by Reeve Boyes, seconded by Councillor Loucks, that the Finance Committee look into the advisability of bringing the employees of the town under the Workmen's Compensation Act. Carried.

Burtch.—Mr. Wm. Stinson, Jr., of Belleville, spent Sunday under the parental roof.—Communion service was held here on Sunday afternoon, with a good crowd in attendance.

ODESSA

About forty relatives and friends of Mrs. George Lucas met at her home on Wednesday to celebrate the latter's birthday anniversary. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent. All manner of games and puzzles were served and all were made happy to see Mrs. Lucas so well. This, for some years, has been an annual event, and has been looked forward to Mrs. Lucas. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Hagerman and daughter, and Violet; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Peters and Mrs. Sloan and daughter, of Kingston. There were many useful and pretty gifts, and all wished the hostess many years of health and happiness.—The many friends of Mrs. T. C. Graham will be pleased to learn that she is recovering nicely in the Kingston General Hospital, and expects to return home shortly.—Mr. and Mrs. C. D. NEWBURGH

Mr. Percy Madden, of Rochester, N.Y., visited his mother and sister during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frink, of Switzerville, were at Mrs. Wales', on Wednesday.

The annual cheese meeting was held in the Bank Hall, on Wednesday afternoon, and brought a large number to the village.

Mrs. Frank Gerow is the guest of her mother, Mrs. McGill, at Centreville, who is ill.

The first dance in the Community Hall was held on Tuesday evening. A large number from the surround ng district availed themselves of the opportunity of an evening's enjoyment, and the result was most gratifying to those who arranged the evening's programme.

The District Quarterly Meeting of the Free Methodist Church will be held in Kingston, beginning on Thursday, the 19th. In connection with this meeting a Sunday School Convention will be held. The Rev. Mr. Brown, of Badaxe, Mich., will be present to give addresses.

Mr. and Mrs. Gasper Lewis spent the week end with Mrs. Shirley Lewis and family, of Selby.

Mrs. D. Rogers spent Tuesday with Mrs. Shier.

Mrs. Lucas spent Saturday in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Yeomans and little daughter, Doris, spent Friday evening at Mr. Sam Yeoman's.

The business meeting will be held in the Library Room in the new Town Hall, on January 16th, at 8 p.m., for the election of officers for Library Board for the year 1928.

The Community Hall was formally opened on Monday evening, January 9th, when a large gathering assembled and listened to a varied program of speeches, recitations and music. A telegram from Sir Allan Aylesworth, the donor of the building to the village, was read, expressing his regret at not being able to attend. The first item of interest on the programme was the presentation of the deed and keys of the building to the village. The presentation was made by Reeve Aylesworth, and was accepted by Mr. G. H. Wagar, who represented the Village Council. Addresses were given by Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, Rev. Mr. Spencer, Rev. Father Mes, and Mr. Ed. Harrison, all of which savoured of loyalty to the community and patriotism. Recitations were rendered by Miss Wilhemina Pile, Miss Jean Shortts, Miss McNeely and Mrs. J. S. Symmons. Instrumental music by Miss Marguerite Wartman, Miss Hazel Winter, Miss Juanita Wartman, Miss Margaret Hinch, Miss Lorraine Alcombrack, Miss Ruth Baker, Mr. Max Sinclair and Dean Vandervoort; Vocal Duet by Miss Ramsay and Mr. Ward Wartman; Quartette by the Misses Counsellors, Messrs. Bray, Wartman, Walker and Sutton. Full choruses and community singing by the entire audience were amusing features of the programme; Miss Ramsay as pianist. Each number was received with hearty applause. The hall has a seating capacity of 325 and is equipped with a kitchen. The hall will occupy a room in the building.

The January meeting of the United Church Woman's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Gerow and Mrs. Percy Gerow on Wednesday last. Despite the storm a large number gathered and a very profitable and pleasurably time was enjoyed by all. The completion of the organization for the year, the appointment of the Heralds and the Finance Committee, and arranging the use of envelopes was the main business. Mrs. Courtney read a very instructive letter from Miss Jean Sandier, writing from California, of her work, which delighted the many friends of her parents. At the close the hostesses served a dainty lunch, and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered them. Mrs. Geo. I. Perry, Vice President of the Napanee Wert section, was a welcome guest. We were very glad to be able to report that our allocation, 215.00, has been reached. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Gale.

Miss H. M. Paul and Rev. and Mrs. Anderson attended the social evening held in Mt. M. E. at the home of Mrs. Clancy Moore on Friday evening.

OBITUARY

W. N. Raymond Grooms, Phm.B.

Passed away at his father's residence, on Friday, the 30th of December, 1927, after an illness of short duration.

On Christmas Day he had dinner and supper with the family, and not feeling very well, they called in a doctor, and on the Friday following he passed on to the Great Beyond, leaving a very sorrowful family behind, to mourn the loss of a very patient and loving son and brother. Raymond was proprietor of a drug store in Toronto for about four years ago, but owing to ill health was forced to give up his profession. He returned to his home, and though afflicted with pneumonia was able to be around as usual. The immediate cause of his death was pneumonia, which followed an attack of pleurisy. He leaves to mourn his loss his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Grooms, and W. Roy, at the homestead, and Harry E., of Toronto Postal.

He was a member of Union Lodge, No. 9, A.F. & A.M., and was a faithful attendant at the lodge sessions. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at the residence of his parents, Rev. Harry Pawson, Pastor of Trinity Church, officiating. The service was in charge of Union Lodge, No. 8, quite a number of brethern being present to pay the last tribute which this great brotherhood can render to the dead. Interment was made in Riverside cemetery.

In the Garden of Eden

By ABBIE F. RANSOM

copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

SHE was seated at her typewriter, hard at work, when her friend entered, bringing with her the breath of the wheatfield and the fragrance of the maize.

"Edith Holden," she cried, "what every story you have inside that desk and come with me! I've found the garden of Eden!"

"What's the price?" was the response without even a pause in the jingle of the keys.

"Stop that noise and listen!" came the command. "Do you know that I was delegated to hunt up our summer boarding place?"

"Sure—not to exceed seven per," said Edith.

"Well, I've got it at four, and it's going to be paradise."

"Paradise at $4 a week!" she sniffed. "Come; wake up. We can't live here for that. And you mean to tell me you've found summer board in the country at that figure?"

"I mean just that. When I went away yesterday I took steam to Cedarville, and from there I went on and on and on until I thought the end of the continent was reached. There I discovered the biggest house, stone, with a wide hall running through the center and great rooms on either side like those one reads about and never sees. There was an old lady—you must have been one of the original pilgrim mothers—and I engaged board with her for a whole month. We are to care for our rooms and help her wash dishes. And there's a blackberry field within a mile, and the district school vacation days. We want to buy sunbonnets, and—oh, Edith, it'll be just like being at boarding school!"

"We'll start tomorrow," was Edith's decision. "Just wait until I get this story off to Mr. McPherson. He'll read it while we're gone, and when we get back there'll be a pretty little letter telling why he's returned it. Oh, his letters are models of literary regret!"

"I don't see why your stories always fail with him," said the other. "He's never accepted one yet, has he?"

"Never. I'll keep sending till he does that is, if I don't collapse from lack of postage before that happy day arrives. By the way, Bert, how many in the family up in paradise?"

"Just the pilgrim mother, the pilgrim father and a yellow cat. We'll be monarchs of all we survey."

"At $4 per," sighed Edith. "I wonder what's the trouble with the place?"

The next night they ate supper in the garret of Edith's studio and sniffed since her arrival. She was simply wondering why the whole world had not discovered her genius and asking herself the reason. The pilgrim mother was to all appearances the ordinary model for the cardinal virtues, and the father deserved to rank "O" her side. So three days passed. The typewriter was silent. She was searching did not materialize. Flies were missing, and mosquitoes were not to be seen. The whole place reveled in delight. They ate like hunters, slept like the dead and lived every hour of their waking day to the full. The fourth day at dinner the father spoke:

"Mother," he said, "she hired him will be here tonight. They must have his room ready."

"It is the 4th of the month," she answered. "He always arrives on the evening of the 4th, and his room will be ready."

The girls listened. Who was the hired man who always arrived on the evening of the 4th? How long did he stay and what did he do that his room must be prepared? But the pilgrim mother answered the unspoken questions.

"Father always has a man to help him during harvest," she said, "and the man has done the work many years now. He comes on the evening of the 4th and stays a month during blackberry time."

Even in that was no secret—nothing upon which one could build a story, and if Edith, her brain always at work, story material, had as yet struck nothing in the quiet lumber family which was proof of romance or mystery.

The next morning bright and early she started out alone for the blackberry field. The sunshine was hot, but it did not daunt, and in her attempt to combine berry picking and comfort she resembled a queer cotton tailor, so Bert said. Bert didn't look much better, and even the cows in the pasture refused companionship to young ladies in attire like theirs. But when Bert arrived in the berry field she was breathless, and that condition was not the result of the air's humidity.

"Edith Holden," she cried almost as soon as she caught sight of that person, "who do you think is here?"

"The hired man was to be," was the calm reply. "I didn't see him at breakfast. Did you?"

"At breakfast, no; but I met him in the lane just now, and who do you think he is?"

"The Prince of Tumfoodle, from your excitement," said Edith. "Is it he, or is the hired man some plain, everyday Tom Jones or Johnny Brown?"

"You'll say Johnny Brown," Bert retorted. "It's nobody on earth but Mr. McPherson."

The pail of berries found sudden resting place upon the grass. Edith Holden was beside it.

"Mr. McPherson!" she gasped. "Bert Solberg, are you crazy? Has this air got on your nerves?"

"You'd think so if he met you as he did me just now," Bert responded. "I was coming down the lane singing that ridiculous darky song you taught me, yelling it out like a cowboy on a spree, and right beyond where the brook crosses the cut field who should jump over the fence but that man. Look at me, she me up—patches, ragged dress and all. He was dressed in a suit of blue overalls and a straw hat big enough for a hen to hatch ducks in, but he pulled it off as though it were a silk opera tile. Then he talked about the weather and the crops until you'd think he owned the farm and was depending on the corn to pay the taxes."

"Well, you know him," was the mournful response. "He's seen you when you're looked like a civilized human being, while I— You know, I've never met him, and I've been sending him stories that he's never bought and"— She broke down suddenly. "Bert Solberg, what will I do? I don't feel as though I could ever face him."

"You could wear a mask," was the friendly advice, "or you can dye your face with some of these poke berries and pass yourself off as one of a new race. Or, say, what's the matter with posing as Miss Merryweather or Mrs. Quigsby? He never saw you and won't know you from the mother of Cain and Abel."

"As though the pilgrims didn't know who I was." Edith's that disregard of tense was proof of her feeling in the matter. "Besides, it's mean of you to laugh at me. There's just one thing I can do, and that's to go home, and I'm going this very minute."

She picked her sunbonnet from the grass with a jerk and flung it on her head; then another jerk broke off the strings.

"I don't care," springing to her feet and starting off. "You may pick berries all day if you want to, but I'm going before there's a ghost of a chance of meeting that man."

"I saw him making for the cornfield," and Bert trudged dutifully after her. "I really wish you wouldn't go that fields. Can't we fix it some other way?"

Edith shook her head. The act of taking thought her eyes in the form of a figure in blue overalls walking at a brisk pace along the path. Bert stopped short and laughed. It was her way of getting out of trouble.

"Too hot for berry picking?" asked the wearer of the overalls.

"We're just going over to the other pasture," fibbed Bert. "The berries are bigger there." Then she introduced Edith.

"Work won't begin until tomorrow," said McPherson. "If you will permit I'll go with you. I am out on the same mission."

"Do you think we will carry home enough for supper?" questioned Bert audaciously. "We're promised our landlady some for pies, and I have always promised that men ate more than were found in their pails later on."

He gave a ringing laugh. "If you will follow my lead I'll show you berries bigger, better, riper than any you've seen this year. I haven't roamed this farm for years without finding out where the best ones grow."

"No, I shall not go home," Edith declared that evening. "I'll show him before my month is up that I'm good for something, even if I can't write stories. Besides, other editors buy them if he won't. I'd like to know how he discovered this place. I thought it almost belonged to us."

"Ask him," returned Bert. "For my part, I'm glad he's here, even if he did catch me in my beggar robes. But picking—why, he worked like a steam thresher. He filled a ten quart pail while I was picking four quarts."

"I've a mind to ask the pilgrim father to let me ride the haymaker," Edith remarked viciously. "I used to when I was a girl, and I intend to catch that boy out and ride him to—borrow without a saddle. I don't believe I've forgotten how."

"Do, and he'll surely think you capable of running a cattle ranch in Arizona, even if he doesn't accept your stories."

"He might suggest it in the next refusal he sends me," was the somewhat bitter response, while a figure sitting by the window in the adjoining room heard every word, and went on with the third reading of a typewritten manuscript which would have been very familiar to Edith could she have seen it at that moment.

Day followed day in quick succession until only one week of vacation remained. The colt had been ridden many times. Many were the gallops which the girls had taken about the country. The harvest must have cared for itself, for Mr. McPherson found many an hour in which to act as escort. But one day the girls went for the last time to the berry field. Their pails were soon filled, and they started up the long lane leading from the pasture to the barn. Halfway home, where the little brook crossed it, a veritable demon of mischief must have entered the brain of Bert.

"Let's hide our berries under that oak," she said, "and then trace this stream through the woods. Who knows what beautiful spots it visits or where we may find?"

"I'm served." Edith responded. "We haven't half investigated our garden Eden."

Straight through the center of the oatfield ran the little brook, bordered on either side by elm and maple trees. Then it entered the woods, and the banks became higher, in some places rocky and precipitous, in others so low and pebbly it reminded one of an ocean beach. Suddenly they caught sight of some flowers part way up the bank, where another stream, seemingly fed by a spring farther on, joined forces with the one they were following.

"I'm going to climb that bank and get those flowers," said Edith. "They are the most brilliant I ever saw."

"Plenty of mud there," cautioned Bert.

"Who cares for mud?" was the scornful retort. "Mud, with such shoes as we're wearing! You go on, and I'll climb up and join you beyond the bend."

"All right," Bert returned carelessly and sauntered on. Several minutes went by. She had gone around the bend, out of sight. What was Edith doing? Surely it was time for her to appear. Flower picking does not take all day. Then she heard a call, sharp and quick, full of distress. It was Edith's voice. What was the trouble?

She hurried back along the bank of the brook, but before she had taken half a dozen steps the voice rang out again, sharper than ever.

"Bert! Oh, Bert! Hurry up!"

Then she saw her, halfway up the bank clinging with all her might to a birch sapling whose roots found a slender hold in the moist earth.

Clinging to a birch sapling.

"Edith," she cried, "what is the matter?"

"Go back!" came the answer. "Go back quick and climb to the bank above me. This is quicksand, and I'm sinking."

Bert lost no time in getting around and above where Edith was sinking steadily deeper and deeper. Then she fastened upon the earth and extended her hand downward.

"How can I get at you?" she asked at last, when her utmost effort refused to reach her friend.

"You can't do it," Edith answered, almost in despair. "I'm getting farther in all the time."

Bert rose to her feet and searched everywhere with a single sweep of the eye. Not a thing was in sight which could be of service.

"You're just got to hold on until I get help," she declared, starting off at express train speed. "I'll be back in less than no time."

It did not take long to reach that oatfield, where she found the two men at work hauling the sheaves home to the barn. Neither did it require much time for Mr. McPherson to understand the situation. Soon the horses were unhitched from the wagon and driven at a gallop through the fields to where that treacherous bog was getting in its work, but long before they came in sight Edith felt that her arms must have their hold. More than that, she could feel those roots slipping away more and more from their grip upon them. In one last endeavor to release herself, and then her little support was gone, for the sapling was in her hands and the pebbles were rattling down into the brook. She could feel herself sinking swiftly now, and it was a pale, despairing face which McPherson saw as he peered down over the bank.

Throwing one end of the reins to her and telling her, to fasten it securely around her waist, he made the other fast to the harness. With one strong, steady pull the horses moved away at his command, and soon she was lying white and utterly exhausted upon the grass.

"It was all our fault," he said later. "We should have realized before starting the place, but we had no idea you would get so far into the woods."

"It's all in a lifetime," she replied. "I can use it some day, and perhaps you will have the pleasure of returning a story in which you will recognize yourself as the hero."

"The pleasure," he echoed. "Wait a moment, please." They were seated on the wide veranda. Leaving her, he went into his own room, and when he returned he held in his hand a little slip of paper. "I wrote that to you the night after my arrival," he said simply.

She took it from him, read the few words penned there and looked into his face with glowing eyes.

"Is it true?" she asked softly.

"Every word," he answered. "I have returned all the others because I want in them the germs of greatness if you only persevered, and I knew that with you rejection would be the stepping stone to something better, and it came in that last story. It may attract more you; your living, breathing self shone through every line."

Tears of gladness were in her eyes "It was so! that you did not accept them," she said. "I could sell them elsewhere, but I hated the thought of failure in connection with your magazine. Then the notes you sent me were so kind, so thoughtful. They were an inspiration, and yet every one hurt. When I read anything which you have written I am lifted up. I breathe a higher air for hours afterward, and the thought that I could not write in a way of which you would approve stung me. I determined to work and write until you must accept, and now it has come."

He had been standing before her Now he dropped into the chair by her side, and his voice was so low even the listening wind could not catch its cadences.

"That is precisely what I knew you would do," he responded. "But there is one thing which should go with that story you did not offer with it, and it is something I crave more than all else on earth. Dear, it is yourself. May I claim you too? I want the soul which gave that story life to mingle with and be one with mine forever and ever."

For a moment she did not answer. Then she laid her hand within his and whispered:

"Stories should always have a happy ending, else, you know, they won't sell."

The Typewriter Girl.

The beautiful typewriter girl puffed out her golden pompadour carelessly.

"My speed 'll increase, Mr. Meer—excuse me, Mr. Wellington—my speed 'll increase 20 or 40 per cent every day."

Broker Wellington frowned. The girl had taken his dictation slowly. And in a stern, skeptical voice he said. "How so?"

"It's your new vocabulary that puts me out," she explained. "I had Mr. Meer's vocabulary very pat—as per,' 'contents noted,' 'the same'—he only used about 300 words."

Her flattering smile warmed the man like a sunbeam.

"But you, sir, have a real literary style. 'Beg to submit,' 'our best attention,' 'slump,' 'bullish,' 'hypothecate'—they're all new words to me, and, of course, I can't rattle them off very fast at first. But just you wait, sir, till day after tomorrow. Then you'll see."

"All business men have different vocabularies that their stenographers must get accustomed to, eh?" said the broker.

"Yes, sir. Some large, some small." Again her smile fascinated him. "Yours is larger than most; I should say it was thirty or forty words larger. Real literary, I call it."

"Miss Hoskins, if there's—er—any supplies you need all you've got to do is ask," said the literary broker facetously.

Otitis Media.

Otitis media, inflammation of the drum of the ear, which before the war was not held to incapacitate a soldier, temporarily or otherwise, in the black list in England, says the London Daily Mail.

It was proved that men suffering from this disease were not able to stand the noise and shocks of active service.

Col. H. Clay, chief recruiting officer for the army, Scotland Yard, told a reporter that the disease was as common as considerably to affect the number of recruits rejected and the number of men invalided from the army. It was very hard to detect, and as a result many men were discharged after undergoing a considerable period of training.

A doctor stated that there are probably thousands of civilians afflicted with otitis media, but do not know it. People suffering from it are badly affected by noises.

Spotlight on the Police.

London traffic policemen are to be given limelight in which to work.

The Ministry of Transport has noticed that on dark, misty nights the traffic policeman's outstretched arm is often invisible a few yards away in spite of his white sleeve. To remedy this, a police-lighting beacon is to be installed at Hornsey, N., at the junction of Archway road, Muswell Hill road, and Southwood lane.

It will throw a powerful light downwards. Flashing red light will be shown from its sides to warn vehicles to slow down.—London Mail.

Camels Lived In North America.

Camels are commonly understood to be exclusively Asiatic, but in the World. It was not always so, however, as a specimen recently acquired by Canada's National Museum at Ottawa amply demonstrates. This is the fossilized frame of a camel which is a few million years older than even the western plains of North America, which were they dry. This curious specimen has been placed on exhibition in the Hall of Palaeontology.

Hummed to Sleep.

On the theory that a monotonous droning noise will make one drowsy, a German inventor has devised a machine to cure sleeplessness. The apparatus, wound up like a clock, emits a soft humming noise which continues for forty minutes.

More Lake Steamers.

The past season of navigation on the Great Lakes has proved so satisfactory to the majority of steamship owners that eleven new steamers at least will be constructed for the traffic of 1928.

Opens N. Y. Branch.

The Commonwealth Bank of Australia, which is owned and guaranteed by the Government of Australia, has opened a branch at 25 Pine street, New York.

Miss Flora McFimsey has long since passed on, the girl who complained she had nothing to don; how changed our girls' worry from that 20 far off, it is now that they've hardly a thing left to doff.

WOMEN MUSTN'T WIND CLOCKS.

One of the Queer Regulations in the British Post Office.

Women either cannot or are not to be trusted to wind clocks. That seems to be the view of the General Post Office, London, England.

This revelation is made in one of the technical books of the department which sorts the rules and regulations in language much information about the extraordinary clocks and watches provided for the offices use of the G.P.O.

It is laid down that the winding of clocks is to done as far as possible by officers of the department, but "If for any reason, such as the fact that only female officers are employed it is not practicable for the winding to be done by the post office staff," a winding contract is to be arranged.

There is a wonderful calculagraph used in timing trunk telephone calls which seems to produce enough evidence to confound any subscriber who protests that he has "not had his three minutes."

Greenwich time signals go out automatically every hour every day from the observatory. The signals pass over underground wires to the Central Telegraph office, where a chronophor control clock operates the necessary contacts, and they pass thence all over England, Scotland and Wale.

"It used to be the rule," said a clockmaker to a London reporter, "that only father wound the clock, but that is now out of date. Nowadays most clocks are very easy to wind and women can do it very well. If they are capable of looking after the delicate watches they wear, they need have no fear of handling such a sturdy bit of machinism as the modern clock."

THE COMMON "COLD."

Nothing Has Been Done to Save Humanity From This Pest.

Millions of pounds have been collected, thousands of men and women have been banded together to wage war against those major diseases which shorten the life of mankind, says the London Morning Post.

Yet no millions have ever been subscribed, no leagues have ever been formed to save humanity from an ever-present pest which deprives the sufferer, not of more life or comfort, but of his very birthright, his dignity and self-respect. Every day people are said to the praise of science, and the scientist is extolled as the prophet of our day; but never a scientist has dared to blot that he has discovered a cure for the common cold.

Though there is no cure known for the cold, there are some who believe that they have discovered ways of preventing it. There is the fresh-air maniac. In the icy dingiest of the air, with a sponge for a fire-doors and windows set wide open so that all the blasts of heaven whirl round the drafty apartment. There he will boast between two sneezes and a heartrending burst of coughing how he has never had a cold in his life, and that he has never known what it is to have a cold.

There are those who pin their faith to inoculation. Serum has been pumped into their vetns, and they think much to scoff at those who, to the casual observer, it seems that their immunity is a doubtful thing; and there is nothing more pathetic than the spectacle of the inoculated with their red, swollen noses, eyes, nose, is driven to confess in a hoarse whisper that somehow or other inoculation has failed to work.

Tube Plan In Manchester.

A scheme for an underground railway system 16½ miles in length, to cost £10,954,540 and to serve a population of approximately 949,000 people, is propounded in a report by the underground railway committee of Manchester City Council.

It is pointed out that the construction of the underground railway would remove the congestion on the surface and that travel underground would be more expeditious and safer than that on the surface. The scheme provides for an inner circle 2.64 miles in length, costing £2,195,754, and five arterial routes.

A Giant Rotary Plough.

A rotary plough which will be sent out shortly from England to Cuba for use on a sugar plantation weighs more than twenty tons and has an engine capacity up to 220-horse power. Messrs. John Fowler & Co., Leeds, are the makers.

It is capable of ploughing a breadth of ten feet at a speed of from a half to three-quarters of a mile an hour, and can break and pulverize the soil to a depth of nearly two feet. It can also ridge and plough in one process.

He Was Willing.

A married couple had engaged a cook. She was pretty, but her cooking was terrible, and one morning the bacon was burned to such a crisp as to be wholly inedible.

"Dear," said the wife to her husband, "I'm afraid the cook has burned the bacon." You'll have to be satisfied with a kiss for breakfast this morning."

"All right," responded the husband. "Call her in."

A Great Traveller.

The great traveller among the birds is the Arctic tern, which makes an 11,000-mile journey twice a year from the Arctic to the Antarctic and return.

A New Industry Foreshadowed.

Recently there shipped this year 500,000 pounds of swordfish to Boston, Mass.; valued at $50,000.

One-fourth of the lepers of the world are in China.

She—"I like you as a friend, Mr. Jenks, but I could never marry you. Have I made myself perfectly plain?"

He—"Quite so. Well, you may have had something to do with it, but I should say that Nature was the chief offender."

TO BUILD MODERN ABATTOIR

Liverpool, England, Is Preparing for Trade Revival—Great Docking Facilities.

Included in a summary of the report of the Mersey Docks and Harbor Board for the year 1927 is the statement, "Liverpool, as far as the docks are concerned, is ready for the trade revival and everything will be done to maintain and expand the great docking facilities she possesses, that she may ship for the home destinations and meet the requirements of the world."

Closely connected with this matter of shipping, and more closely in connection with the matter of meeting the requirements of the world, is the statement accompanying the report to the effect that the Liverpool City Council has decided to build the biggest abattoir in the world, at a cost of £632,000 sterling. This announcement while of immense interest to cattle, sheep and swine raising countries, is important to Canadians principally as regards its possibilities with regard to the disposal of cattle —not immediately perhaps, but doubtless in the not far distant future, if the prediction made recently by the Dominion Minister of Agriculture, is to be fulfilled.

From information supplied by the Liverpool organization for advancing the interests of Liverpool it appears that the new abattoir buildings will cover fifteen acres, and steel weighing 8,000 tons will be used. The total floor space, all of reinforced concrete, will be about twenty acres.

The main features of the scheme include a market for cattle, sheep and pigs, and the portion to be immediately completed will have accommodation for 1,000 cattle, 1,500 sheep and 1,500 pigs.

The capacity for the lairage and slaughter of pigs will be equal to 2,000 per day.

The lairages have been designed so that they can be used for longdistance use, and full arrangements have been made for feeding and watering on the most modern principles.

The capacity of this unit will be equal to 1,246 cattle and 5,000 sheep. There will be three floors connected with each gradient ramps of a total length of about three-quarters of a mile.

In the public accommodation has been designed for intensive slaughtering on the American system, under which 1,000 head of cattle and 7,000 sheep can be dealt with. Adjoining the dressing stations will be atmospheric cooling rooms equal to a full day's kill.

The carcasses will be moved from the abattoir through the cooling and chill rooms to the railway siding by means of lifts and a continuous overhead rail system.

Experiences of other countries have been sought, and the latest electrical dropping devices and hoists will be used.

OBITUARY.

John Morrow.

At the Weston Hospital, on December 18th, 1927, another young life passed to the Great Beyond, in the person of John Morrow, aged 23 years, only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morrow, Conway. Since a child he had lived with his aunt, Mrs. Wilson, Meaford. He leaves two sorrowing sisters to mourn the loss of their only brother, Mrs. Isaac Piercey, Bolton, and Margaret, of Caledon East. The floral gifts were many and beautiful, the deceased being a member of the Masonic Order, and a Methodist in religion.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of mother, Mrs. Harvey Bradshaw, who died Jan. 8th, 1919; also Grandma York, who died Jan. 8th, 1926.

Ten years ago this winter,
In a cold and lonely grave,
Mother, the one I loved so dearly,
Was sadly laid away.

There were lines in her forehead, and grey in her hair,
That the cares of a lifetime of love had put there;
But the beauty of loving, and living for others,
Shone in her face, as the same with all mothers.

STUDENTS' COUNCIL MEETING

The regular January meeting of the N. C. I. Students' Council was held at the school at 3.30 p.m., on Tuesday, January 10th, with Mr. Beattie in the chair. There were nineteen present.

The minutes of the December meeting were read and approved.

Mr. Beattie read a report of the Bay of Quinte division of the R. O. B. S. A. Mr. Murray and the President of the Boys' Athletic Society were appointed delegates to the meeting on January 14th.

He also read a letter from G. W. Gibbard, who is donating a piece of the field north of the school to the school for a rugby and recreation field, to be approximately 175 yards by 85 yards, and (as selected by Pres. E. Gibbard and Mr. Beattie), is to be parallel to the Belleville road and to be next the C.N.R. branch line.

Moved by Gordon Gibson, seconded by Kay Gleeson, that Mr. Gibbard be sent a letter of appreciation, and that the matter be put before the Board of Education. The field can be put into shape in about one year's time at a minimum of expense. It will be under the control of the Principal of the school and two members from the Board of Education, and will be called the "Gibbard Recreation Field" or some similar name.

The Property Committee reported that the Board of Education has passed a resolution to instal bubbling system as a remedy to our present inadequate drinking facilities.

D. Caton, Chairman of the Library Committee, reported that the "World's Hundred Best Short Stories" were received from the subscription to the "Literary Digest". He said that they were being catalogued now and would go out in two or three days. Report adopted.

Chairman M. Gibbard of the Public Speaking Committee, reported that the Star Public Speaking Contest would soon be under way, but that the rules were not obtainable yet. Report adopted.

Mr. Beattie said that a C. N. R. speaker would be here soon, and that we would have an open evening when he came.

President Gibbard said that possibly Dr. Laird or Rev. T. A. Moore, of Toronto, who are going to address the Men's banquet at Trinity Church on Wednesday next, might be able to speak to the school, but that we must wait till then to be sure.

The Chairman of the Literary and Dramatic Committee, Bernice Beattie, reported on the literary part in Commencement, and also gave a report of the Convention of Secondary Schools' Publication Editors which he attended last December. Both reports were adopted.

The finance report of the Boys' Athletic Society was read and adopted.

The Social, Music, and Girls' Athletic Committees had no report.

Meeting adjourned on motion of Mary Galbraith and Doris Anderson.

American Girls and Titles.

The responsibility for the present humiliating slave trade in which rich American girls are sold to the titled decadents of England and the continent is almost wholly the fault of the men of this country. The opinion is offered only after years of observation and consideration of our social conditions and after a pathological study of American men. Their open astonishment and chagrin at this phenomenon would be vastly amusing were it not so pathetic. Our men have a helpless inability to see themselves. Nor is the responsibility of the mother lost sight of, for the foreign suitor begins with her, as he does in Europe. She is the outer citadel which must first succumb to his studied charms.

This outer citadel is carried with astonishing ease, as he quickly discovers, and for three reasons. The mother is easily dazzled; her social foundations do not go down deep in the class to which she almost invariably belongs; her husband has made every effort to win the lure of those millions without which there would not be this problem to solve. Second, the suitor finds that what a given man really is, who estimate him at all justly, who begin even to understand men's social standards either in this country or Europe, are rare indeed.

The American mother usually is clearly out of her depth at the start, as unfit as a child to counsel her daughter. She is not equipped for it. It is not her work.

In the third place must be considered that subtle relationship of sex which European men of any class have learned the art of establishing with a woman of whatever age, their attention, their quick courtesy toward women, their habit of listening absorbedly when a woman speaks—all this is so absolutely new to the American mother that she becomes hypnotized by it and can no longer distinguish truth from falsity or a mere national point of etiquette from a personal thoughtfulness and delicate tenderness of feeling.

Sound Secrets.

It is strange that thunder can be heard over a distance of only ten or twelve miles, while a gun firing is often heard up to 150 miles.

The intensity of a sound depends upon the density of the air in which it is produced and not upon the density of the air in which it is heard. The farther up, the less the air diminishes in density. When thousands of feet above the earth balloonists can hear sounds from the ground with remarkable clearness. But people on the ground cannot hear similar sounds from the balloon.

The conditions of the air during a thunderstorm are such as would tend to scatter and dissipate the sound-waves. Gunfire is usually heard at great distances only when the air is comparatively calm, and it is not likely that it would be heard far during a thunderstorm.

NAPANEE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The January meeting of the Napanee Women's Institute was held on Jan. 10th, in the Agricultural Rooms, the President presiding.

A splendid paper on Current Events was given by Mrs. Ella Wagar.

Mrs. R. Meyers gave an interesting demonstration on "Hooking Rugs." Mrs. Meyers displayed some beautiful rugs previously made, and explained clearly how everyone can make the same.

Mrs. E. J. Corkill gave another splendid demonstration on the numbers of different cakes which can be made from one recipe by just a little varying of the basic recipe. Mrs. Corkill's demonstration was given at the December meeting, which was not reported last month, due to the Xmas rush.

Plans were formulated for our Mother and Daughter banquet to be held on January 27th, in the Masonic Hall. We have been successful in procuring Lady Foster, of Ottawa, as the speaker of the evening. A treat is in store for all who attend. Tickets may be obtained by the members from the President or Secretary.

A very successful meeting was brought to a close, eighty-six members responding to the Roll Call.

MORVEN

Mrs. C. W. Miller is spending the week with her uncle, Mr. Lee, Kingston.—Word has been received from Mr. and Mrs. James Curran, who are spending the winter with friends at Camden East, that Mr. Curran is not so well again. — Mr. and Mrs. E. Cooke, Cataraqui, took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. G. Clark on Sunday.—Friends from the other appointments met with us on Sunday afternoon in the Brick Church and took part in the quarterly sacrament service.—Mrs. Amos Storey is visiting her sister, Mrs. Craig, Switzerville, for a few days.— Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Miller and daughter, of Napanee, also Mr. C. W. Miller and Miss Irene Miller visited at Mr. G. Fralick's on Sunday. — Mr. Charles Wilson is moving to Napanee, where they expect to reside in the future. — Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson, of Napanee, visited at Mr. Bailey Hamm's recently. — The W. M. S. and Ladies' Aid held their meetings at the home of Mrs. C. L. Sharp on Wednesday afternoon. — Mrs. Lake spent Sunday evening with Mrs. Burleigh.

REIDVILLE

The weather for this season is remarkably mild. — A number are confined to the house with colds.—The W. M. S. met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hannah for their New Years meeting. There was a fairly good attendance. After the meeting was closed, Rev. M. Beckstead baptized their baby girl, Rosaleen Marie. — We are pleased to note that J. H. Wilson, who has been laid up with a cut in his foot, is gaining nicely.—Mr. Scott Wiseman, of Ernestown, called on Geo. Fingland on Sunday. — Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Blair returned home on Tuesday, after renewing acquaintances here. — Mr. Arthur Keech, of Enterprise, spent Sunday afternoon with Hugh Fingland. — Mr. J. Fingland has completed his contract of loading at Tamworth.—Mr. Willie Hinchey and his mother spent Tuesday with Mr. A. Fingland.—Mr. J. Hannah's horse met with a serious accident last week, but is reported to be some better. Dr. Tummon, of Selby, is attending the animal.

DORLAND

The members of the W. M. S. were much disappointed when the stormy weather last Wednesday afternoon prevented their meeting at the home of Mrs. G. A. Ruttan. —A good congregation enjoyed the services in the United Church on Sunday morning. One feature of the service was the baptism of Shirley Grace, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur White, also of John Ion, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Robb.—The Y. P. S. was reorganized with Mr. Frank Gallagher as President; Mrs. F. E. Foster, Secretary, and Mr. A. C. Davis, Treasurer.—At the inaugural meeting of the Municipal Council on Monday few changes were made in the Township Officers. Mr. Geo. Chalmers was appointed Road Engineer; Wm. Goodman, Assessor; Jas. Prout, Collector, and S. E. Gallagher, Liquor Inspector. — The continued mild weather has made the ice in Hay Bay unsafe; the bars are opening.

DESMOND

The weather is very unusual at this season of the year with no snow and so many warm days.

Mr. Richard Quinn has returned from his visit accompanied by his niece, Miss Flossie Quinn.

Mr. and Mrs. Dorval Haley entertained several of their friends one evening recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Switzer and and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bell visited at Rev. Mr. Bunt's last Friday.

Miss Frances Stinson, Tamworth spent the week end at the home of Mr. H. F. Bell.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Deinn entertained to tea a few friends Friday evening.

Mr. Geo. Drew sold a team of horses to the buyer last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bell took tea at Mr. Everett Evans, Moscow on Wednesday.

A few from here are attending the Masonic banquet at Newburgh, Friday evening.

TAMWORTH

The United Church held their annual church meeting on Wednesday evening Jan. 4th in the R. E. Building. Owing to the intended departure of Mr. and Mrs. McCallum the Church people showed their appreciation by giving them a purse. Mr. Stevens of St. Catherines, is teaching in the senior room, of the school here.—We are all glad to hear that the Women's Institute intend putting on a euchre party on Monday evening Jan. 16. Everyone come and help the Institute in their good work.—Miss Louise Haneah has gone to Kingston to attend business college there.—Miss Beckstead has gone to Lyn to Moscow school.—We welcome Mr. Thompson, the New bank manager to our town.—Miss Elizabeth Bradshaw and her mother Mrs. Bradshaw have returned from Point Anne, where they spent Christmas.

Get The Most Radio Value

In radio, as in all other things there is an accepted standard —Westinghouse. Just as the word "Sterling" on silver defines a definite unvarying quality, so "Westinghouse" on a radio set carries the assurance of most radio value.

Model 57 illustrated above is the biggest value in radio. Contains all the features of any set at double the price. One dial control makes it the simplest to operate. Uses the newly perfected UX-201-B radiotrons, consequently operating costs are cut in half. For tonal qualities, volume and selectivity, it sets a new standard for receivers in the moderate price class. The price, without tubes is only $75.00.

You are missing a great deal of life if the great artists who are broadcasting to millions this winter are not being heard by you. We will gladly demonstrate the 57 in your home without cost or obligation. Phone us to-day for an appointment.

Angelica of Michigan

By CAROLEN BATESON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

THE Florentines were proud of Giuseppe. To tourists the lodge-keeper pointed him out along with the city's curios as the painter who was to equal Raphael and revive in Italy the glories of bygone centuries.

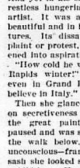
"His faults?" And for once the innkeeper's rhapsody halted out of deference to the well bred young lady at the window. "It is true Giuseppe has faults. But, signorina, what will you? He is young, and geniuses are not found under every bush even in Italy Margharita, Floria, Beatrice, Francesca"—the fingers of both hands thrown out and a despairing shrug indicated the inaccuracy of the count—"they all have spoiled him. But look for yourself. Could you blame them?"

Angelica looked. Besides being a conscientious traveler anxious to miss nothing, she was a painter, too, in her prim, orderly way and before her Italian sojourn could boast an occasional premium at a county fair. She had already heard of Giuseppe at the studio in Rome, and her interest grew now that she saw the man. Her trained glance noted his perfect proportions. The deft roundness of the figure matched with the handsome head. In which, she could swear, no concrete fact had ever found lodgment. Such a being should be care free, a ward of the nature he interpreted. He needed blue sky and sunshine for a background. His faults—well, who could rebuke the lightness of a butterfly? And yet in his expression there was a restless hungering that explained the artist. It was a sorrowful look, but beautiful and in harmony with the features. Its dissatisfaction, free from pliant or protest, had long been sweetened into aspiration.

"How cold he would look in a Grand Rapids winter!" she thought. "But even in Grand Rapids he would still believe in Italy."

Then she glanced away. Anglo-Saxon secretiveness bid her interest, for the great painter, seeing her, had paused and was staring up enrapt from the walk below. The rudeness was unconscious—framed by the window sash she looked so like a picture in an exhibition. Her clear cut face, all purity, resembled nothing he had ever seen in life. Such faces he sometimes dreamed of—after confession. He loved them as he loved the church, with its poetry and mystic symbolism. Her gentle coldness, so different from Floria, gave her a holy seeming, and holiness had power to thrill his soul, like a violin's harmonics, as something high and fine, almost past the sensing. That such a creature must be beyond all touch of passion affected him with ineffable sadness, but to the artist sadness holds an element of deep artistic joy. Her height above him brought a consciousness of his own slu oppressed mortality. Her eyes wandered beyond him in apparent carelessness.

"She is an angel from heaven, and she knows not that I live," he murmured. "Yet if she knew surely she would plead for me with Mary and the blessed saints."



Staring up carapt.

"A stranger! Yes, she is a stranger," cooed the host, pointing to the register when Giuseppe questioned. Geniu lis a hothouse plant that must be coaxed into flower. "A foreign name—Ca-arter—yes Carter. Angelica Carter of Michigan."

So—an angel, even as Giuseppe had hoped. It pleased him that her home had so hazily remote a sound. Michigan—no world power that—one of those farof unknown countries which the fancy loves and the geography ignores. But the host came presently with further information:

"Michigan—a lake, they tell me, big as a sea. And the lady paints. She would desire to see your pictures, it might be—eh?—if you asked. You love her?"

"Yes, I love her," Giuseppe answered, "but she is not for such as me."

That night he had a word for Margharita, a kiss from Floria, an appointment with Beatrice. But it was the last time, for his heart was with the saintly one whose lips his stained never press. Henceforward she alone should be his inspiration, she would make him great. He would put on canvas this impossible, ecstatic passion for a water maiden, an Undine, an angel from Michigan—that lake, big as a sea. And perhaps she would come to see his pictures.

Angelica came one day. The innkeeper's "He respects you, signorina," gave her most distinct view of self-control. In spite of herself she was very proud of it, this respect of a dissolute man, for it separated her, Angelica Giuseppe, from earth's other women. It was a distinction to be valued like all distinctions, according to its purity.

Giuseppe received her with few words and much humility. His works spoke for him. She saw there Madonna eyes and quiet valleys and that peaceful calm of evening when God walked abroad in the garden. Everywhere was faith, tinged by sorrow to a deeper richness, and poetry and intuitive comprehension of those things beyond that humankind must strive for and reaching. A despair of her own poor reasoning talent seized her.

"The picture shall say it all."

Looking, she understood the man and the strange sweet longing of his countenance. When he unveiled a sketch of herself tears rose with the intensity of her delight. Unfinished as it was, it was the gem of the collection. But the beauty, the exaltation of it, were such as she had never possessed, and he beheld her like that! He was great, he was good, and—she knew it, now with the suddenness of a revelation—she loved him.

"You were so like a picture at the window," he apologized, "that I studied you. You forgive?"

"Surely I forgive." You—you shall study me again."

"Oh, if I might and here! At the window you hung so far above the line."

"I shall be on the line hereafter if you paint me so." And her voice sank to a reverent whisper.

The artist's face flushed. He was a creature of emotions too natural to seek concealment. Without troubling to separate the woman from the conception he struggled with her explanation.

"Oh, signorina, the years that I have longed for you! I cannot make words talk, but the picture shall say it all—how I was weak and wicked and you mercifully came to be my salvation; how you looked at me to lift me out of sin. You will let me love you? I am bold to say it, because I ask nothing. You are so far away that my love cannot offend more than it does the Virgin."

Angelica passed the night with open eyes examining her happiness. The letters of a young attorney in Grand Rapids had been destroyed, they showed so commonplace beside the glory of this new passion. Giuseppe should love her, he willed, and when the time came that it was not unmaidenly to yield—in blissful wakefulness she rehearsed the thousand ways that she might tell him.

The sittings began. The artist worked feverishly and said little. Angelica began to find him more complex than she had thought.

"You are like religion. You make me sad," he said when asked about his somberness. But the answer displeased Angelica and filled her with premonitions. Was it only black eyed Floria, then, who could make him smile?

His interest in her personality was meager, too, for a lover. When she spoke of Grand Rapids he had murmured:

"The rapids—back by the sea where you live?"

Angelica remarked that she lived far inland and in pique added a reference to the attorney whose letters had been sacrificed.

"One worthy you there? Perhaps Giuseppe is not. He knows it. After a time you will return. The great rapids will swallow you—echo, and I shall see you no more." And Angelica's annoyance at the ease with which she was resigned was only half removed by his conclusion as he touched his breast:

"But I shall have you here always."

Nor would he let her see the picture. "Wait till it is done," he said. And he painted so diligently that she grew jealous. It had all his attention, she none. What was it like? The innkeeper, who had seen it, called her Giuseppe's inspiration. But was she to be only an inspiration? She looked at his abstracted face, and a wave of pain and love overspread her own.

Seeking to make some connection between herself and the painting, she spoke one day of Pygmalion.

"His loved his Galatea into life, you know." Her conviction that Giuseppe did know absolutely nothing that was ever classified and put into a book of reference led her to add:

"She was the statue he had made, and after that she became his wife."

The poetry of this appealed to Giuseppe, nor was the parallel lost. He looked from her to the picture, then gave a despairing sigh:

"Ah, but I have not painted a Galatea."

Angelica's animosity toward the picture grew with her love. The day it was completed and showed to her she could have cried aloud in despair, even while she protested her self-safeguarding in spite of herself she was very proud of it, this respect of a dissolute man, for it separated her, Angelica Giuseppe, from earth's other women. It was a distinction to be valued like all distinctions, according to its purity.

Giuseppe received her with few words and much humility. His works spoke for him. She saw there Madonna eyes and quiet valleys and that peaceful calm of evening when God walked abroad in the garden. Everywhere was faith, tinged by sorrow to a deeper richness, and poetry and intuitive comprehension of those things beyond that humankind must strive for and reaching. A despair of her own poor reasoning talent seized her.

"He or her—which?"

gave way. He was falling like Lucifer from a great height swiftly, giddily. And still as he clasped her in his arms she kept demanding:

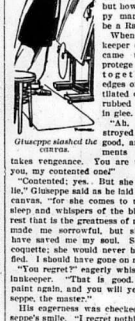
"He or her? Prove it."

Giuseppe turned to the picture. In his glance was the cynicism of an enlightened century over which unbelief has swept. He considered the tender pathos of its eyes with their promises that could never be brought quite to fulfillment. He marked its spirituality, pleading mutely against the flesh, sacred, distant, always distant and unreachable. And it was he who had painted such a meaning into those features. It was he who had cared for heaven while there was an earth. The corners of his mouth twitched. With out warning he burst into a long, loud laugh. Its cold materialism startled Angelica. Before she could prevent he had seized a palette knife and slashed the canvas from edge to edge.

"It have proved it," he whispered. "She is worse than a coquette. She is a lie. But I have you. I am satisfied."

* * * * *

"Yes," the innkeeper was wont to confide to guests, "that is Giuseppe, the painter, and his wife. They are a pair of lovers—so happy. Oh, it is most unfortunate; she has ruined him. If only he had married Floria—but how is a happy man ever to be a Raphael?"



Giuseppe slashed the canvas.

When the innkeeper one night came upon his protege piecing together the edges of the mutilated canvas he rubbed his hands in glee.

"Ah, you destroyed what was good, and it torments you. It takes vengeance. You are troubled—you, my contented one!"

"Contented; yes. But she wasn't a lie," Giuseppe said as he laid away the canvas, "for she comes to me in my sleep and whispers of the blessed unrest that is the greatness of man. She made me sorrowful, but she would have saved me my soul. She was a coquette; she would never be satisfied. I should have gone on and on".

"You regret?" eagerly whispered the innkeeper. "That is good. Regret, paint again, and you will yet be Giuseppe, the master."

His eagerness was checked by Giuseppe's smile. "I regret nothing. I am happy—as contented as an animal without a soul. It its sweet to be so. And a man cannot have all things. I shall paint again, to be sure, but I shall never be an artist."

MY TRIP TO ZULULAND

WHITE WOMAN VISITS NATIVE VILLAGE.

Zulus Are Warlike, She Says, and Are the Aristocrats of All Black Nations — Witch Doctors' Excuse for Not Dancing.

There is something in the word Zululand which creates interest more quickly than the name of any other African native territory, writes Miss Lamb in Answers. At the sound of it, at least, used to picture instinctively a country packed with a population of woolly-haired, black-skinned, spear-brandishing savages, rushing into battle with a blood-curdling cry, or performing a wild war-dance round the bush fire in the dusk of evening!

Imagine my excitement, then, when, in the month of August, while staying in the beautiful town of Durban, I met a missionary, who kindly invited me to visit his station in the heart of the native country. He was travelling in South Africa, gathering material for a series of lectures, and here seemed a unique opportunity, so I gladly accepted his invitation.

The mission proved to be a lonely station in the heart of Zululand, where white folk are seldom or never seen—I believe I was the first white woman to visit there for over thirty years—and the natives, though not so warlike as those of my imagination, are fearsome-looking enough.

From Durban the journey is a long one, and there is no way of it but to be accomplished in a wagon drawn by a span of oxen. As the average speed of this conveyance is two miles per hour, the trip is very tedious. The missionary, or "Umfundise," as his flock call him, met me at Somkele, the rail-head, with his retinue of "boys" or native servants.

The head boy was a burly Zulu of giant stature, bearing the name of Ernest, and dressed in a ragged pair of khaki trousers—a fact which told the world he was a Christian. His business was to drive the oxen, which he did by continually urging them on with a crack of his fourteen-foot whip, yelling, dancing, and leaping along the road.

My heart fluttered a little, I must confess, especially as he had named all the oxen after different countries or tribes, and I noticed that "England" always received the most vicious cuts with the whip. I have never in my life seen such a wild and heathen Ernest!

During the first part of our journey we met few people, and those we saw were of the more civilized type. For instance, we met one black gentleman dressed entirely in a string of beads and a top-hat, which he carried in his hand a large umbrella! But as we left civilization behind we saw the real Zulus.

As a nation, they are essentially warlike, and perhaps for this reason have remained in their own country longer than the more agricultural peoples of Africa. They are still the aristocrats of all black nations, fine in physique and perfect in health, owing to the rigid tribal laws set them by their leader Chaka, the first as I saw one young warrior swinging along the road in all his war paint, that one could not see a more perfect specimen of manhood anywhere.

After two days' journey the first of our wagon arrived in front of a little mud hut at Tenbahlini, on the banks of the Hlelehlen river, the out-station of the mission. I looked with misgiving round my bare little room, and asked where I should find my bed. Evidently I had not taken the "Umfundise" at his word when he told me I must "rough it," for his reply surprised me.

"Oh, that's all right," he answered. "The boys will go out and cut you some grass." They did; and they brought all the fireflies and gnats and mosquitoes in with it!

I had a wretched night; but, with the break of dawn, I was beginning to doze, when I was startled by weird chants and screams, accompanied by the measured beat of a drum. I learned later that there were three witch-doctors in the neighborhood, and that a beer-drinking in their honor was to take place that morning.

The "Umfundise" decided that I must visit this, so, after breakfast, we made our way to the kraal of Mpanjwana, the chief of the district. There we found the three doctors, two men and a woman, who, after a good deal of persuasion, put on their dress in their full regalia and danced for my benefit.

All was in readiness; they had titivated themselves for the ceremony, and were covered in a profusion of blue and red paint, with ostrich plumes quills round their necks, rattling snake bones round their ankles, and their heads tastefully decorated with the entrails of animals They struck an attitude; the dance was about to begin. Then, suddenly, the senior witch-doctor stepped forward to the missionary and explained that they would rather be excused.

"You see," he said, "the Evil Spirit may enter into us and command us to slay the white people. We do not wish to do that, but, if the Spirit orders us, we cannot help ourselves." So we decided to forgo the dance.

Life in Zululand is never dull; in fact, I think it is quite a fine place for a holiday, providing you do not mind roughing it, and that you are prepared at any time to meet the larger fauna of the country—lions, leopards, rhinos, and crocodiles.

To Make Matters Worse.

Angelina: "I couldn't decide among my suitors, so I told them all to see papa."

Alice: "Well?"

"Now I'm worse off than ever; papa gave his consent to every one of them."

TAR SANDS OF ALBERTA

Huge Deposits Pave Way for Improvement of Western Highways — Is Only a Matter of Cost.

The commercial utilization of the tar sand deposits of the McMurray area has been materially advanced by the contracting with the equitable asphalt of roadways and walks in Jasper National Park, Alberta. This practical test—the first as a commercial scale—was made possible by the co-operation of the Canadian National Parks Branch of the Department of the Interior and the Mines Branch of the Department of Mines.

The section of road surfaced extends from Jasper townsite to Jasper Lodge, a distance of nearly two and three-quarter miles. Traffic is fairly heavy and is equivalent to at least 500 motor vehicles per day. Climatic conditions are marked by wide range in temperature and are therefore typical of conditions which prevail in Western Canada. The bituminous sand mixture was laid directly on the old gravel road which was equivalent to a fairly good macadam. The thickness of wearing surface is approximately two inches.

Following the completion of the highway, a considerable additional length was laid at the request of officials of the Canadian National Railways. This included the approaches to the Jasper Lodge garage, and walks and roadways communicating with the various bungalows connected with the Lodge. The total area laid was equivalent to approximately 10,000 square yards of two-inch compacted surface. This work was begun in 1926 and finished in the autumn of 1927, a certain part of the pavement has been in use for over a year.

In carrying out its part of the work the Mines Branch opened up a quarry at McMurray, looked after the transportation of material, and operated a heating and mixing plant for the manipulation of the sand. At the quarry, the overburden, consisting of 12 to 15 feet of loose material, was first removed and the bituminous sand itself was then readily broken down by the use of slow explosives.

The material was loaded on barges and towed up Clearwater river to the terminus of the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway, at Waterways, loaded by hand into mine cars, and conveyed over a treestle to the railway siding, where it was dumped either on the decks of the freight cars.

The heating and mixing of the sand for road surfacing presented no difficulty although the plant constructed and operated at Jasper represented a radical departure from generally accepted methods. Its outstanding features were the low cost of construction, simplicity of operations, and low operating costs.

The behaviour of the pavements laid in Jasper Park and the success of several small test pieces put down in the city of Edmonton in 1915 make it clear that Alberta bituminous sand can be used for the construction of the higher class of asphalt wearing surfaces, so that it will be the matter of cost which will determine the extent to which this paving material may be used in the West.

Husband Not Liable.

A judgment of considerable importance to merchants who sell fur coats to women on the instalment plan has been rendered by Mr. Justice Middleton in Toronto, who, in dismissing an action taken by Cohen's Limited, Montreal, against Dame Charlotte Tessier et vir, made it clear that, unless the husband signs the contract, a purchase of this kind made by the wife is not valid and no action can be taken to recover the balance of purchase price after failure of the purchaser to pay instalments.

A wife, the judge pointed out, may contribute her share to a household, but she has no assets which can be liquidated. Even if she had liquid assets, his lordship added, they must be placed as her contribution in the hands of her husband and she cannot assume an obligation on the strength of them. The action was therefore dismissed with costs.

Box of Gold to Hospital.

The box of gold is not so much a dream of the past as many people think. Such a gift from an anonymous donor has just been received at the Queen's Hospital for Children, London.

A woman in black handed a small cardboard box in at the secretary's office, and hurried away. The box was opened and found to contain £1,000 in sovereigns and half-sovereigns. On a piece of notepaper was a message stating that the money was a donation for the hospital "with every good wish."

River Disappears.

The Tarim river in Ching rises in well-watered mountains and has a length of several hundred miles, over a part of which it exceeds in size many of the well-known rivers of the world. But it never reaches the sea. In the sands and salt flats of the eastern part of the Tarim basin the river is lost by evaporation.

AN ISLAND FOR ANIMALS.

Trustees Are Finding Difficulty In Handling $2,000,000 Bequest.

When she died two years ago Mrs. Sarah Martha Grove-Grady, of Hyde Park W., London, England, left the residue of her estate—it was valued for probate at more than £600,000—for the formation of a society to be called the Beaumont Animals' Benevolent Society, which was to establish a "refuge or refuges for the preservation of all animals, birds, or other creatures, not human." An old friend explained to a London Mail reporter:

"Mrs. Grove-Grady was passionately fond of animals and could not bear that any should be killed. She was very anxious that her money should be used to purchase an island on which there should be at least one of every sort of British native animal —a kind of British Noah's Ark—which should be allowed to live unmolested."

The trustees, however, have found some difficulty in administering the residue of the estate, estimated at about £400,000, in accordance with the provisions laid down by Mrs. Grove-Grady and as a result it has been decided to seek the view of the Court of Chancery.

It was Mrs. Grove-Grady's strong feeling against vivisection which led the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to decline a bequest of £10,000 which she made to it.

Famous Eyesore Is To Go.

Lady Hilton Young's perambulator shed, which she had built in the front garden of her house at the corner of Leinster terrace and Bayswater road, London, England, must go.

That was the decision the London County Council came to after due deliberation.

Lady Young, who before her marriage to Commander Sir E. Hilton Young, M.P., was the widow of Capt. Scott, the Arctic explorer, had the shed built so she would be spared the trouble of taking the perambulator round into the back garden and carrying it up steps and round corners to get it into the house. But the L.C.C. says the shed cannot be allowed under Section 22 and 83 of the London Building Act, 1894.

Lady Young, or her husband, must remove the shed forthwith or the L.C.C. will see that it is removed.

Cause of Migration Is a Mystery.

Scientists have never yet done anything more than hazard at the meaning of the arrival of the song-birds in the spring, and their flight to the south in the fall. Such, at least, is the opinion expressed by Dr. Alexander Wetmore, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, and president of the American Ornithologist Union. Behind migration lies such a multitude of apparent causes, says Dr. Wetmore, that men, through all the ages, have been unable to ascertain the truth.

The Right Address.

A young New York broker of convivial habits fell in with an old school friend who had gone on the road.

"Whenever you're in town come up and bunk with me," urged his friend as they separated, "no matter what old time it is. If I'm not there just go ahead and make yourself at home. I'll be sure to turn up before daybreak."

Soon after this the salesman arrived in town about midnight and, remembering his friend's invitation, sought out his boarding house. There was only a dim light flickering in the hall, but he gave the bell a manful pull. Presently he found himself face to face with a landlady of grim and terrible aspect.

"Does Mr. Smith live here?" he faltered.

"He does!" snapped the landlady. "You can bring him right in!"—Everybody's.

ODESSA WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular monthly meeting of the Odessa Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. J. E. Mabee, on January 4th. There were reports on the different lines of work being done, and a committee named to meet the Library Board and make needs of the library.

The roll call was answered by "Say, Sing or Pay", and was responded to by many beautiful thoughts which could be put into practice during the year.

The address of the afternoon was given by Dr. J. E. Mabee, on "Prevention of Epidemics". He said he was very pleased to see so many out on such a stormy day, and wished the Institute every success, as they are doing wonderful work. The diseases mentioned were diphtheria, smallpox, scarlet and typhoid fever, measles, whooping cough and anthrax. The use of vaccines and serums has helped to lessen and lighten these dread diseases. The benefit derived from quarantine was also shown by the reports of the number of cases of different years. Dr. Mabee very kindly answered any questions as to the number of times one could have any of these contagious diseases by giving examples of cases he had known. A vote of thanks was tendered to Dr. Mabee for the very interesting and instructive address.

Mrs. Roy Hartman's paper on "Current Events", certainly proved well worth while.

The music for the afternoon was a vocal solo by Mrs. Jas. Dawson, and a piano solo by Mrs. John Amey.

The hostess served dainty refreshments at the close of the meeting, assisted by Mrs. Pooke, Mrs. W. Sharp, and Mrs. T. Swift.

The next meeting will be held at the Public Library, the first Wednesday in February, unless further notice.

Rev. Mr. McQuade will give an address on "The Value of Good Reading". The roll call will be "A beautiful thought in poetry or prose".

SILLSVILLE AUXILIARY

The January meeting of the Sillsville Auxiliary was held on January 4th, at the home of Mrs. Harold Hough. Mrs. Geo. Sharpe, 2nd Vice President, very ably conducted the meeting.

The devotional exercises were followed by appointment of delegates to the Presbyterial to be held in Picton during January. Mrs. M. B. Whyte and Mrs. Bruce Robertson were chosen. Reports were given and approved. Mrs. Plant continued the "Study Book", showing all the world as neighbors. The problem of one country being the problem of each. Our work must be in terms of "The World for Christ".

Mrs. Sharpe was unanimously chosen President, Mrs. H. Hough taking the 2nd Vice Presidency. Mrs. Plant invited the February meeting to be held at the Parsonage.

The meeting closed by singing the Doxology.

Christ has no hands but our hands
To do His work to-day.
He has no feet but our feet,
To lead men in His way."

Wilson celebrated their thirty-fifth anniversary on Wednesday, the 28th of December. — Enid Fingland returned to Peterboro' Normal School, after spending the Xmas holidays under the parental roof. — Mr. J. Hannah and family are enjoying a new radio.—Mr. George Hyland is reported to be very much better. — Mrs. Mary Ann Kennedy, of Chatham, who has been spending some time with her mother, Mrs. W. Hyland, and other relatives, returned to her home on Thursday.—The T. C. S. pupils have resumed their studies again.—Maurice Fingland is visiting friends in Toronto.

DORLAND

The ideal weather at Christmas failed to last over the New Year. The downpour of rain on Saturday, followed by cold weather on Sunday, made some bad icy spots. A good share of the snow is clear of snow, but the banks in places made bad going. — Many people are seriously inconvenienced by the difficulty in getting horses shod. A good blacksmith is badly needed in this locality. — The postponed meeting of the Ladies' Aid held at the home of Mrs. Wilkie Cousins, on Thursday p.m., was well attended. The report of last year's work was given, and the officers elected for 1928. The Executive consists of President, Miss Hattie Magee; Vice President, Mrs. G. A. Ruttan; Secretary, Mrs. Ercell Foster; Treasurer, Mrs. W. D. Roblin. It was decided to dispense with refreshments for this year.—The annual meeting of the shareholders of the U. E. L. Butter and Cheese Co., was held on Thursday afternoon, in the factory.—A very successful year's work was reviewed, and all the officers re-elected.—Miss Hattie Magee is visiting her sister, Mrs. F. Vanest, Enterprise.—Reeve Johnson is confined to his home by ill health.—Miss G. Roblin visited in Kingston last week.—Mrs. Mary Robertson and Miss E. Robertson spent the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. G. Switzer, Napanee.—Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Roblin will spend the winter at the Campbell House, Napanee.

She Used Them to Purify Her Blood

So Says Manitoba Lady of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Miss Ella Scott Suffered From Boils and Pimples on Her Arms

Carnfax, Man., Jan. 9 (Special)—"I cannot praise Dodd's Kidney Pills too highly," writes Miss E. Smith, a well-known resident of this place. "They have helped me so much. At one time I had thirteen boils and my arms were just covered with pimples, owing to my being in a run-down condition. I have used several boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they have built me up again. I am quite well now. I always recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to people."

Dodd's Kidney Pills simply strengthen and heal the kidneys. The work of the kidneys is to strain all the waste matter out of the blood. If the kidneys are out of order they fail to do their work, and the waste matter remains in the blood, causing serious diseases.

Sound kidneys mean pure blood. Pure blood means good health.

Mrs. Wilson's Experience a Guide to Women Passing through the Change of Life

Hamilton, Ontario. — "I have taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot speak too highly of it as I was at the Change of Life and was all run-down and had no appetite. I was very weak and sick, and the pains in my back were so bad I couldn't hardly move. I got very sad at times and thought I had not a friend on earth. I did not care if I lived or died. I was very nervous, too, and did not go out very much. A friend advised me to try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I did. I am a farmer's wife, and always worked hard until lately, and was in bed for two months. I began to feel like a new woman after the first bottle and I recommend it with great success, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about your medicines, as I cannot speak too highly of them."—Mrs. EMMA WILSON, 471 Wilson Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

McTavish went into the Glasgow antique dealer's shop to buy a pair of antlers that had taken his fancy.

After a certain amount of haggling the dealer in antiques reduced the price from five guineas to two. But even then McTavish was not satisfied.

"Hech, mon," he complained, "are they no awfu' dear?"

"Of course they're off a deer," roared the man behind the counter, "did ye think they cam' frae a rabbit?"

The Many Purpose Oil.—Both in the house and stable there are scores of uses for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Use it for cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, the pains of rheumatism and sciatica, sore throat and chest. Horses are liable very laggely to similar ailments and mishaps as afflict mankind, and are equally amenable to the healing influence of this fine old remedy which has made thousands of firm friends during the past fifty years.

It's never been discovered where people who live beyond their incomes get the money.

A Remedy for Earache.—To have the earache is to endure torture. The ear is a delicate organ and few care to deal with it, considering it work for a doctor. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil offers a simple remedy. A few drops upon a piece of lint or medicated cotton and placed in the ear will do much in relieving pain.

Willesden Woman—I gave my tenant notice, as he paid no rent and was a nuisance. He promptly bought the house over my head, and gave me notice the next day.

Sweet and palatable, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is acceptable to children, and it does its work surely and promptly.

A Scottish golfing clergyman drove his ball into the famous "Hell" bunker on the St. Andrew's course.

"Ye're in Hell the noo," said the caddie, amiably, "and ance ye're in, ye'll nae get oot again!"

"Will I no?" retorted the clergyman, "and with a huge sweep lifted the ball out of the sandy abyss and on to the green.

"Aweel, sir," said the astonished caddie, "when ye dee, be sure and tak yer nechlick wi' ye."

There may be other corn removers, but you will not be completely satisfied until you have used Holloway's Corn Remover.

"Say, listen—if you took lessons for three years, maybe you could play the piano half as well as you think you can play it now, if you thought you played it twice as well as you think you do now—maybe."

Reduced by Asthma. The constant strain of asthma brings the patient to a dreadful state of hopeless exhaustion. Early use should by all means be made of the famous Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy, which more than any other acts quickly and surely on the air passages and brings blessed help and comfort. No home where asthma is present in the least degree should be without this great remedy.

Angry Husband—"But you promised to obey when you married me."

Obstinate Wife—"Of course; I didn't want to make a scene in church."

Miller's Worm Powders, being in demand everywhere, can be got at any chemist's or drug shop, at very small cost. They are a reliable remedy for worm troubles, and can be fully relied upon to expel worms from the system and abate the sufferings that worms cause. There are many mothers that rejoice that they found available so effective a remedy for the relief of their children.

Wife—"Did you post that letter I gave you?"

Hubby—"Yes, dear; I carried it in my hand so I couldn't forget it, and I dropped it in the first box. I remember because——"

"There, dear, don't say any more. I didn't give you a letter to post."

Our Winter Weather

A Trying Time for People With Weak Watery Blood.

Canadian winter weather is a trying time for debilitated, run-down people. The close air of shut-up houses, lack of out-of-door exercise, the restricted diet of the season, all have their effect on weakened systems. There is always in such cases the danger of severe colds, attacks of influenza, or the still more dreaded pneumonia. There is no other time of year, when a bountiful supply of rich, red blood is so necessary; and the one way to keep the blood rich and pure and thus avoid winter trouble is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If, unfortunately, you have fallen a victim to influenza, or other winter troubles, this same medicine will restore your health and strength. Among those who have proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Miss Margaret Pearson, R.R. No. 3, Chatham. Miss Pearson had passed through a severe attack of influenza and says: "It left me so weak and run-down, that I could scarcely walk. Anaemia set in and it almost seemed as if I would not pull through the winter, as I grew so weak that the least exertion would bring on fainting spells. I was under medical treatment, but it did not help me. Then one day in our local paper I read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and decided to try them. By the time I had used three boxes I felt much better, and continuing the use of the pills it was not long before I felt better than I had been before the influenza attacked me. My rapid recovery surprised my friends, and when asked "What did you do?" I would proudly say, "Not my doing, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." To me, at least, the pills have been worth their weight in gold."

As a precaution against winter ills take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now. Sold by all medicine dealers, or sent by mail at 50c a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Election of Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Napanee Public Library, held on Monday evening, January 9th, the following officers were elected for 1928:—

President—W. S. Herrington.
Secty. Treas.—Ernest J. Walters.
Librarian—Miss Lucy Edwards.
Auditor—T. B. Wallace.
Board of Directors—J. W. Robinson, W. P. Deroche, W. S. Herrington, Geo. W. Gibbard, E. J. Walters, T. B. Wallace, E. J. Corkill, James Laughland.

EMPEY HILL W.M.S.

The W. M. S. of Empey Hill held their December meeting at the home of Mrs. Mark Husband, with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by singing Hymn 143, followed by the Lord's Prayer. After the usual business of the meeting, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

President—Mrs. Bruce Russell.
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. Wilbert Winters
2nd Vice Pres.—Mrs. Bruce Kimmerly.
Sec. Secty.—Mrs. Sam Winters.
Rec. Secty.—Mrs. Fred Kimmerly.
Treasurer—Mrs. Mark Husband.
Organist—Mrs. T. J. Russell.

At the close of the meeting dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

The January meeting was held on the 4th, at the home of Mrs. Bruce Kimmerly. In the absence of the President, Mrs. Bruce Kimmerly took charge of the meeting, opening with Hymn 391, prayer being offered by Mrs. Chester Kimmerly, one of the oldest members of the Society. It was decided at this meeting that some member have the meeting in their home each month of the year.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Kimmerly served refreshments. There was a good attendance and a good collection.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Wilbert Winters, on the evening of the 1st of February, as a social evening. There will be a programme and refreshments of pie, cake and sandwiches. Admission 15c. Everybody welcome.

BASKETBALL

Belleville "Y" 65—Napanee 27.

On Wednesday night, January 11th Belleville "Y" defeated Napanee by the score of 65-27, at the N.C.I. gym., in the second game here of the E. O. A. B. A.

The first half of the game was very fast and interesting, but the fouls were many. At the end of the half no less than three Belleville men and two Napaneans had three each, and a few more two each. Belleville scored 37 points in this half, while Napanee netted 18. The second half was much cleaner, only two personal fouls being committed, and exceedingly fast ball was played. In this period Belleville tallied 28 and the locals 11.

Our old friend, Weir, in excellent condition, lead his team in scoring, accounting for 24 points. His game was sensational. "Army" Armstrong followed him with 16 points, and Kerr registered 14. The Belleville men shifted their positions often, and so it was hard to follow their play, but on the defensive, Jimmy Alexander, Brown and Walters were very effective. The whole team worked well and deserved their win.

The locals were handicapped since two regulars were absent, namely Wes. Powell and "Bus" Daly. There is no doubt that the score would have been more even had these men been in the game. Nevertheless, they played well and had their shooting been more accurate their score would have been higher. MacDonald made several neat shots from hard angles and succeeded in tallying 10 points, 4 being free throws. Stewart worked in perfect combination with "Mick" and scored 8 points, but both these men were too short to be very effective in shooting. "Lars" Wartman at centre played his usual fine game. Murray and Cavanaugh did good work on defense, but Weir & Co. were too much for them. Black, Alkenbrack and Coates very ably did the relieving.

The following are the teams and officials:—

Belleville—Defense, Walters, Alexander; forwards, Weir (Capt.), Kerr; centre, Armstrong; spares, Evoy, Brown, Cole, Buchanan.

Napanee—Defense, Murray, Cavanaugh; forwards, MacDonald (Capt.) Stewart; centre, Wartman; spares, Black, Coates and Alcombrack.

Referee—R. H. Scott, Albert College.

Timers—Ralph Morden and R. H. Woodruff.

Scorer—G. E. Gibbard.

Sunday School Entertainment And Christmas Tree.

The annual S. S. entertainment of St. Mary Magdalene Church was held on Wednesday, January 4th. The Church Hall was filled to overflowing. The programme, consisting of drills, choruses and plays, was much appreciated. All the children acquitted themselves most creditably, and Santa Claus was generous. The thanks of the Sunday School and congregation is hereby tendered to Mrs. Dumbrille, Mrs. Katherine Powell, Miss Dorothy Daverin, Mr. Cyril Waite and Captain Hughson for assistance in making the entertainment a success.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

The annual installation of the officers of Napanee Chapter No. 151, Order of the Eastern Star, was held in the rooms of Argyll Lodge, No. 212, I.O.O.F., on Tuesday evening, and was marked with a large attendance of members and visitors, the latter representing Loughboro' Chapter of Sydenham, Fraternal and Kingston Chapters of Kingston, and Belleville Chapter No. 55, of Belleville.

Prior to the opening of the Chapter, a sumptuous banquet was held in the dining hall of the Campbell House, and a very choice menu was partaken of by nearly eighty members and visitors.

The Installation ceremony, which was very beautiful, was conducted by Mrs. Barlow, of Belleville Chapter No. 55, who is a Past District Deputy Grand Matron, the Marshall for the occasion being Mrs. Geo. Rothwell, Past District Deputy Grand Matron of Fraternal Chapter, Kingston.

Assisting the Grand Officers were Mrs. Wright, Worthy Matron of Fraternal Chapter, Kingston; Mrs. Jordan, Past Worthy Matron, and Mr. Geo. Rothwell, Past Worthy Patron of Fraternal Chapter, Kingston.

The newly installed officers for 1928 are as follows:—

Worthy Matron—Mrs. Harry Thompson.
Worthy Patron—Mr. W. A. Thompson.
Associate Matron—Mrs. R. S. Wales.
Secretary—Miss Hilda Mae Anderson.
Treasurer—Mrs. H. L. VanLuven.
Conductress—Mrs. Frank Herrington
Associate Conductress—Mrs. Hurrell Huffman.
Marshall—Mrs. Clarence Sharp.
Chaplain—Mrs. J. R. Robinson.
Organist—Mrs. B. M. Black.
Warder—Mrs. H. Ackerman.
Sentinel—Mr. Fred Henderson.
Star Points—Mrs. Fred Henderson, Mrs. Fred Taverner, Mrs. Frankie Aselstine, Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Mrs. Percy Sharp.

The installation service being duly concluded a number of presentations were then made. Mrs. Barlow and Mrs. Rothwell, the installing officers, were the recipients each of a beautiful piece of silver, the presentations being made on behalf of the officers and members of Napanee Chapter. Mrs. Frank Herrington, on behalf of Mrs. (Rev.) W. R. Tanton, of Cobourg, who was Associate Matron, presented the retiring Worthy Matron, Mrs. Edith Taverner, with a beautiful bouquet of roses. The retiring Worthy Matron, Miss Taverner, and retiring Worthy Patron, Mr. B. M. Black, were each presented with a magnificent Jewell, the presentations being made by Mrs. T. M. Asselstine and Mrs. R. S. Wales. Miss Taverner was also presented with a beautiful silk parasol by the retiring Worthy Patron, Mr. B. M. Black.

Each of the officers for 1927 were given a flower by Miss Taverner, and the Social Committee, Mrs. Percy Sharp, Mrs. W. A. Thompson, and Miss Long, were not forgotten for their faithful services during the year, each being presented with a lovely piece of china by the retiring Worthy Matron and Patron.

The newly elected Worthy Matron, Mrs. Harry Thompson, was also the recipient of a beautiful pin, the gift of her mother, Mrs. Riley, of Fraternal Chapter, Kingston.

The recipients very feelingly acknowledged the exquisite gifts, after which brief addresses were given by a number of the visiting members.

At the close of the Chapter session light refreshments were served and the second installation of the officers of Napanee Chapter was thus fittingly brought to a close.

ODESSA UNITED CHURCH W. M. S.

The January meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. J. E. Mabee, and a large crowd was present. In the absence of our President, Mrs. Frankie Aselstine, the Vice President took the chair. Reports of the work of the Society for the past nine months were presented by the Secretaries of the various departments. Papers were given by some of the ladies on missionary work in foreign lands.

Then came the election of officers for 1928.

President—Miss Frankie Aselstine.
1st Vice Pres.—Miss Lillian Aylsworth.
2nd Vice Pres.—Mrs. Shelly Denyes.
Rec. Secty.—Mrs. Stanley Holmes
Cor. Secty.—Mrs. G. W. Lucas.
Treasurer—Mrs. Elgin Parrott.
Christian Stewardship Secty.—Mrs. W. J. Snider.
Strangers Secty.—Mrs. Nelson Smith
Press Secretaries—Mrs. G. W. Jones and Mrs. Bigman.
Missionary Monthly Secretary—Mrs. J. D. Snider.
Mission Circle Leader—Mrs. Courtland Snider.
Auditors—Mrs. J. H. Babcock and Mrs. Nelson Smith.

SWASTIKA CLUB DANCE

One of the most outstanding social events of the season took place on Friday evening, December 30th, when the girls of the Swastika Club gave their annual holiday dance in the Orange Assembly Hall. The patrons and patronesses for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Caton, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbride, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wiggins.

The ball-room was profusely decorated with Christmas greenry. One corner of the room was completely taken up by a large and brilliantly decorated Christmas tree, under which the patronesses received the guests. Many tiny shaded lights and Swastika banners completed the decorations. The ball-room itself a fairyland and the exquisite gowns of the ladies made this the most gala dance ever given in Napanee. Excellent music was furnished by a seven-piece Orchestra, under the capable leadership of Mr. Everett Stevens. The many novelty dances, for which pretty favors were given, did much to add to the merriment of the gay scene. During the intermission, dainty refreshments were served by the Club members. Over two hundred and fifty guests were present from various parts of Canada and the United States, testifying to the ever-increasing popularity of the Swastika Club dances.

HOCKEY

In Saturday's issue of the Kingston Whig-Standard mention was made of the hockey situation in Napanee, and whether there would be a league.

The management of the local team has made every effort to organize a league, but the only team that was ready to operate in a league was Trenton, and Napanee felt that it was not a good financial proposition to operate a two-team league of only Napanee and Trenton. Picton and Belleville were approached on the subject and they were unable to get the support that a team requires, and therefore had to drop the proposition.

The officers of the Hockey team are going to give the fans plenty of opportunity to witness hockey and have already made arrangements for exhibition games with Trenton, Queen's Intermediates and another Kingston team. The local team has had a couple of work-outs, and already are going good, and they should be able to give a good account of themselves. "Ted" Bentley, a younger brother of "Freddie", has shown good early season form, and will likely bear watching. "Bunk" Wilson, who was the season's find last year, has already shown up in good shape and looks to be in for a good season. Fred Bentley, who has teamed up on the defense with Jim Naphin for the past few years, is going as good as ever and Freddie is anxiously awaiting word from the O.H.A. for his card. Maurice Delor, who last year played for Deseronto Intermediate champions, will likely appear for Napanee on the forward line. He should be a decided acquisition. Napanee are well fortified in goal in "Wes" Powell, of Kingston, Wes. who is as cool as the proverbial cucumber, guarded the nets for Napanee last winter and the fans remember his work. He is also a basketball player of note, and in baseball played with Circle Six champions of the Kingston City League. "Wes" will be a decided acquisition to all branches of sport in Napanee. Harry Skitch, Gerald Gleeson, Irvin Johnston and Jimmy Naphin are all out for a place, and there is no reason why Napanee should not have a successful season.

The local Club have a deficit from last season to wipe out, and it is to be hoped that the fans who have been clamouring for hockey will rally to the support of the team, even though it is exhibition games. The great fault with hockey in Napanee in the past few years has been the lack of encouragement from the public. Go to any hockey meeting and only a handful of men are present. Napanee should be in the O.H.A. but not until some encouragement is shown will there ever be a team in the biggest amateur organization in Canada.

Start the New Year Right.

Any home wishing to provide every member of the family, old and young, with a few hours' enjoyment every day during 1928, should see that The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal is a regular weekly visitor. For two cents per week, or one dollar a year, every member of the family will receive a treat that will be appreciated. It is not only a world's newspaper, but a great family magazine unequalled on this Continent, and a farm journal that will bring value an hundredfold during the year. The Family Herald is read already by one million Canadians each week. It is surely wonderful value, and every home receiving it is benefitted by its weekly visit. 1928 will be happier for your home if you send one dollar for a year's subscription to the big 72 page paper.

SPORTS IN BAY OF QUINTE DISTRICT

"COSSA"

At a meeting in Belleville Y. M. C. A. final arrangements were made for sports in the Bay of Quinte district. Messrs. Beattie, Gibson and Clibbard represented N.C.I. Mr. Murray had to referee a basketball game in Kingston and so could not attend. Representatives from all schools except Picton were present. — The following officers were elected :—

President—Mr. MacLaurin, B.H.S.
Vice President—Mr. Slickwood, Trenton H.S.
Secty. Treas.—R. H. Scott, Albert College.
Executive Committee—J. L. Murray, N.C.I.; C. R. O'Byrne, Picton; Mr. Campbell, Deseronto H.S.

Each school is to pay $2.00 to join the group and $3.00 to join the O. B. A. A. It was decided not to join up with "Eossa" or "Wossa", but to get in touch with the various schools between these two organizations, and try to form a Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association.

Arrangements were made for both hockey and basketball for this season. Albert College does not intend to play hockey so that the five schools have been divided into two groups, Trenton, Belleville, and Picton in one, and Napanee and Deseronto in the other. The schedule for the former has been drawn up, but because of the uncertainty of the ice in both Deseronto and Napanee, these schools will arrange their games (in January), when convenient. Two home-and-home games are to be played.

It was hard to arrange the basketball schedule and the writer only got the dates with the local team. Deseronto entered a team for the first time while Trenton decided to drop out. Picton did not enter.

The following are the local games :—
N.C.I. at Albert College, Jan. 24th.
N.C.I. at H.H.S., Feb. 4th.
B.H.S. at N.C.I., Feb. 9th.
Albert College at N.C.I., Feb. 24th.
N.C.I. at D.H.S., Mar. 2nd.
B.H.S. at N.C.I., open.

ANNUAL MEETING, V.O.N.

The annual meeting of the Napanee Branch of the V.O.N. was held on Tuesday evening, in the Public Library. Following are the officers for 1928 :—

Hon. President—Mrs. F. F. Miller.
President—Mrs. Geo. Switzer.
1st Vice President—Mrs. W. H. Millsap.
2nd Vice President—Mrs. W. Smith.
3rd Vice President—Mrs. Geo. Clibbard.
Secretary—Mrs. C. B. Creighton.
Treasurer—Miss Mary Leamy.
Conveners :—
Women's Finance Committee—Mrs. C. I. Maybee.
Men's Finance Committee—Mr. W. J. Keller.
Relief Committee—Miss Josephine Leamy.

Secretary's Annual Report.

I beg to submit the fourth annual report of the Secretary of the V. O. N. for the year 1927.

During the year there were ten executive meetings and one special and one public meeting, with an average attendance of ten.

Miss Lambert was the nurse until July 31st. Miss Parks supplied for that month, and August 1st Miss Lauder took up the work at the same salary of $125 per month.

Mrs. Switzer, the President, sent in June as a delegate to the annual meeting of the Board of Governors at Ottawa. Upon her return she gave an interesting talk of the different sessions.

The work done by our nurse included bedside nursing, child welfare, school inspection and instructive health talks.

Funds were raised by the following means : Bedside nursing, grant of $500 from the town, grant of $300 from the Board of Education, a payment dance and tag day, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. allows 75c. to all policy holders and an additional 25c. per infant.

The Child Welfare Clinic is a very important branch of the Nurse's work and has been well attended. The clinic is held every Thursday afternoon in the Council Chamber.

The Relief Committee has lessened the suffering throughout the town.

Sewing meetings are held each Monday afternoon in the Council Chamber, with Miss Josephine Leamy as Convener. Miss Leamy deserves a great deal of credit for the work she is doing.

It is with deep regret that we report the passing of one of our members of the Board, the late Mrs. W. S. Herrington.

The removal from town of Rev. Mr. Coleman and Rev. Mr. Tanton was a great loss to the Society, as they were very faithful to their Order.

Thanks is due our President, members of the Board during the year for co-operation to Mrs. Maybee, Miss J. Leamy and Mr. Doller, Conveners, and members of their committees; to the Board of Education and Town Council for grants; to Miss Edwards for kindness to the nurse.

Respectfully submitted.

ILA E. CREIGHTON.

FORMER CITIZEN DIES AT THE PAS

Alfe Bartley, 57, an old-timer resident of The Pas, Man., was found dead in his shack at Tartan Lake, last week, by his head battered in.

His companion, Patterson, made a rush trip into town a few days ago and reported that Mr. Bartley had been acting rather strangely of late, and Sergt. Rose, of Provincial Police, left town immediately. However, the deceased had been dead some six or eight hours when the police arrived. The body is being brought into town and investigations made. The deceased is a married man and leaves two daughters and a son, a priest in Saskatoon.

Mr. Bartley was interested in a number of mining claims in the north and had just recently put through a number of deals.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Mr. Alf. Bartley will be remembered by many old timers at Fort Frances. He resided here for a number of years previous to 1900. In company with Mr. Mosher they built and operated the old Fort Frances Hotel which was destroyed in the fire of 1905. Mr. Mosher came here with his bride, and left here when the children were quite small to take up residence at Kingston. Previous to going into the hotel business he was engaged in lumbering with Mr. Wm. Bartley, his brother and father of Mr. W. Bartley, of the customs staff.

Mr. Alf. Bartley and his brother, Wm. Bartley, were born at Napanee, Ont.—Fort Frances Times, Fort Frances, Ont., January 5th, 1928.

BOYS' CLUB ORGANIZED

On Thursday, January 12th, about twenty-five boys met at the Collegiate at 7 p.m., for the purpose of organizing a Boys' Athletic Club. Mr. L. S. Beattie presided. The purpose of the club is to give all the boys of the town a chance to play in each sport, chiefly hockey, basketball, volley-ball, and softball, and to keep them busy. The officers are :—

President—Dolph McFadden.
Vice President—Reg. H. Woodruff.
Secty. Treas.—Walter Exley.
Group Leaders—Wilfred Vick, Leslie Merritt, Gordon Gibson, Edmund Way.

The Group leaders have chosen four groups of about twelve, consisting of the boys who have joined, and will have charge of the various teams. Each group will organize separately, electing officers and captains.

The club is backed by the men of the town and the Collegiate gym will be used on Tuesday and Thursday nights for practice, and on Wednesday night for intergroup games. We are not aware that any arrangements have been made for hockey as yet.

A flat fee of 50c. per member has been decided on, but no further rules are in order.

CAMDEN EAST LADIES' AID

The Ladies' Aid of Camden East held their election of officers in the Union Church Hall, Wednesday, January 3rd, at 2 p.m. In the absence of the President, Mrs. D. Saul, the Vice President, Mrs. Scott, presided. After the devotional exercises, Miss Grace Galagher read the minutes, then the Treasurer's report was read, showing the total receipts for the nine months of 1927 to be $392.44, expenditure $144.64; with a balance of $247.80. The Flower Fund report was then read.

It was then decided to make a payment on principal of hall.

Rev. Mr. Anderson presided, and the election of officers by ballot was as follows :—

President—Mrs. B. Yeomans.
1st Vice President—Mrs. A. P. Scott.
2nd Vice President—Mrs. C. Skinner.
3rd Vice President—Mrs. A. Embely.
Secretary—Miss G. Gallagher.
Treasurer—Mrs. P. Alkenbrack.

Mrs. H. Peters was then elected for the Flower Fund; Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Hawley, Mrs. Hyland, Mrs. J. Skinner, and Mrs. E. Peters as the Sick Committee; Mrs. G. Scott and Mrs. W. Simmons for Auditors.

Rev. Mr. Anderson dismissed the meeting, and refreshments were served.

A special meeting was held at the home of Mrs. F. McWilliams, on Tuesday, January 17th. The President, Mrs. B. Yeomans, opened the meeting.

Mrs. D. Saul was appointed Honorary President, which will be in February 10th, in the United Church Hall. A good programme will be given.

The meeting was then brought to a close.

TAMWORTH

Services on the Tamworth United Circuit will be held on Sunday next at Reidville, Marlbank, and Tamworth, in the order named. The Communion will be observed at Reidville and Marlbank.—A Young People's Rally to include Saturday, Sunday and Monday evening meetings, is being planned in connection with the Y. P. U. of Tamworth United Church.—A course of mid-week meetings for Sunday School workers and others connected with the Church or Sunday School, will be started in the near future. — Annual business meetings of Reidville and Marlbank United congregations will be held recently. Good reports were presented by the various departments, and it was found that all financial obligations would be fully met.—The remains of the late Mrs. Schuyler Kennedy were brought home from Kingston on Saturday last. The funeral was held at Christ Church on Monday, the sermon being preached by Rev. Mr. Ferrier, her former pastor. The funeral was very largely attended. Her father and one sister of Wolfe Island, were in attendance. The remains were placed in the vault.—Mr. Wm. Bartley has bought the Rose garage, are working night and day to fill their many orders for work.—The Wells Brothers have moved into town.—Mr. McCallum, Manager of the Standard Bank, and family, have moved from Tamworth to Standard Bank. Mr. Thompson, of Blackstock Standard Bank, comes as Manager of the bank here.—Mr. Cousineya has built a garage in addition to his shoe rooms, for the repairing of cars.—The Wells Brothers have placed several radios in and around town and in the surrounding country.—The Oddfellows held their annual supper on Wednesday night of this week, in the Town Hall, after the installation of officers.

YARKER SOUTH.

Quite a snow storm visited this vicinity on Monday night, which makes it possible for us to get around with sleighs again, and yet not enough to hinder the cars from going through.—Several from here attended the play, "Deacon Dubbs", in the Hall, Camden East, on Thursday evening last, and report it the best play they ever heard. It is rumored that it is to be given again in some nearby villages, so any one who has not seen it, be sure you don't miss the treat of the season.—Mr. and Mrs. Cassen Davey and Ruby spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Freeman, Yarker.—Miss Annie Love, of Kingston, spent the week end at her home here.—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hall and Mrs. Cassen Davey spent a week recently in Kingston with relatives.—Mr. and Mrs. Sperry Hedden, Winston, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Davey.—Mr. and Mrs. Casson Davey spent Tuesday night at the Oddfellows' oyster supper in Yarker.—Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Spence and Chester spent Saturday in Napanee.—Mr. Geo. Jeffrey, of Yarker, is laid up for a time at Casson Davey's.—Several from here attended the play night.—Mr. Ray Brown, of Yarker, spent Sunday with Chester Love.—Harold Huff spent Monday night in Napanee, taking a young people of Camden East put on the play, "Deacon Dubbs", in St. Edmund's Hall.

ODESSA MISSION CIRCLE

The monthly meeting of the Mission Circle was held at the home of Mrs. Courtland Snider, the new Mission Circle leader, on January 10th, with the President, Mrs. Roy Hartman, presiding.

Previous to the meeting it was learned of the departure of two of our members, namely Miss Helen Sproule and Mrs. Clarke Dunn, Helen resuming her work as teacher at Sharp's Corner, and Clarke being transferred to the Royal Bank of Canada, Perth Road Village. The Circle presented each with a small remembrance. The address was read by Mrs. Hartman and the gifts presented by Thora Emerbey and Alberta Davison.

Dear Helen and Clarke, — Since learning of your departure, we, your friends of the Odessa Mission Circle, feel it our duty to express to you our appreciation in the past years. We have found always in both of you a willing and active workers in our Circle, and sincerely regret our loss. However, our loss is your gain. We wish you every success in the new year, and hope you will make a host of friends in your respective fields.

We now ask you to accept these small gifts as a remembrance of your Odessa friends.

Signed on behalf of the Mission Circle.

January 13th, 1928.

Helen and Clarke responded in a few well chosen words, thanking the Mission Circle for their kindness.

The meeting was called to order and the remainder of the programme was given, which included a violin solo by Thora Emberley. The Scripture reading was then read by Mrs. J. Dawson, a solo by Maude Cairns, followed by a reading by Dorothy Hoyle. An instrumental duett was rendered by Mrs. Cairns and Doris. The study book chapter was then read by Rev. Mr. Hagerman. The Orchestra gave several selections before closing.

The hostess wishes to thank her committee and all who so faithfully attended the meetings for sewing during the year; also all those who contributed either by money or material towards the work of the Committee.

Special thanks are due to the President and Treasurer of the Beaver Santa Claus Fund for donations, and the Rotary Club for kindnesses rendered. Thanks are also due Mr. Ed. Duncan for his assistance on several occasions.

BLOCK VALUED AT $75,000 DESTROYED IN MID-NIGHT FIRE

Flames that leaped high into the sky, casting a ruddy glow over the whole town, had practically demolished the Rennie Block, in the centre of the local business district at one o'clock Monday morning.

The fire was then still blazing and firemen stated that the building and its contents, valued at $75,000, would be a total loss. Shortly after midnight the roof caved in, making of the building what would be a vast furnace.

A heavy metal cornice, weighing between two and three tons, came hurtling to the street below.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

No one was hurt, however, firemen and police having taken special precautions to keep the gathered townspeople well back from the walls.

The building, a brick structure erected in 1889, was occupied on the main floor by three stores : the H. W. Kelly grocery store on the corner of Dundas and East streets, the Sellrite Store, a five, ten and twenty cent concern next, and the Dominion Drug Store. The two upper storeys were used by the Douglas Knitting Machine Company, and the Canadian Order of Foresters, who had lodge rooms there. The building was owned by Councillor Charles Rennie.

The fire was first noticed at about 10.30 o'clock by Night Constable A. E. Cook. The town fire brigade was promptly on the scene, but even in that short time the fire had made such headway through the building's old and dried timbers, that the several streams of hose brought into play by the fire-fighters had but little effect.

On Tuesday morning the walls started to fall, and now all that is left is a heap of broken bricks.

CAMDEN EAST

The Women's Institute play was held on Thursday night of last week, and was a splendid success despite the inclemency of the weather. A large number gathered and a very profitable and pleasant time was enjoyed by all. Proceeds amounted to about $75.00. — The Aid intend having an oyster supper on Friday, Feb. 10th. Further particulars later. — Mr. and Mrs. W. ENTERPRISE

We are having a very wild winter so far.—The light fall of snow on Monday night has made the roads passable for sleighs again for light loads. — Rev. Mr. Morgan, of Winnipeg, successor of Rev. J. A. Poston, of Tamworth, spent a day in town recently.—One of our oldest and respected citizens passed away last week in the person of Mrs. Cornelius Clancy. The funeral services were held in the United Church and conducted by the Pastor, Rev. Mr. Hunt, assisted by her former Pastor, Rev. Mr. Merriam. The very large funeral showed the high esteem in which the departed was held in the village and surrounding community. The remains were placed in the vault awaiting interment in the spring. — Mr. Stanley Bell was taken suddenly ill at recently, and is very ill at time of writing.—Mr. Sidney Wagar is also on the sick list.—Mrs. Thomas Carney is also seriously ill.—Mr. and Mrs. E. Fenwick are also in poor health.—The Women's Auxiliary of St. Johns's Church held their annual meeting at which they were pleased to welcome 4 here have completed the number of their new Diasell oil engine and new grist mill, and January 1st have reduced the price of grinding to the farmers.

DORLAND

The cold snap on Sunday and Monday put a thin coating of ice on the Bay of Quinte, and healed over the air holes in Hay Bay, but did not last long enough to guarantee it safe. The light fall of snow has made it possible for the farmers to get up logs and trees. Mack and Mosier have finished pressing hay in this locality. —Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Allison left for Florida on Monday.—The T. P. S. will meet in the school room of the church on Friday evening. All who are interested in the Society should be present to assist in making plans for the winter.—Mr. A. M. Bogart is holding an auction sale in his store every Saturday evening.

Deer and Wolves

By Jack Miner.

Among the editorials in the Toronto Mail and Empire of December 26th appeared the above words, "Deer and Wolves", and, as I read and re-read this most important article, I couldn't help but wish that all the editors in Ontario could be better posted on the destructiveness and cold blooded, murderous acts of these timber wolves. Just to think that in Algoma District a deer has been stumbling her way back and forth to a little stream and when put out of her misery by a bullet she was found to have one ham over half eaten away and the shredded skin showed the marks of a devilish timber wolf's sharp teeth! This, of course, is an exceptional case, but it can be readily understood by men that know the letter A about sheep-dogs and wolves.

Now who is chiefly to blame? I say, from personal knowledge, we so-called sportsmen are to blame. We meet in convention and the decreasing of the deer is being discussed. The still hunter condemns the dogs. The dog hunters claim it is the still hunters and the settlers, the latter killing them in the summer time and I stand up and move that we recommend a buck law and only those with antlers be allowed shot. This apparently only increases the friction that is rapidly growing warmer until the chairman can hardly keep two or three from talking at once, and finally we go home sorry we ever went, and wishing we could re-call every sharp word we have said; Meanwhile, the skulking timber is ferreing himself on our wild mutton, then coiling up in the sun or under the drooping boughs of the second growth pines, licking his chops and laughing at our calamity.

Now just a word about the nature of some of these so-called wild animals. There is the moose, the caribou, and the snowshoe hare, all creatures of the solitude or virgin forest, while the red deer, white-tailed deer or Virginia deer, which is one and the same animal, also the cotton-tail rabbit, follow up the pioneer's axe. We Ontario sportsmen in our innocent ignorance condemn the settler for the scarcity of the deer when right down in our hearts we know that where the country is partly settled we get our best deer hunting. Why? Simply because the settlers keep the wolves in check and also we have to multiply far faster than the settlers kill them—that is why.

Just a word about the dogging of deer. We know there are a few of us that love the music of the hounds, so our chief reason for taking the hound is to get the deer. Take the wolves out of Ontario and allow the deer to multiply by leaps and bounds, as they evidently would, and your dog question is settled, for as soon as the hunter knows that he can get his two or more deer, which could easily be allowed, he is not going to be bothered with a dog. Personally I am opposed to dogging deer, but while ninety or ninety-five per cent. of the deer that are born in Ontario are being eaten up by wolves I am in favor of allowing the hunter to get his deer any way he can, and as for my suggesting the buck law, get the wolves out of the country and this law will automatically enforce itself, for no hunter is going to the woods and shoot a doe that has been nursing a fawn all summer when deer are plentiful enough for him to pick a three-or four year old fat ten point buck that weighs over two hundred pounds.

Let us turn the hands back twenty-five years and take a look at the old trail that is grown up with personal knowledge. At that time deer were very plentiful and as far north as Elsco, which is about one hundred miles north-west of Sudbury, on the C.P.R., and there was a good sprinkling of deer right through to Fort William. But any novice of a hunter could get his two bucks as far north as Elsco. The caribou, for some unaccountable reason, were fast disappearing or moving further north. At Straiak, which is about fifty miles west of Sudbury, I saw seventy-five deer the last two weeks of November, 1904. I saw twelve in one day and never fired a shot, because I did not see the buck I wanted. Five Kingsville tenderfoot hunters whom I directed there, killed ten bucks that averaged over two hundred pounds each, but in 1907 we saw the tracks of wolves, and in 1910 fully eighty to ninety per cent. of deer were gone. In fact we saw the remnants of more dead deer than we saw live ones. There is a great percentage of people who claim wolves can only get the deer in a yard when the snow is deep. This is absolutely wrong for, as long as there is a live deer left where there are wolves, you will see deer hair in the wolf stools all summer. This is only one of the many proofs of their deep-seated ability to kill our deer. Remember deer are only wild sheep and wolves are wild dogs, and it is not because wolves are so abundant but because each wolf is so murderously destructive. Let one sheep dog go unchecked in your township and see how many sheep your council will have to pay for. There is one thing you can best believe—you will have more to pay for the first year than you will the second. We all knew it would be far-pleasanter for our government officials to report deer increasing, but they frankly admit they are decreasing for ten years ago our two dollar license permitted one to shoot two deer. Now we pay four dollars for the privilege of shooting one deer—that is, providing you see this one to shoot. But please charge your memory with this, especially when you have your rifle in your hands, you are not supposed to shoot at something you don't see.

Why have these wolves increased so the last twenty years? To us backwoods men this is easier understood than the alphabet. I can trace it back to January, 1905, when I spent three or four weeks trapping with the Phillips family who lived on Parry Island, which is about ten miles north of Bisco. I arrived there on the evening of January 6th, 1905, and Grandpa Phillips, who was then sixty-three years of age, entertained me nearly all the while relating how he had the poisoned three, big timber wolves and found two of them and took them to Bisco, and the thirty dollar bounty, fifteen dollars each, and how sure he was that he and I could find the other wolf. And that was only part of the rejoicing, for furs were going up. Mink were bringing as high as one dollar and fifty cents, and Mrs. Harry Phillips and her two oldest daughters, who were twelve and fourteen years old, they had a short trapping line out and came home with a beautiful fisher and took it to Bisco and got five dollars and a half, which was fully one-third more than they had ever got for a fisher. Harry Phillips got as high as three dollars for foxes he got while I was there. This, of course, was fully one-half more than foxes had been selling for, and still Grandpa Phillips, Harry and I would do fully fifteen miles in some of their poisoned bait, anxiously looking for another fifteen or thirty dollar wolf bounty bait. At that time there were eleven in the Phillips family and they killed all the deer they required within one-half mile of their home.

What happened the next fifteen years? Furs continued soaring. Think of fisher selling for as high as one hundred and twenty-five dollars; mink twenty dollars; beaver, thirty to fifty dollars; muskrats, four dollars! That is the result? These same fellows that were making five to ten trips to their trap line in order to gather fifteen dollars bounty were getting five hundred dollars worth of furs with less exertion and the wolves multiplied and ate the deer up alive.

Under the Hon. E. C. Drury Government raised the wolf bounty to twenty-five dollars, but even what temptation was that when the fact is one trapper could and did catch as high as a thousand dollars worth of furs in one month—that not only furs). The beaver season opened in 1916 and our north country was overstocked with them, for in places they had become a nuisance. I could have taken you to seventy-five occupied beaver houses in one day. The above are all facts of the past twenty-five years. Since the Drury administration, the bounty has been set back to fifteen dollars, same as it was in 1905 and other years. Now is the time, I say, to start anew, for if we provide you see this wolf bounty by charging a two dollar license to shoot two deer, surely we can pay a thirty dollar or forty dollar or even fifty dollar wolf bounty by charging the sportsmen five dollars or seven dollars to shoot one deer. As the editorial referred to says, "the hunters are good sports—they won't kick as long as they can get rid of the wolves." Now that the fur bearing animals are gone, the trappers will gladly turn on the wolves, if they are financially induced to.

This last fall, 1927, I camped for three weeks on the same ground where I have hunted for the last twenty years, where fur bearing animals were so extremely abundant, and I did not see a sign of a living fur bearing animal except one muskrat and a few fox tracks. There are a few fishers and I told me he had not seen a deer for over a year. There are plenty of bucks. Jack Miner killed them, for I have not killed a deer since 1921, and I never expect to shoot another, if not the last moose in 1917. I want my grandchildren to see five times as many deer in Ontario as I have seen, and they are going to by taking the wolves out.

What about the future, dear readers, especially the hundred per cent. Canadians? Please give this most important proposition every heart beat of your attention for at least five minutes and, above all, do your own personal thinking. Right here in Ontario we have at least three hundred thousand square miles of the best deer country ever laid out of doors practically lying idle because of the timber wolf. Deer are only wild sheep. Exterminate the wolf; then, for example, one pair of deer on each square mile—how many deer will we few scattering hunters have to select from in ten years? How many hunters would our five dollar or seven dollar license permit us to kill? Again, let us ask you to please do your own personal thinking and figuring. I say this is not a fairy thought. It is not a worthless dream. It is a suggestion that sooner or later will bear fruit. The wolf will be controlled and, although he is the shyest, sharpest, shrewdest, strongest scented and most cunning four-footed animal in North America, remember God put a thousand minion over all and the human brains of Ontario are going to work harmoniously together and beat the wolf to death. One point we will all agree on. That is the same glittering thing that has practically exterminated our choice fur bearing animals will treat the wolf in the same manner, the glittering price. Jesse James was the shrewdest outlaw the world ever knew, but the price got him.

Please let us take one more glimpse at our vast north playground. We board our fastest week-end train at Ottawa and in less than two hours we are in-the deer country and we are going west and north-west two days and a night before we reach the Lake of the Woods, and if my memory of Hudson's Bay it must be eight hundred miles north as the goose flies. In the summer of 1922 I camped for two weeks near Minaki Inn, Lake of the Woods, with one hundred and twenty-five Winnipeg boys, and the second morning we were there three boats set out fishing—with hook and lines and returned inside of two hours with so many choice fish that the chief cook gave us orders not to catch another fish for a week. I travel quite a lot in the United States and I tell you that Ontario Canadians the eyes of Eastern North America are turning towards our summer vast playground and, if properly managed, we have a Klondike ahead of us. I say compel these pure fur seekers to leave their fire at home but let them come in and inhale our climate. They are good people and we need their good money to develop our unlimited resources. While they are doing a little fishing during the summer and seeing the deer as plentiful as they could be, there is no limit to the unresident license price they would pay for the privilege of coming back in the fall and being sure of their game back. One thing we all know, their fifty dollar non-resident would pay more wolf bounty than our five dollar or seven dollar. This, saying nothing of the hundreds of dollars they will leave in our country when they have a good taste in their mouths to come back.

Now with all due respect to our present leaders—they are evidently doing the best they can alone, but sportsmen and all respectable citizens of Ontario, our leaders need our support. When we game protective associations meet in convention throughout Ontario and get back of them we can make them powerful enough to organize national wolf bounty regulations. Why not our beloved, self-sacrificing, Christian-spirited Sir Wilfred Laurier, such a powerful leader for good. He is not himself. No, no; but because the best thinking people of Canada got behind him and helped him carry his cross. How we love to refer to our Sir John A. Macdonald, one of our most prominent powerful leaders Canada ever knew! How this wonderful man, in spite of the sneers and jeers of the opposition, connected Canada together so that Halifax can shake hands with Vancouver in a few days instead of that many months. But this was accomplished through the help of the best and most foresighted people in Canada stood firm, behind him with willing hands.

I now come to my closing point, which I consider first of all. To-day we are more anxious than ever to keep our boys in Canada. This appears to be the national problem of our forefathers and neighbors, in the name of God, take your boys on an annual outing. Introduce them to our northern wilds and the ways of the creatures that occupy it. Let him take his fishing tackle and catch a few speckled beauties or a few lake trout. Warn him to never get in a canoe until he can swim at least a quarter of a mile. Let him take his compass and learn to pilot his way in and out of the big woods while you follow with him. Teach him how to hunt against the wind and when he approaches the top of the hills to stop and peep carefully over. And, before you can realize it, this big boy will develop into a successful hunter and realize he is a millionaire in out of doors recreation and he will become a healthy and stronger man to face the world through the fact his environment in out of doors recreation and that boy will stay in Canada.

In closing, let me quote the following poem, written by my esteemed friend, Rev. E. C. Hunter, of Toronto:

WHERE THE NORTH BEGINS

You tell me you're a stranger,
From lands that are not free,
You ask me where the North begins
And what its boundaries are.

The North's not an area,
It's not a country or state,
The North's a spirit and a life,
Which you must understand.

Up where the handclasp's stronger,
Far from the city dins,
Up where the smile lasts longer,
That's where the North begins.

Up where the sun shines brighter,
Where worries easily end,
Up where the snow lies whiter,
You're in the North, my friend.

Where every man's a fighter,
And no one quits the game,
Where the bond of friendship's tighter,
And honor's more than fame.

Where you feel the fresh wind blowing
From pure woods clean and pure,
Where you find the trout streams flowing,
You're in the North, for sure.

Where fewer hearts are aching,
And fewer men walk broke,
Where the world's still in the making,
And all hearts carry hope.

Where fellows don't mind giving,
And we ask not creed or name,
Where the fun of life is living,
For life is worth the game.

Have you left the camp at day-light,
As dawn was breaking forth,
Carried back your deer at twilight?
Then you've really known the North.

Have you smelled the bacon frying
By streams where the big, trout swims,
Made friends without half-trying?
That's where the North begins.

For the North is not a country,
Measured by terms of land,
The real North is a spirit,
Which you must understand.

A Message of Hope From the Prairies

Mrs. L. Stadel Speaks Highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Saskatchewan Lady Always Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

Grenfell, Sask., Jan. 16th, (Special) —"I used to be troubled greatly with pains in my back," writes Mrs. L. Stadel who resides at this place. "I am glad to say that since taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I feel ever so much better. I live-out on the prairie and am often called on to attend people who are in need of cases of kidney trouble, always recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Ninety per cent. of the ills from which women suffer come from weak or diseased kidneys. They are the organs that strain all the impurities out of the blood. If they fail to do their work, the impurities remain in the blood and are deposited all over the body.

Weak kidneys are not confined to grown people. They are too often found in children, laying the seeds of future ills unless the kidneys are strengthened and put in condition to do their full work.

HAWLEY

(For last week).

We are now enjoying our January thaw.—Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Lapsley entertained the following friends on Monday, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Fretts, Mr. and Mrs. C. Fretts, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Fretts, Mr. and Mrs. Eb. Fretts, Mrs. O. Fretts and Mr. and Mrs. C. LENS

(For last week.)

Our school is progressing favourably under the management of Mrs. Harold Brown.—We are pleased to hear that Mr. Chas. Hyland is improving under the care of Dr. Horton. — Mr. Albert Reid, Napanee, called on his brother, Fred Reid, on Friday last. — Mr. Stanley Doupe finished dressing clover for a few days last week. We have been numerous complaints among the farmers on account of the clover not threshing out clean, but the last second only averaged 1 bushel per load. But Mr. Doupe, with his combination Waterloo separator, found little difficulty in getting three bushels per load. At Ross Moore's, Big Island, there were loads, which turned out 18 bushels; at Ed. Hannah's, nine load which turned out 27 bushels, and at Jas. Milligan's twelve loads which yielded 36 bushels. Next fall he will get all the work to do as his machine is now ready for moving to a standstill.—Mr. Geo. Reid intends putting up a drive shed in the spring. —R. J. Hanna and family have moved to a standstill.—Mr. Geo. Reid intends putting up a drive shed in the spring. —R. J. King, of this place, returned home on Saturday last.—Wm. Hyland spent a week visiting with his brother, Geo. Hyland, recently.—Dr. John Watson had the misfortune to cut his foot severely with an axe. Dr. Horton is in attendance.

CAMDEN VIII. W.M.S.

The first meeting of the new year was held at the home of Mrs. E. A. Hannah, on the afternoon of January 6th, 1928. The meeting was very capably presided over by the President, Mrs. Bashford Close. Owing to several cases of sickness, the attendance was somewhat small, more than usual. Six members paid their new year's membership fee. After the devotional exercises the minutes of last meeting were read, and new methods considered for the coming year.

The fourth chapter of Study Book was explained, by several ladies taking part.

The February meeting will be held at Mrs. R. J. Wilson's, on the first Thursday in the month. Every woman is asked to reserve the date, and to be present at the next meeting.

The singing of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus", in honor of Mrs. Hannah, Sr., who is eighty-six years of age, and prayer by the Past President, Mrs. R. J. Wilson, brought the meeting to a close.

Immediately after the close of the meeting, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hannah was baptized, Roselene Marie, by the Rev. Mr. Beckstead.

SHEIKS ARE SO SIMPLE!

Possession of Money Is the Test of a Man's Greatness

A party of Arabs—not the film variety—recently visited a small town in the Sudan, says a writer in The Rotarian. Airplanes and cars failed to impress them. But a staircase was an object of veneration.

They were familiar with trees growing in groups, but that they should be planted in rows caused great surprise. It was evident that nature worked miracles or the trees must have walked.

Taps amazed them. To turn a screw and see water rushing out of a wall seemed absolute magic.

"It must be the rod of Moses," suggested one, and forthwith they went out to buy a supply of taps from the ironmonger. These they intended to hang on their walls, confident that the miracle of running water would be performed.

The shopkeeper was, with the greatest difficulty, persuaded to take back his taps and return the money, but the sheiks considered they were being prevented from starting whitemen's magic, and one by one they repurchased them.

To them the possession of money is the test of a man's greatness. A Sudanese was once having trouble with his donkey. He had been collecting clover roots. One side of the panniers was stuffed with these; the other, with some instinctive effort to make things balance, he had filled with stones.

A Greek clerk came out and suggested that the stones should be apportioned equally into each pannier. This done, they entered into conversation.

"How much do you earn?" asked the native.

"About five pounds a month," was the answer.

Astonishment turned to disgust.

"Why, I am far richer than that," he retorted angrily, and began to unload the donkey again.

When he had achieved the original arrangement, he forced the animal to struggle along.

"If I am richer," he muttered, "I must be right." And he made his stumbling way home, convinced that his logic was justified.

AFRICA NOT ALWAYS NEGROID.

Chaldean and Assyrian People Once Populated It.

Excavations which have been proceeding in the interior of the British colony of Kenya, East Africa, have revealed remains of a stone-age race of Asiatic, and not negro, origin. Furthermore, the ethnological investigations of the past three years show that the native religion and word vocabulary are studded with Chaldean and Assyrian ideas and terms. Consequently old ideas of this country's ancient history have had to be considerably revised.

Discovery of the remains of two immense cities of apparently ancient origin in the Kenya highlands is reported on the coast not far from the chief port, Mombasa.

In the course of the debate on the preservation of these the Arab member of the Legislative Council furnished the governor and members with very exact information on these two cities and spoke of others. One is Ross Moore's, big Island, a little north near the sea and extends for some six miles from north to south, ending on the seacoast. It had been reached by a deep sea creek, but at some period this had been blocked. In this creek, which is now bare surrounded by a vast high and thick wall, but now the forest trees pushed through the roots. The people who have evacuated it at least 1,000 years ago, were evidently very highly civilized. The settlements could be traced north for many miles.

In view of the particulars given by the sheik conversant with and other ruins, not officially recorded, the Government has decided to take immediate steps for their preservation.

A Quilt-Maker's Claim.

A Missouri woman has completed a quilt top containing 21,840 pieces and believes this establishes a new world's record.

This champion quilt maker is Mrs. Walter Stoll of Poplar Bluff, Mo., who has spent practically all of her leisure time during the last year in the work. She began and completed a year ago which told about a woman making a quilt containing 16,400 the native negro religion and more than 125 quilts, Mrs. Zoll determined to establish a new record.

Considerable figuring she determined upon the number and size of pieces, the small pieces being only five-eighths of an inch square. One hundred and forty complete blocks represent the width of the quilt with forty blocks to the length. Each row of blocks is made of the same type of material so that the quilt represents a uniform appearance. Fifty-one spools of thread were used.

DANGEROUS VARICOSE VEINS REDUCED OR MONEY BACK

This Simple Home Treatment Is Giving Amazing Results

Rub Gently and Quickly Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or branches, the best advise that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply as directed night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that, even Piles are quickly relieved. Wallace's Drug Store sells lots of it.

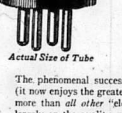
When buying an "electric" radio—

Look for the Rogers A/C TUBE with the Top Clips

THIS is your means of positive identification of a Rogers Batteryless Radio, as this tube is found only in the Rogers and is made and controlled in Canada exclusively by Rogers for their Batteryless Receiving Sets.

Thousands upon thousands of these tubes have been in active daily use throughout Canada for years and most of those now in use for the third year, are as good as new.

The A/C tube is the heart of any electric set and the Rogers is the only A/C tube in Canada that has proven its ability to give maximum service for years.



Actual Size of Tube

Fully Guaranteed

Moreover the Rogers A/C tube is absolutely guaranteed to give satisfactory performance. You take no chance of heavy tube expense!

The phenomenal success of the Rogers Batteryless Radio (it now enjoys the greatest sales of any radio in Canada and more than all other "electric" radios combined!) is based largely on the quality, power, and durability of the Rogers A/C tube.

Yet a Rogers Batteryless Radio costs no more than ordinary electric sets. Prices are as follows:

$215 and $275 for Sets complete, except Speaker

A Farm Idyl

By FRANK H. SWEET

Copyright, 1927, by American Press Association.

"TAIN'T 'cause I don't think he's good enough. Tommie's the best man I ever had on this farm. Tain't 'cause of that er anything else, only he can't have my Susan, an' I told him so this mornin'."

Pap Hildreth finished filling the old brown basket with potatoes and arose stiffly from his knees. There was a peaceful, satisfied look on his seamed face as he wiped his dirty hands on his freshly washed overalls and let his eyes roam about him.

"I'm comfortable," he said, addressing the old drab hen that was industriously pecking holes in the mellow red tomatoes just beyond. "I'm comfortable well fixed."

The hen turned her back upon him and sent a spray of dust over the low wire fence with the unerring aim of her kind directly in his face.

The dirt settled in his hair and beard, and Pap Hildreth set his basket down and wiped his mouth on his sleeve.

Now he, Pap Hildreth, was a model farmer not only to his family, but to everything on the farm. To this particular drab hen he had always been kind and indulgent. Time out of number had he let her offenses go unpunished only because his heart was big and he could overlook little mistakes. She was a nuisance, too; he confessed it to himself now as he spat the grit out from beneath his teeth and watched her destroy whole bunches of red tomatoes. She had never acted like other hens that he could remember, and his acquaintance with hens was large. She had never laid an egg in her life. She had simply stood around with a proud, defiant air and waited for the other hens to do their work. Then she would proceed to clean up on the fruits of their labor. She ate the eggs. She was an aristocrat—no doubt of that. She was big and fat and sleek. Her comb was red as blood, and she fairly danced and pranced about, she was so full of life and spirits.

"You sure do seem to be enjoyin' life," continued Pap Hildreth, coming over to the fence and looking over. He smiled at the hen from his lips and heart and one eye. The other had a gravel chip in it and couldn't smile. Pap Hildreth kept it closed.

The hen lifted her head and listened without turning. Then she put her head impudently on one side and said something sotto voce.

A red flush stole up across Pap Hildreth's already red neck and face.

"If she didn't say devil as plain as I er any man kin say it, then my brain's gettin' bad," he told himself.

Now, as usual, Pap Hildreth, being in an amiable mood, had addressed the hen in a gentlemanly way. He had simply said, "I'm comfortable well fixed," and that was all—nothing about such a remark for a hen to take objection to, and he knew it.

He didn't like it a bit, but he simply grieved foolishly and turned to pick up his basket.

They the drab hen said something that fairly made his short hair bristle—something that even he could not let go unchallenged. He heard it distinctly and knew there was no mistaking.

He returned to the fence, his heavy eyebrows knitted in a frown, and the hen turned and faced him. For a moment the two looked into one another's eyes; then the hen turned her back upon him again with all a hoss' disdain and sent a handful of gravel into his face at close quarters.

"He can't have my Susan."

It was a terrible humiliation, an unpardonable one. Her life must pay for the penalty! So decided Pap Hildreth, standing with lips drawn back from dust filled teeth and eyes tight closed and hands gripping either trousers leg in helpless frenzy. Die she must, and now—right now. She should live to make his life a terror not another minute longer than he could help.

But how was he to accomplish his end? Any hen is clever when it comes to the last "Lights out!" call. This particular hen he well knew would try all his resourcefulness.

He would deceive her. Yes, that was the only way. He would let her think he considered her audacity clever; he would go any lengths so that her suspicions might not be aroused.

He couldn't see the hen, but he knew she had picked up her head to listen. So he with great difficulty scraped away at his left eye until he had it clean enough to see a little. Then he kept whistling, although every note gave him pain, and the dusty perspiration running down his face was all that furnished the necessary moisture for his whistle.

He stopped whistling and began to hum "There Were Ninety and Nine" as he squeezed himself through the fence, keeping his eye on the hen.

"Poor mus!" she said, sidestepping a yard or two and smiling at him.

"Cuss you!" whispered Pap Hildreth. "Just you wait!"

The hen, which had been scratching in time to his whistle, said something softly to herself and looked so pleased that all the dormant evil in Pap Hildreth's nature that had slumbered on awoke with a start. Henceforth his one object in life was to destroy her.

"Poor man!" she chuckled.

"Chookie, chookie, chookie!" he called softly. "Poor chookie! Come and get some corn."

He threw a handful of dirt about his feet, and the hen stood on one foot and craned her neck. "Poor man!" she chuckled and recommenced operations on the tomatoes.

Her back was toward him, and Pap Hildreth got down on his hands and knees and crept toward her. Nearer and nearer he drew until the prize was within his grasp. Oh, glory of glories! He reached out and, with the words "Dang you—now I've got you!" made a grab at her. Alas that it should be the part of man to simply propose! The hen sidestepped again and sought the other side of the row of vines.

Pap Hildreth lay still and said things to himself. He made up his mind now that when he caught the hen he would pluck her feathers out one by one and tie her down to a bed of ants. And he would catch her. This he vowed.

"Chookie, chookie!" he cried, softly extending one bare arm toward her.

A yellow moth settled down and alighted on his arm. Glory! The hen saw the moth and was creeping toward it. Now he would have her sure. Just let her within his reach, and—

She came slowly, trustingly, the yellow moth her loadstone to destruction. At last she was there. He would wait for her to make a reach for the moth. Then he would grab her by the neck; he would jab one of her eyes out with his finger. Yes, he would take that much revenge at once. She came, and— Pap Hildreth felt a sharp pain, as though his arm was poked by a redhot iron, and, lo, she was away again, the yellow moth fluttering in her beak!

Human flesh can endure but so much, and Pap Hildreth's stock of patience was exhausted.

The drab hen had pecked Pap Hildreth on the muscles of the forearm, leaving a puncture from which oozed a little trickle of blood. Noting this, the drab hen cast strategy to the winds and sprang to his feet, with a growl.

"I ought shoot her," he muttered, slipping his galluses down and tying them about his waist, "only it 'ud be too easy a death for her. I wanter torture her, so I'll run her down first, will, by gosh!"

Accordingly he made a dash for the hen, and the hen made a dash for the fence. She went through with flying colors. Through the fence she went, and through the fence Pap Hildreth followed, puffing like a steam engine. Across the potato patch they raved and down the path to the barnyard. The hen dashed around the straw stack, and Pap Hildreth, with the superior wisdom of mankind, circled the stack in an opposite direction so as to meet the drab hen on the other side. She came sailing around, her head over her shoulder and her wings spread wide. Pap Hildreth made a grab for her and tumbled pellmell over a family of little pigs half hidden in the straw.

He was too much out of breath to do any damage to the small pigs; otherwise it might have fared badly with them just at this time. When he got his wind back they had wisely taken themselves away, and the drab hen he saw quietly disappearing beneath the drive shed. Armed with a two tined fork, Pap Hildreth made his way laboriously to the shed and peered underneath it. Ah, fate was kind indeed, for the drab hen was there, sure enough. She had settled down, as she thought, secure from all danger beneath the shed floor. Pap Hildreth judged that he could easily reach her with a fork. He tried it. If he could but impale her in its tines he would have the shed torn down if necessary in order to get at her. No; the fork was just a trifle short. He worked his head and shoulders under the shed. Ha, ha! Now he could spear her easily.

Just at this juncture a flock of sheep came round the corner of the shed and gazed wide eyed at the strange sight of a fat little man lying on his back with his legs. The proud leader of the flock went forth to investigate. Reaching over to sniff at the waving feet of Pap Hildreth, this particular sheep received a kick under the jaw that made him see all kinds of green and blue balls and stirred deep resentment within his breast.

Accordingly he backed away and came against Pap Hildreth's exposed person with such force as to drive the poor man under the shed, wedging him between the ground and the shed floor with only that he could scarcely budge, let alone breathe.

"Oh, oh!" groaned Pap Hildreth and kicked out lustily, only to receive a more violent shock from the old ram.

Pap Hildreth lowered his legs and lay still. He could feel the hot sun on the calves of his legs, which were exposed owing to the fact that his trousers had slipped up on them. Then the little pigs came over to investigate, too, and rubbed their moist noses on those calves until poor Pap Hildreth had to lift his legs again, which was the signal for another onslaught from the ram.

How long he lay there helpless he never knew. It seemed hours to him, wedged in as he was so as to be scarcely able to breathe and receiving at regular intervals a shock from the old ram. He gave himself up to fate. He was sure he would die unless help soon came, and there was little hope of it, as he was on the south side of the shed, and even if anybody did by chance happen to come into the barnyard he might never be seen. He tried to shout, but he was too tightly wedged in. He could hardly breathe, let alone call. The old drab hen had looked around at him and called him some more names, after which she had said goodby and left him.

After what seemed hours to him Pap Hildreth heard a voice as coming from a long distance—two voices, in fact—to which he heard his daughter, his own flesh and blood, the darling of his old age, reply:

"Pull me out, Tommie!"

"Make him promise first, dear."

"Pull me out," supplicated Pap Hildreth weakly. "For heaven's sake, pull me out, Tommie!"

"Kin I have Susan?" came the response.

"Yes, you kin, on one condition," faintly replied Pap Hildreth.

"Make him name it," said the other voice.

"Name it," said Tom.

"If you'll catch me that old hen," moaned Pap Hildreth.

"I'll do it," said Tommie. And he did.

Then when she least expected it he would seize her and pluck her neck feathers out one by one and with his own fingers force small particles of sharp gravel stones into her eyes. He would laugh at her helplessness and gloat—yes, that's what he'd do, gloat—over her helplessness. And he would take her life slowly, torturing her all the while. He might burn her to death, but slowly, or scald her in the big copper caldron, a little piece at a time.

So far his mind was fully made up. Now he must proceed to act. So he whistled softly—whistled in a dusty, wheezy treble—"Ole Zip Coon."

The Loveliest Lily.

One of the most beautiful passages in the Scriptures is the following: "Consider the lilies of the field; they toil not, neither do they spin, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

There are numerous kinds of lily —lily of the valley, tiger-lily, lillium, and many others, but which of these is meant in this famous passage.

Botanists say that the flower thus mentioned in the Sermon on the Mount is the beautiful "scarlet turk's cap lily," which covers all the plains of Syria much as dahlias and buttercups bloom in prodigious numbers in English fields. Its botanical name is Lillium Chalcedonium. It is charming both for its beauty and its fragrance, and it is extremely likely that the greatest sermon ever preached was spoken in sight of millions of these brilliant flowers.

SMILES IN CHURCH

Clerical Contributor Writes of Sermons That Were Never Finished — Other Interruptions.

While Dean Inge was preaching recently in Birmingham, England, a young man suddenly interrupted with "Bosh!" and then left the church. The incidents reminds me of other interruptions—some holding a smile and others a sting.

As special preacher for Harvest Festival Sunday in a rural parish, I secured a well-known canon. He was to preach both morning and evening, but an interruption in the morning so upset him that he went back to his town in the afternoon.

He was talking of the wonderful productions of nature, and illustrated his remarks by putting his hand on the array of fruits and vegetables that decorated the pulpit ledge.

"This vegetable marrow, my friends," he began, but got no farther, for from the congregation there came an interruption:—

"That hain't a marrer; it's a pumpkin!"

He peered at it, tried to resume, stuttered, and ended.

The first interruption that came my way was when I was preaching in a Lancashire town. I had been ordained only a few months and knew I wasn't an expert, but I did my best. In the middle of my discourse I put the question, with the intention, of course, of answering it myself:—

"And now, my friends, what does all I have said so far amount to?"

I was soon to know, for an emphatic "Now!" came from someone in the congregation. Like the canon, I ended.

If it's wicked to laugh in church, then four hundred people in a seaside town will get into trouble some day. The preacher, a missionary, was pleading for the heathen.

"We must listen to the call of our brother!" he cried. "Forget his color! Listen to his call!"

It was then that a donkey outside raised its voice in a loud and prolonged bray! The preacher gallantly tried to continue, but gave up, and some minutes elapsed before I could pull myself together and announce the hymn.

The following was told to the writer by Dean Hole, of Rochester. The point will be missed unless you remember that it is the usual thing when a horse falls down for someone to sit on its head and prevent it from struggling until shafts and harness have been cleared. The dean was giving an address to a couple he had just married.

"It takes two to make a quarrel," he said. "What, then, should a husband do if his wife upsets him?"

The answer came through the open window: "Sit on 'er 'ead, you fool!"

Yes, a horse had fallen down. The church abutted on a busy street.

A long-winded preacher, discoursing at a "Men Only" service, said: "To some men we must say, 'Get up'; to others, 'Buck up.' And to myself I would say——"

"Dry up!" came a voice. And he obeyed.

Interruptions, on occasion, have a value!

The Sultan's Smoke.

During the last few days the suitan of Turkey was shut up in the Yildiz kiosk he is said to have smoked over thirty cigarettes every hour, to "cool his nerves." For years a doctor friend has sjoked dozens of strong cigarettes every day, and it can be said without fear of contradiction that he has been the most ardent devotee of the fragrant weed that was ever seated upon a throne.

Sale Continues Throughout this Entire Month

CANADIAN DEPARTMENT-STORES LIMITED is being reorganized. We must reduce our stocks still more. There is no alternative. We have definite instructions, and prices are most radically reduced. We are setting new low price-levels throughout the whole store. Here are some of the wonderful values from our Men's Store.

16 Youths' First Long Suits, $5.00 Each

We have gone through our stock and selected all the odd suits in sizes 33 to 36, to make a special offering at this very low price. In the lot there are attractive Blue Grey, Grey and Fawn Tweeds, as well as darker patterns in Grey and Brown, that were originally worth $10.00, $12.00, and $15.00. The sizes are one 33, five 34, seven 35, three 36, fitting large boys and small young men.

22 Men's Odd Suits, $10.00 Each

Many of these suits are less than half price, and consist of Worsteds, Tweeds and one Blue Serge. Sizes are: three 35, eight 36, four 37, six 38, and one 39. The patterns are very desirable stripes, herringbones and tweedy effects in Grey, Brown, Fawn and Blue. The original prices were $18.50, $20.00, and $25.00, and the present low price is due to the fact that they are for the most part one of a pattern.

Men's Sweater Coats at Special Prices

The man who wants a strong, good weight sweater for every day use, will find what he wants on our sweater counter. There are two qualities in heavy cardigan knit, shawl collared coats. The colors are Brown, and Fawn, with contrasting trims. The $3.00 coats are now $2.25, and the $3.50 coats are $2.50. Sizes 36-46.

30 Boys' Sweater Coats, Special $1.69 Each

Sweaters are made in regular coat style, with shawl collars in contrasting shades, and in wind breaker style, with tight waist band and high collar. The shades are Fawn, Brown, and Navy, with fancy trim. The weight and quality make these coats extra good value at the special price of $1.69. Sizes are 26 to 34.

Fashion-Craft Tailored-to-Measure Suits 20 Per Cent. Discount for the Balance of January

There are many men who find tailored-to-measure clothes suit their needs better than even the best ready-to-wear makes. To such as these this special offering of 20 per cent discount on the well known "Fashion-Craft" clothes will have an especial appeal.

The selection of patterns in fancy tweeds and worsteds is very wide, and at the reduced prices they should be very attractive. The $29.50 range is now priced $23.60, the $34.50 range now $27.60, and the $39.50 line for $31.60.

The Blue Serges, in both twilled and vicuna finish, which are featured at $39.50, are made doubly desirable at the reduced price of $31.60.

The work in stock just four suit lengths which also go at the 20 per cent. discount.

1. A rich Dark Brown Saxony finished Stripe, at $28.00; regular $35.00.

2. Black Worsted with Silver stripe, $28.00; regular $35.00.

3. Heavy plain Blue Serge, regular $45.00, for $36.00.

4. Navy Blue Worsted, with Light Blue Hairline Stripe, $30.00; regular $37.50.

That the interest aroused in the New Chevrolet has been well merited is indicated by these first photographs of this latest addition to the light car field. The smart sport cabriolet, with its folding seat and disc wheels, is shown in the upper right-hand photograph. In the centre is the sturdy Chevrolet one-ton truck chassis, while at the lower right is the coach model, the body of which is five inches longer than formerly. Insets are: upper left, the n ative new radiator and heavy full crown fenders; right, the powerful and clean-cut motor of the new line, with two-port exhaust and complete enclosure; lower left, a view of one of the four-wheel brakes. The New Chevrolets, which are to be reduced in price, are to be available at once. They are longer and roomier than previous models.

EDUCATING GYPSIES

MYSTERIOUS PEOPLE NUMBER OVER A MILLION.

Gypsies Are Clever and Will Work Hard for Short Spells—Have a Strange Language—Are Not a Criminal Class.

The Hungarian Government is endeavoring to control and educate the gypsies who abound in that land. Reuben Leslie, honorary secretary of the British Gypsy Lore Society, in an article in the London Daily Mail, while in England, the Surrey County Council is experimenting with a portable gypsy school where handicrafts are taught as part of the curriculum.

It is generally known that the gypsies are an Eastern people and that they have a language of their own called Romani. It is an Indian language, impregnated with Persian, Armenian, Greek, Slavic, Rumanian, and other loan words that provide a clue to their early wanderings.

Leaving the midland area of Northern India, perhaps about 300 B.C., they stayed for a long time in the northwest of that country. Afterwards came a sojourn in Persia, probably during the ninth and tenth centuries of our era, followed by migrations through Syria into Egypt and through Armenia into Southeastern Europe, which they appear to have reached towards the end of the eleventh century.

Here another prolonged halt is indicated; and then, in the fifteenth century, bands of gypsies overran Western Europe, whence they came to Great Britain about the year 1565. There have been extensive movements since, the most important being the big emigrations from Southeastern Europe to America in the last half-century.

The total number of gypsies—Asiatic, North African, European and transplanted—may be a million or more. Rumania, Hungary and the United States have very large gypsy populations.

In the British Isles, on the other hand, there can hardly be more than 15,000, and many—indeed most—of these are of mixed descent. In arriving at this figure I have counted as gypsies all travellers whose secret speech contains a fair number of Romani words and who observe some of the commoner gypsy customs, but have excluded other van and tent dwellers and the descendants of gypsies who settled a long time ago.

Welsh Romani, as spoken by the roads and their kindred, is a fully inflected language, and one of the best of the various dialects of Romani. In England the grammatical structure of the language has been lost, but a large number of Romani roots remain in use in the better gypsy families. Among the southern Didikais, the northern Potters, and the Scottish Tinkler gypsies these Romani roots have been partially replaced by old cant words. A good-class English gypsy knows Romani from cant; a typical Didikai, Potter, or Tinkler does not.

Formerly the British gypsies were organized, perhaps rather indefinitely, into family groups, some of which were based on matri-lineal descent. They had a few simple laws regulating their behavior towards one another, and are known to have tried and punished those guilty of any breach of them.

Their marriage customs were characterized by the sporadic occurrence of polygamy, the co-wives being as a rule sisters or near kinswomen; by the frequency of first-cousin marriages; and by the not uncommon mating of two or more brothers separately with the same numbers of sisters. At death they destroyed the deceased's personal effects and his tent or caravan; and they placed a taboo on his name, and on certain articles of food or drink, or certain amusements specially associated with him. And besides these taboos they had a great many based on a conception of what is clean and what is unclean that is totally different from ours.

To-day one can study all these things, but too often only from the memories of aged gypsies belonging to the best families. The funeral holocausts and the taboos that originate in a death still survive; and so do some of the uncleanness taboos. A gypsy who would preserve his dead father's personal belongings or allow his wife to wash table crockery in any vessel previously used for washing wearing apparel can hardly be called a gypsy.

The gypsies are a clever people and will work hard for short spells, but not continuously. The women are the chief bread-winners, their traditional occupations being hawking, begging, fortune-telling, and boaxing the absurdly credulous. In England the men have been chiefly horse-dealers, fiddlers, tinkers, and grinders, and makers of such things as clothes-pegs, skewers, and baskets.

But now it hardly pays them to exercise their dexterous fingers on handicrafts, while fiddling is all but dead as a means of earning money, and horse-dealing much less remunerative than it was. In America, where caravans have already given way to motor-cars (and tents) to a large extent, the gypsies have taken to repairing and dealing in second-hand cars.

From information gathered it is shown conclusively that serious crime was rare among them, murder being almost unknown; that spasmodic intemperance and a tendency to indulge in family quarrels were not infrequent causes of their appearance in the police courts.

The pure-blooded gypsies, it may be added, caused much less annoyance than mixed breed with only a little gypsy blood in them, and had, in fact, a very clean record.

REGULATING COSTERMONGERS.

New Street Trading License Act Is In Force in London.

London's street traders outside the limits of what is known as "the City" have now for the first time come under the supervision of the municipal authorities. Under "Street Trading Act" which has just come into operation every stationary street trade occupying a specified position on the road or sidewalk is required to take out a license.

The new law was passed to prevent chaotic congestion of traffic in such locations as Leather Lane, Holborn, hitherto almost blocked by costers' barrows in the middle of the day.

Only a limited number of licenses are now to be issued for each street. Old stagers who have had stands on one particular spot long enough to become known have had no difficulty in obtaining licenses. Applications from others have been more carefully investigated, and in some cases refused.

Some stands have been slightly rearranged by the authorities — in spite of the grumbles of the costermongers. "Here I've been," said one, "two yards the other side of that lamp post since the time of Queen Victoria. Now I'm two yards this side of it, and can't think where I am."

There is one person to the new Act will hit—the man who used to spend his lunch-hour making "an honest bob" by taking his stand in a street market and haranguing the passing crowd.

The authorities state that in the Lambeth and Finsbury Borough Council areas about two-thirds of the applications for street trading licenses have been granted and a larger proportion in the Islington and Holborn areas.

ITALIAN HAND PAPER MILLS.

Industry Flourished Long Before the Discovery of America.

Italian hand-made paper dates from an early period. The industry was a flourishing one at Amalfi in Italy long before the discovery of America. In a recent issue of the Linotype News, the foreign representative of this publication gave a romantic account of present conditions in the Valle de Molini, of which Longfellow sang in his poem "Amalfi":

"In the middle of the town,
From its fountains in the hills,
Tumbling through its narrow gorge
The Canneto rushes down,
Turns the great wheels of the mills,
Lifts the hammers of the forge."

Now there are no "great wheels" to be seen. Mossy viaducts, runways, tunnels, and artificial falls capture the river at every vantage point and lead it into and through the massive, secretive houses that look more like fortresses than mills. Every moss-bearded sluice gate still has its enormous wooden lifting screws, carved by hand from the hard timber of long vanished forests. The mills are guarded by the enormous chestnuts an age of forays and town feuds.

Almost all the mills are paper mills; and though their vats appear full of caps, they are undoubtedly among the very oldest paper mills of history. In this valley was made some of the earliest and best paper produced in Europe.

The mills that still make paper (mostly of the lesser kinds to-day, such as wrapping paper) might be deserted for all that they betray to the stranger. Indeed, so old, so gnawed at by weather and water, so beset by moss and creepers are they that a hasty glance might well class many of them, too, as ruins. About them there is none of the bustle familiar to the American who knows the strenuously operated mills of his own country. Yet they are turning out a fair amount of product, as one discovers when he enters one of these cavernous piles, whose deeply embrasured window openings admit so little sunlight that the gloom is profound. In that twilight, chilly with racing water, one finds men and women working amid an assemblage of appliances that range from century-old vats and beaters to machinery approximately modern. In one such mill, the pulp was beaten in a stone vat so massive and rugged that it seemed hardly other than a natural formation. Indeed, the whole chamber might have been simply a cave like the natural caves that are seen everywhere in this fantastically eroded limestone country. A tiny paper machine of four cylinders handled the pulp and delivered it in small sheets to the three men who formed the entire working staff.

Everything in the Valle dei Molini is done by water-power, and all that they need or produce is transported by unassisted human labor. No wheeled vehicles are possible, for the mills can be reached only by steep stone steps hewn into the cliffs.

AIDS HOMELESS PEOPLE.

Copenhagen Social Philanthropic Society Doing Good Work.

Of late years the problem of housing shortage has caused the municipal authorities much trouble, and schools have had to be used, and even prisons in order to procure temporary accommodation.

Private welfare has also responded to the call for help and in this connection the new Copenhagen Social Philanthropic Society is the foremost and is renting a block of buildings containing 316 tenement flats from the Copenhagen municipality. The society pays the normal rent, but lets the flats at a much reduced rate. Two-roomed tenements are let for about $8 the first year, $9 the second, and $10 for the next four years, annually, the lease being intended to run for six years. These tenements are intended for large families who are unable to pay the current rents.

The society is bent upon other welfare work, the establishment of a home for unmarried, widowed or deserted mothers with children. In connection with this new home there are to be crèches and kindergartens, which should enable a mother to keep her child or children with her for a longer time than would otherwise be possible.

RICHMOND MINUTES

The Council of the Township of Richmond met at Selby on January 9th, at 11 o'clock, pursuant to Statute, the Clerk presiding.

After taking their "Declaratin of Office" Rev. Jas. Balstone opened the session with prayer, and the following took their places at the Council Board:

A. C. Tummon, Reeve; S. J. Mowers, A. H. Oliver, H. S. Windover and M. H. Sexsmith, Councillors.

This present Council enjoys the distinction of being the first to be elected by acclamation in forty years.

The Tax Collector, Mr. Irwin G. Sexsmith, returned the tax roll with practically 100% paid in full. This is a most satisfactory condition of affairs for the township and certainly reflects credit on the part of the Collector and Council as well, it being the first time in the history of the township that the taxes were all repaired collected at the first meeting of the council. The ratepayers are also to be congratulated on the prompt payment of their taxes.

Moved by S. J. Mowers, seconded by A. H. Oliver, that the tax-roll of I. G. Sexsmith, Collector, be accepted without all taxes collected and turned over to Treasurer, except $274.30 uncollectable, and that his salary of $110.00 be paid. Carried.

Moved by A. H. Oliver, seconded by S. J. Mowers, that By-laws be introduced appointing Assessor, Auditors, and members of Bard of Health for 1928. Carried.

Moved by H. Windover, seconded by S. J. Mowers, that By-Law No. 759 appointing Jas. McLeod Assessor for 1928, at a salary of $75.00, receive, its third reading, be signed, sealed and finally passed. Carried.

Moved by M. H. Sexsmith, seconded by S. J. Mowers, that By-Law No. 760 appointing Hiram Abbott, Sanitary Inspector and Thos. Edgar, Board of Health for 1928, receive its third reading, be signed, sealed and finally passed. Carried.

Moved by A. H. Oliver, seconded by H. S. Windover, that By-Law No. 761, appointing S. L. Clute and H. R. Paul Auditors for 1928, receive its third reading, be signed, sealed and finally passed. Carried.

Moved by M. H. Sexsmith, seconded by H. S. Windover, that the Council of the Township of Richmond in session assembled have learned with deep regret of the passing away of Samuel S. Brown, ex-councillor of this township, and highly respected citizen of this community, and desire to record our heartfelt sympathy with the family and friends of the deceased. Carried.

Moved by H. Windover, seconded by S. J. Mowers, that Hydro be authorized to endeavor to procure from Dept. of Public Highways a special grant of $5,000 to be used on road No. B-27, Township of Richmond. Carried.

Moved by A. H. Oliver, seconded by H. S. Windover, that Arthur Hook be issued a tennant's permit for 1928 for the sum of $10.00. Carried.

The following road accounts were ordered paid: John E. Hudgins, engineer $14.00; Tyendinaga boundary work, $161.64; Jas. Haggerty, bonus on 21 rods wire fence, $5.25.

Moved by A. H. Oliver, seconded by H. S. Windover, that the Road Superintendent be authorized to procure 2000 ft. bridge covering for season of 1928 to be delivered at Selby Township Hall on or before May 1st, 1928, and report to Council. Carried.

Moved by A. H. Oliver, seconded by S. J. Mowers, that Geo. F. Hawley be issued cheque for $6.00, error in special school rate. Carried.

Moved by A. H. Oliver, seconded by H. S. Windover, that sealed tenders will be received by Clerk of Township of Richmond up to and including March 3rd, 1928, for gasoline power to operate road machinery for Richmond township for 1928, lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted. Carried.

Moved by A. H. Oliver, seconded by S. J Mowers, that the following accounts be paid: E. J. Pollard, printing for 1927, $151.50; Ira Anderson, truant officer, $5.00; Wm. Paul, truant officer, $5.00. Carried.

Moved by A. H. Oliver, seconded by S. J. Mowers, that Collector and Treasurer be authorized to sign cheques for township purposes during the year 1928 resolution be sent to Royal Bank, Napanee. Carried.

Moved by M. H. Sexsmith, seconded by H. S. Windover, that account of Deseronto, be submitted to Richmond for ditch, Dec. 13th, 1927, for $65.00, be filed. Carried.

Moved by M. H. Sexsmith, seconded by A. H. Oliver, that Council adjourn to meet March 5th, 1928.

H. A. WOOD, Clerk.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

The most obstinate corns fall to resist Holloway's Corn Remover. Try it.

What a distinguished-looking man your father is! His white hair gives him such an aristocratic look!"

"Yes," said the disfigured-looking man's dissipated fan, "he can thank me for that."

All mothers can put away anxiety regarding their suffering children when they have Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator to give relief. Its effects are sure and lasting.

Gertie—"Poor Bertie! I'm afraid he suffers from matrimonial dyspepsia."

Reginald—"Whatever's that?"

Gertie—"Oh, you know — his wife doesn't agree with him."

Stop the Cough.—Coughing is caused by irritation in the respiratory passages and is the effort to dislodge obstructions that come from inflammation of the mucous membrane. Treatment with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will allay the inflammation and in consequence the cough will usually stop. Try it and you will be satisfied.

First Youth—"I tell you, old man, when I get married I'll be the boss, or I'll know the reason why."

Second Ditto—"Oh, you'll know the reason all right. Don't worry about that."

Relief From Asthma. Who can describe the complete relief from suffering which follows the use of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy? Who can express the feeling of joy that comes when its acrid and gentle influence relieves the tightened, choking air tubes? It has made asthmatic affliction a thing of the past for thousands. It never fails. Good druggists everywhere have sold it for years.

He—If you won't listen to me, I'll throw myself in front of that train that's coming now!

She—For God's sake—give me time to think—there'll be another train in five minutes!

Miller's Worm Powders were devised to promptly relieve children who suffer from the ravages of worms. It is a simple preparation to destroy stomachic and intestinal worms without shock or injury to the most sensitive system. They act thoroughly and painlessly, and though in some cases they may cause vomiting, that is an indication of their powerful action and not of any nauseating property.

Recently a respectable - looking drunkard was sitting in a tram bound for Ilford, with a newspaper spread in front of him, apparently reading it in a most absorbed fashion.

"I beg your pardon," said a well-meaning neighbour, "but aren't you reading that paper upside down?"

"Huh?" the drunken gentleman grunted.

"I said, aren't you reading that newspaper upside down?"

"Yes! I am!" the solemn drunkard said, emphatically. "And let me tell you, it takes a bit o' doin', too."

Its Quality Sells It.—The fact that so many thousands of intelligent people continue to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil speaks volumes for its satisfying efficiency. Ever since it was first introduced it has grown steadily in public favor, owing entirely to the manifold usefulness in relieving and healing sickness. As a specific for cuts, burns, scalds, and various inflammatory pains its record is beyond reproach.

DESERONTO

(For last week.)

The annual Christmas Tree and entertainment at St. Mark's Church, Deseronto, was a great success. The children and parents thoroughly enjoyed the evening. The school rooms were filled to overflowing. The carols were well sung by the entire Sunday School, accompanied by Miss Rebecca Smith and Miss Agnes Thompson, and emphasized the glorious spirit of Christmastide. The Infant Class rendered several numbers on the programme excellently. The Rector called upon Miss May Lines to read an address, noting the fact that Mrs. Harband giving up the class had taught the infant class for twenty years; had realized the "joy of service" in the work of the Master, and would be relieved back if at any time she would like to take up again her work of love. Miss Grace Knight then handed Mrs. Harband a purse of gold amidst hearty applause. A dialogue was well put on by several of the pupils, "The Lost Child," trained by Miss Violet Smith, which was well received. Mrs. V. O. Pearce and Mr Eppes gave good piano solos. The Mr. Robert Clarke, of Toronto, one of Canada's best ventriloquists, gave his entertainment in four parts, which brought down the house. His ability is remarkable and the large audience gave him a splendid reception. The National Anthem closed a most enjoyable anniversary of St. Mark's Sunday School.

No Better Medicine For Little Ones

Is What Thousands of Mothers Say of Baby's Own Tablets.

A medicine for the baby or growing child — one that the mother can feel assured is absolutely safe as well as efficient is found in Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are praised by thousands of mothers throughout the country. These mothers have found by actual experience that there is no other medicine for little ones to equal them. Once a mother has used them for her children she will use nothing else. Concerning them Mrs. Charles Hirtle, Tancook Island, N.S., writes: "I have ten children, the baby being just six months old. I have used Baby's Own Tablets for them for the past 2½ years and can truthfully say that I know of no better medicine for little ones. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and have found advice all other mothers to do so."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Tobin's Palm

By O. HENRY

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

TOBIN and me, the two of us, went down to Coney one day, for there was $4 between me and Tobin had need of distractions. For there was Katie Mahorner, his sweetheart of County Sligo, lost since she started for America three months before with $200, her own savings, and $100 from the sale of Tobin's inherited estate, a fine cottage and pig on the Bog Shannagh. And since the letter that Tobin got saying that she had started to come to him not a bit of news had he heard or seen of Katie Mahorner. Tobin advertised in the papers, but nothing could be found of the colleen.

So to Coney me and Tobin went, thinking that a turn at the chutes and the smell of the popcorn might raise the heart in his bosom. But Tobin was a hard headed man, and the sadness stuck in his skin. He ground his teeth at the crying balloons, he cursed the moving pictures, and, though he would drink whenever asked, he scorned Punch and Judy and was for licking the tintype men as they came.

So I gets him down a sideway on a board walk where the attractions were some less violent. At a little G by S stall Tobin halts, with a more human look in his eye.

"'Tis here," says he, "I will be ilivated. I'll have the palm of me hand investigated by the wonderful palmist of the Nile and see if what is to be will be."

Tobin was a believer in signs and the unnatural in nature. He possessed illegal convictions in his mind along the subjects of black cats, lucky numbers and the weather predictions in the papers.

We went into the enchanted chicken coop, which was fired mysterious with red cloth and pictures of hands with lines crossing 'em like a railroad centre. The sign over the door says it is Mme. Zozo, the Egyptian palmist. There was a fat woman inside in a red jumper with potbooks and beguiles and initials on her. Tobin gives her 10 cents and extends one of his hands. She hitches Tobin's hand, which is own by her for the loss of a dray horse, and examines it to see whether 'tis a stone in the frog or a cast shoe he has come for.

"Man," says this Mme. Zozo, "the line of your fate shows"—

"'Tis not me foot at all," says Tobin, interrupting. "Sure, 'tis no beauty, but ye hold the palm of me hand."

"The line shows," says the madame, "that ye've not arrived at your time of life without bad luck. And there's more to come. The mount of Venus—it is that a stone bruise ye've on that ye've been in love. There's been trouble in your life on account of your sweetheart."

"'Tis Katie Mahorner she has references with," whispers Tobin to me in a loud voice to one side.

"I see," says the palmist, "a great deal of sorrow and tribulation with one whom ye cannot forget. I see the line of designation point to the letter K and the letter M in her name."

"What!" says Tobin to me. "Do ye hear that?"

"Look out," goes on the palmist, "for a tall man and a light woman, for they'll both bring ye trouble. Yell

"'T'is not me foot at all."

make a voyage upon the water very soon and have a financial loss. I see one line that brings good luck. There's a man coming into your life who will fetch ye good fortune. Ye'll know him when ye see him by his crooked nose."

"Is his name set down?" asks Tobin. "'Twill be convenient in the way of greeting when he backs up to dump off the good luck."

"His name," says the palmist, thoughtful looking, "is not spelled out by the lines, but they indicate 'tis a long one, and the letter 'o' should be in it. There's no more to tell. Good evening. Don't block up the door."

"'Tis wonderful how she knows," says Tobin as we walk to the pier.

As we squeezed through the gates a nigger man sticks his lighted cigar against Tobin's ear and there is trouble. Tobin hammers his neck, and the women squeal, and by presence of mind I drag the little man off. Then a way before the police comes. Tobin is always in an ugly mood when enjoying himself.

On the boat going back, when the man calls "Who wants the good looking waiter?" Tobin tried to plead guilty, feeling the desire to blow the fees of a crack of ends, but when he felt in his pocket he found himself discharged for lack of evidence. Somebody had disturbed his change during the commotion. So we sat, dry, upon the stools, listening to the dagoes fiddling on deck. If anything, Tobin was lower in' spirits and less congenial with his misfortunes than when we started.

On a seat against the railing was a young woman dressed suitable for red automobiling, with quiet tan color of an unsmoked meerschaum. In passing by Tobin kicks her foot without intentions, and, being polite to ladies when in drink, he tries to give his hat a twist while apologizing. But he knocks it off, and the wind carries it overboard.

Tobin came back and sat down, and I began to laugh with joy, for the man's adversities were becoming frequent. He was apt, when pushed so close by hard luck, to kick the best dressed man he could see and try to take command of the boat.

Presently Tobin grabs my arm and says, excited:

"Jawn," says he, "do ye know what we're doing? We're taking a voyage upon the water."

"There, now," says I; "subdue yerself. The boat 'll land in ten minutes more."

"Look," says he, "at the light lady upon the bench. And have ye forgot the nigger man that burned our car? And isn't the money I had gone—a dollar sixty-five it was?"

I thought he was no more than summing up his catastrophes so as to get violent with good excuse, as men will do, and I tried to make him understand such things are trifles.

"Listen," says Tobin. "Ye've no ear for the gift of prophesy or the miracles of the inspired. What did the palmist lady tell ye out of me hand? 'Tis coming true before your eyes. 'Look out,' says she, 'for a dark man and a light woman; they'll bring ye trouble.' Have ye forgot the nigger man, though he got none of it back from me fist? Can ye show me a lighter woman than the blond lady that was the cause of me hat falling in the water? And where's the dollar sixty-five I had in me vest when we left the shooting gallery?"

The way Tobin put it it did seem to corroborate the art of prediction, though it looked to me that these accidents could happen to any one at Coney without the implication of palmistry.

Tobin got up and walked around on deck, looking close at the passengers out of his little red eyes. I asked him the interpretation of his movements. Ye never know what Tobin has in his mind until he begins to carry it out.

"Ye should know," says he, "I'm working out the salvation promised by the lines in me palm. I'm looking for the crooked nose man that's to bring the good luck. 'Tis all that will save Jawn, did ye ever see a straighter-nosed gang of hellions in the days of your life?"

'Twas the 9:20 boat, and we landed and walked uptown through Twenty-second street, Tobin being without his hat.

On a street corner, standing under a skylight and looking over the elevated road at the moon, was a man. A long man he was, dressed decent, with a cigar between his teeth, and I saw that his nose made two twists from bridge to end, like the wriggle of a snake. Tobin saw it at the same time, and I heard him breathe hard like a horse when you take the saddle off. He went straight up to the man, and I went with him.

"Good night to ye," Tobin says to the man. The man takes out his cigar and passes the compliments sociable.

"Would ye hand us your name," asks Tobin, "and let us look at the size of it? It may be our duty to become acquainted with ye."

"My name," says the man, polite, "is Friedenheimman—Maximus G. Friedenheimman."

"'Tis the right length," says Tobin. "Do you spell it with an 'o' anywhere down the stretch of it?"

"I do not," says the man.

"Can ye spell it with an 'o'?" inquires Tobin, turning anxious.

"If your conscience," says the man with the nose, "is indisposed toward foreign idioms ye might, to please yourself, smuggle the letter into the penultimate syllable."

"'Tis well," says Tobin. "Ye're in the presence of Jawn Malone and Daniel Tobin."

"'Tis highly appreciated," says the man, with a bow. "And now since I cannot conceive that ye would hold a spelling bee upon the street corner, will ye name some reasonable excuse for being at large?"

"By the two signs," answers Tobin, trying to explain, "which ye display on the left hand ending of the lines of the palmist from the sole of me hand ye've been nominated to offset with, good luck the lines of sorrow leading to the nigger man and the blond lady with her feet crossed in the boat, besides the dollar sixty-five of dollar sixty-five, all so far fulfilled according to Hoyle."

The man stopped smoking and looked at me.

"Have ye any amendments," he asks, "to offer to that statement, or are ye one foo? I thought by the looks of ye ye might have him in charge."

"None," says I to him, "except that as one horseshoe resembles another so does the picture of good luck as predicted by the hand of me friend. If not, then the lines of Danny's hand may have been crossed, I don't know."

"There's two of ye," says the man with the nose, looking up and down for the sight of a policeman. "I've enjoyed your company immense. Good night." With that he shoves his cigar in his mouth and goes across the street, stepping fast. But Tobin sticks close to one side of him and me at the other.

"What?" says he, stopping on the opposite sidewalk and pushing back his hat. "Do ye follow me? I tell ye," he says very low, "I'm proud to have met ye, but it is my desire to be rid of ye. I am off to me home."

"Do," says Tobin, laying against his sleeve. "Do be off to your home. And I will sit at the door of it till ye come out in the morning for the dependence is upon ye to obviate the curse of the nigger man and the blond lady and the financial loss of the one-sixty-five."

"'Tis a strange hallucination," says the man, turning to me as the more reasonable lunatic. "Hadn't ye better get him home?"

"Listen, me," says I to him. "Daniel Tobin is as sensible as he ever was. Maybe he is a bit deranged on account of having drifted enough to disturb just enough to settle his wits, but he is no more than following out the legitimate path of his superstitions and predictions. Will I have to explain to you." With that I relates the facts about the palmist lady and how the finger of destiny had led him as an instrument of good fortune. "Now, understand," I concludes, "my position. I am the friend of Tobin and Tobin, according to me interpretations. 'Tis easy to be a friend to the prosperous, for it pays. 'Tis not hard to be a friend to the poor, for ye get puffed up by gratitude and have your picture printed standing in front of a tenement with a scuttle of coal and an orphan in each hand. But it strains the art of friendship to be a true friend to a born fool. And that's what I'm doing," says I, "for, in my opinion, there's no fortune to be read from the palm of me hand that wasn't printed there with the handle of a pick. And, though ye've got the crookedest nose in New York city, I misdoubt that all the fortune tellers doing business could milk good luck from ye. But the lines of Danny's hand pointed to ye fair, and I'll assist him to experiment with ye until he's convinced ye're dry."

After that the man turns, sudden, to laughing. He leans against a corner and laughs considerable. Then he claps me and Tobin on the backs of us and takes us by an arm apiece.

"'Tis my mistake," says he, "How could I be suspicious of two such droll and wonderful to be turning the corner upon me? I came near being found unworthy. Hard luck," says he, "is a cafe, snug and suitable for the entertainment of idiosyncrasies. Let us go there and drink to the health of the discussive the unavailability of the categorical."

So saying, he marched me and Tobin to the back room of a saloon and ordered the drinks and laid the money on the table. He looks at me and Tobin like brothers of his, and we have the cigars.

"Ye must know," says the man of destiny, "that me line of work is one that is called literary. I wander abroad be night seeking idiosyncrasies in the manse and truth in the heaven above. When ye came upon me I was in contemplation of the elevated road in conjunction with the chief luminary of night. The rapid transit is poetry and art, the moon but a tedious, dry body moving by rote. But these are private quibbles. In the business of literature the conditions are reversed. 'Tis me hope to be writing a book to explain the strange things I have discovered in life."

"Ye will put me in a book," says Tobin, disgusted. "Will ye put me in a book?"

"I will not," says the man, "for the covers will not hold ye—not yet. The best I can do is to enjoy ye meself, for the task is not ripe for receiving the limitintions of print. Ye would look fantastic in type. All alone by me self must I admire this evil of a face and it thank ye, boys, I am truly grateful."

"The talk of ye," says Tobin, blowing through his mustache and pounding the table with his fist, "is an eyesore to me patience. There was good luck promised and the cross of your nose, but ye bear fruit like the bang of a drum. Ye resemble, with your noise of boobs, the wind blowing through a crack. Sure, now, I would be thinking the palm of me hand led late for the coming true of the nigger man and the blond lady and"—

"Whist!" says the long man. "Would ye be led astray by physiognomy? No nose will do what it can within bounds. Let us have these glasses filled again, for 'tis poor deep idiosyncracies will molstened, they being subject to deterioration in a dry moral atmosphere."

So the man of literature makes good, to my notion, for he pays cheerful for everything, the capital of me and Tobin being exhausted by reception. But Tobin is sore and drinks quiet, with the red showing in his eye.

By and by we moved out, for 'twas 11 o'clock, and stands a bit upon the sidewalk. And then the man says he must be going home and leaves me and Tobin to walk that way. We arrives on a side street two blocks away where there is a stretch of brick houses with high stoops and iron fences. The man stops at one of them and looks up at the top windows, which he finds dark.

"'Tis me humble dwelling," says he, "and I begin to perceive by the signs that me wife has retired to slumber. Therefore I will venture a bit in the way of hospitality. 'Tis me wish that ye enter and partake of a reasonable refreshment. There will be a cold bite of corned beef and a bottle or two of ale. Ye will be welcome to enter and eat, for I am indebted to ye for diversions."

The appetite and conscience of me and Tobin was congenial to the proposition, though 'twas sticking hard in Danny's superstitions to think that a few drinks and a cold lunch should represent the good fortune promised by the palm of his hand.

"Good luck promised."

"Step down the steps," says the man with the crooked nose, "and I will enter by the door above and let ye in. I will ask the new girl we have in the kitchen," says he, "to make ye a pot of coffee to drink before ye go. 'Tis fine coffee Katie Mahorner makes for a green girl just landed three months. Step in," says the man, "and I'll send her down to ye."

The Pink of Propriety.

When the stringed band, hidden behind the rose and carnation screen in Mrs. Poole's dining room, began to play an air from one of Meyerbeer's operas, the daughter of the house turned hopefully to the young and appparently dumb stranger who had been told off to take her in.

Here was a promising opening for conversation.

"Do you like Meyerbeer?" she asked.

"I never drank a glass of one of those ingers in my life," the young man replied coldly.

His Party.

A matron of the most determined character was encountered by a young woman reporter on a country paper, who was sent out to interview leading citizens as to their politics. "May I see Mr. —?" she asked of a stern looking woman who opened the door at one home. "What you can't!" answered the woman decisively. "But I want to know what party he belongs to," pleaded the girl. The woman drew up her tall figure. "Well, take a good look at me," she said. "I'm the party he belongs to!"—Argonaut.

Presentation and Address

On Thursday evening, Dec. 29th, 1927, there was an interesting function at the home of Mr. Nelson Hewitt, Sharp's Corners, when his daughter, Miss Olive Hewitt, was the object of an address and presentation, and a very pleasant evening was spent by numerous friends, who waited on Miss Hewitt, with the following address, which was read by Rev. Mr. Gregory, and to which Miss Hewitt made a suitable reply, thanking all for their kindness, and the beautiful gift which was handed to her by Mrs. D. R. Tucker.

Miss Olive Hewitt.

We, the undersigned, are attempting to show our appreciation of your devoted and unstinted help at the organ in our church, both now and for some time past.

We are deeply conscious how unselfish and self-denying such work must of necessity be, and we are just as conscious how unrurdingly you have always done that work. Friends may have to be left at home, the weather decked, waits for weekends put off, but your work is always done, and done, too, without remuneration and with no perfunctiness.

It is, in the first place, to beg you to accept our best thanks for all this that we are gathered here this evening; and, in the second place, to ask your kind acceptance of this small token of our sincere thankfulness and appreciative regard. Remaining your true friends,

The Rector of Shannonville and the Congregation of Kingsford.

Mrs. Wm. McRae,
Mrs. D. R. Tucker.

BY-LAW NO. 342.

A By-law appointing a Road Superintendent for the Township of Adolphustown, in the County of Lennox and Addington.

Whereas it is desirable that the laying out and supervision of all work and expenditure upon improvement and maintenance of roads within the exclusive jurisdiction of this township, should be under the supervision of a road superintendent, acting under the direction of this council;

And whereas it is the desire of this Council to take advantage of The Ontario Highways Act, and to receive the Government grant as provided in Section 11, Sub-section 1 of the said Act.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the said Township of Adolphustown, and it is hereby enacted;

1. That George Chalmers be and is hereby appointed Road Superintendent in the said Township to act as aforesaid in accordance with the provisions of the said Section 11 of the said Act, from the 9th day of January, 1928, and during the pleasure of the said Council.

2. That the said George Chalmers shall be paid at the rate of $1.50 per day, for each day he is employed.

3. That it shall be the duty of the Superintent to lay out and supervise all work and expenditure on roads within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Township Council, according to such general regulations as the Department of Public Highways may prescribe.

4. That all By-laws or parts thereof and all or any resolutions of said Council contrary hereto or inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed.

5. That a certified copy of this By-law be forwarded by the Clerk, without delay, to the Deputy Minister, Department of Public Highways, Highways Administration Building, Toronto.

Read a third time and passed this 9th day of January, 1928.

A. C. DAVIS, Clerk. J. S. JOHNSON, Reeve.

I, A. C. Davis, Clerk of the Corporation of the Township of Adolphustown, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of By-law No. 342, passed by the Council of the said Corporation, on the 9th day of January, 1928.

A. C. DAVIS, Township Clerk.

BY-LAW NO. 343.

A By-law to provide for expenditure on roads in the Township of Adolphustown, during the year 1928.

Whereas the regulations of the Department of Public Highways of Ontario require that the expenditure on Township Roads under the Ontario Highways Act, and Amendments thereto, shall be provided for annually by Township By-law.

Therefore the Council of the Municipal Corporation of the Township of Adolphustown, enacts as follows:—

1. The sum of $500.00 is hereby appropriated from monies raised by taxation, for expenditure upon construction on the roads in the said township during the year 1928.

2. The sum of $2000.00 is hereby appropriated, from monies raised by taxation, for expenditure upon maintenance and repair on the roads in the said township, during the year 1928.

3. The said monies shall be expended under the direction of the duly appointed Township Road Superintendent.

4. All work on which the said monies shall be expended shall be performed in accordance with the general revised regulations respecting Township Roads issued by the Department of Public Highways of Ontario.

5. The Clerk shall transmit two certified copies of this By-law to the Deputy Minister, Department of Public Highways of Ontario, within thirty days after the passing thereof.

Passed at Adolphustown, this 9th day of January, A.D. 1928.

A. C. DAVIS, Clerk. J. S. JOHNSON, Reeve.

I, A. C. Davis, Clerk of the Corporation of the Township of Adolphustown, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of By-law No. 343, passed by the Council of the said Corporation, on the 9th day of January, 1928.

A. C. DAVIS, Township Clerk.

When the Cyclone Struck

By A. F. RANSOM

THE keen gray eyes of the elder man searched the blue ones on the opposite side of the gate. In them was a certain honesty strongly tinctured with a look of relief.

"I can't tell you how much obliged I am, Mr. Reame," the young man said. "I couldn't help but feel that now this trouble has come you wouldn't want me around."

"I've lived right here on this farm for fifty-six years," replied Reame, "and there's no one above ground who can say that I ever asked man, woman or child to take part in any of my quarrels."

The young man nodded. "There isn't many men who can say that."

"It isn't that I've anything against your father in this affair," continued

She turned and left them.

Reame. "But for nearly sixty years I've watched the birds build their nests in those trees. I climbed those hickories for nuts when I wasn't bigger than a pint of cider, and it's been the finest sugar bush I've looked for the first signs of sap. Maybe they're not mine. I don't know. I've always supposed they were, and they shan't be cut down without a fight to save them."

Out from the house down to the gate where the men were talking came a girl, dressed all in pink, a soft, fluffy pink which reminded one of a cloud at sunrise, while her hair lay piled above her head in a great mass of golden light. She gave the young man a simple nod of greeting while passing a hand through her father's arm. Her presence seemed to bring a constraint upon the recipient of the nod, for he spoke with a diffidence not noticeable before.

"We supposed when we bought our place that the trees belonged to us, and when you said they were your property father had the land surveyed. It seems large that the line ran directly up on our land or, of course, father would never have touched them. They are handsome large that the field is practically useless because of their shade. Nothing will ripen there."

"I've had surveys made myself," came Reame's ready response. "It has been done three times to my certain knowledge and each time in my favor. Besides, I offered to buy the field of your father, not because I cared for the land, but to preserve the trees."

"He doesn't want to sell"—the eyes of the young man were on the girl in pink—"and I presume the only way out is to let the courts decide. Father says just what you do—that the quarrel need not in any way interfere with us young folks. I'm sorry that it can't be settled in some other way, but it won't make any difference with the friendship of our families."

"Do you think those trees are on your father's land, Ben Holcolm?" demanded the girl suddenly.

"I should not have cut one of them down if I did not, Vinnie," he replied in surprise.

"It's just like killing an old friend." Her face was cold, but tears were in the voice which held so much of protest. "I used to build my playhouse under that one, and I've spent many an hour in the crotch where the tree branched. It was there I used to study my lessons, and now you've cut it down."

"We did not know how you felt about them. We supposed that they were yours, and if they are father intends to have the ax at them all. Now that your father has arrested mine for trespass and destroying property the only thing left is to fight it out, Ben Vinnie, it won't make any difference with us, will it?"

She turned resolutely from him. "It will make all the difference in the world. Those trees are ours. They shall not be cut down. Until you are willing to say that they are ours and not yours I will never speak to you again—that is, in the way you have asked me to."

"See here, little girl," interposed her father, turning her face upward with his hand; "I have told you that this is my quarrel. I don't want you young folks to mix in. Mr. Holcolm and I can settle it without help."

"That doesn't make any difference," she persisted. "I'll never marry Ben Holcolm except as a stranger until he says that these trees are ours by land. He's got to say so before the lawsuit comes off, or I never will."

She did not wait for an answer, but with head high in air and a poor attempt at a dignity which had no existence she turned and left them. They watched until the shrubbery hid her from sight, and then Reame turned to Ben, with a smile.

"I didn't think she'd take it quite so much to heart," he said, "but she's pretty hard hit. Those trees have been her playmates for a good many years now."

"If we had only known," said Ben, "perhaps it might have been avoided, but father is set in his way and thinks he has a right to do as he pleases with his own. It's making it pretty hard for me, though. I didn't think Vinnie would turn me down as she has."

"And she'll persist. You're between two fires now," Reame paused, glanced around and continued:

"The air is hotter than boiling oil, and unless I'm mistaken we'll get a regular northwester before dark. There's some tools down at the express office I must get up before it reaches here, so I'll go along to your place with you, Ben."

They walked slowly on in the afternoon sunshine. The air was hot and the sun beat down with a fervor which was almost overpowering. Away to the west a cloud was banging, low, black and ominous. Not a breath of wind was stirring, and the leaves of the maples hung without their usual stems. The birds barely skimmed the earth in their flight, and the crows were keeping up an incessant cawing, while a peacock on the fence which separated the Holcolm garden from the barnyard was filling the air with its discordant cry.

"We are to have a storm, and that before Reame gets home again," muttered Ben after his companion had left him. "No matter. It can't be any worse than the one we stirred up when we chopped that maple down. Who'd have thought it would be the brought on all this trouble? Who do those trees belong to, anyway? Reame is honest in a sunshine and shade way, put up such a fight if he didn't think he was standing on sure ground."

He stopped at the fence and looked at the sky. The cloud in the west was no nearer, the air was stifling, while a muffled pounding kept sounding away off where the cloud broke.

"I'll get the cattle under cover," he said to himself. "Then that cloud gets to moving there'll be something doing, or I'm no judge."

A half hour later the cows were housed, the chores well under way, and he was in the mow of the barn throwing down hay, when there came a sound like the roar of a breaking dam, a crash that deafened, and all was black as midnight. The rain came in torrents, beating upon the roof like pebbles thrown from the thousand slings. The wind whistled and moaned while he stood quiet, not daring to move until the darkness lessened. Thus five minutes passed, and then he slowly, carefully crept to the little ladder still against the side of the nearest stall, down that and then to the door to look out. Of the big gray straw stack which had been standing near the barn not a spear was left, the carriage house was piled, a chaotic heap, against the barn, other outbuildings had disappeared, half the trees in the orchard were uprooted, the smokehouse of the Holcolms was reposing very slowly against the Reame kitchen door, and for yards around nothing could be seen but devastation.

While he stood there a thought came which made his cheek grow white. When bringing up the cows he had noticed Vinnie Reame in the pasture a pink robed figure. Had Vinnie reached home before the storm struck? Where was she now? Regardless of the rain, which still fell as though the heavenly faucet had been turned on full force, he started on a run up the road. Into the Reame yard he dashed. No one was there but Mrs. Reame, and she was walking the floor, white with terror and anxiety over Vinnie. She had not been seen since leaving him and her father at the gate. On to where he had seen the figure in pink. She must have taken refuge somewhere. What if— He could not get beyond the "if." She must be found. Soon it ceased raining, and on he

Letter Tells of Wonderful Relief After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Coniston, Ontario.—"After a severe operation and a three weeks' stay in a hospital I left there so weak that I was unable to move a chair. For four months I was almost frantic with pains and suffering until I thought surely there could not be any help for me. I had very severe painsin my left side and suffered agony every month, when I was not able to get up my mother begged me to try your medicine. My husband got me a bottle of Vegetable Compound at once and I took it. I started a second bottle, and to my surprise and joy the pains in my side left me completely and I am able to do all my work without help. I am a farmer's wife, so you see I can't be idle long. In all, I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, five boxes of the Compound Tablets, two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, and have also used the Sanative Wash."—Mrs. L. LAJEUNESSE, Box 103, Coniston, Ontario. C kept, stumbling over uprooted trees, fallen branches, jumping over pools of water, calling her name over and over again; back through the woods, this time in another direction.

"Vinnie! Vinnie!" Suddenly in answer to his call he heard a response, faint and weak. He halted again and looked around. The field was level. Nothing was in sight. But the call came again, this time with more distinctness. Then he saw her. Over in the next field very near the center stood a pitiful figure. On the lowest branch at least ten feet above his head. On that she was perched, her pink dress clinging to her figure in long, dripping folds. There wasn't a bit of dignity or cloud effect about her. A great gladness surged up and through him at the sight, and he leaped the fence, hastening toward the tree.

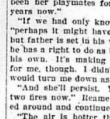
"What are you up that tree for?" he called out cheerily.

"What a terrible storm it was!" she answered. "I was walking in our pasture, and all of a sudden it grew dark. I heard that rushing and rolling, and I was caught up and carried through the air just like a piece of paper. Then I felt myself coming down and down and down. Then the branches caught me, and the rain began to pour. When it grew light I was in the very tip top of the tree, and I managed to climb down this far myself, but I can't get any farther. Help me, please, Ben."

He folded his arms, looking up at her sitting there on the branch.

"It looks as though you were quite comfortable there," he said. "Of course you're pretty wet, but it's warm, and wetting won't hurt this weather. Let's talk things over. What'll you give me for release?"

"Don't bother, Ben. Help me down



It's getting dark, and mother will be so anxious."

"It isn't as dark as it was a little while ago. I guess I better go to the house and tell your mother you're all right. When your father gets home from the village he can come after you unless you're willing to make terms. What'll you give me to help you?"

She was near crying, but was too plucky to show it. It wasn't like him to treat her in this way. Wasn't it enough that he had chopped down her trees, and now—

"What do you want?" she demanded. "It's mean of you to treat me so. If it's money you want"—

"I want you to take back what you said at the gate. Will you marry me if I help you now?"

Her eyes flashed. "No, I will not. I'll keep my word if I stay here forever, and I'll never marry you until you own that those hickory and maple trees are on my father's land."

For answer he came under the tree with arms outstretched. "Drop," he said. "I'll catch you so you can't get hurt. Just take hold with your hand and then drop down."

"I've done that once a time," she replied, and in a moment more she was on the ground.

"Vinnie," he said, taking her arm and tucking it through his, "I've been looking those trees over since I left your father this afternoon, and I'm perfectly willing to testify that I believe they are entirely on your father's land."

Then they went home together, dripping wet, but wondrously happy, and as they neared the Reame farmhouse Ben stopped and pointed where the rows of hickory and maple trees had been standing. From those his finger moved to a great heap of twisted branches and uprooted tree trunks lying at the corner of the kitchen porch.

"Don't you think, Vinnie," he asked, "that even my father will be willing, under the circumstances, to confess judgment?"

She gave a little cry. "Oh, Ben, there isn't a single one left! Everyone one is gone and both our orchards—"

OBITUARY

Samuel S. Brown.

On December 30th, 1927, after a protracted illness of several months, Mr. Samuel S. Brown passed away, at the home of his son, Ernest.

The deceased had been a resident of this district all his life, and his quiet, genial manner endeared him to many for him a host of friends. His untimely death is much to be regretted, and the blow falls from his loving wife and baby son, and the whole community suffers the loss of a most loyal, worthy and respected citizen.

Besides his wife and baby son, he leaves to mourn his loss, four brothers, Wm., of Lime Lake; George, Thomas and James, of Ebenezer, and two sisters, Mrs. Wm. Metcalfe, of the West, and Mrs. Wm. English, of Shannonville.

The funeral service, which was largely attended, was held in Ebenezer Church, Rev. Mr. Sharpe, a former pastor, officiating. The bearers were W. Whiteman, G. Frovins, J. Doyle, C. Anderson, C. Mastin and H. Mastin. Rev. Mr. Sharpe took for his text, "Behold I show you a mystery". God's ways are not our ways and He will provide a way. We know the deceased never lost his trust in God through all his illness, for he left a message to his sorrowing wife "Trust in God and follow on".

Ebenezer Church has indeed lost a very useful member, for he loved the Church he had been brought up in, and never hesitated to respond to any call made on him. In the choir his assistance was freely given. For a number of years he was superintendent of the Sunday School, and also taught a class of young boys. He loved the young people and never forgot to give an encouraging word. He was a faithful member of the Orange Lodge, being Master of the Ebenezer Lodge, 974, and Chaplain of the Black Order.

To the sorrowing friends, the whole community extends their deepest sympathy and remembering the beautiful words of the anthem rendered by the Choir, "Meekly Wait and Murmur Not".

OBITUARY.

In loving memory of Mrs. Clark Pringle, who died January 6th, 1928, aged 75 years and 9 months, at her daughter's, Mrs. Een Young, Westplain.

After many hours and days of pain,
Her restless nights are past;
Her weary wornout frame
Has found sweet rest at last.

The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought her death so near;
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting to bid farewell.

This day brings back to memory
A loved one laid to rest;
And those who think of her to-day
Are those who loved her best.

Left to mourn her loss are her daughters, Mrs. Ben Young, of Westplain; Mrs. Milo Cole, Toronto; Mrs. Josey Sniden, Napanee; and also her sons, Mr. Harry, of Forest Mills; Mr. Hark, of Selby; Mr. Johnnie, of Napanee; Mr. Eanon, of Napanee; Mr. Frank, of Orillia. Interment took place at Napanee cemetery.

Women Who Are Weak

Gain New Vitality by Building Up the Blood.

There are many women who pass their days in a constant state of weariness. They have barely sufficient energy to enable them to perform their manifold duties. Often they have pain, aching head, a miserable pain in the back, and limbs that feel as heavy as lead. The whole trouble is due to bloodlessness. No wonder they need suffer in this way. "It is easy to obtain a supply of rich red blood by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The new blood created by these pills rapidly builds up the system; headaches and backaches disappear, energy returns and the joy of living is felt once more.

Proof of these statements is given by Mrs. Ed. Lanore, Stoney Point, Ont., who says:—"For a long time I had been in a very miserable condition, always feeling tired out, sleepy and weak. The least work about the house would leave me helplessly tired and nothing that I did seemed to give relief. Believing that a rest might do me good, we moved to town, but, contrary to expectations, instead of getting better I was growing steadily worse. One day while talking to a neighbor, she urged me taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, telling me that her daughter had derived a benefit from such like mine. This persuaded me to try this medicine, and I have much pleasure in stating that I followed her advice. After the use of a few boxes of the pills, there could be no doubt that they were helping me, and as I continued their use my health and strength came back and now I am doing all my own work and feeling in the best of health. For this splendid condition I must give my thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

The pills are sold by all druggists, or you can get them by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WEDDING BELLS

Morrow—Smith.

On Wednesday afternoon, December 28th, at 409 Ninth Street, a quiet and pretty wedding was solemnized in the presence of the members of the family, when Miss Winona Alice, youngest daughter of Mr. Charles S. Smith, and niece of Mrs. Charles Scarrow, lecturer at the Normal School, Regina, became the bride of John H. Morrow,B.A., second son of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Morrow, of Bath, Ontario, and a graduate of Queen's University. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. D. L. McTavish, of Grace United Church.

The bride was becomingly attired in a boudoir dress of ivory French georgette and lace, and carried a bouquet of Killarney roses. Miss Ivy Jackson, A.T.C.M., friend of the bride, played the wedding music.

After a few days spent in Prince Albert, the happy couple returned to Elfros, Sask., where the groom is principal of the High School.—Saskatoon Star.

WHOLE MILK VS. SKIM MILK AND SUBSTITUTES FOR CALVES

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Calves Must Be Well Started.—It is a well known fact that the very best possible start must be given to the youngsters. To secure information on the cost of rearing calves a feeding experiment was conducted with 30 calves at the Cap Rouge Experimental Station.

Experiment.—The project consisted in feeding three lots of calves on different feeds until they were 24 weeks old, one lot received whole milk; the second, skim-milk and a home-mixed meal consisting of six parts corn, three parts oats, one and a half part flax seed, by weight, all ground together; the third lot received, Royal Purple calf meal, a well known commercial article. Besides these feeds the youngsters had all the clover hay, oat straw, and corn silage which they would clean up. The feed, both liquid and solid, was weighed to the last pound, and the calves were put on the scales at birth, at four, eight, twelve, sixteen, twenty, and twenty-four weeks.

Results.—Calculating feeds at current prices of the summer of 1925 a whole milk $2, skim-milk 20 cents, Royal Purple meal $5, home-mixed meal $47.7 other concentrates $1.72 per 100 pounds, clover hay $9, corn silage $3, swede turnips $1.80 per ton) it cost to feed until the calves were 24 weeks old, an average of $49.03 for each one raised on whole milk, while the figures were respectively $15.99 for each fed on the Royal Purple meal, and $12.33 for each fed on the home-mixed meal. The cost per pound of gain was respectively 20.7 cents for whole milk, 7.4 cents for Royal Purple meal, and 6.26 for home-mixed meal.

Suggestions.—Whole milk after the first two or three weeks is considered out of the question, from the point of view of economy, as a feed for calves, and a good home-mixed meal is just as satisfactory and cheaper than Royal Purple meal.

Courses Popular.
A good number of young people have enrolled in the Courses in Agriculture and Home Economics to be conducted in Napanee, commencing January 31st, under the auspices of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Others who expect to attend should apply to J. Laughland. Those coming from a distance and desiring boarding houses will be assisted in securing suitable accommodation.

HOCKEY

The first hockey match of the season will be held at the Napanee Arena on Friday night, January 20th, when the Kingston Granites and Napanee try conclusion in an exhibition game.

Kingston teams have always been a tough proposition for Napanee, and they can always be depended upon to put up a good brand of hockey. The Granites are composed of players who took part in the city league series this winter, and have therefore the advantage over Napanee in respect to condition, as the artificial ice plant in Kingston has afforded them plenty of opportunity, while the locals have been held up for lack of ice.

The locals have been putting in several good practices this week, and expect to be in fairly good shape on Friday. There will be several new faces on the line-up, and the locals will be in the game every minute giving their best. "Jim" Naphin will be sadly missed on the defense, as he is out of town, and is not expected back until Saturday. Gleeson and Bentley have been teaming up on the defense. The forward line will be picked from Johnston, Wilson, Skitch, Detler, Stewart and Ted Bentley.

Come to the rink on Friday night, and help cheer for Napanee.

A UNIQUE REVIVAL AT BATH

On the evening of January 2nd a few of the members met in the old Presbyterian Church, recently purchased from the Kingston Presbytery by the Trustee Board of Bath United Church, at the call of the Pastor, to wait upon God for a deepening of spiritual work.

The first meeting was but sparsely attended, but the attendance has increased nightly, until the church is now well filled with an earnest, devoted congregation longing and praying for a deeper work of the grace of God. Many young people are attending the meetings, and the order is worthy of the highest commendation.

The Pastor is his own Evangelist, and has been on all his circuits thus far, but always by the request of his Board. Mrs. (Rev.) Ross has always taken charge of the organ in Mr. Ross' meetings, and is doing so in the present meetings every night. The services are characterized by deep spiritual power, and the interest is deepening day by day. This revival is likely to spread over the entire circuit, and Bro. Ash's appointment, in all probability, will next be visited.

Mrs. H. W. Kelly will be at the office of Wonderland Theatre each afternoon, to settle accounts for the grocery store. 3b

EUCHRE.

A Euchre, under the auspices of the I.O.D.E., in Town Hall, Monday evening, February 23rd. Playing to begin at 8 o'clock. Excellent prizes. Everybody welcome.

BOYS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

Napanee has started another forward movement—this time in favor of the boys of the vicinity, who are organized as the Boys' Athletic Association. Through the efforts of Mr. L. S. Beattie, a meeting was held last Friday, January 13th, in which prominent men of the town expressed keen interest in furthering the welfare of all boys of Napanee, between the ages of 15 and 19, along recreational lines. A general committee was drawn up of men who are going to act—in both words and deeds—as supervisors for such sports as basketball, hockey, and later volleyball and boxing. That these men are willing to spend some of their time up at the Collegiate gymnasium or the rink, speaks itself for the spirit with which they are going to stimulate healthy sports among the younger generation. This good work will receive financial support from personal donations, the Rotary Club, the boys themselves for their membership fee to the Boys' Association.

The executive of the Advisory Board consists of :—

Chairman—F. S. Boyes.
Vice Chairman—A. L. Dafoe.
Secty. Treas.—C. A. Shoemaker.
General Committee—W. G. Cowle, J. H. Moffat, L. S. Beattie, Harry Scott, W. T. MacKenzie, J. McPherson, F. J. Bell, Rev. A. J. Wilson, G. W. Gibbard, J. Laughland, and J. L. Murray.

Schedules are already being drawn up by Mr. Murray for basketball, and Mr. Dafoe for hockey, and supervisors arranged for Tuesday and Thursday nights at the gymnasium by Mr. MacKenzie. A successful start was made last Tuesday night under the able direction of Mr. Scott and Mr. Wales.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary V. Snyder

Mrs. Mary V. Snyder, 63 years old, of Fonthill, Ont., died December 28th, 1927, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Hugh Cambridge, in Detroit, Mich., of a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Snyder was born in Switzerville, Ont., the daughter of the late David and Jane Close, pioneer residents of the township. She was married about 35 years ago to the late O. A. Snyder, in Switzerville, where they resided until about 12 years ago, when they moved to Fonthill. On the death of her husband, two years ago, Mrs. Snyder took up her home with her sister, Mrs. Charles P. Jones, at Niagara Falls, N.Y. Last October she went to live with her sister in Detroit.

Mrs. Snyder had been ill about four years, but had borne up with true Christian fortitude. Of an uncomplaining nature, but few of her even intimate friends were aware that she was suffering almost unbearably and that her condition was gradually growing worse until the end came.

Mrs. Snyder was a devote member of the Methodist Church and was always active in church work. She was also publicly active in charitable work, but her benefactions were numerous among the worthy. She was unobtrusive to a marked extent and was loth to have it known publicly that she had done her part in alleviating the needs of the poor and suffering. The extent of her kindly deeds during the all too short period of her life will live long after her among those who were benefitted.

The funeral was held in Fonthill on December 30th, and the profusion of floral offerings attested the high esteem in which Mrs. Snyder was held while in life. Many of her old friends were present at the brief services and all were bowed down with the loss of a kind friend and neighbor.

Besides her two sisters, Mrs. Cambridge, of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Jones, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., the deceased leaves three brothers, W. J. Close, San Jose, Cal.; F. H. Close, Santa Rosa, Cal., and J. E. Close, of Brockville, Ont.

ONE MILLION READERS

Canada has one institution at least that compares favorably with anything of the kind the world over. It is that great weekly paper, The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal, with its 32 big pages each week of the very choicest material, and all for one dollar a year. It is marvellous how its editors fill its pages with such interesting and valuable news, stories, farm news, and hundreds of other features that please and delight its great army of readers every week. There are thousands of homes in Canada where that great paper has been a regular visitor from generation to generation. The Family Herald has been a money maker and a money saver to its readers, and one dollar invested in a year's subscription is the best investment any family can make. It is said to have one million readers in the Dominion.

LEMONELLA ON HOCKEY

Lemonella, while deploring the lack of hockey games this season bursts forth in verse, giving some advice to the public generally to attend the games played by the Finishers' team and any opponents they may have this season. Everything goes. No holds barred.

While we're on the Hockey topic,
If you would see something slick,
Come and cast your eagle optic
On John B. and his pick.
See old Lem without his crutches,
Chocolate Mag. when he gets warm,
They'll give you a repetition
Of the Battle of the Marne.
Come and see our Iron Johnston,
There is nothing that he lacks,
For shooting out instructions
On how to wield a trusty axe.
Have a look at Dangerous Walker,
He has such a noble stance,
He'll be out there on his rockers
In his double-seated pants.
And we have a swell left winger,
He's as supple as a cat;
He is sure a real hum-dinger,
The Duke of the Sheepskin Flats.
The Gadget King, is our goal tender,
And I'll say he's pretty fair;
Plays real hockey to the shoulders
After that there's nothing there.
Come and hear our club of rooters,
All the gang is always there;
Belcher and the Flying Dutchman,
Percy Starpe and Monty Blair.
If for hockey you are praying,
And of action is what you think,—
Go and see the Finishers playing
When they battle at the rink.

—Lemonella.

ODESSA

The disagreeable storm of Saturday evening, January 14th, did not dampen the order of the enthusiastic workers of the Mission Band, when they met at the home of Mrs. A. E. Hazard, where a very pleasant social evening was spent by the little ones and their friends, which consisted of several members of the Auxiliary and others. Nearly all present became members of the Band at the unavoidably detained meeting from last December. At the request of the children, Mrs. Hazard again became Superintendent, with Mrs. Bon Emmons as assistant. The officers were then elected :—

Hon. Pres.—Mr. Fred Caton.
President—Mrs. Bon Emmons.
1st Vice—Miss Marie Amey.
2nd Vice—Master Earl Jackson.
3rd Vice—Edgerton Wallace.
Secretary—Master Ford Lawlor.
Treasurer and Corresponding Secretary—Master Bruce Hillier.

Mr. Caton pleased the children very much by his interesting talk. The duet sung by Miss Marion Emmons and Miss Betty Huggard was very creditably rendered. The meeting was closed by Mrs. Amy Snider, President of the L. A. S. Mrs. S. J. Sproule, Mrs. Roy Emmons and Miss Lillian Aylesworth assisted the hostess in serving lunch. The next evening meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Coon, on the January 28th, at seven o'clock. All are welcome.

The many friends of Bernard L. King were sorry to hear that he was taken to the Hotel Dieu Hospital on Monday morning, suffering from injuries of the fall of January 12th. He started to go to the postoffice for his evening mail, and at the end of the walk before crossing the road on Ferguson Avenue, there is a deep ditch with very little protection. The night was very dark, and it was an easy matter to misjudge the distance. This is the only village in the two counties not lighted for protection, and it seems now that something should be done to prevent further accidents. All hope for his speedy recovery.

The many friends of Thomas Revell were sorry to hear that he passed away in the Kingston General Hospital on Sunday night, after a couple of days' illness of pneumonia. The funeral was held from his late home on Tuesday afternoon, to the Pre Victorian Church. Rev. Mr. Linstead officiated. The church was filled to capacity by sorrowing relatives and friends, to mourn his loss, besides the widow, is one son, Herbert Revell, on the homestead. The remains were placed in the Wilton vault to be interred later in Wilton cemetery. The pall bearers were Ralph Benjamin, Winslow Thompson, Henry Hogle, Malcolm Hogle, Albert Herman and Marcus Frank.

Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Hamm and Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Fraser attended the funeral of the former's uncle, the late John Sidney Aylesworth, Selby, last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Orange Babcock visited Mr. and Mrs. George Greer, Napanee, for the week end.

Mrs. Pearl Storms, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Robinson, and little daughter, Betty Lois, spent a few days with the former's brother, Mr. Torrance Babcock, Wilton.

Peter Heath, who has been spending some time with his son, in Chamois, Que., returned to Odessa last week.

Miss Helen Sproule has been engaged as teacher for Sharp's Corners school.

Mrs. Sperry Shibley, Wilton, is visiting her granddaughter, Mrs. Roy Hartman.

Mr. Fenwick Connolly, Yarker, recently visited his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thompson.

The concert and social dance held in the Town Hall, Friday night, by the Women's Institute, in aid of the Hall library, considering the very stormy and disagreeable weather, had a fair attendance. The talented artists from Queen's University had charge of the concert,—which consisted of songs, recitations, dialogues and instrumental selections. The programme gave several numbers that were very much appreciated, and also furnished music for the dance that followed.

The regular monthly meeting of the Odessa Ladies' Aid Society was held at the home of Mrs. Amy Snider, on Wednesday evening, January 11th. About twenty members and visitors were present. The President opened the meeting in the usual way, followed by a vocal solo by Miss Gertrude Hillier duet by Mrs. H. J. Smith and Mrs. Pearl Storms, vocal solo by Miss Rita Hagerman. Reading by Mrs. Wm. Jones and vocal selection by Mrs. H. Vrooman. Rev. Mr. McQuade then took charge of the amusement part for the evening. Community singing, old fashioned spelling matches and sight seeing contests, were all very much enjoyed. Lunch was then served by the ladies. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Babcock, on Wednesday evening, February 8th. Everyone welcome.

MOSCOW

The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. A. A. Asselstine, on Thursday, January 5th, with a large attendance despite the cold weather. Mrs. Cline, the Vice-President, presided in the absence of Mrs. Amey. President Mrs. Amey. Huffman read the current events. With community singing and contest, an enjoyable time was spent. Lunch was served by Mrs. Asselstine, the hostess, and others. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Cline, on any 2nd. when an interesting program will be given. Mrs. W. M. S. was held at Mrs. Arthur Baker's, on the 11th, with a number of members. Miss Nellie Allen presided. Much interest was manifested, and a number of appropriate readings given; also a lovely piano solo by Miss Evelyn Potter. The members and scholars of the Sunday School are practising for an entertainment. — Mrs. Everett Evans entertained a number of her friends on Wednesday. — Those suffering from colds, etc., are improving.—Miss Beckstead spent the week end at her home in Tamworth.—Mrs. Harold Hoare visited at her father's, recently.

Nugent, Capt. Slade, Miss F. E. Shorey, Miss L. G. Madden, Mrs. E. W. Huestable, Mrs. John Wartman, Mr. G. H. Bray, Miss Mabel McNeely.

Mrs. Hanes has returned from Kingston, where she has been with her sister, whose husband has been seriously ill. During her absence she was kindly remembered with a gift from the Women's Bible Class, of which she is teacher. Mrs. Hanes appreciated the gift.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McKeown, of Wesley, returned home on Jan. 18th, after spending a month visiting their son, James E., of Chicago, and other relatives at Maywood, Geneva, Batavia and Elgin, Ill., also spending some time in Aurora, South Bend and St. Charles, Indiana.

The League meeting on Monday evening was a most interesting one, when Mr. Jenkins, Principal of the High School, gave the first meeting on "What We Should Read for 1928." The lecture lesson was read by Miss Norene Campbell, and vocal solos given by Miss Francis Shier and Miss Marie Brooks. During the refreshment period, which followed, a Chinese spelling match was indulged in. Rev. Mr. Anderson gave the words, while James Yeomans and Charles Holden chose up the sides. The hour spent passing arrived with quite a number still on the floor.

Miss Dorothy Kellar, of Napanee, was home on Sunday.

Miss Annie Gandler visited with her brother, Mr. E. Gandler, during the week.

The Camden East Young People are giving their play, "Deacon Dubbs," in the Town Hall, Newburgh, on Monday evening, January 30th, and a good share of the profits will be for the Public Library.

Whitford S. Baker.

One hundred and twenty-five years ago Peter Baker, the grandfather of Whitford S. Baker, moved into Camden and settled on the farm recently vacated by the deceased, in the 5th Con. of Camden. Later the grandfather's death, the eldest son, Jacob M. Baker, with his wife, nee Mahala Ann Collier, continued on the farm. Here also after his father, W. S. Baker died in the fall of 1926, owing to ill health, he sold the farm and moved into the Village of Newburgh. In 1902 he married Jessie Sexsmith, daughter of Wm. Sexsmith, of the same neighborhood. In early youth Mr. Baker united with the Methodist Church at Wesley, and continued a member of the same and the United Church until his death. All his life Mr. Baker maintained the Family Altar in his home. After moving to Newburgh he seemed to improve considerably in health, so that his friends hoped that by resting from the strenuous life of active farming he might be spared to live many years. However, the will of the Lord was not so, for suddenly after only a brief illness, he was not. Mrs. Baker's wife, nee Mahala Ann Collier, continued on the farm. Here also after his father, W. S. The funeral service was held in the United Church, Newburgh, on Tuesday, Nov. 29th, conducted by his Pastor, Rev. T. H. P. Anderson. A very large gathering of his former friends and neighbours was present. Interment was in the family plot in the cemetery at Camden V, where with the only two children born to him, await the Resurrection morning. There are left to mourn, his widow, one brother, A. C. Baker, of Napanee, and one sister, Mrs. R. B. Price, of Camden. A quiet unassuming man, industrious and a good neighbour, a faithful member of the Church of God, his presence will be missed, but his life and memory will continue a benediction to all who knew him intimately.

RESOLUTION RE THE OLD BELLEVILLE ROAD

The following resolution was passed by the Tyendinaga Council :—

"Moved by J. S. Meagher, seconded by Wm. McLaren, that whereas the road from Marysville to Napanee, known as the old Belleville Road, and now a part of the County Road System of Lennox and Addington and Hastings County, should, in our opinion, form and be a part of the present Provincial Highway No. 2, being a much more direct route and shorter by several miles, and would also be a very great assistance to said road in the excellent gravel pits close to the proposed route :

That whereas, the proposed extension would not, in our opinion, in any way interfere with the present route, and would, in relieving traffic on the present route, save the Department of Highways in maintenance charges on the present route almost sufficient to build the proposed extension, at the same time affording a much more direct route for through motoristr traffic ; and further in the greater part of the people of this section of the Province have always felt that the proposed road should have been the original route, instead of through the Indian Reserve ;

Therefore, be it resolved, that this Council now in session assembled, respectfully request to forward a copy of this resolution to the Honorable the Minister of Public Highways of the Province of Ontario, and humbly request his most serious consideration to the proposed extension. Carried.

YARKER

The regular meeting of the Yarker Collebrooke Women's Institute was held on January 18th, in Mr. Cowdy's Hall, with President, Mrs. Norman Boyes, presiding. Twenty-eight members were present, and the meeting opened as usual with the Ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The meeting was shortened as much as possible on account of the Cooking Class, only the necessary business being dealt with. The Treasurer reported $49.58 on hand and the minutes were read and adopted. It was decided to hold the play, "Aunt Breakfast-Cup," in the League Hall, on February 3rd. Arrangements were made for bills, programs, music, etc. Mrs. Cornbrook, our February 15th. A number of new members were added to the Cooking Class, beginning January 16th, included Mrs. Ida Allen Cameron, Government Instructor, is a great success, between thirty and forty being enrolled. The lessons are very interesting and instructive.

DORLAND

Sleighs have appeared once more, as there is enough on the roads to make fair sleighing in most places. The Ladies' Aid meeting at the home of Mrs. A. Robb, last Wednesday afternoon, was well attended. As Miss H. Magee, who was appointed President at the December meeting, would not accept the office, it was necessary to elect another. Mrs. F. E. Foster very kindly consented to act. Mrs. T. N. Davis relieving her of the Secretary's office. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Davis.—On account of the very rough weather on Friday, the Sunday School was not very well drawn until this Friday evening.—Mr. and Mrs. Heathcote, Miss Betty and Master Jack spent Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robb.—Mrs. C. B. Parks, Hay Bay, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Dorland and other friends. — Messrs. McCrudden and Strawbridge are sawing wood. We understand that W. Murphy and F. Bell will set up a saw mill at Hay Bay in the near future, which will be very convenient for the farmers who wish to get lumber cut.—Rev. A. Strathers is holidaying in England.

EXTENSIVE ROAD WORK IN NATIONAL PARKS

Maintenance and Construction Program for Season Completed—Other Engineering Activities in Canada's Scenic Reserves

Engineering and construction work was actively carried on in the national parks of Canada during the 1927 season according to a statement from the Canadian National Parks Branch of the Department of the Interior. Work was carried on in all the parks and with a fairly favourable season for construction, the entire program for the year was completed.

Several important road projects were undertaken in Yoho park, British Columbia. The park section of the Field-Golden highway, twenty miles in length, was rushed to completion early in the season and this scenic road was formally opened to traffic on July 9. A three-mile section of road between Field and the natural bridge on the Kicking Horse river was re-located and re-built during the season. Numerous bad curves and steep pitches were eliminated and a standard surfaced road twenty feet wide is now available to the motorist. Several miles of the Yoho Valley drive to the Takakkaw falls has widened and next season will see all of this eleven-mile section of road, of ample width for two-way traffic. An interesting scenic point in Yoho park not yet easily accessible to tourists is the Wapta falls on the Kicking Horse river. These falls have a height of forty feet and are very impressive. They are at present reached by trail from the new Field-Golden road near Leanchoil, British Columbia, and a location survey of a branch road to the falls, three miles in length, was undertaken during the season.

The development of Prince Albert national park in Saskatchewan required considerable engineering work, the main item of which was the location of a trunk road from the south boundary of the park to the summer resort centre at Waskesiu lake. This comprised thirty-six miles of road location survey. Contour surveys were also undertaken of selected areas on the shores of Waskesiu lake.

In Jasper park, Alberta, the upper section of the Mount Edith Cavell motor road was completed, the only minus of this road now being some 200 yards from the lower end of Grant glacier. On the Jasper-Edmonton highway a 300-foot truss bridge was built over Piddle creek and the highway itself extended easterly three and one-half miles from the bridge, making a total of thirty-four miles constructed to date. With the near completion of the eastern section of the Jasper highway through the park attention was given to the western section which will eventually connect in the Yellowhead pass with the British Columbia road system. A location survey of this 17-mile section was made in the late autumn. During the season a three-mile section of tar sand paving on the Maligne road between Jasper townsite and Jasper Park Lodge was completed. Further extension to the new water system in Jasper townsite was made and to ensure an ample and continued water supply in dry seasons to the town of Jasper and the Canadian National Railway yards, a storage dam was constructed at Cabin lake, which is the source of the Jasper water supply.

In Kootenay park, British Columbia, a large amount of widening and improving was done to the Banff-Windermere road to handle motor traffic, which was the greatest in its history. Construction of a new bathhouse at Radium Hot Springs at the west end of Kootenay park was begun in the autumn. The new building is of attractive design with cement and stone foundations and will accommodate between 400 and 500 bathers a day.

An interesting survey was carried out in Glacier park, British Columbia, in connection with the development of the Nakimu caves. The rock underlying the upper valley of Cougar creek in Glacier park is honey-combed with water-formed tunnels and for some years work has been carried on connecting these tunnels by artificial galleries, so that now a lengthy and most interesting underground trip can be made. These underground rock passages were surveyed so that a reliable map for the guidance and information of the public can be prepared.

In Rocky Mountains park, Alberta, a large amount of road maintenance was done to accommodate the heavy motor traffic of the tourist season, and in Waterton Lakes park, Alberta, the Akamina highway, connecting with the Flathead district and British Columbia, was extended three miles.

In Buffalo park, Alberta, construction was begun and practically completed of a much needed road connecting the park gate with the town of Wainwright.

In Elk Island park, Alberta, a road location survey four miles long was made from the provincial road allowance on the north boundary of the park to Sandy Beach resort at Astotin lake. The latter is a very popular spot in the park and at present is reached by a prairie trail. From Sandy Beach a location survey was also made of a road around the south end of the lake to headquarters, a distance of three miles.

In the eastern provinces general engineering work was carried on by the Parks staff in connection with the eastern parks and with historic sites.

PROGRESS OF MINING IN CANADA IN 1927

Great Activity in All Fields—Annual Production Valued at Nearly $250,000,000

The mining industry continues to play a very important role and makes a contribution of the first order to the prosperity of Canada. It is an industry that sadly neglected for a long time, has made a striking growth during the last quarter of a century. It is now firmly established and its future is assured. The annual mineral production is nearly $250,000,000.

The most important metals produced in Canada are gold, copper, nickel, lead, zinc and silver. When production statistics for the year have been assembled there will probably be found no great difference in total value for the years 1926 and 1927. Increase in production in some cases may be offset by lower prices that have prevailed during the year for copper, lead, zinc and silver. An average falling off in price for copper, lead and zinc of about one cent a pound, which is the actual story for 1927, is a big item in the figuring of net profits. Notwithstanding this, production has been well maintained.

British Columbia leads in copper, with three large mines at Anyox, Britannia and Allenby; Ontario is a good second with copper from the Sudbury area, and Quebec third, producing from a mine that has been in nearly continuous operation for half a century. Quebec will show a very substantial increase next year since the Noranda smelter will no doubt have started operations before this appears in print. The recent increase in the price of copper will be an important factor in getting this industry firmly established and will also be an incentive to push work towards bringing the big Flin Flon ore body of Northern Manitoba to a producing stage at as early a date as possible. The construction of the branch line of railway to the Flin Flon has been decided upon and there is every promise that as a result Manitoba will soon take her place as one of the important mining provinces. With the building of this railway is bound up also the future of a deposit of copper-zinc ore of considerable magnitude at Cold Lake. A flurry was created by the discovery in the Frood mine, Sudbury, of a body of ore running very high in copper. All of this goes to prove that as a copper producer Canada has good prospects of great expansion.

The nickel industry of Ontario is buoyant and figures for the first nine months of the year show a very satisfactory increase. There has been a substantial increase in the gold production of Ontario, but a falling off in that of British Columbia. Ontario accounts for about 88 per cent of the total Canadian production. The auriferous content of the Noranda ores will bring Quebec to the fore next year with a much larger production of gold than she has yet made.

The Sullivan mine of British Columbia is the source of the greater part of the lead and zinc produced in Canada. The Ontario mining division accounts for a considerable quantity. There is also a production of lead from Yukon. Ontario and Quebec are of zinc from Quebec. The silver of Ontario has suffered a slight falling off and British Columbia is now well in the lead, deriving her silver from lead and zinc ores and from the gold and silver deposits of Portland canal.

Asbestos production is good, and activity in building construction, and water-power development have reflected favourably on the cement and clay-products industries.

Better labour conditions have prevailed in general in the coal-fields with a resultant increase in production. Drilling has been active in the search for petroleum. Several dry holes have been drilled in different parts of the country, and a test well sunk to a depth of about 6,000 feet on Governor's island, Prince Edward Island, failed to strike anything of value. Operations elsewhere have met with success. Oil has been struck in additional wells in the Turner Valley field, Alberta, and as a result the production for this year shows a substantial increase. The striking of oil in a well near Bluff in the southern part of Alberta has drawn attention to the possibilities of this area, and exploratory work on the Ribstone-Blackfoot structure has been satisfactory.

Baby's Own Tablets Always in the Home

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she always keeps a supply on hand, for the first trial convinces her there is nothing to equal them in keeping children well. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, thus driving out constipation and indigestion, colds and simple fevers, and making teething easier. Concerning them, Mrs. Salusie Pelletier, Dist. Dumas, Que., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past ten years and am never without them in the house. They have always given the greatest satisfaction and I can gladly recommend them to all mothers of little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

QUEEN MARY'S ADVICE.

Helps In Choosing Furnishings In Huge Structure In India.

The furnishings of the huge palace, Vice-regal Lodge, where Lord and Lady Irwin will take up their residence in India's new capital probably during the cold weather, is a home-making task of endless detail, to which they have been devoting their close personal attention, says the Christian Science Monitor.

Queen Mary also has taken a keen interest in the furnishing, and photographs of pieces of furniture, tapestry, cushions and curtains have been prepared, and have received the personal approval of Lord and Lady Irwin beforehand.

The furniture has been designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens, the architect of New Delhi. Both Lord Reading and Lord Irwin have insisted that the furnishing should be carried out to the utmost possible extent with Indian material and Indian workmanship. The Madras forests have contributed beautiful rosewood; Jubbulpore and Burma have sent teak; the distant Andaman islands have contributed paddok wood, north Indian forests have sent shisham and nalda.

All the carpets have been made in India, orders having been placed mainly at Amritsar and Agra. The carpet for Lady Irwin's sitting room is in a beautiful shade of light green, and was made in Amritsar. The city of Benares has sent material for cushions. Silks have come from Bhagalpore and Benares. Materials for more cushions have come from Madras. Prints for curtains have come from Farukhabad in the United Provinces. All the carpets, the tapestry, the silks and other fabrics are handworked, and show that the Indian workman of to-day has not lost the skill of his forefathers.

The only articles not made in India are a few specimens of antique English furniture which were ordered and used by the home committee appointed to advise the Secretary of State on questions of supply, and sent out to India after the Indian advisory committee had broken up.

It is said that Lord Reading rejoiced, and that Lord Irwin is secretly dismayed, at the prospect of moving into this enormous palace being built for him and his successors. No doubt the cost of upkeep will be very great for whoever lives in it.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

"Introduction of Steam Fatal Blow to Naval Supremacy."

Just 100 years ago the steam navy of Great Britain was born, three steamships, Lightning, Meteor, and Echo being recognized as auxiliary warships in December, 1827.

For a long time, however, there was a great deal of prejudice against steam in the senior service, and the real fighting ships continued to rely on sail. It was not, indeed, until after 1880 that masts and yards disappeared from our great warships.

Since then, of course, the development of naval construction has been rapid. And now, not only is steam apparently fighting a losing battle with oil, but some naval experts go not hesitate to say that the day of the big warship is over. They pin their faith to the smaller craft—and to the air arm.

Of course, some people sneer at the idea of the latter ever replacing the navy as we know it, says Answers. They might do well to consider an old Admiralty pronouncement in which "My Lords" stated that "they considered that the introduction of steam was calculated to strike a fatal blow to the naval supremacy of the Empire."

Farms of Western Canada.

Fruits, flowers and vegetables grow and flourish abundantly on the majority of the farms of Western Canada, as shown in a recent investigation made by the Canadian Government Forest Service of the Department of the Interior. Last year an inspection of 3,812 farms in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta were made. Of this number 2,441 had orchards containing 98,000 trees; 1,258 were growing small fruits; 379 had ornamental shrubs; 265 were growing windbreaks of trees and 213 were growing plums. Incidentally, for two years in succession a Manitoba farmer has won the cauliflower championship at the American Vegetable Growers' Association annual show. The successful growing of orchard fruits is linked with the development of shelter belts of broadleaf and evergreen trees.

Tree Distribution In the West.

Free tree distribution from the Government nurseries in Manitoba and the Prairie Provinces reached a new record in 1927 when 7,430,000 broadleaf seedlings and settings were despatched to over 11,000 farmers. To date, the number of trees shipped from the nurseries at Indian Head and Sutherland has been 92,131,000 broadleaf seedlings and 1,645,145 evergreens. Inspections have been made of 12,528 proposed new plantations in 1928.

OUR VEGETABLES

Most of Our Vegetables Only Reached Britain's Shores After Romantic Adventures.

Three centuries ago Sir Walter Raleigh brought the potato from Virginia. Some of the tubers were introduced to Ireland, where they grew and multiplied, furnishing Erin with her staple produce. Later a ship carrying potatoes was wrecked off the Lancashire coast. The fisherfolk planted the tubers washed ashore, and the potato soon became an everyday article of food.

A century later they became known in Scotland, but were regarded as unfit for Christian consumption, as they were not mentioned in the Bible. Preachers condemned them as carriers of leprosy; but eventually the ban was removed and the potato came into its own.

The Romans introduced the turnip to these islands, producing in their own country specimens which, according to ancient chronicles, weighed forty to fifty pounds each.

The cucumber is older still. It was in everyday use in China centuries before the birth of Christ. It seems to have been known first in India, which would seem to prove that it flourished before the dawn of recorded history.

From Peru comes the tomato, which originally grew wild on the seashore. The Peruvian gardeners cultivated it with such care that its fame spread first to Mexico and later to Europe.

Queen Mary also has taken a keen interest in the furnishing, and photographs of pieces of furniture, tapestry, cushions and curtains have been prepared, and have received the personal approval of Lord and Lady Irwin beforehand.

The carrot once grew wild in Greece, where it was used only as fodder for cattle and food for bees. Gradually its use as a vegetable became known in Greece, and at a later date in Britain.

Parsnips were similarly despised until a short while ago, and shallots brought over by the Crusaders were grown merely as a useful and effective antidote for snake bites, says an Old Country paper.

Travellers from Asia introduced the onion. The best imported onions come from British, Tripoli, and Madeira, being of more delicate flavor and texture than the Spanish variety.

STUDING SQUIRRELS.

Kansas Professor's Method of Investigating Hibernation.

Ground squirrels parked in refrigerators are one of the features of a study of hibernation by Kansas State Agricultural College, Dr. George E. Johnson announced at the meeting of the American Society of Zoologists at Nashville, says Science Service.

Subjected to subnormal air and food, together with cold, tend to make ground squirrels hibernate, but darkness does not favor hibernation more than light, Dr. Johnson has found. Fat squirrels are more addicted to their winter sleep than lean ones and stay in better condition while doing so.

Artificial cold that keeps the room temperature a few degrees above freezing was used to keep the work under absolutely controlled conditions, the mammalogist pointed out. It gave the additional advantage of enabling the research to go on at any time of the year. The animals will hibernate longer if they are put in the cool room for several hours before they are removed to a cold room than if they are removed directly from a warm room to the refrigerator, Dr. Johnson declared.

Green-Violet Light Helps Plants

Human being are not the only living creatures whose ability to enjoy and assimilate their foods is influenced by properly shaded lights. Plants also have their preferences, according to the result of researches by Dr. W. E. Tottingham and H. Lowgma of the University of Wisconsin, which were reported before the American Society of Plant Physiologists. The two botanists grow wheat under artificial light, giving different lots of their plants different shares of the spectrum by means of glass color filters. They found that the wheat absorbed nitrate, the cornerstone of protein, most rapidly under the influence of rays of the green to violet section of the spectrum of visible light. The longer ultra-violet wave-lengths also encourage nitrate assimilation, though not to so great a degree, but short-wave ultra-violet rays were of no use in this important process.

Growing Second Crop.

One-third of the California timber lands which have been logged over already are well advanced in their second growth crop, according to the State forester, who recently reported that more than half of the State's forest area is still untouched. An important percentage of this is included in national park areas.

The total of forest area is placed by the California Forest Service at 31,000,000 acres. Of this 16,200,000 acres are still covered with timber which has not been touched by the axe, 4,500,000 acres are in second growth.

OLIVE HARVEST.

Celebration Is Made of Work In Spain.

Autumn brings rejoicing and content to hundreds of peasants in the region of Andalucia, Spain, for they gather a big harvest of olives, one of their chief sources of nourishment.

No other industry in Spain is so colorful as the olive harvest. Entire families—some of them from other provinces come especially to earn an honest penny working as harvesters—leave their lodgings in farm wagons or on donkey's back, carrying with them kitchen utensils for use while camping out until the harvest has been completed.

Many villages are virtually abandoned for weeks. Camps are formed in the vicinity of the olive fields, separate sections being laid out for families, for unmarried women and for bachelors. The wives and mothers take part in the work of gathering the olives, but also have to see to cooking on open wood fires the preserved fish and rice which form the staple food of the harvesters.

The laborers usually work in small groups to gather the olives, dividing their earnings, which are comparatively high for Spain, reaching as high as five pesetas or a dollar a day. The work lasts about forty days, the harvesters migrating from one district to another, as the fruit ripens earlier in some parts than others.

It is hard work while it lasts, but the days in this season are short and thus the harvesters in their light-hearted Andalucian manner devote much time in the evenings to dancing and singing their folk songs.

Grand festivities are arranged at the termination of the harvest, and the harvesters make their way home with pockets well filled and the food of the family assured for the rest of the winter.

The nation's annual olive harvest averages 550,000 tons.

HOLLY.

Many Uses Have Been Found for This Christmas Decoration.

It is probable that most people are under the impression that the sole use of holly is to provide us with material for Christmas decorations. But that is not the case, says Tit-Bits.

The white wood of the holly tree is extremely hard and is used by cabinet-makers. It takes a beautiful natural polish, and in that state, when matured, can scarcely be distinguished from ivory.

Until medical knowledge spread, the bark and leaves were used as remedies for ague, gout, and other disorders. The soft lining of the bark was deemed an unfailing specific for "ye breakines and healings of bolges," and this is still used in Dorsetshire — the county which claims to grow more holly than any other.

In South America, an extremely toxicating tea is made from the leaves of the local variety of holly—there are, by the way, over 200 varieties—and from the bark an infusion is made which travellers assert is of real use in allaying fevers. Some, in fact, claim that it is superior to quinine.

In old recipe books are found directions for dyeing clothes with an infusion made by bruising and boiling the leaves, but the tint produced, although "fast," is a queer yellow-green and not like the deep green of the natural leaf. Hollying-dyeing is still practiced by some bands of gypsies.

Insulin From Angler Fish.

Insulin, the specific in that dread disease, diabetes, is now being obtained from the angler fish. The angler, or "fishing frog," tempts its prey by means of a long spine proceeding from the top of its head, and baited, like a fishing rod, with a blob of meaty matter dangling at its top.

The Oldest Joke.

One of the oldest jokes in the world—if not the oldest—must be that found in an Egyptian MS. of the sixth dynasty. It is recorded that a certain scribe occupied apartments where he had as neighbors a carpenter on one side of him and a coppersmith on the other. These worthy gentlemen were most enthusiastic in their labors, especially throughout the best part of the night, and the consequence was that the unfortunate scribe was driven almost frantic. Eventually he was struck with a bright idea for ridding himself of his tormentors. He got hold of each neighbor separately, and paid them money to change their lodgings. This they did—but with each other! It is doubtful whether our present-day revues can provide a better joke than this one, which is thousands of years old.

Cromwell Forbade Festival.

There was once a long break in the observance of Christmas in England. Cromwell, in 1644, forbade the festival and ordered that December 25th should be a day of fasting and penitence. All the churches were closed. But Christmas came back with the return of Charles II.

Her Kidney Trouble Quickly Disappeared

Ontario Lady Tells of Benefits Derived From Dodd's Kidney Pills

Miss E. Hannah Always Keeps Dodd's Kidney Pills in the House

Belleville, Ont., Jan. 23rd, (Special) —"I had a terrible backache," writes Miss E. Hannah, 100 South John St., Belleville. "I went to my Drug Store and got a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I had taken the whole box my back was better. From now on I keep a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house. I find they help me wonderfully."

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to occupy such a prominent place in the home is that so many ordinary everyday ills come from sick kidneys. Rheumatism, urinary troubles, backaches and heart disease can be traced directly or indirectly to sick kidneys. To be assured of good health the kidneys must be kept in good working order all the time.

Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from Druggists everywhere, or The Dodds Medicine Co., Ltd., Toronto, 2, Ont.

ARAB WOMEN

Educational and Cultural Project In Irak Receives Setback, Still Feminists Gain Ground.

Jemal Bey Beiham, a well-known Arab writer, has been lecturing in Damascus on the social progress made by the Arab woman in the Irak, says the New York Herald-Tribune. From what he says, this progress is but slow as yet, most of the women leading the same sort of life as in Turkish times, before the movement for the emancipation of woman had become known. Jemal Pasha gave a graphic account of what this life is like.

Woman, he declared, in the eyes of the male population, was only fit for marriage and for work. For that reason it was her duty to remain at home, even the paying of calls being prohibited. Neither may she visit a social club or even go to her own shopping alone. That does not mean, however, that her lord and master would see to it himself as to accompany her on her shopping expeditions. How would he, when he does not even deign to sit at the same table with her.

So it is that husband and wife, mentally and socially, lead a life apart. The husband takes good care not to spend too much time in the company of his wife; for the greater part he is occupied in entertaining his guests, or else he spends his time in the cafe and theatre. Even if he has audience an idea of the relationship between man and wife—as it is common in the Irak, Jemal Bey related that on the death of a wife the husband would be consoled by visitors with the pious wish: "Allah will give you a new stay and support"—that is to say, "Allah will provide a place this woman with another. So take comfort and be merry."

Some of the more progressive men, especially in Bagdad, have taken up a stand against the retention of so archaic a tradition, and have determinedly tried to oppose it, at least in part. They themselves treat their wives as comrades and equals. But their number is few and their influence on the masses but small. The progressively-minded woman in the Irak is trying to get a footing in public affairs, but is thwarted at every step by the male section of the community.

In 1924 a few women got together and tried to found a club for the spread of education and culture among women, but the conservative male population sent in a protest against this measure to the Government. Another woman made an attempt at publishing a woman's paper, but without success. Religious radicalism was rife in the Irak and quite every attempt at progress in the bud. Yet Jemal Bey is a firm believer in the ultimate triumph of the movement for emancipation. The reason, he said, was to be sought in the wide spread of education among women. While in 1913 there were but twelve girls' schools, with 856 pupils, and even these schools were closed during the war—to-day, apart from thirteen educational institutes for girls, not under the jurisdiction of the Government, there were thirty girls' schools, with a total of 4,442 pupils.

Seeing that the population of the Irak is about three million, even this rate of progress does not strikingly impress any one not used to the country and its ways. But Jemal Bey relies upon the many journeys undertaken to Constantinople and Syria by the Irak woman for rapid strides in her emancipation. The only trouble is that once the men see whither these journeys are leading, they may straightway forbid their wives from and so learn to do without them on their travels.

Grow Holiday Greens.

The time will come, not far hence, in the opinion of Dr. Alwyn Huntmount Graves, of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, when horticulturists will take into consideration the increasing demand for holiday greens for decoration and will meet that demand satisfactorily with an industry which will be an asset to the industrial record of the nation.

Dr. Graves points out that of late years much has been said and written about conservation of living plant life, especially holiday decoration—such evergreens as mountain laurel and holly. He points out that, when three-quarters of the population of the country lived on farms, or at least classed as rural, there was no problem of Christmas greens. In thirty-five years that population has doubled more than half of it lives in cities and there has gradually developed a lucrative business of collecting holiday greens and selling to city dwellers.

PRUNING THE FRUIT TREES

(Experimental Farms Note.)

During the winter months, when weather permits, pruning operations can be conducted so that by early spring this part of the orchard programme may be completed. Inexperienced growers frequently fear the use of the pruning knife during winter, but all fears on this score may be laid aside and the work proceeded with as soon as the trees are in a perfectly dormant condition.

As pruning is pretty much a matter of judgment it is rather difficult to tell in a few words just what to do. In the bearing orchard, which usually presents the heaviest task, growth is pretty much the deciding factor. Have before me now some propagating wood sent in by an orchardist, which consists of twigs only one inch long. This tree is in need of a pretty severe heading back if it is to be expected to contribute to fruit. A full bearing tree should be producing at least six inches of good, stout growth each year on a large part of its surface. If it is not doing that it needs a little stimulating with heading back and fertilizer.

Then as I look out of the window I see several trees that have made a little too much growth this last year and these will have to be thinned out —probably one-half of the new wood taken out and some of the more rangy growth cut back to keep the tree within bounds.

A certain amount of pruning is required practically every year and a tree that gets a severe pruning this season will need some attention next, but if the grower watches them yearly he will not be required at any time to give a tree such a shock that it will be thrown out of bearing. If it is remembered that there is no magic in pruning, but that it is performed to keep trees within bounds, to admit light and to enable the formation of some new fruiting wood the pruner with a little judgment will not go far astray.

The young tree is quite a different proposition. Here the grower is really training for the future, to avoid future trouble and loss by the breaking down of the tree. Probably the best form to aim at is a modified central leader, which is obtained by allowing the original central leader or whip to grow to a height of four or five feet, with lateral branches radiating from it. Then instead of permitting the leader to grow indefinitely it is cut off at that point and the five or six branches permitted to form the head of the tree.

Further information on pruning of the apple may be had by applying for Bulletin No. 18 from the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, or on plums by getting Bulletin No. 45 from the same source.

EAGLE NOT A PIRATE

Hours of Study From Treetop Perch Reveals a Home-Lover.

Benjamin Franklin called the American eagle a "pirate and a bad citizen," but Dr. Francis W. Herrick of Western Reserve University, doesn't agree with him.

Dr. Herrick has been studying eagles for several years. From a treetop perch along the shore of Lake Erie he has passed countless hours observing a family of the birds that makes its home in the fork of another tree, and he says his observations so far do not support popular libels on the eagle's character.

These particular birds, protected by state and country, do not rob farmers of live stock, Dr. Herrick reports, but they do kill rats and other vermin. Fish is a favorite item on their bill of fare.

To this scientist, who knows them so well, the eagles have vivid personalities and in their cries he can read curiosity, fear, parental admonitions and other expression of emotion.

Dr. Herrick's studies have disclosed that four weeks are required for the incubation of the eagle egg. He estimates that an adult bird can fly 600 miles a day.

Will Bridge Two Arms of Sea.

Not content with the ambitious project of bridging the Little Belt, an engineering undertaking of the first magnitude, the Danish Government has put forward a bill for the construction of a bridge across the Limfjord, an inlet which proceeds from the Kattegat, across northern Jutland, to the North Sea, virtually transforming Vendsyssel into an island.

The bridge is calculated to cost about $2,000,000 and one of the conditions is that there shall be a navigable opening of 26 metres width. It is proposed to charge a toll for crossing the bridge calculated to yield about $120,000 annually, which will be further augmented by an annual Government grant of $12,000.

ROD AND GUN.

Covering a wide field of outdoor activities, the February issue of Rod and Gun and Canadian Silver Fox News, just published, is an exceptionally interesting number. Bonnycastle Dale, well known writer for the magazine, this month contributes an unusually interesting story on hunting brant on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts. An enlightening discussion of the Quinty Lake damming proposals is concluded by Arthur Hawkes.

Among other stories and regular departmental features are some splendid hunting and fishing articles as well as informative material on bird life, guns and ammunition, trapping and dogs. Samuel Alexander Whitely's fine series of fiction on the old fur trading days in the North West in concluded with another thrilling complete story. Another interesting article is one by Robert James, descriptive of the island of Anticosti at the mouth of the St. Lawrence.

Mrs. H. W. Kelly will be at the office of Wonderland Theatre each afternoon, to settle accounts for the grocery store.

WOMAN OWNS CEMETERY.

Romantic Story Underlies Legacy Given 17-Year-Old Girl.

There is, perhaps, no more curious legacy than that which came to Mrs. Nan Truax, of Toronto, who inherited a cemetery when a girl of only 17. It is a legacy, however, which has provided much interest in Groveside Cemetery, Brooklin, where lie buried not only many pioneers of Whitby Township, Ontario, but men who had distinguished themselves in public life.

Behind the inheritance there is a story of romance, and when interviewed recently by the Toronto Globe, Mrs. Truax recounted how many years ago her grandfather, Eber Thomas, who, with his brothers, came from Vermont, settled in Brooklin, and opened up a cemetery situated between Whitby and Brooklin. With foresight they gained possession of a large plot of land, retaining some acres, destined eventually to serve for burying the dead, as farmland. In time the plot became known as the "Township Cemetery."

Coming into her inheritance while a young girl, Mrs. Truax was the only remaining member of the family in Canada, and Sir James Whitney permitted her, although a private individual, to retain ownership. The law will not permit Mrs. Truax to sell her cemetery property to a private individual, but she may will it to her children.

A feature of Groveside Cemetery which pleases Mrs. Truax more than any other is the care that has been expended upon the graves of the pioneers by the Township of Whitby. Collecting the headstones of the pioneers buried there, the authorities purchased a plot and built a unique memorial and inlaid the flat stones in cement, thus paying a tribute to 77 pioneers whose names might readily have been forgotten.

It is interesting to recall the early settlers who were responsible for the establishment of the Groveside Cemetery. The brothers of Eber Thomas, the grandfather of the present owner of the cemetery, included two men who in later years became known as Dr. John Thomas of Rochester, N. Y., and Rev. Lucius Thomas, Dover, Delaware, a well-known clergyman and writer.

WHY LORD DERBY SOLD LAND.

To Avoid Sacrifice of Estate to Pay Succession Duties.

In a letter to the Mayor of Bootle, Lancashire, England, expressing his regret at having been compelled to sell his Liverpool and Bootle estates —for which he received £1,750,000 —the Earl of Derby writes:

"If I thought it would have been possible for the estate to be handed down intact to my son as it has been handed down to me I should have offered grave objections to the sale, but I cannot help realizing that on my death it would be necessary for my son to sell much of it to pay the heavy death duties, and, as was pointed out to me by my trustees, it was advisable in his interests as well as my own that the sale should take place during my life-time rather than a forced sale after my death."

Some idea of the heavy death duties paid on large landed estates can be gained from the fact that in a recent case where an appeal was made from the demand of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, the referee appointed by the court reduced the claim by the sum of £75,457.

Motor Coach Serves Meals.

The Commercial Motor Transport Exhibition, held at the Olympia, London, gives an inkling of the luxurious road travel which is to be enjoyed over Canada's wide areas. The challenge to the railways is becoming more and more pronounced. The war between road and rail is to be unceasingly keen.

There are two outstanding features as regards passenger service. One is a coach to hold two dozen persons. It has several compartments. First a section for the driver and mechanic, then the main saloon with exquisite lounge seats. It is electrically lighted, an electric fan keeps the air pure. The next section consists of a compact kitchen from which hot lunches can be served.

Once Sold for Eight Cents.

Snoopers in London thumbs of second-hand bookshops are always on the lookout for a copy of Fitzgerald's "Rubaiyet" published by Quaritch in 1859.

There were only 250 copies of this edition and it was such an unfortunate venture that the unhappy publisher displayed it on the pavement at four cents the penny.

A well-preserved copy of this edition is now said to be worth more than $1,000.

Canada's Sheep Population.

During the past year, according to the recent report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Canada's sheep population increased from 2,142,000 to 3,262,000, and every province except Nova Scotia and New Brunswick shared in the gain.

Ontario with a total of 956,800 sheep leads all Canada, with Quebec second and Alberta third.

Not Much Difference.

The young bride was asked what she thought of married life.

"Oh, there's not much difference," she replied. "I used to wait up half the night for George to go out, and now I wait up half the night for him to come home."

WEDDING BELLS

Maracle—Brant.

A wedding of considerable local interest was solemnized in Christ Church Tyendinaga Indian Reserve, on January 26th, 1928, at ten o'clock in the morning, the Rector, Reverend Herbert Pringle, L.Th., officiating, when Miss Ruby Ethel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Maracle, was united in matrimony to Mr. Leonard Brant. The youthful bride looked very beautiful in her wedding gown of gold beaded coral georgette, with hose to match and gold colored shoes. Her hat was of metallic cloth in harmonizing shades. She was given in marriage by her father, and the bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Gladys Maracle, who wore a pretty frock of pink silk, with cover-dress of silver lace. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Gordon Brant. After the ceremony, over two hundred guests repaired to the home of Chief Stephen Maracle, where a sumptuous wedding supper was served, and where a large and choice array of gifts for the popular newly-weds were displayed.

Mr. and Mrs. Brant left by motor on a short wedding trip, and in a couple of weeks will be settled in their new home on the Reserve.

McFarlane—Johnson.

At Napanee, on Tuesday, January 17th, 1928, a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at Grace Church Parsonage, by Rev. W. P. Woodger, contracting parties being Miss Gladys Marguerite, only daughter of Mr. Geo. McFarlane, Robin's Nest, and Mr. Albert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Johnson, Centreville, Ont. The young bride looked very dainty in a blue cut velvet gown, with sand georgette and old gold lace trimmings, with hat and gloves to match. Immediately after the ceremony they boarded the train for Belleville and other points were amid showers of confetti. Their friends join in wishing them bon voyage through life.

THE MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA

The year 1927 was a most successful one for the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada. Figures have been published showing that the Company wrote during the year over $52,250,000 of new business which brings the assurances in force to $286,069,481 or no less than $22,600,000 in excess of the amount in force at the end of 1926. Assets increased by $8,600,000. Dividends paid policy-holders were over $2,042,000, which represents an increase of more than $556,000 over the previous year.

The surplus earnings of the company amounted to the gratifying sum of $4,501,387, which is $340,000 more than the very satisfactory earnings of 1926. These figure show a relation to assets of $50.45 per $1,000. This means much to Mutual policyholders because profits belongs to them, and are paid either in the form of cash, reduced premiums or increased insurance.

Progress was made in every department of the company's business. The assets of the Mutual Life, mostly first-edged government and municipal securities, have grown to a total of $86,233,343. These assets are all Canadian and represent investments in every province. They give policyholders the added satisfaction of knowing that their funds are being used to develop their own country. This company has surplus funds and investment reserves amounting to more than $11,829,000, so that continuous liberal dividend distributions are assured.

It is very gratifying to Mutual policyholders to note that the cost ratio of securing new members for the Mutual family and administering the company's affairs declines as the membership grows. The ratio for 1927 was only 14.44%, as compared to 18.11% in 1926 and 15.23% in 1925.

On the other hand, the revenue from investments held up remarkably well, considering the steadily declining interest rates which marked the past year. The average rate earned on Mutual investments in 1926 was 6.68%, while in 1927, despite the general decline, the Mutual's investments yielded 6.46%.

Canadians have cause for pride in the record of The Mutual Life of Canada. Starting without one cent of share capital, two years after Confederation, its growth has kept pace well with that of Canada, and the company to-day ranks as one of the strong institutions of the Dominion and one of the soundest life insurance companies on the continent. Its investments are confined to Canadian securities and its policyholders are, of course, chiefly Canadians, as this company confines its operations to Canada and Newfoundland.

SAFETY FIRST.

Museum Devoted to Safety, Health, and Welfare.

A museum of a new type has just been opened in London. It belongs, not to the dead past, but to the living present.

This is the Home Office Industrial Museum, and is devoted to safety, health, and welfare appliances in industry. Many of the exhibits are actual machinery and appliances, fitted up just as they would be in a factory or workshop, which demonstrate the best safety methods so far known.

The "Safety First" note is insisted on throughout. Facing the doors of the museum is a large board, which records that, in 1926, 806 workpeople were killed and 130,157 injured by accidents in British factories, at docks, in building operations, and in miscellaneous occupations.

Some of the safety devices seem to be absolutely "fool-proof." For instance, laundry plant with rollers incompossible in the fast for many terrible accidents to hands and arms —is fitted with a rail which stops the machine if an operative's hand is drawn too far forward. Then there is a pneumatic garment press to which all risk of crushed fingers is attached. It is so made that both hands must be employed outside the danger area before the press can work.

Textile workers will be interested in an interlocking arrangement for textile guarding machinery which is also shown. It prevents the dangerous parts of the machine being exposed while it is running. Another device of a great practical value enable the whole machinery of a factory to be stopped by merely touching a button.

Other exhibits include protective clothing for use in foundries and aerated-water factories.

In addition to the safety-first appliances, examples of "safety last" apparatus are also shown. There are parts from boilers which have exploded, ropes and chains so worn as to be dangerous, and a case containing defective electrical apparatus that has caused fatal accidents.

LIVING FOSSILS.

Strange Secrets Hidden In Depths of the Sea.

The sea is the home of mysteries, and every now and again it gives us a hint of the strange secrets hidden in its depths.

One such case occurred the other day when the head and backbone of a sea monster were found, buried in the sand, near the mouth of a northern Scottish river. Hair and fur were still adhering to the bones, and a two-foot long bony beak protruded from between the eye-sockets.

Zoologists who examined the remains were puzzled by them, and the theory was suggested that they might be those of a prehistoric sea mammal. But why, then, the hair and bones, unless this particular species is—or was recently—still inhabiting the sea.

There is nothing impossible in this! A real "living fossil" arrived at the London Zoo recently. This was the sphenodon, or tuatera lizard of New Zealand. There are very few of these curious creatures left, even in their native haunts, where they are now carefully preserved.

The tuatera is a relic of days when most animals had an extra eye at the back of their head, and still retains its third, or pineal, eye. It is most noticeable when the reptile is young, but the eye is present in a modified form throughout its life.

The Zoo has other "living fossils" besides the tuatera. In the Aquarium you will find specimens of lungfish, coming from Africa, Australia, and South America, that belong to a great fish family that was in its heyday hundreds of millions of years ago.

Some of the lung-fish are six feet long, with huge scales and four large fins. They can get along without water, because they have a lung as well as gills. When sent to England they are "packed" in bricks of dried mud, and travel quite comfortably like this.

Fossil remains of the ancestors of these strange fish have been found in red sandstone deposits in Scotland.

National and State Fairs.

Sixteen national and state fairs in Canada and the United States have an investment in grounds and buildings amounting to more than $1,000,000 each, according to statistics collected by the International Association of Fair and Expositions. The largest investment is that of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto which owns grounds and buildings valued at $4,100,000. This is the largest on the list is the Ohio State Fair at Columbus with a valuation of $5,000,000. The Toronto grounds and buildings exceed the combined value of any other four fairs on the continent.

Terminal Elevator at Intercity.

The Saskatchewan Pool Elevators intend building a terminal elevator at Intercity, Port Arthur, with a storage capacity of 6,000,000 bushels. The plans provide for a 900,000 bushel workhouse which will be equipped to unload a maximum of 500 cars daily. A site has been secured from the National Elevator Co. at Port Arthur which has a 400-foot frontage and a depth of 2,600 feet.

Saskatchewan Mean "Rapid."

Saskatchewan is the name given by the great river which rises in the Rockies in Alberta and flows through Saskatchewan and Manitoba into Lake Winnipeg, is a Indian word meaning "rapid" or "swift-flowing."

"THE WOLF OF SILA"

Last of Old-Time Brigands Dies In Calabria—Spent Fifty Years of His Life in Prison.

In an obscure Calabrian village a few days ago, "the Wolf of Sila" died. His passing marked the end of the last of what have been called the "classical brigands." It was also a reminder of the conditions which a century ago gave to brigandage along the Mediterranean coast a measure of political importance, a writer on the New York Sun states. The Wolf lived to be 93 years old. When as a boy he joined a band of his native Calabrian district a brigand was what his name originally indicated, an irregular partisan soldier—not always either a criminal or malefactor. When the French were in power in Naples and, according to Neapolitans, one of the Wolf's accomplices was tried for brigandage and uttered the not infrequently quoted defiance, "You are the thieves, not we!"

Italy, at that time, was a land of small States, and bands of men fought under various standards, each for patriotism and some for loot. Ferdinand, who was restored to control of Naples at the end of the French regime, enlisted among his patriotic bands, whose cry was: "Long life to Ferdinand; let's go robbing!"

In those days of unsettled political conditions there flourished brigands who lived in story and romance. Fra Diavolo, another Calabrian, was notorious as a robber and famous as a patriot. Mangono refused to harm a party of travellers, because it had as one of its members a poet. Another, the history of whose "most beautiful life and death" begins, "Pietro Mancino, that great outlawed man, I sing, and all his rage." But with the establishment of firmer Governmental control the brigand was eliminated as a political factor, although as a menace he continued until comparatively recent days in parts of Southern Italy, Sardinia, Sicily and Corsica, in the last of which Italian customs survived, despite French sovereignty.

Italy set out to end brigandage. The people no longer saw romance in the brigand, or accepted his declaration that he robbed the rich to feed the poor. They sided with the Government. The forest region of Calabria, for centuries a brigand stronghold, was swept clear of robbers. In one raid the troops gathered in the Wolf. He was tried on the charge of murdering thirty persons, and in 1866 he was sentenced to penal servitude for life. Fifty years later he was pardoned and returned to his native village, where he lived quietly, contrary to the Italian proverb that "a wolf never loses its vice or its hair."

The process of clearing the Mediterranean countries of brigands brought to light a number of notorious rascals. The capture of a former Minister by a Greek band and, later, the holding of a party of distinguished Englishman for ransom led the Greek Government to seek severe measures, which resulted in the virtual extermination of brigandage in that country. Turkey wiped out a disreputable aggregation under the notorious Tchakirdji, one of the most feared brigands Asia Minor ever knew, who attacked a Turkish troop sent to capture him. Sicily ran down and captured Andalore and Raphardo. Both laid heavy tribute on farmers and on tourists who ventured into the interior of the island; they had a numerous band of followers and built up a political machine which aided them in escaping justice, until one wiped out an Italian troop sent to bring him in and the other murdered a whole family. —Romanetti, who ruled a section of interior Corsica, fell victim not long ago to his own success. He attempted to extend his power to the town and he mixed in the island politics. It was charged in the French Senate that one of its Senators was elected through Romanetti's influence; Romanetti replied that he was using his dignity as "a bandit and a gentleman to have part in political intrigue parties." He was killed in a fight with French soldiers when they besieged him in his castle.

The brigand, despite his pretences to patriotism, philanthropy and kindred virtues, seems to have about as much right to the glamor of romance as has the ratty little gunman of the present day.

German Race Dwindles.

The Ober-Burgermeister of Berlin, speaking in the Prussian Council of State, said that there were only 353,000 children in the schools of Berlin, compared with 470,000 before the war. He pointed out that the number of new little citizens arriving annually in Berlin in 1925 was it was before the war. In 1925 the number of births was 36,000, against 75,000 in 1913.

He attributed the diminution in the birth rate principally to the insufficient number of houses.

Dr. Alfred Grotjahn, professor of the University of Berlin, points out that to maintain the population at the present number there must be 20 births for every 1,000 of population. Last century, up to 1848, for every 1,000 of the population there were born from 37 to 40 children. In the Berlin district of Wedding the birth rate is only 14.2 per 1,000, and in Berlin it is 10 per 1,000.

POWER FROM "FLAT" RIVER.

Plant in Bavaria Developing Cheap Energy Without Falls.

One of the few instances in which an irregular river course in flat country has been utilized for hydro-electric plants—which as a rule are located where there are falls—is encountered outside Munich, Germany. This is achieved by a long canal, with especially smooth walls, says a correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor.

Winding through the town and skirting the English Garten the Isar rushes on to a task of utility in the flat, marshy country north of Munich. At Oberfohring, about fifteen minutes' walk along the river, side after the last houses of Munich have been left behind, one reaches a long, low building which bridges the Isar. Here are a dam and locks forcing the water to flow into the canal of the Mittlere Isar Kraftwerke, a part of the Bayern Werk, the important group of hydro-electric power plants constructed since the war to utilise the abundance of water in lakes and rivers of Bavaria. This network of interconnected plants spreads over an area of 400 square miles in the eastern section.

The canal, 23 miles in length, is the distinctive feature of the Mittlere Isar Kraftwerke, and of main interest with regard to the technical achievement of using a comparatively river course in flat country for Hydro-electric works. Bottom, dykes and sides are of the same sort of concrete, whereby loss of water in rills and grooves is almost entirely avoided. No ripple curls the surface of this artificial river. Yet the calm is only on the surface, for despite the smooth and glassy appearance the current is exceedingly swift, the average speed of the water being between five and a second. The peculiar character of the river and country not permitting of uniting the power works in one huge plant, there have to be several of these: Finsing, Aufkirchen, Ettling, and 1 fourth is in construction at Pfromhach.

HOCKEY

Napanee Seniors defeated Kingston Granites by a score of 8-6, in the first hockey match of the season, last Friday night, at the Napanee Arena.

It was anything but good hockey, but it must be remembered that both teams were weakened by the loss of several players. Kingston were weakened by the loss of three players who were unable to accompany their team, while Bentley and Naphin were unable to appear on the local's line-up.

Bentley, who has been going good in practices, has signed up with Belleville Intermediates, and only received word late Friday afternoon, and it therefore caused a change in the line-up of Napanee before taking the ice.

Manager Bill McLaughlin of the Napanee Hockey Team, faced a big proposition on Friday night when he pitted his team against Kingston Granites, with Bentley and Naphin, that sterling defense pan, missing, with Kirby, Shoemaker, Skitch and Stein of last year's team, out of the game. He was forced to re-build a new machine. Twin Johnston and Bunk Wilson were the only forwards left while Wes. Powell was again in goal. Gleeson was moved back of the defense and the change was beneficial, and he played the best game that he has ever shown. Bunny Detlor, of Deseronto, filled out the forward line, and he more than justified the prediction that he would make good, and he was not only the best man on the local's line-up, but the best man on the ice. Bill McLaughlin was pressed into service on the defense, and he teamed up well with Gleeson. Jack Stewart, Harry Moore and Bill Marcale looked after the relief work.

For the visitors, Art Purdy, who has appeared on Napanee ice on former occasions, was the pick, and was dangerous every time he got the puck. Mundamore and Spoor were also effective.

There was only a handful of spectators present, and it is to be regretted that hockey does not get the support it deserves. One real good crowd would wipe out the deficit, and the officers of the Napanee Hockey Club are appealing to the public through the kindness of the "Napanee Beaver" for one real good crowd at its next game. Won't you try and give them your support at their next game.

Arrangements have been completed for a series of home and home games with the Trenton Intermediates, and the first game will be played on Friday night, when Napanee visit Trenton, with the return game in Napanee on the following Tuesday night, January 31st. This is the game you have been waiting for, and the added attraction of home and home game will add more spice to the contest.

Trenton has a real good team, and although not in the O. H. A. this year, they have several players on their line-up who have had service in the O. H. A., and they have been practicing faithfully with the Juniors keeping in shape. Bentley will be back in the line-up, while another new man, Wagar, will make his appearance for Napanee. Altogether it looks like the best game of the season, and the game will be well worth the price of admission. Remember the date, January 31st, at the Napanee Arena.

A TON OF GOLD DAILY.

Possibility of Large Shipments by Plane to London.

Lecturing recently on "Commercial Air Routes," Sir Sefton Brancker, Director of Civil Aviation, emphasized three important objectives in the development of British commercial flying—namely, a through airplane route to Australia, another from Cairo to Cape Town, and an Inter-Empire airship service.

Referring to Sir Alan Cobham's survey flight around Africa, Sir Sefton said that if a reliable service from Cape Town to London could be guaranteed, a freight traffic for a ton of gold daily could be assured. It had already been shown that the flight could be done in ten days without night flying.

Sir Sefton said he did not regard European air communications as so important to Britain as the through Imperial air lines, and it was for this reason that the Air Ministry was concentrating on the Australian route. Imperial Airways already flew to Cairo, and it was possible that the line might be extended via Sicily, Malta, Tripoli and North Africa to link up with the Cairo-Basra route. Alternative routes might be via Brindisi, Athens, and Cyprus to Haifa, or by Syracuse and Crete on to Egypt.

The extension to India, via the Persian Gulf, might be to go on the Arabian side, as the Persian authorities had so far refused to ratify the proposed agreement to allow of flying along the Persian coastline. By using the Arabian side, a 220-mile jump was necessitated across the Indian Ocean to British territory. But so much confidence was being acquired in the three-engined aircraft that this sea-jump was not likely to cause much trouble. From Karachi the flight across India was really the work of the Indian Government, as was also the next stage from Calcutta to Rangoon, and thence to Singapore, British interests were negotiating for a service from Penang to the Dutch East Indies.

With this equipment and experience available at the present time the distance of 13,040 miles to Australia could be covered in seventeen days and when night flying becomes possible, which he regarded a one of the most important factors in improving present communications, the time could be reduced to about 7½ days.

X-RAY BEAUTY TREATMENT.

London Authorities Find It Risky and Refuse Licenses.

"The risk of cancer developing from the use of X-rays renders their use for improving the appearance a danger to the public," said Dr. W. B. Knobel, a London County Council medical officer, at a meeting of the public control committee.

The committee was considering an application by William T. Thomas and Mrs. Mildred de la Reusille for a license to carry on a massage establishment at Regent street west.

A council inspector said the object of the system was the removal of superfluous hair by X-ray treatment.

Dr. Knobel said he had inspected the apparatus for superfluous hair treatment. The accumulated effect of repeated doses carried with it a considerable risk. He added: "We have a record of a large number of cases of cancer of the face which have developed slowly from the use of the X-ray treatment."

So serious was the risk of cancer developing through the repeated use of X-rays that local authorities had been warned of danger. Dr. Knobel then made the statement above recorded.

Mr. Thomas said that at their institute the treatment was given only once a fortnight, and then only for two and a half minutes.

Juveniles Are Scarce.

The effect of the low birth-rate in Britain during the war years is becoming apparent. Recently the Ministry of Labor issued a circular to local education authorities pointing out that the number of occupied juveniles was likely to fall from 2,175,000 to 1,756,000 by 1932.

In other words, there will be 419,000 fewer juveniles available for employment in 1932 than in 1927—a decline of 18 per cent.

The number would again temporarily increase after 1932, but the authorities' special attention was drawn to the "steady and substantial fall in the number of juveniles available for employment during the next six years." There might indeed be a shortage.

Another Muskrat Farm.

Investing their money in a fur-farming enterprise eastern capitalists have purchased 980 acres of land and swamp in the Oak Lake, Man., district for development into a muskrat farm. The fencing of the land alone will cost $20,000. This section is well stocked with muskrats and well supplied with natural feed. The Oak Lake muskrat has a reputation of its own, being regarded as one of the finest specimens and its pelt is in great demand in other markets.

A METAL MAGICIAN

Transmutation of Metal Is Greatest Discovery of the Age—Mr. T. D. Kelly's 20 Years Research.

In the heart of London, hidden in a secluded by-way, is an alchemist's shop, with furnaces, crucibles, retorts, acids, metals, and other mysterious apparatus and substances, writes a Fleet Street man. The presiding genius is a jovial Irishman, T. D. Kelly, by profession an engineer-designer, electro-metallurgist, and technical chemist.

Soon millions will be regarding him as a benefactor, but if he had lived in the middle ages he would have been hanged, drawn and quartered.

Mr. Kelly has not discovered how to transmute base metals into gold, but the magic he can work with metal makes one wonder what his ultimate goal will be.

Some idea of what his discoveries will mean to ordinary folk can be gained by supposing that in a few months' time you have a fire on your premises, are uninsured, and from your own pocket have to replace everything of metal—from the brass knocker to the stair-rods, kettles, preserving pans, saucepans, taps, and so on.

With Mr. Kelly's magical metals you would be able to re-furnish at one-fourth the normal cost, and with much better material. Ordinary brass, an alloy of copper and zinc, is expensive, and tarnishes, but his brass is untarnishable, and is much cheaper because he has eliminated the zinc, which costs £35 a ton, and substituted iron at £5 per ton. The new metal is produced in three glorious colors—golden, rose-pink, and silver.

No longer need copper utensils be tin-lined, for Mr. Kelly's new "copper" is impervious to corrosion. As I saw, it is quite unaffected by acids. He has made copper and zinc amalgamate.

I asked Mr. Kelly what launched him on the quest for new metals, and he told me that in 1907, when lecturing on engines to the Institute of Marine Engineers, he pointed out the need for a metal that would keep its strength in white heat, would neither appreciably expand nor contract, and be able to withstand all destructive influences. As no one set about producing such a metal he thought he would do it himself, and after twenty years' research and experiments he has succeeded.

He began by making alloys of incompatible metals, and went on, never daunted, until he produced a metal not only as good as platinum, but in many respects superior. This metal, called "sollum," must not be confounded with the new "brass." Mr. Kelly has produced a whole range of new metals, each with their special qualities. They will supersede and render obsolete the metals now used by engineers.

Internal combustion engines will not be driven by petrol, but by a nitrogen product. That will be possible because of Mr. Kelly's new metal, which withstands nitric acid and fumes, and keeps its strength and malleability.

This is an age of discoveries, and this transmutation of metals is one of the greatest. Hitherto, nature has ruthlessly detroyed metal. Rust costs £80,000,000 yearly in Britain alone. That is now finished. And if Britain does not let slip her chance of exploiting the new metals, she has it in her power to "metal" the world.

Industrially, the Old Country would leap to the front and unemployment would vanish. I told Mr. Kelly he would be a multi-billionaire, but his reply was: "I'm not worrying about that. I've done what I set out to do, and that's what counts."

CENTRAL HEATING IN 'PLANE.

British Trial Shows Flying Possible In Cold Climate Without Gloves.

The first airplane ever to be fitted with central heating has completed its trials at the Woodford, Manchester, England, airdrome. Constructed for service in "spotting" seats on the Newfoundland coast, the machine is equipped with a container on the exhaust pipe, from which coils run down, built into the side of the fuselage. There are shutters on either side of the cockpit, which can be opened or closed like ventilators in a railroad coach.

Tests have shown that in this central heated 'plane it is possible for a pilot, with the thermometer below zero, to fly without gloves. The invention is regarded by experts in aviation as a step forward in solving the problem of cold, which ranks with noise as one of the greatest handicaps of flying.

Hail Insurance.

According to preliminary reports for the year 1927 will be one of the largest in the history of hail insurance, which has increased enormously during the past ten years. It is now being written by 52 stock companies, by municipal hail insurance association in Saskatchewan and Alberta, and by several mutual companies in Saskatchewan. Premiums of the three Prairie Provinces ran to $15,000,000 last year.

STORY OF STRING

Old Country Writer Describes Visit to a Busy Factory — British String Strings the World.

If there were a famine in string at Christmas much of the happiness of the season would depart. How would the Christmas pudding be tied? How would the millions of parcels of Christmas gifts sent by post be secured

String, its Christmas uses apart, is one of life's necessaries, but few know how it is made. Here, writes a Tit-Bits man, as the result of my visit to a busy factory, where thousands of miles are produced every hour, is the story of its making.

The raw material is hemp, from India, Italy, and other countries. It is "retted" from the plant, and arrives in bales in the form of long, very fine fibres, not unlike tangled hair. From the bales it is fed to the travelling band of a big machine, in which are cards with spikes, which comb it out. It emerges straightened and glossy.

The next operation is to weigh quantities according to the size of the "silber"—a certain width of combed fibre—required. The weighed quantities go into another machine, are combed again, and issue, falling into containers, in long narrow bands. These are combed yet again, to make them level, and are then ready to be spun into hemp yarn.

Next they are fed into a machine that twists the long strands into single yarn. Revolving bobbins do the twisting and at the same time feed the yarn, now looking very like rough unpolished string, with "whiskers" on it, round themselves. The full bobbins are removed, and go to another machine which, with uncanny accuracy, twists the single yarns—two, three, four, five, or more—into string. But the string is by no means finished.

The full bobbins are fixed to yet another machine, and the string is automatically conducted through a tray-bath containing a polishing mixture. The ingredients are a carefully-guarded secret. Coming out of the bath, the string goes over rollers which shave it, literally taking its whiskers off.

Yet another special bath follows, and then the string goes over enormous steam-heated cylinders, and from these over a roller covered with a wax, which imparts the smooth polished surface. Then, re-wound on bobbins, it goes to a machine which, with a few motions, and working at lightning speed, twists the string into balls.

Finished? No! Another machine "waists" the balls, and an operator deftly takes the loose end of the string, gives a few twists round the "waist," tucks the end into the ball, and—the work is finished.

A director of Messrs. J. T. Davis showed me balls of flawless string as fine as thread, used mainly for tying capsules on bottles, and string of a gossamer softness for tying up delicate plants. The varieties number hundreds. I was glad, too, to learn that British-made string "strings" the world.

MERSEY'S MAMMOTH TUNNEL.

Will Take Five Years to Build and Cost £5,000,000.

Five years and five millions the new Mersey Tunnel in England is going to cost in time and money, but when it is finished it will be a boon to motor vehicles of all types, to which the long estuary of the Mersey has been hitherto a tremendous obstacle.

It will be two and a half miles long, and will run thirty feet beneath the water between Liverpool and Birkenhead. It will carry two roads for traffic, one above the other. The upper will take four lines of traffic, the lower two.

A million tons of solid rock will have to be excavated in the process of making the tunnel. Its lining will be much like that of a London Tube, cast-iron plates bolted together in water-tight rings, and the aggregate weight of these plates will not be less than 132,000 tons.

Taking Over Match Business.

The match business of Mrs. E. B. Eddy Company, Ltd., of Hull, Que., of which Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, is head, is reported to be taken over by a new company under the presidency of George W. Paton, of London, England, chairman and managing director of Bryant & May, British match manufacturers. The new company, to be known as "Eddy Match Company, Ltd.", is acquiring the E. B. Eddy Co., Ltd., Hull; the Dominion Match Co., Ltd., Deseronto; the Canadian Match Co., Ltd., Pembroke, and the World Match Corporation, Ltd., Berthierville. A. G. Woodruff, of the Canadian Match Co., will be general manager of the new concern.

Millions for Scots Only.

Under the will of the late Mrs. Marryat, sister and heiress of the late Sir James Caird, the Dundee millionaire, £100,000 is left to the city of Dundee for the acquisition of land in and around Dundee for the benefit of the community, and £200,000 for the foundation of travelling scholarships in engineering, electricity, aeronautics and music, eligible to natives of Scotland only.

Bridled Bridegrooms.

The Malay bridegroom must remain under the roof and eye of his father-in-law prior to, and after, his wards he may remove to a house of his own, and it is only then that he is considered actually married.

First Moving Picture.

The first moving picture was produced in 1894 by Alexander Black. It was entitled "Miss Jerry." Black was the author of the scenario, director, and camera-man.

Electric Smelter for Quebec.

A big electric smelter to treat the minerals of Gaspe and Chibougamou will be built in or near the city of Quebec by the British syndicate headed by Lord Gainsford and Sir George Courthope.

THE MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA

Reports Another Notable Year:

1. SURPLUS EARNINGS
$4,501,387

The earnings surpassed those of the previous year by $360,000 and amount to $50.45 per $1,000 of assets.

2. NEW BUSINESS WRITTEN
$52,250,136

The new paid-for business exceeded that of the previous year by more than $2,684,000.

3. ASSURANCES in FORCE
$386,669,481

Representing an increase for the year of $32,600,000. It should be noted that the activities of this Company are confined exclusively to Canada and Newfoundland.

4. TOTAL ASSETS
$89,233,343

Assets represent the book value of the Company's securities (entirely Canadian) and would appear substantially larger if existing market values were used. The increase for the year is $8,600,000.

5. DIVIDENDS PAID POLICYHOLDERS
$3,646,105

An increase of more than $550,000 over the previous year.

6. SURPLUS FUNDS and SPECIAL INVESTMENT RESERVES
$11,829,283

Insuring the continuance of liberal dividend distribution.

7. EXPENSE RATIO
14.44%

Again the expense ratio has been materially reduced.

8. RATE of INTEREST EARNED
6.46%

New investments made during the year exceeded $12,000,000 and, notwithstanding steadily declining interest rates, the average rate of the previous year was almost maintained.

Farmers to Honor Memory of Empire's Soldiers

Honor to the memory of the Empire's soldier dead will be offered by the members of the Canadian Farmer's Marketing tour which is now proceeding overseas under the auspices of the Canadian National Railways. A huge wreath, six feet in diameter, beautiful in design and finish, has been made in Montreal and will be deposited at the cenotaph in London this month during the party's visit there.

The picture shows the wreath being inspected by W. D. Robb, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways in charge of colonization and agriculture, before the departure of the party from Montreal.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

The Guest—What a pretty name your maid has!

Her Hostess—Oh, that isn't her real name. We call her "Dawn" because she's always breaking!

A Prime Dressing for Wounds.—In some factories and workshops carbolic acid is kept for use in cauterizing wounds and cuts sustained by the workmen. For better to keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It is just as quick in action and does not scar the skin or burn the flesh.

Mr. Gander—"Money! Money! Always money! Do you think I as the goose that lays the golden eggs?"

Mrs. Gander—"No, not that one."

Muscular Rheumatism Subdued. — When one is a sufferer from muscular rheumatism he cannot do better than to have the region rubbed with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Let the rubbing be brisk and continue until ease is secured. There is more virtue in a bottle of it than can be fully estimated.

Keep your temper if it is good, and be sure not to lose it if it is bad.

Protect the child from the ravages of worms by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. It is a standard remedy, and years of use have enhanced its reputation.

At a certain French university the students, who had been studying Shakespears in their native tongue, were requested by an examiner to translate into English the opening lines of Hamlet's soliloquy: "To be or not to be."

The following was the result. The first Frenchman declaimed, "To was or not to am." The second rendered it, "To were or is to not"; while the third gave a still more liberal reading, "To should or not to will."

If one is troubled with corns, he will find in Holloway's Corn Remover an application that will entirely relieve suffering.

Take one reckless, natural-born fool; two or three big drinks of bad liquor; a fast, high-powered motor car. Soak the fool in the liquor, place in the car, and let him go. After distance, remove from wreckage, place in black satin-lined box, and garnish with flowers.

Choked for Air. Some little irritant becomes lodged in the bronchial tubes, others gather, and the awful choking of asthma results. Nothing offers quite such quick and positive relief as Dr. D. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. The healing, soothing smoke or vapor penetrates, clears the passages and gives untold relief. It has behind it years of success. It is the sure remedy for every sufferer.

"My dear Mrs. Maxton," cried the inclined-to-be stout lady, "fancy meeting you here! Tell me, how are things in your part of the world?"

"Oh, rather pleasant," returned the unexpected acquaintance. "But I must tell you, my dear, we've got a new doctor instead of old Sawbones, as you used to call him."

"Fancy that now! Do tell me, my dear—is he a nice man?"

"Oh, yes, my dear, delightful—breather her friend. "A charming man. He's always so cheerful, and he takes life so easily."

Many infants are infested by worms which cause great suffering, and if not promptly dealt with may cause constitutional weakness difficult to remedy. Miller's Worm Powders will clear the stomach and bowels of worms and will so act upon the system that there will be no recurrence of the trouble. And not only this, but they will repair the injuries to the organs that worms cause and restore them to soundness.

ELMBROOK

Rev. Dr. M. Taylor and Mr. H. E. Sills, Picton, were through here on Thursday, calling on Mr. B. Reid and Mr. Albert Bloomfield. Mrs. Reid is visited with Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wellhanke, over Friday night.—Miss Verna Tripp of Bloomfield, spent the week with her cousin, Miss Thelma Hicks.—Mrs. Burton Unger is visiting her son, Ethan and Irvine Unger, at Elmbrook.

Miss Burton, of Picton, was through here on Monday, representing the Watkins remedies.—The weather has somewhat changed at time of writing, and it seems more like winter again. Last week was like spring and some ploughing was done by a couple of our farmers. What is the use of going to California when one can plough here and have it? Quarantine: difficult to be heard in front, so we will have to stand for a while.—Mr. Francis Drummond was out on Monday with his sawing outfit, sawing wood for Mr. Bleecker Williams.—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hicks and children have moved to the farm of Mr. Percy Clarke, Elmbrook.—The pheasants are quite tame around here, some coming to the back door, eating bread and scraps.—A number from here attended the Poultry Show and Auto Show in town this week.—Mrs. R. Parker and son, David, arrived from the West on Monday. Mr. Parker is expected soon with a carload of household goods.—Mrs. Henry Ketcheson, of Woodville, visited her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Davis, last Wednesday.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinson and little son, of Bethesda, spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. J. Kerr.—Mr. and Mrs. Dayton, of Milford, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rae Fox, on Saturday evening.—Mr. George Chamberlain, Jr., spent several days in Oshawa last week.—Mr. and Mrs. Ethan Unger, Mr. Stanley Unger and Miss Hettie Unger were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. THE CLEANING AND GRADING OF CLOVER SEED

(Experimental Farms Note)

The production of clover seed in northern Ontario is increasing every year. Many of the settlers are finding that an excellent cash crop when ready to supplement the revenue obtained from the sale of live stock, and other farm products.

No matter how successful the farmer may be in the production of clover seed he cannot hope to obtain maximum returns unless the seed is properly cleaned and graded, so that it may be legally sold under the Seed Control Act. It is true that the seeds of many of the weeds that grow in red and alsike clover are of such size that they are somewhat difficult to remove by the sieves in an ordinary fanning mill. It is often possible to obtain from the manufacturers a few special sieves for this work which will prove very helpful to the farmer who has only a small outfit, sawing wood for Mr. Bleecker Williams.—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hicks and children have moved to the farm of Mr. Percy Clarke, Elmbrook.—The pheasants are quite tame around here, some coming to the back door, eating bread and scraps.—A number from here attended the Poultry Show and Auto Show in town this week.—Mrs. R. SUPPLY OF "REWARD" WHEAT EXHAUSTED

(Experimental Farms Note.)

The demand for seed of Reward wheat, a new and promising variety originated by the Dominion Experimental Farms, has been so keen, that the number of applications for seed cannot be filled this year, as the supply of seed is now entirely exhausted.

Those who desire to obtain seed of this variety for sowing in the spring of 1929 should get in touch next winter with their nearest Experimental Farm and obtain information as to sources of supply. There will probably be upwards of 1000 acres of Reward seed in the spring of 1928. From 250 to 300 farmers will have from 2 to 3 acres each. The rest of the area occupied by this wheat will be located chiefly on Dominion Experimental Farms in the three Prairie Provinces.

A report on the performance of Reward on the above farms in 1928 will be prepared next winter and will probably be available for the consideration of Western wheat growers before the seeding season of 1929. This report should indicate to a considerable extent at least, the districts in which Reward may be regarded as a promising variety. It is always advisable, however, to withhold enthusiasm for any new variety until it has been thoroughly tried out by farmers for two or three years at least.

INDIA'S FROZEN WEALTH

MILLIONS OF GOLD LOCKED UP IN TEMPLE DECORATIONS.

"Wealth of Indies" Is Scattered Among Millions of Unorganized Holders—Hoarding Is Root of Pathetic Plight of Farmers.

Five billion dollars' worth of gold and silver treasure is locked up in India's temple decorations, says an article in the New York Times.

"From wealth," the Government economists call this treasure, for it is distributed and used in such forms that it yields not a penny of return to its owners nor a dollar of credit to carry on the world's commerce.

With a lofty indifference to international money markets and the needs of trade, India sprinkles gold dust over the food served at extravagant banquets. Immense quantities of gold and silver are used to array brides for their nuptial ceremonies, and in a multitude of other forms of decoration.

Gold is believed, moreover, to have an occult power of healing the sick. "It is a popular remedy in the native pharmacopoeia," says the Government study, "and medicines containing gold are favored for many diseases."

All this has more than a picturesque interest. It involves the problem of altering the distribution of the world's gold supply—a problem that took on new importance when representatives of the British, French and German central banks and the American Federal Reserve Board recently forgathered in New York and Washington, and with the adjustment of Federal Reserve rediscount rates below the European level.

As the world recovered from the financial chaos of the war most nations have struggled back to, or toward, a gold standard for their currencies. To establish a maximum such standards they must have gold to spare. The currency of international trade and other influences have brought to America's coffers about half of the world's monetary stock of gold. But in the last quarter of a century India has been quietly absorbing immense quantities of the yellow metal. With a sure now estimated at about $2,500,000,000, she drew to herself a large part of the new gold produced from year to year.

Meanwhile, the world's gold production has declined sharply from the maximum for this century, reached between 1910 and 1915. Although there has been a recovery in part since 1925, this increase has been vitiated, so far as metal for gold for the world is concerned, by the increase of Indian absorption.

In an attempt to halt or at least retard this accumulation, far-reaching changes are proposed in the Indian financial system. Adoption of a gold bullion basis for India's currency, replacement of rupee notes in circulation by gold notes; establishment of a strong central bank; and extension of banking bank facilities are now proposed.

All are designed largely to wean the Indian population away from the habit of hoarding gold and silver pieces and bullion bars. If that is ever accomplished, India will have billions and mores of gold and silver in her vaults ready to be merely so much "frozen wealth."

What disturbs bankers and economists most is the fact that the stores of gold, great as it is, so much as the way it is treated. The United States has more gold—approximately $4,000,000,000. But this is working in an effective way. It serves as the foundation for the massive superstructure of credit employed at home and lately extended with unprecedented swiftness, to the rest of the world.

India's gold is idle. There is lacking even a pretence of making it add anything to the productive forces or the comfort of India's 300,000,000 people or their fellow-beings in other lands.

The wealth is scattered among millions of unorganized holders, and even the silver coins which constitute the metallic currency are snatched into private hoards by the rupees or peasant farmers. This problem of hoarding, according to Dr. C. Iliès, Director of Trade Intelligence at Bombay, is at the root of the pathetic plight of millions of these farmers. Lacking any effective credit organization, seasonal harvests and the still primitive financial system all influence the peasant to save. Lastly they have in a readily portable form and often to hide it.

In old days of tyranny and oppression, manifest prosperity was an invitation to be stripped of one's possession. Hostile invasions, the feared great southward migrations of people who, to their wealth, had to collect it in a highly concentrated form of gold and silver. Millions of the native peasantry now, have no access to the banks. In time of stress they must draw on accumulated savings, and sell to the money lender—at 75 per cent. interest.

"Consequently," Mr. Iliès writes, "there is a strong tendency in times of prosperity to purchase small quantities of silver and gold in the form of coins, bullion, or ornaments as a reserve against want.

"Millions of people, particularly in South India and Burma, have no money account at all. They have no savings whatever; this is evidenced by the necessity for famine relief measures in many districts as soon as there is a crop failure."

Greatest Gold-Producing Year.

The province of Ontario had the greatest gold producing year in its history in 1927, according to statement of the Department of Mines, who estimate an increase in gold production of $2,000,000 over the output of 1926. In addition, the total mineral production is estimated to be more than $91,000,000—a gain of $4,000,000 over the year before.

EXPECTANT MOTHERS

Chatham, Ontario.—"I want to tell you how much good your medicine done me before my baby came I felt so weak and run-down that I could hardly do my work. My head ached continually and I was so discouraged that I cried every morning till night. I had another baby just one year and a half old and it gave me a lot to do. So I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as I had read so much about it in the little books. I found a difference right away as my head was relieved and my tired feelings gone. My sister had been doing my washing and she continued doing it as she said it might set me back if I started to do it again. It sure did help me and I had taken just two bottles when my baby came. He is a fine big boy, now nearly five months old. I am taking your medicine again and I am able to do my work all by myself now. I always recommend the Vegetable Compound to women, and especially to expectant mothers, as I believe they need help at those times."—Mrs. OLIVER MENARD, 24 Harvey St., Chatham, Ontario. C

MYSTERY OF FOG.

Soot Is the Cause of Smoke Fog Above Cities.

Our ancestors in prehistoric times made fires of wood and were undoubtedly troubled by smoke fogs. They lived in small, isolated communities, and smoke did not matter to them, provided it escaped from their huts.

Shortly before A.D. 852 coal began to be used as fuel, and by the year 1257 the smoke nuisance was established, says Tit-Bits. To-day many folk have become so familiar with this unpleasant consequence of civilization that they accept it as an unalterable but inevitable necessity. Can this foe to health and comfort be abolished permanently?

The chief factor controlling the purity of the air over a great city is the wind, writes Dr. J. S. Owens, F.G.S., in the London Express. When the wind drops to one or two miles an hour, smoke cannot escape, and collects in a layer just shutting out light. Usually, during a widespread water-fog, the temperature does not follow the ordinary course of falling regularly as the height above the ground increases, but begins to rise again after a certain height is reached.

When this occurs the smoke cannot rise above the layer of warm air, a belt of warmer and lighter air. The wind fails to carry the smoke away at the same time. It is prevented from escaping upwards, with the result that it collects and we have a "London particular." Sir Charles Biron: "How did you get in without a passport?" "I came here as a British steward in a boat."

"Why did they deport you from France?" "Because I had no passport and could not prove my nationality."

Capitolo was committed for trial.

LIBRARY OF POTTERY.

Ann Arbor Educationist Gathers Indian Relics.

A library composed, not of books, but of fragments of clay bowls and jars used by prehistoric Indians east of the Rocky Mountains has been begun at the University of Michigan, Dr. Carl E. Guthe, of the Museum of Anthropology at Ann Harbor, reported to anthropologists attending the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In investigations of Indian life and customs have been hampered by the fact that scientists usually work with fragments of pottery, Dr. Guthe said, though the Indian cultures shifted and spread, so that they do not fit well within political boundaries.

The project of collecting samples of pottery made by all the types of Indians of the east was approved by a recent meeting of the Division of Anthropology and Psychology of the National Research Council. Such a collection will be of great value to scientists, Dr. Guthe declared, because pottery specimens are abundant, and they are a particularly satisfactory guide to the kind of culture different Indian groups had attained.

Stingless Mosquitoes Rout Biters.

Mosquitoes that don't sting are running out those that do in the south of France. A new race of the stingless variety is being propagated, the Academy of Science was assured recently by Prof. Louis Eugene Bouvier, who presented the work of Dr. Legendre.

This modern mosquito, known to his Latin-speaking scientific friends as "culex pipiens," was found by Dr. Legendre in the northern part of France. For two years he has cultivated them in the Pons region, west of Marseilles, and they are replacing their stinging brethren so effectively that there is hope of an era when mosquitoes will be in good repute.

Empire Tobacco.

Tobacco imported into Great Britain from the Dominions overseas has increased from 16,863,355 pounds in 1925 to 21,364,159 pounds in 1927. One company is now engaged in marketing nothing but Empire tobacco.

SCROLL 4,000 YEARS OLD.

One of Schoolboy's Sums Were Wrong.

When some four thousand years ago a young Egyptian scrawled something on a thin sheet of leather, he little realized the trouble he was originating. Only recently have learned men solved a riddle that has kept the British Museum guessing for over fifty years.

When the scroll came to the Museum in 1874, it was so brittle that it had to be treated with a special solution before it could be unrolled. Eight columns of characters were found and pronounced to be figures, and it was decided that it was a scribe's ready reckoner. "The Egyptians were always poor fellows at adding up," some one said. "They sent the figures in a dial to the local scribe to work out."

But all this has now been knocked on the head by Mr. S. R. Glanville, translator of Egyptian hieroglyphics. He has declared that the scroll is a sheet of schoolboy's addition sums. And one of the sums is wrong!

A Dirigible Headlight.

After four years of experimentation, George S. Keck of Pasadena, Calif., has produced a new headlight lamp, which is automatically controlled by the act of steering, and always directs its light upon the roadway to be traversed, lighting the turns ahead of the car. In its development eight devices were worked out. It is known as a dirigible headlight.

A car equipped with the lamp has made a transcontinental trip. This was done to enable automobile engineers in various sections of the country to examine the invention. Twenty-one engineers, representing automobile manufacturing organizations, have made night drives for the purpose of testing the lamp and offering suggestions which have been embodied in the lamp.

New York's Smoke.

A study of the effect of smoke on the daylight supply in New York showed that on sunny days at noon smoke cuts off eighteen per cent. of light in the winter and six per cent. in summer.

Review 300 Years of Opera.

Three centuries of opera costumes and scenery are being shown at the Paris Opera. Miniature stage settings by eminent artists, made for the stage when they were little known, are grouped now in the museum and library of the National Academy of Music and Dance as the Government opera is called.

A portrait of the composer Wagner, made ten years after his death, by the great French painter Renoir is among the treasures of the collection.

Sketches of costumes for many operas, long buried in the archives, have been dusted off and records searched for details recently when made them. There are scores of works, signed and unsigned by Boucher, Becquet, Lemoin, Ocsey, Hubert Robert, and many others some of whom have been forgotten in the art world.

Concerts Six Miles High.

Broadcast concerts have been heard clearly in a balloon six miles high.

To Be Sure.

The necessities of conversation frequently lead to odd observations. Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Harrigan the other day were conversing across the fence that separated their respective clothes yards. A high wind was blowing, and each woman from her post paid the lines had to shout to make herself heard.

"Mrs. Sullivan," shouted Mrs. Harrigan, "did yez go to the ball last night?"

"Yes," shouted the other in the gale, "I was!"

"Was what?" cried Mrs. Sullivan.

Canada's Clay Products.

Alberta stands third among the provinces of Canada in value of clay products manufactured in 1926, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Ontario's production was valued at $7,326,468 or 51.7 per cent. of the total. Quebec's totalled $2,702,298 and Alberta's $804,932.

CLOTHED BY CHEMISTS.

Modern Beauty Is Synthetic—Rings, Footwear, Lingerie, Etc.

The "flapper" was described as the patron saint of chemistry by Dr. Herbert Armstrong, managing director of the British Dyestuffs Corporation, at the dinner of the British Association of Chemists recently.

"She has rings on her fingers," he said, "and synthetic stones and footwears made of artificial skins all wrought by chemists, and the materials of her underwear were one of the greatest achievements of chemistry.

"The very sheen of her hair is perhaps due to the fingertips of the products of the British Dyestuffs Corporation.

"Almost everything she wears, even in bracelets and bangles, is the work of the chemist.

"The British Association of Chemists should have a banner on the one side of which should be the beacon ring and on the other a 'flapper'."

"The chemist is the kind magician of the modern girl," said a distinguished research chemist, later discussing Dr. Armstrong's statement. "He can make her like a queen for the price of a pair of patent leather shoes.

"The forests of Sweden and Canada provide the material which goes to make the artificial silk stockings and evening frocks. Chile colors are manufactured with benzene extracted from British coal.

"The bangles on her arms, now so much in the fashion, are but a cunning mixture of resins and milk products; while the perfumes of lavender hyasinth, and attar of roses with which she smears herself are often merely mixtures of turpentines.

"Nor must we leave out the small perfecting touches of the rouge and the lip-stick. These beautifiers the scientist makes with lard and iron ore. And he can transform her hair into the gold of a Norse goddess with a little of his hydrogen peroxide."

MAN NO ONE WANTS.

Three Countries Refuse to Have Him as a Citizen.

Mystery surrounds Ernesto Capitolo, aged 42, a hairdresser, of Dean street, Soho, London, who appeared at Bow Street Police Court charged with being found in the United Kingdom after a deportation order had been made against him as an Italian.

He constable said that in June last he served the order on Capitolo at the Warrens Club, Short's Gardens, W.C., and saw him in the bar at Folkestone for Boulogne. On Friday last he was arrested in a cafe in Stratford, E.

Capitolo said that he had never been out in the British Empire. He did not know where he was born, but had always considered himself British. He had been to the French consul in Italy after being deported he was refused permission to enter the country. During the war he registered as an Italian, "because of his name," but he served in the British army for three years, 1916 to 1919. He was left in the South African war, and he had not seen his sister. He returned to England about a month ago because the French authorities deported him.

The magistrate, Sir Charles Biron: "How did you get in without a passport?" "I came here as a British steward in a boat."

"Why did they deport you from France?" "Because I had no passport and could not prove my nationality."

Capitolo was committed for trial.

A Remedy That Inspires Faith

People Who Have Used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Speak of Them With Praise.

"Going into a decline" is an expression that has come to be known as one of the most difficult conditions with which physicians have to deal. It often describes an alarming condition because it does not yield to ordinary treatment and the debility continues with loss of flesh and strength until the patient feels hopeless. In the majority of such cases the victim suffers from lack of good, red blood, and if the blood can be restored to normal no other medical treatment is necessary. Proper food and sunshine will do the rest.

Every man, woman and child who lacks health and strength should at once take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up their blood supply. The mission of this medicine is to make new, rich, red blood, which speedily restores health and strength. In addition writing to tell you what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me," says Mrs. J. H. Oulton, Firdale, Man. "A few years ago I was in a badly run-down condition, so much so that I was subject to fainting spells which would leave me in such a condition that I could hardly go about. Then I was stricken with influenza and this further weakened me, and throughout the winter I remained in this condition. I was taking doctor's medicine, but as it did not seem to help me, my mother advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a couple of boxes to start on. When these were done I seemed to feel an improvement and I got a further supply to continue the treatment. I took in all about a dozen boxes, and by that time I was in the best of health and had gained in weight. My faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is now unbounded, and I keep a supply on hand and take them occasionally if I am not feeling quite well. I often recommend them to others, and cannot praise them enough for restoring my health."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Rev. J. H. Coleman Named Archdeacon of Kingston.

The announcement is made by the Bishop of Ontario that Rev. J. H. Coleman, Rector of St. Paul's, Kingston, has been appointed Archdeacon of Kingston to succeed the late Ven. Archdeacon O. G. Dobbs. Ven. Archdeacon Coleman has served in the Diocese of Ontario since his ordination in 1893, a period of thirty-four years. He was for many years Vicar of Napanee, being appointed Rector of St. Paul's, Kingston, on the death of Rev. Canon W. F. Fitzgerald. Another appointment by the Bishop is that of Rev. Rural Dean J. O. Crisp to be a Canon of St. George's Cathedral.

Coming to Wonderland Theatre.

No kind of entertainment has the nation-wide appeal of Scottish Ballad, and character interpretation, the humor, the lilting music, add a delightful element to an evening's entertainment. The management of this theatre, always seeking the best for its patrons, has secured that inimitable favorite Singer of Scottish Songs, Jack F. Elder, who has gained such an enviable reputation in the Dominion and in the United States. "Jack" will appear here for two nights, Wednesday and Thursday, February 8th and 9th, assisted by Sidney Salsbury, Concert Pianist, and Gerald Radcliffe, Concert Violinist. The latter are accomplished musicians, so you can have an idea of the great time that is in store for the patrons of this theatre, on the above dates. Make a note of the dates, February 8th and 9th, a real Scotch treat. 4a

ST. ANDREWS Y. P. S. ENTERTAINS

On Monday evening St. Andrew's Young People's Society played host to the Young People of Grace Church. About ninety young people were present and together spent a pleasant evening.

It was Citizenship evening and the regular programme was put on. It consisted of short addresses by the young people. Jim Moffat told why he liked agriculture as a subject. Munro Beatty spoke of his preference for English, and Helen Lancaster for the languages.

The combined Orchestras of Grace and St. Andrews, under the leadership of Mr. MacGregor, rendered excellent music.

In addition Mr. Corkill and Mr. Laughland gave some timely advice with respect to choosing a life's work.

Helen and Jean Lancaster played a piano duet.

After some community singing led by Mr. Caldwell, lunch was served, an informal half hour was spent, and the meeting broke up with the National Anthem.

SOUTH NAPANEE SCHOOL

Three Years Wasted, and No Settlement of the Question Yet Reached.

Meetings have been held from time to time over a period of about three years, of school trustees and ratepayers in South Napanee, which is in the Township of North Fredericksburgh. Each of these meetings resembled a miniature Donnybrook Fair, so that it is easily understandable that very little has been accomplished, with the exception that something like fifteen hundred dollars has been paid out for legal opinions.

The nearest township school, capable of accommodating thirty-five pupils, is about a mile west of South Napanee, a long distance and an uphill road for young children. South Napanee has an overwhelming majority of the school children, about forty or fifty, and the parents of those children desire to have a school built in their midst. The rest of the School Section will have thirty or thirty-five pupils.

It is reported that the Department of Education stated some time ago that a new school had to be built, but the two factions, for and against, have nullified such pronouncement, if it was made.

At an election meeting held yesterday, it was decided to purchase an acre of land from the Napanee Golf Club as a suitable site for the new school; but this action it is reported this morning, is to be subject to an appeal on the ground of illegality.

It is high time that the Department of Education should take a hand in this matter and settle the trouble without further delay. In the meantime many children cannot go to school on account of the existing conditions.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Annie Clancy.

On January 10th, 1928, Mrs. Annie Clancy, widow of the late Cornelius Clancy, died at Enterprise. Mrs. Clancy was formerly Annie Johnston. She was born in Bath, Ont., educated in the original High School in Bath; qualified as a teacher and taught school near Enterprise. Married the late Cornelius Clancy. Settled on the farm 54 years ago, on which farm she passed away. She was of an extremely cheerful disposition, keen in intellect, and an agreeable neighbour. She was a regular attendant at the United Church, at which church her funeral service was held. It was conducted by her Pastor, Rev. H. A. Bunt, assisted by Rev. Mr. Merriam, of Bay Circuit.

She leaves to mourn her loss Mrs. Sidney Wagar, and one sister, Mrs. Wilson Dopking.

OBITUARY

John Carroll.

Many relatives and friends learned with regret of the death of Mr. John Carroll, which occurred at Kingston on January 9th, 1928.

The remains were forwarded to the home of his brother, Mr. Daniel Carroll, of Erinsville. The funeral, largely attended, was held at the Church of the Assumption, Erinsville, where a solemn High Mass of Requiem was sung by Rev. Father Terrien, assisted by the Pastor, Rev. Father O'Hanlan.

The deceased, who was 69 years of age, leaves two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Katherine Lynch, Mary, and Daniel.

The body was placed in the vault to await interment.

OBITUARY

John Carroll.

Many relatives and friends learned with regret of the death of Mr. John Carroll, which occurred at Kingston on January 9th, 1928.

The remains were forwarded to the home of his brother, Mr. Daniel Carroll, of Erinsville. The funeral, largely attended, was held at the Church of the Assumption, Erinsville, where a solemn High Mass of Requiem was sung by Rev. Father Terrien, assisted by the Pastor, Rev. Father O'Hanlan.

The deceased, who was 69 years of age, leaves two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Katherine Lynch, Mary, and Daniel.

The body was placed in the vault to await interment.

ERNESTTOWN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Our January branch meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ed. Smith, with almost a record number in attendance, over fifty, and several visitors. The meeting opened in the usual manner, and the answer to the roll call being a humorous story, proved most amusing.

The following given by Mrs. J. B. Sharp, was considered best, though there were many others which brought forth hearty laughs.

"A June bride asked her husband to copy the radio cooking recipe one morning. The husband did his best, but unfortunately got two salads at the same time. One was broadcasting the morning exercises and the other the recipe. This is what he got:

"Hands on the hips, place one cup of flour on the shoulders, raise knees and depress toes and wash thoroughly in one half cup of milk. In four counts raise and lower the legs and make two hard boiled eggs in a sieve. Repeat six times. Inhale one half teaspoonful of baking powder and one cup of flour, breathe naturally, and exhale and sift.

Attention! Jump to a squatting position and bend whites of eggs backward and forward over head, and in four counts repeat. Put a stiff dough, will stretch at the waist. Lie flat on the floor and roll into a marble the size of a walnut. Hop to a standstill and boil in water, but do not boil to a gallop afterwards. In ten minutes remove from the fire and dry with a towel. Breathe naturally and dress in warm flannels, and serve with fish soup."

Quite a little correspondence was read by the Secretary, Mrs. Gordon Young, the most important being a circular letter from Mr. Putnam, asking, if possible, for a number of branches to combine for the summer series meetings held in May and June, which, after some discussion, we decided to do.

The Secretary Treasurer told us that the grant from the Township Council had been received, and was advised to acknowledge it with thanks.

Miss Jessie Thompson delighted us all with a recitation.

Next followed a solo, beautifully sung by Mrs. Claude Thompson.

Mrs. A. C. Sharp's recitation was humorous, and so well given that it provoked much merriment.

The debate, "Resolved, that country life is better than city life", was most entertaining. The affirmative was ably taken by Mrs. Kemal Priest and Mrs. Muriel Hitter, and the negative nobly upheld by Mrs. Leo Crowe and Mrs. Clarence Thompson. Many humorous arguments were advanced by both sides. When we listened to the affirmative we were sure we wanted to live in the country, and then, when the negative had their innings, we almost believed we should then prefer the city. The judges, Mrs. Sprowle, President of the Westbrook branch, Mrs. Bateman and Mrs. Hambly, of Odessa, had no easy task as they said there was so little difference. They awarded the affirmative debate by the five points, and said both sides had good arguments and well presented. The losers were real sports and were the first to come forward and congratulate the winners.

A vote of thanks to the judges was moved by Mrs. Joel Kellar, and seconded by Mrs. Hitter Thompson, and carried by a hearty clap.

Tea was served by gracious hostess, who did much to make the afternoon the success it was.

Our February meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. T. G. Creighton, on Friday, the 10th (please note the change of date), and we are looking forward to Mrs. W. G. Fretts' solo and Mrs. J. B. Sharpe's demonstration of "Patience Candy".

UNION YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY OF CONWAY AND SILLSVILLE.

Since its inauguration in 1925, the Young People's Society has carried on with success. The exodus of so many of its active members from the community has been a handicap, but the faithful remainder, who, while in people, it has continued its good work. It is affiliated with the United Church and has donated large sums towards the furthering of church work. Its membership is composed of young folks scattered, but it has made a very creditable showing in comparison to other organizations with larger membership.

The fifth meeting of the third year was held on January 27th, at the parsonage at Conway. After the usual business transactions, an excellent programme was given.

The feature of the meeting was a discourse on Canada by Miss Ellsworth Ham, A.T.C.M. It was a comprehensive survey of the Life and Works of Lucy Maud Montgomery, the author of the booring under great physical disabilities, it gave us with the United Church and has donated large sums towards the furthering of church work. "How splendid, that we can run away for a few days to visit your mother! Without Long Distance it would be of course quite out of the question, but it is so easy to call up our homes by Long Distance and make sure all is well that, really, there is no excuse for denying oneself."

"I suppose you use Station-to-Station calls, I do. By asking for the number I get the cheaper rate, and the evening rate after 8.30 is really most reasonable."

The rates to nearby towns, within a radius of say 25 miles, are so low that it is now possible to keep up a wide circle of friends at very slight expense.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES BACKACHE BLADDER TROUBLES RHEUMATISM DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS 1857 1928 THE PROPRIETARY MEDICINE

"COSSA" BASKETBALL

N.C.I. 19 ; Albert College 5.

On Friday, January 27th, the Napanee Collegiate Basketball quintet decisively defeated Albert College on its own floor by 19-5.

While the game was fast, the play was loose and twelve personals were committed. Most of the scoring was done in the first seven minutes of play, N.C.I. registering twelve points and Albert three. Practically no scoring was done from then till the last six or seven minutes of play.

Jack Wright, Albert's rangy centre, was the main-stay of the team, and although he worked hard, neither he nor his team-mates could get the ball past centre floor very often. Doug. Marrett and Don Muir worked well on the forward line. Albert's passing was wild, although they made excellent use of the pivot-and-dribble, which was practically the only way in which they could split Napanee's defense.

Merritt and Gibbard were the only two from last year's seniors on the line-up. MacFadden, Robinson, Woodruff and Black were all new to the game. The former turned in an exceptionally fine game, it being the first rage-game he ever played or witnessed. While he committed a few fouls, he will greatly improve and much is expected from him. Merritt, Way and Gilbride had Albert pretty well tied up and the N.C.I. team was not weakened in the least when the spares were used.

At this game the 1928 team did a thing which no basketball team representing Napanee has ever done, namely, to keep their opponents from scoring a goal from play. All Albert's points were made from free shots. This is a very unique feat and it is to be hoped that they will repeat it when the Collegians visit Napanee on February 17th.

After the game the Napanee team was royally treated by the College in the form of a lunch, swim and sing song.

The following is the line-up and officials; the numbers after the players are the numbers of points they scored.

Albert College—Centre, J. Wright; forwards, D. Marrett, D. Muir 3; defense, H. Harton, R. Hambly; spares, J. Downie 1, J. Rea 1, S. Clement, B. Thompson, W. McNaughton.

N.C.I.—Centre, E. Way 3; forwards, L. Merritt 6, P. Gilbride 4; defense, D. MacFadden (Capt.), E. Gibbard; spares, R. Woodruff, C. Nugent, H. Robinson, J. Black 6, G. Gibson.

Referee—E. H. Walters, Belleville Y.M.C.A.

Timer—Don Mulholland, Albert College.

Scorer—Stew. A. Murray.

While the locals completely outplayed Albert, this game was by no means perfect. Next week they play their hardest game, B. H. S. at Belleville, and the latter return it the following week. There will be the games that will spell the fate of the Yellow and Blue, and fast ball is expected. Last year Napanee played their fastest game on the Y.M.C.A. floor, and so this game should be a treat to the local fans who witness it. Senior and Junior boys' games will be played.

The game next week will be on Saturday night, and so the locals will have a full week in which to study their game and improve their passing.

Found a Health Building Tonic

A Nova Scotia Lady Was In An Anaemic Condition

Men and women who do not sleep well and are not refreshed and strengthened by a night's rest are generally suffering from thin, watery blood. The nerves fail to get the nourishment they demand and pains, aches and a worn-out feeling is the result. Building up the blood is the one sure step to renewed health and strength, and for this purpose nothing else can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. From first dose to last they enrich and purify the blood, and in this way promote better appetite, better rest at night, and renewed strength.

Mrs. Mary E. Uhlman, Williamstown, N.S., writes :—"I have received so much benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, that I would feel myself ungrateful if I did not let you know.

I was in a very poor state of health, and reached the stage where I had to remain in bed. A doctor was called in and he told me I had an organic trouble, but was simply run down from overwork. I had been left with a family to support, which I did by dressmaking. The doctor said my blood had almost turned to water, and advised a rest cure. I did not see how it was possible for me to take a very long rest, so I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Soon I found my strength returning and before very long I was able to go about my duties as usual again. This was a few years ago, and my health remained good until about a year ago, when I broke out with tumor of the blood. Again I consulted the doctor, who said my blood had become so thin that it had really poisoned itself. I told him I had bought several boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and he told me to go on taking them as he thought they were just what I needed. I took eight boxes and again was in good health. I can therefore recommend these pills to all in a weak or run-down condition."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent by mail, post paid, on receipt of price, 50 cents a box. Try them to-day.

New Brunswick Man Tells Why Dodd's Kidney Pills Are a Household Remedy

Keswick, N.B., Jan. 30th. (Special).—Right to the point is the statement Mr. Wm. L. Kendall, R.R. 1, Mouth of Keswick, makes with regard to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine I have ever taken. I have used lots of others but Dodd's are the best. I could hardly straighten my back. After taking one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I felt a great deal better. I bought another box and before it was half gone I could straighten up my back with ease."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They act directly on the kidneys, strengthening them, and putting them in condition to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have restored sound health to thousands of troubled men and women. Give them a trial at once.

WEDDING BELLS.

Livingston—Saul.

Minnedosa, Man., Jan. 17th. — A wedding of considerable interest took place in Minnedosa United Church, on Saturday, Jan. 14th, at 10 o'clock, when Uldena, second daughter of Mr. J. C. Livingston, of Swan Lake, Man., became the bride of Mr. W. Maxwell Saul, of Pine Falls, Man. Rev. Harry Dodd was officiating clergyman. The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Wilfred, to the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin", played by Mrs. George Eames. The bride looked charming in a gown of sunset georgette crepe, with trimmings of satin. She wore a French picture hat of black moire ribbon and velvet, finished with silver, and carried a sheaf of Ophelia roses and valley lilies. She was attended by her sister, Rubie, who was attired in peridot georgette with black velvet picture hat, and carried yellow roses. The groom was supported by Mr. George Ashton, of Pine Falls. During the signing of the register, Miss Grace Mayes, a colleague of the teaching staff, sang, "Calm as the Night". Miss M. Lawson and Miss P. Boughton, also former colleagues, acted as ushers. Following the ceremony, the guests partook of the wedding breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Eames. The bride chose for her going away costume, a peacock blue flat crepe dress with touches of silver and coat of seal and sable. The wedding party left on the noon train for Winnipeg and points east. They will be at home to their friends at Pine Falls after the first of February. The high esteem in which the bride is held in this community, where she has been a member of the teaching staff for the past two and a half years, was evidenced by the many showers and presents which have been taken place in the last few weeks. — Winnipeg Free Press.

Maxwell Saul is a son of Mr. R. W. Saul, of Camden East, and his many friends around here extend congratulations.

Address and Presentation

At a social evening held in the Parish House of St. John's Church, Bath, on Thursday, January 19th, the following presentation was made :—

Bath, Ont.,
January 19th, 1928.

Mrs. W. G. Swayne,
Bath, Ont.

Dear Mrs. Swayne,—The members of the congregation of St. John's Church wish to express their appreciation in some way for your faithful and untiring efforts as Organist for the past four years.

During your term at the organ, the Choir has been vested and trained to such a degree of efficiency that has called forth expressions of praise, not only from regular parishioners, but also from visitors who attend our services from time to time.

The rendering of the music by the Choir is not only a credit to you, but also an inspiration to greater reverence on the part of those who have the pleasure of attending the service.

On behalf of the members of the congregation, we ask you to accept this China Cabinet as a small token of our esteem, with all good wishes for the future.

Yours very sincerely,
G. M. LOYST,
A. C. MILLER,
Wardens.

In expressing her thanks for the beautiful gift, Mrs. Swayne attributed the high standard of the Choir's efficiency to the regular attendance and faithful co-operation of all the members.

Woman Eats Only Baby Food 3 Years

"For 2 years I ate only baby food, everything else forced gas, but thanks to Adlerika, I eat everything and enjoy life."—Mrs. M. Gunn.

Even the FIRST spoonful of Adlerika relieves gas on the stomach and removes astonishing amounts of old waste matter from the system. Makes you enjoy your meals and sleep better. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. Wallace's Drug Store.

Lord Kellie was telling of a sermon he had heard in Italy on St. Anthony and the fishes, which held their heads out of the water in order to listen to his preaching. "I can credit the miracle," said Henry Erskine, "if your lordship was at church." "Yes, I was there," heeded the poor. "Then," said Erskine, "there was at least one fish out of water."

What would I give to clasp his hand,
His happy face to see,
To hear his voice and see his smile,
That meant so much to me.

Sadly missed by his Aunt Augusta.

THE HUNTING SPIDER

Female Kills Husband After a Short Honeymoon—Mother Is Brave In Precention of Young.

When the hunting spider goes a-courting, like a human being he sheds his old coat, dons a smart new garment, shiny and attractive, writes O. G. Pike, the naturalist, in Tit-Bits.

Then he looks out for a suitable present, and, having found this, wraps it in a tiny silken cloth of his own weaving. This love-gift is often a fly, but it looks attractive enough as, holding it before him, he goes in search of a mate.

He evidently knows where to search, for in a short time he meets a female hunting spider. Approaching her very cautiously, he holds out his gift. The female spider is a vicious creature; if she is caught in a bad humor, it is more than likely she will devour him, so he goes to work warily.

If, as sometimes happens, he finds her in a good mood, she may condescend to look at him, but she refuses to have anything to do with the gift. This she ignores, and after walking round the patient lover she puts him down as a very poor representative of the spider family, for she takes little more notice of him.

However, he is not downhearted, for he stands before her still holding up the gift, and in this ridiculous position he remains for hours. At last she gives in to his patience, and, although she is about twice his size, she goes off with him, both holding on to the love offering.

A few days later she weaves a small round cocoon. In this the eggs are laid, and she carries her precious burden about with her. Later, finding a convenient grass patch in a sheltered corner, she binds a few grass stems together with web, making a platform on which she can rest. Here she waits, allowing the sun to hatch her eggs.

Inside the silken cocoon the baby spiders are seen to be moving, and when she observes this she prepares a beautiful home for them. With her silken web she travels backwards and forwards, round and round, until a wonderful chamber of silk is constructed. The crowd of youngsters inside the cocoon are prisoners, and there they will remain until they change their skin. Their mother mounts guard over them.

So plucky is she that if you place your finger near she will dart at it and do her best to drive you away. Her husband is not there to assist her. Evidently she thought he was too small and insignificant to take any part in the domestic duties of the home, so she made sure he should not interfere by killing him before the eggs hatched!

When the babies have their new coats, they escape from the cocoon into the large silken chamber. They are still prisoners, but are ready to go into the world. Their mother now makes little exits for them in different parts of the chamber.

There is always such an enormous number of fatalities among the small creatures that nature provides for their existence by producing large numbers. About ten per cent. of the young spiders survive. They mount to the top of their home and spin silken lines that float out on the breeze. They are then carried along in the wind. Many are snapped up by birds, others by insects, but a few make a successful landing perhaps a mile or more away, and there they live and thrive to bring up families of their own.

Moths and Their Parasites.

In a new laboratory, which is to be established in Buckinghamshire, England, applied entomology will be practiced for the benefit of agriculture, and researches will be made into animal pests. The Imperial Bureau and the Entomological Society of London, with which it is allied, are repeatedly called upon to solve difficult problems affecting Empire produce. One of the most recent relates to a moth, which caused enormous destruction in the cocoanut plantations of Fiji.

Apparently the moth was an introduction to the country in the past two or three years for cocoanuts had previously been grown there without difficulty. The scientists set to work to find the original home of the insect in order that its parasites might be imported into Fiji. Research having ended in failure, experts were sent out. Eventually a similar moth was found in the Malay States, which attacks cocoanuts, and which has only fly parasite. The fly has now been imported into Fiji, and there is every indication that it is going to do great work. The moth is steadily losing its aggressiveness.

World's Largest Crane.

A British-built crane with a single "leg" nearly 150 feet in height, surmounted by a steel lattice-work jib 100 feet long, is being used in connection with the building of the new Baker Street station, London. This mammoth crane is said to be the largest of its kind in the world and is entirely different from the kind with which most people are familiar.

A steel pivot runs down the centre of the "leg" and enables the crane to turn a complete circle with ease. When left unattended at night it rotates in the manner of a weather vane, thus adjusting itself to any adverse wind pressure that may arise.

Although this giant crane requires only one man to operate it by electricity, it covers an area of more than 30,000 square feet.

Stefansson, the explorer, estimates that the Arctic grasslands could support a hundred cattle, sheep, and five times as many musk-ox, with a total annual meat production of 55,000,000,000 pounds.

"APPRECIATION"

Yes, thanks to your generous support, this Store exceeded its objective in C. D. S. L. Million Dollar Stock Reduction Sale. Likewise, we established a sales record for the month of January, which is head and shoulders above any similar merchandising event undertaken in the history of this business.

We desire to extend our best thanks to the people of this vicinity for their kindly interest and co-operation. In helping us you have also helped yourselves, as the reductions in prices have run into many thousands of dollars.

"Spring" stands out just around the corner. We are making preparations now—choosing new materials and new styles. We are concentrating on non-surpassable values, which is best expressed in dependable qualities, authentic styles, and consistent prices.

THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY BRINGS YOU A GIGANTIC SALE OF REMNANTS AND LONELIES

Tremendous January selling has left us with stacks and stacks of remnants and one-of-a-kind garments in several of our departments.

For instance, we have hundreds of useable and useful, lengths in Coatings, Dress Goods, Silks, Trimmings, Ribbons, Curtain Materials, Draperies, Fringes, Edgings, and Bandings

And for instance, exclusive and individual garments in Women's and Misses Coats, Dresses, Men's Overcoats, Boys' Overcoats, and various other lines of Winter Apparel.

These have been re-assembled and re-marked to "HALF PRICE".

All lines will be openly displayed for quick inspection. You know prompt action brings best results.

Real Economies in Women's and Misses' Wearing Apparel

Separate Skirts Reduced 33 1-3 Per Cent From Regular

Garments that are made by skilful operators, in Canada's foremost skirt factory. Styles that foster pleats in all the accepted modes. Pleats that are guaranteed to stay in place under all reasonable conditions. Materials, too, are of sterling all wool qualities. Surely your wardrobe will stand a couple with possibilities so tempting. Shown in colors of Navy, Black, Cream, and White. Reduced prices, $3.50 to $6.75.

Girls' Gymnasium Serge Bloomers. Excellent Values at $2.95 and $3.50 Pair

We never have a complaint registered against these Bloomers, simply because they overcome all objections. First, they are properly cut on loose, full, graceful lines, that have ample room for freedom. Then materials employed are of dependable qualities, weights and weaves that absorb hard wear without showing it for seasons and seasons. In Navy Blue, and in all sizes.

Women's Fur Trimmed Winter Coats At Half of Original Markings

They're worth a special trip down town to see them if you are wanting a coat. Everything about them is captivating. "Styles" foster all the successful winter features; "materials" are warm and good looking; "fur trimmings" are generous and dependable. If your size is here, each and every coat represents a worth-while investment. Not many left, but each a clever, an exclusive coat.

Real Economies in Men's and Boys' Wearing Apparel

Canadian Athletes Leave For Olympic Games

Canada's representatives at the Olympic Games at St. Moritz, Switzerland, now on their way across the ocean, journeyed from their homes to the seaboard via Canadian National Railways. Most of the party were photographed by the Canadian National camera man at Montreal en route to Halifax. Photographs show: Lower left; The Varsity Grads hockey team, of Toronto; right, Lehan and Dupuis of Montreal and Ottawa respectively ski-ing representatives. Upper right, the party aboard the Maritime Express of the Canadian National Railways; left, Ross Robinson, Toronto speed skating champion, who will represent Canada in the speed skating events — Canadian National Railways photographs.

OBITUARY

Mr. Shirley Lewis.

A sad gloom was cast over the neighbourhood on January 3rd, 1928, when it was announced that death had claimed one of the most highly and respected residents, in the person of Mr. Shirley Lewis, whose death came as a shock to all who knew him. Deceased had been in fairly good health but contracted a cold which developed into pneumonia, and with all the help of willing hands and medical assistance, it proved to no avail.

The above was one of sterling qualities, and his mind was chiefly devoted to his home and family.

He leaves to mourn his loss, a wife and four children; also his father, Mr. B. Lewis, a sister, Mrs. W. Campbell and two brothers, Messrs. G. and R. Lewis.

The pall bearers were Messrs. H. Windover, E. Manion, J. Hayes, F. Denison, E. McDonald, and H. Edgar. His funeral was held from his residence, on Thursday, January 5th, to the R. C. Church, followed by a large concourse of friends and relatives, where a solemn High Mass of Requiem was said for the deceased, after which Father O'Connor addressed the people with a few well chosen words in regard to the deceased. His remains were placed in the vault to await interment in the spring. — Kingston papers please copy.

ADOLPHUSTOWN

The February meeting of the U. E. L. Women's Missionary Society will be held at the home of Mrs. T. N. Davis, on Wednesday afternoon, February 1st. Owing to the inclement weather in January, this will be the first meeting of the new year. Through the kindness of the Rev. James Plant, and the energy of the Recording Secretary, Miss Hattie Magee, printed programs of the meetings throughout the year have been circulated among the members. It is hoped this will further the interest in the work.—The Community Club will hold a social evening at the home of Miss Audrey Ruttan, Thursday, February 2nd.

With every purchase of $1.00 of Pure Test preparations, you get free a 25c tube of Milk of Magnesia Tooth Paste, during February Jubilee Sale, at Wallace's.

A NURSERY NARRATIVE.

Chameleon Fishes See That Their Offspring Keep Clean.

Hopeful of rearing a family, a pair of chameleon fishes are making preparations for their nursery in the specially - heated tank which forms their home, writes A. E. Hodge, F.Z.S., in Tit-Bits. They uproot all aquatic plants in the vicinity of the chosen site—a large, smooth stone.

They easily dislodge small plants by gripping the leaves securely with their mouths and then "back-pedalling," as it were. But with the stouter ones the task is not so easy. A stubborn root seems to give the male food for thought, but he is not disconcerted. After studying the situation from all points of view he starts to dig up the surrounding sand, scooping up large mouthfuls and ejecting it some distance away, until eventually the roots are laid bare, when the fish triumphantly tears away the obstruction.

He now proceeds to clean the precious stone, depositing all refuse in a remote corner of the tank.

On a subsequent visit to the aquarium the pair are found to be still busy, for the young have arrived, and every few hours the dutiful parents can be seen digging fresh clean pits for the fry, which are carried in their mouths from pit to pit.

As I watch, the father-fish, eyeing one of the babies who does not come up to his standard of cleanliness, gulps the youngster into his maw. Knowing his habits, I await the "return of the prodigal"—and, sure enough, after a little chewing and ejectment of mud through the parent's gills, the baby is shot out into the world again, clean as a new pin!

Meat-Bone Ship Model.

Made from meat bones by French prisoners after the Battle of Trafalgar, a model of Nelson's flagship is exact in detail except that the prisoners, in loyalty to their own country, put a figure of the Dauphin in place of the Victory's figurehead.

The model belongs to Earl Grey of Falloden, and was handed down from his great-grandfather, Captain George Grey, flag-captain in the Victory to Admiral Sir John Jarvis at the Battle of Cape St. Vincent. The ship is now being reconditioned and re-rigged by the curator of the Royal Naval College Museum, formerly the last chief gunner on the Victory when she was afloat.

Details of the model include the admiral's lantern and three poop ladders, which are decorated with luminous paint. On the deck are the rum barrel and grog tub, the tub inscribed with the words, "The King God bless him." The model is only 20 inches long and 24 inches high.

Models of this sort fetch high prices, and several vessels exhibited recently at the Sporting Gallery, King street, London, were sold for about $1,000 each.

Monsieur Beaucaire

was exquisite, his manner engaging. In the company of gentlemen his ease was slightly tainted with graciousness (his single equal in Bath being his grace of Winterset), but it was remarked that when he bowed over a lady's hand his air became only a very, very tender reverence.

He was the idol of the downers within a week after his appearance. Matrons warmed to him. Young belles looked sweetly on him, while the gentlemen gave vent to admiration or envy. He, a man of prodigious wealth, Old Mr. Bibbett, who dared not, for his fame's sake, fail to have seen all things, had visited Chateaurien under the present duke's father and consented to the curious upon its grandeurs. The young noble had one fault. He was so poor a gambler. He cared nothing for the hazards of a dice or the turn of a card. Gayly admitting that he had been born with no spirit of adventure in him, he was sure, he declared, that he failed of many happiness by his lack of taste in such matters.

But he was not long wanting the occasion to prove his taste in the mentioned handling a weapon. A certain lord-captain, Rohrer by name, perforce, among other things, for hearing a disloyalty, and Abbadia by blade, came to Bath not haste one night and jostled heartily against him in the pump room on the the following morning. M. de Chateaurien bowed and turned aside without offence, continuing a conversation with some gentlemen near by. Captain Rohrer jostled against him a second time. M. de Chateaurien looked him in the eye and exclaimed pleasantly for leave to remain in the duke's service.

Rohrer renewed an introduction to Lord Grantly, whose observations decessary in the valley and virtue of the French.

There was current a curious piece of gossip of the French court. A prince of the blood royal, grandson of the late regent and second in the line of succession to the throne of France, had rebelled against the authority of Louis XV., who had commanded him to marry the Princess Henrietta, cousin to both of them, the princess was reported to be openly devoted to the cousin who refused to accept her hand at the bidding of the king, and, as rumor ran, the prince's caprice elected in preference the discipline of Vincennes, to which retirement the furious king had consigned him. The story was the stande gossip of all polite Europe, and Captain Rohrer, having in his mind a purpose to make use of it in leading on to a statement that should be general to the dames of all French women and which a Frenchman might not pass over as he might a joke of the client, repeated it with garbled truths to make a scandal of a story which bore none on a plain relation.

He did not reach his destination M. de Chateaurien, breaking into his narrative, addressed him very quietly, "Monsieur," he said, "once again—and, now the boldness of the speech and gentle lady, Miss, la Petite de Bourbon-Conti. Every one should know that her name is a forbidden and ingrate who had calls honor and respect for her, but was so willful he could not be even the like say, 'You shall marry here, you shall marry there.' My friend," the young man turned to the other, "must ask you to close roun' in a circle for one moment? It is clearly shown that the Duke of Orleans is a severe fellow, but not be wheedled about and bastied Captain Rohrer on the nose with the back of his glove and a hand—but not so scurvy as thou, thou swine of the gutter!"

Two hours later, with perfect ease, [illegible] left shoulder, after which he sent a basket of red roses to the Duke of Winterset. In a few days he had another captain to fight. This was a ruffling buck who had the astounding indiscretion to proclaim M. de Chateaurien an imposter. There was no Chateaurien, he swore. The French man laughed in his face and, at twilight of the same day, pinked him carefully through the right shoulder. It was not that he could not put aside the insult to himself, he declared to Mr. Molyneux, his second, and the two witnesses, as he handed his wet sword to his lackey—one of his station could not be insulted by a doubt of that station—but he fought in the quarrel of his friend Winterset. This rascal had asserted that M. le Duc had introduced an imposter. Could he overlook the insult to a friend, one to whom he owed his kind reception in Bath? Mary, bending over his fallen adversary, he whispered, "Another man, tell your master find some better quarrel the next he set'n again' me."

The conduct of M. de Chateaurien was pronounced admirable.

There was no surprise when the young foreigner fell naturally into the long train of followers of the beautiful Lady Mary Carlisle, nor was there great astonishment that he should obtain marked favor in his eyes, since so plainly that my Lord Townbrake, Sir Hugh Guilford and the rich Squire Bardigon, all of whom had followed her through three seasons, swore with rage, and his grace of Winterset stalks from her aunt's house with black brows.

Meeting the duke there on the evening after his second encounter, de Chateaurien smiled upon him brilliantly. "It was badly done, eh,—so badly!" he whispered. "Can you afford to have me strip' off my mask by way to yourself? You, who introduce' me? They will say there is some bad scandal that I could force you to be so godfather. You must get the courage yourself."

"I told you a rose had a short life," was the answer.

"Oh, those roses! 'Tis the very greatest time to gather one while it's fresh one." He took a red bud from his breast for an instant and touched it to his lips.

"M. de Chateaurien!" It was Lady Mary's voice. She stood at a table where a vacant place had been left beside her. "M. de Chateaurien, we have been waiting very long for you."

The duke saw the look she did not know she gave the Frenchman, and he lost countenance for a moment.

"We approach a climax, eh, monsieur?" said M. de Chateaurien.

CHAPTER IV.

There fell a clear September night, when the moon was radiant over town and country, over cobbled streets and winding roads. From the fields the mists rose slowly, and the air was mild and fragrant, while distances were white and full of mystery. All of Bath that pretended to fashion, or condition was present that evening at a fete at the house of a country gentleman of the neighborhood. When the stately junket was concluded it was the pleasure of M. de Chateaurien to forma one of the escort of Lady Mary's carriage for the return. As they took the road Sir Hugh Guilford and Mr. Bantison, engaging in indistinct but vigorous remonstrance with Mr. Molyneux over some matter, fell fifty or more paces behind, where they continued to ride, keeping up their argument the while Captain and other gallants rode in advance, muttering among themselves, or attended Lady upon Lady Mary's aunt on the other side of the coach, while the happy Frenchman was permitted to ride close to that adorable window which framed the fairest face in England. He made for her a little bench song, a song of the voyageur who dreamed of home. The lady, listening, looking up at the bright moon, felt a warm drop upon her cheek, and he saw the tears sparkling upon her lashes.

"Mademoiselle," he whispered then, "I, too, have been a wanderer, but my dreams were not of France; no, I do not dream of that home, of that dear country. It is of a dearer country, a dream country—a country of gold and snow." he cried softly, looking at her white brow and the fair, lightly powdered hair above it. "Gold and snow and the blue sky of a lady's eyes!"

"I had thought the lattes of France were dark, sir."

"Cruel! It is that she will not understan'!" Have I speak of the ladies of France? No, no, no! It is of the faires' country—yes, 'tis a province of heaven, mademoiselle. Do I not remember my allegiance to my France? Oh, yes! I am subjec'—no, content to be slave—in the soil of the blue sky, the gold and the snow."

"A very pretty figure," answered Lady Mary, her eyes dewlaps, "but why does it not hint a notable experience in the making of such speeches?"

"Temerciez! Do you not envy the inspiration it is to know you."

"We English ladies hear plenty of the like, sir, and we even grow brilliant enough to detect the assurance that follows. He get' leaves of our own gallants."

"Merci! I should believe so!" quoted M. de Chateaurien, but he smothered the words upon his lips.

Rohrer were not the only one sent out. "We come, in time, to believe that true feeling comes faltering forth but globby, inarticulate—but behold the adept in the art, sir, utter them your true—your true!" She was herself faltering, more blushing deeply and halting to a full stop in terror of a word. There was a silence.

"Your—true—lover," he said huskily. When he had said that word he trembled. She turned half away into the darkness of the coach.

"I know what make' you to doubt me," he said, faltering himself, though it was not his art that prompted him. "They have tol' you the French do nothing always but make love, is it not so? Yes, you think it like all that. You think I am like that now?" She made no sign.

"I suppose," he sighed, "I am unfa'nable. I would have the snow not so col'—for jus' me."

She did not answer.

"Turn to me," he said.

The fragrance of the fields came to them, and from the distance the faint, clear note of a hunting horn.

"Turn to me."

The lovely head was bent very low. Her little gloved hand rested on the narrow window ledge. He laid his own gently upon it. The two hands were a shadow like twin leaves in the breeze. Hers was not drawn away. After a pause, neither knew how long, he felt the warm fingers turn and clasp themselves tremulously about his own. At last she lowered her head and met his eyes. The horn was [illegible] again—nearer.

Money Back if Moone's Emerald Oil Doesn't Do Away With All Soreness, Swelling and Distress in 24 Hours.

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And best of all, its offensive odor is gone for good—It's a wonderful formula — this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

Wallace's Drug Store and every good druggist guarantees the very first bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil to end your foot troubles or money back.

Great Praise for Baby's Own Tablets

Mrs. Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. have received the following letter from Mrs. Griffith, of 21 Merrimon Ave., East Hamilton, Ont., concerning her experience with Baby's Own Tablets: Dear Sirs—I wish to thank you for the handy little booklet you sent me on the Care of Children. My baby boy was six weeks old when I first used Baby's Own Tablets, being new to Canada, but since the first proof of their many uses in bringing up a family, I have never been without them, for they are worth their weight in gold. There is no trouble in getting little ones to take them and they often prevent an illness if taken in time. My first baby is now, at the age of four and a half years, a picture of health, and my nine-months-old baby is also well and happy. They are kept in a cool place and what Baby's Own Tablets can do, for I am never without a bottle in the house, I cannot say. I recommend them to every mother I meet, and never will be without them. A copy of the booklet you sent me is now in the hands of a friend. You are at liberty to use this letter for the benefit of other mothers if you wish. Yours truly, Mrs. Griffith. Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

The Wife—"They made me furious at the club meeting. But I told them what was what, and believe me, I was speechless, too."

Her Hubby—"By whom?"

Nearly all children are subject to worms, and many are born with them. Spare them suffering by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, an excellent remedy.

Mrs. Brown—We're going to the Isle of Wight, and what do you think my cald says? She says the climate is not "embracing" enough.

Mrs. Jones—Ah, I see, you should try her with the Isle of Man.

Miller's Worm Powders prove their value. They do not cause any violent disturbances in the stomach, any pain or griping, but do their work quietly and painlessly, so that the destruction of the worms is imperceptible. Yet they are thorough, and from the first dose there is improvement in the condition of the sufferer and a cessation of manifestations of internal trouble.

A child of four was being escorted to Sunday School for the first time by her father, who was a superintendent. He impressed on her the need for silence and stillness.

For several minutes she pondered his words, and then piped :—

"Daddy, may I breave, please?"

Nights of Agony come in the train of asthma. The victim cannot lie down and sleep is driven from his brain. What grateful relief is the immediate effect of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. It banishes the frightful conditions, clears the passages, and enables the afflicted one to again sleep as soundly and restfully as a child. Insist on the genuine at your nearby druggist.

"I'll be perfectly frank with you. You're not the first girl I've kissed by a long shot."

"And I'll be equally frank with you. You've got a great deal to learn, even at that."

Internally and Externally It Is Good—The crowning property of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is that it can be used internally for many complaints as well as externally. For sore throat, croup, whooping cough, pains in the chest, colic and many kindred ailments it has qualities that are unsurpassed. A bottle of it costs little and there is no loss in always having it at hand.

Passionate Youth—"Have you ever loved before?"

The Girl—"No, John; I have often admired men for their strength, courage, good looks, or intelligence, but with you, dear, it is all for love."

Presentation and Address.

On Wednesday evening, January 25th, 1928, the congregation of Morven United Church, gathered at the home of Mr. Earl Craig, when the following addresses were read :—

To Mr. John Albert Bell.

Dear Friend,—It was a great disappointment when we learned of your decision to remove from our neighbourhood to reside in the Town of Napanee, for we feel that our community has been sadly depleted by deaths and removals during the past few years, and while we are always glad to welcome new friends into our midst, yet we regret to lose our old and highly esteemed friends. However, in these disappointments that come to us repeatedly, we are reminded of that true saying that "every cloud has a silver lining," and in looking for the silver lining now, we are assured that while we are to be deprived of your continued presence and help, there will remain with us the fruits of your many years of happy and helpful service as a neighbour and members of our church. In addition to your home responsibilities, you willingly accepted tasks in our church organizations, and discharged them with care in every office committed to your charge. In addition to your Trusteeship, Stewardship, we especially remember your many years of Superintendency of our Sabbath School.

In recalling these facts, we feel a deep sense of our indebtedness to you for the many years of unselfish service rendered, and desire in these few words and this humble gift, to express our real appreciation to you, trusting that your life may long be spared to enjoy many restful hours in this chair.

Signed on behalf of your many friends.

Morven, January 25th, 1928.

To Miss Jean Milling.

Dear Sunday School Teacher and Associate Captain of our Young People's Society.—We are very sorry that you have found it necessary to leave our Young People's Circle at Morven, for in doing so we know we are losing a companion, friend and leader from our League and Sunday School that we can hardly afford to lose. We wish you could have remained with us, but circumstances seem to say that Providence is leading you to other, and no doubt to larger fields of service. However, before you leave us, we want to tell you that we have been greatly helped by your teaching in Sunday School, and by your enthusiastic cooperation in all the departments of our Young People's Society. Your untiring devotion to the best interests of our League and Sunday School leaves to us a worthy example to follow in our real appreciation to you, trusting that your life may long be spared to enjoy many restful hours in this chair.

Signed on behalf of your many friends.

Economies in purchasing, production and distribution, due to the tremendous increase in sales of Rogers Batteryless Radios during the past two years, have made it possible to inaugurate an entirely new lower price level, thus passing on to the public these savings in the form of drastic

Price Reductions

On the 1928 Models of

Rogers {BATTERYLESS} Radio

Ranging from $26 to $50 on each Model

Here's the best radio news yet broadcast! Just study the new prices and specifications of these 1928 Models of the famous Rogers Batteryless Radios. These new prices mean that real, proven, dependable "Batteryless" radio is now within the reach of all. No more need to fuss around with batteries, chemicals, chargers or unsightly wiring, to save a few dollars; no more need to try and make an ordinary battery set into an "electrified" set. No more need to experiment with a new and unproven electric radio — for now you can get a genuine Rogers Batteryless Radio complete in one cabinet — with three years of proven performance behind it; all ready to "Just plug in then tune in"; with no extras to buy—at the same price as an ordinary, reputable, battery-operated set.

Think of it! The set which has outsold all other electric sets combined — the set that has proven its worth in thousands upon thousands of Canadian homes from coast to coast — the set which operates equally well on either 25 or 60 cycle A/C current—the only set which affords absolute regulation and control of voltages—the set which alone can offer the Rogers guaranteed A/C Tubes—the set which delivers coast to coast reception under normal conditions — the set which gives equal power the year 'round—always uniform—which costs less than 5c a week for power—the set which requires no batteries, chemicals, chargers, attachments (and in many cases no aerial)—and, most important, the set with the power and tone quality all its own—offered at less money than unproven electric sets.

MODEL "Two-Fifty" was $215 NOW $189
SAVING $26.00

MODEL "Two-Twenty" was $275 NOW $225
SAVING $50.00

MODEL "200-A" was $420 NOW $375
SAVING $45.00

No other radio has ever been able to offer all the advantages and features found in the Rogers. And now they do not even compare in price. To get the best for the least money is a rare experience —made possible only by the fact that the Rogers has a two-year lead in production, experience and distribution of Batteryless Radios. There might be some excuse for "gambling" with an unproven radio if you saved enough—there certainly is not when it costs you more.

Get a ROGERS—And Be Sure!

Every Rogers Set and every tube in these sets is guaranteed to function and give proper service. You take no chance.

Let us prove, by actual demonstration in your home, what the Rogers will do, and show you why it is the best.

Buying on the Installment Plan

PURCHASING commodities by paying "a dollar down and a dollar a week" has grown into great popularity. Often the object purchased is worn out before it is paid for, and the purchaser continues to pay. Buy yourself a fortune on the installment plan by placing regular installments of your earnings in a Standard Bank savings account. The money is always available for use if required, and there is no depreciation, but accruing interest as time goes on.

AN EARLY BANK OF MONTREAL "TOKEN"

FOUNDED before Canada had any currency of its own, the Bank of Montreal early obtained authorization from the Government to issue copper tokens for small change.

Reproduced herewith are the two sides of the "Bouquet" token, one of the earliest coins issued by the Bank. The intermingling of the rose, shamrock and thistle indicates the three branches of the British people—the English, Scotch and Irish—while the use of English on one side of the coin and French on the other is significant of the mingling of the two races in this country.

"Trade and Agriculture" indicates the early connection of the Bank with both urban and rural life in Canada.

Throughout its long history the Bank of Montreal has always been active in serving the financial needs of all the people.

Monsieur Beaucaire

BY BOOTH TARKINGTON

Author of "The Gentleman From Indiana" and "The Conquest of Canaan."

Copyright, 1900, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

CHAPTER I.

The young Frenchman did very well what he had planned to do. His guess that the duke would be ill-bred proved good. As the unshod half dozen figures that had been standing noiselessly in the entryway stole softly in to the shadows of the chamber he leaned across the table and smilingly plucked a card out of the big Englishman's sleeve.

"Merci, M. le Duc!" he laughed, rising and stepping back from the table.

The Englishman cried out, "It means the dirty work of silencing you with my bare hands!" and came at him.

"Do not move," said M. Beaucaire, so sharply that the other paused. "Observe behind you."

The Englishman turned and saw what trap he had blundered into, then stood transfixed, impotent, alternately pallid with rage and white with vilest shame of discovery. M. Beaucaire remarked, indicating the silent figures by a polite wave of the hand, "It is not a compliment to monsieur that I procure six large men to subdue him? They are quite devote to me, and monsieur is alone. Could it be that he did not wish even his lackeys to know he play the yong Frenchman who Meestaire Nash does not like in the pomp room? Monsieur is unfortunate to have come on foot and alone to my apartment."

The duke's mouth foamed over with chaotic revilement. His captor smiled brightly and made a slight gesture, as one who brushes aside a boisterous insect. With the same motion he quelled to stony quiet a resentful impetus of his servants toward the Englishman.

"It's murder, is it, you carrion!" finished the duke.

M. Beaucaire lifted his shoulders in a mock shiver. "What words! No, no, no! No killing! To such word to a high host! No, no; not murder; only disgrace!" He laughed a clear, light laugh with a rising inflection, seeming to launch himself upon an adventurous quest for sympathy.

"You little devilish seullion!" spat out the duke.

"Tut, tut! But I forgot. Monsieur has pursue' his studies of deportment amongs' his fellow countrymen."

"Do you dream a soul in Bath will take your word that I—that you—"

"That M. le Duc de Winterset had a card up his sleeve?"

"You pitiful strutter, you stable boy, born in a stable!—"

"Is it not an honor to be born where monsieur must have been bred?"

"You scurvy foothoy, you greasy barber, you cutthroat groom!"—

"Overwhelm'!" The young man bowed with imperturbable elation. "M. le Duc appoint' me to all the office' of his household."

"You manikined fool, there are not five people of quality in Bath will speak to you!—

"No, monsieur, not on the parade; but how many come to play with me here? Because my will play always, night or day, for what one will, for any long and al-ways fair, monsieur."

"You outrageous varlet. Every one knows you came to England as the French ambassador's barber. What man of fashion will listen to you?—Who will believe you?"

"All people, monsieur. Do you think I have not calculate', that I shall make a failure of my little enterprise?"

"Bah!"

"Will monsieur not reseat himself?" M. Beaucaire made a low bow. "So. We must not be too tire' for Lady Malbourne's rout. His, ha! And you, Jean, Victor, and you others, retire. Go in the hallway. Attend at the entrance, hein? So. Now we shall talk. Monsieur, I wish you to think very cool. Then listen; I will be briefe. It is that I am well fortune' to be all, entire' hones'. Gambliste? Ah, yes, true and most profitable, but fair—al-ways fair. Every one say that. Is it not so? Think of it. And—is there a single one to come to M. le Duc that not all people belief him to play al-ways hones'? His, ha! Did I almos' he said 'em las' year, when he play' with Milor' Tarpsin'fort at the chocolate house—"

"You dirty scandal monger!" the duke burst out. "I'll!"—

"Monsieur, monsieur!" said the Frenchman. "It is a poor valor to insult a helpless captor. Can he retort upon his own virtue? But it is for you to think of what I say. True, I am not reco'nise on the parade; that my frien's who come here do not present me to their ladies: that Meestaire Nash has rebuff' me in the pomp room. Still, am I not known for being hones' and fair in my play, and will I not be call on ear of M. de Mirepoix, and he know' I never lie. Not a gentleman will play you when you come to Paris."

The Englishman's white lip showed a row of scarlet dots upon it. "How much do you want?" he said.

The room rang with the gay laughter of Monsieur. "I play for fair, for seven hunder' pound'. You can have them, monsieur. Why does a rich great man—" He clapped M. Beaucaire? Because no one else will let to play it. le Duc—he cannot pay. His, ha! So he come' to good M. Beaucaire. Money—his, ha! What I want with money?"

His grace of Winterset's features were set awry in a sinister pattern. He sat glaring at his companion in a snarling silence.

"Money? Pouf!" snapped the little gambler. "No, no no! It is that M. le Duc, impeverish', somewhat in a bad odor as he is, yet command the entree any-where—unless"— His, ha! Eh, monsieur?"

"Ha! You dare thinke to force me"—

M. Beaucaire twirled the tip of his slender mustache around the end of his white forefinger. Then he said, "Monsieur and me goin' to Lady Malbourne's ball to-night—M. le Duc and me."

The Englishman roared, "Curse your impudence!"

"Sit quiet. Oh, yes, that's all. We goin' together."

"No!"

"Certain. I make all my little plan'. 'Tis all arrange'." He paused and then said gravely, "You goin' present me to Lady Mary Carlisle."

The other laughed in utter scorn. "Lady Mary Carlisle, of all women alive, would be the first to prefer the devil to a man of no birth, barber."

"'Tis all arrange'; have no fear. Nobody question monsieur's guest. You goin' take me to-night"—

"No!"

"Yes. And after—then I have the entree. Is it much I ask? This one

"Merci, M. le Duc!" he laughed.

little favor, and I never w'isper, never breathe that—it is not a sin forever silent of monsieur's misfortune."

"You have the entree!" sneered the other. "Go to a lackeys' rout and flang with the kitchen maids. If I would, I could not present you to Bath society. I should have cartels from the fathers, brothers and mothers of every wench and madam in the place, even I. You would be thrust from Lady Malbourne's door five minutes after you entered it."

"No, no, no!"

"Halt the gentlemen in Bath have been here to play. They would know you, wouldn't they, fool? You've had thousands out of Bantison, Rakell, Guilford and Townshake. They would have you lashed by the grooms as your ugly deserts are. You to speak to Lady Mary Carlisle! Odd's blood! You! Also, dolt, she would know you if you escaped the others. She stood within a yard of you when Nash expelled you the pump room."

M. Beaucaire flushed slightly. "You think I did not see?" he asked.

"Do you dream that because Winterset introduce a low fellow he will be tolerated—that Bath will receive a barber?"

"I have the distinction to call monsieur's attention," replied the young man gayly; "I have renounce that profession."

"Fool!"

"I am now a man of honor!"

"Faugh!"

"A man of the parts," continued the young Frenchman, "and of deportment. Is it not so? Have you seen me of a fluster or gross ever, of, what shall I say—bourgeois? Shall you be shame' for your guest' manner? No, no! And my appearance, is it of the people? Clearly no. Do I not compare in taste of apparel with your young Englishman? Ha, ha! To be hope'. Ha, ha; So I am goin' talk with Lady Mary Carlisle."

"Bah!" The duke made a savage burlesque. "'Lady Mary Carlisle, wot I'm going to sing' Have you England have teach' me I have those vulgar desire'. Monsieur, I am goin' to tell you a secret. The ladies of your country are very diff'runt than ours. One may adore the demoiselle, one must worship the lady of England. Our ladies have the—it is the beauty of youth. Yours even comely at thirty. Ours are flowers. Yours are stars. See, I betray myself. I am a voior a patriot. And there is one among these stars—ah, yes, there is one—the poor Frenchman has observe' from his humble distance. Even there he could bask in the glowing'" M. Beaucaire turned to the window and looked out into the dark. "He did not see the lights of the town. When he turned again he had half forgotten his prisoner. Other pictures were before him.

"Ah, what radiance!" he cried. "Those people up over the sky, they want to show they with the earth so be happy, so they smile and make this lady. Gold haired, an angel of heaven, and yet a Diana of the chase! I see her fly by me on her great horse one day. She touch his mane with her fingers. I buy that clipping from the groom. I have it here with my dear brother's picture, you see! Oh, yes, you laugh! What do you know? 'Twas all I could get. I have not heard of the endeavor of M. le Duc to recoup his fortunes. This alliance of Lady Mary is the way—that heritage shall be safe' from him! It is you and me, monsieur! You can laugh! The war is over for you and me. There is one great step taken. Until to-night there was nothing for you but to ruin. To-morrow you have pot a noble of France—your own profere—to dance and sack. And you are to lose, because you think such ruin easy and because you understand nothing—for less—of divinity. How could you know? You have not the fiber. The heart of a lady is a thing to you. You know nothing of the vibration. There are some words that were made only to tell of Lady Mary, for her alone—bellisima divine, glorieuse! Ah, how I have wish' her! It is sad to me when I see her surround' by your yo'ng captains, your nobles, your ruin'—your beaux—ha, ha!—and I mus' hol' far aloof. It is sad for me, but oh, just' to watch her and to wonder! Strange it is, but I have almos' cry out with rapture at a look I have see' her give another man, so beautiful it was, so tender, so dazzling of the eyes and so mirthful of the lips. Ah, divine coquetry! A look for another, ah-i-me, for many others! and even to you one day a rose, while I—I, monsieur, could not even be so blessed as to be the groom' beneath her little shoe! But to-night, monsieur—ha, ha!—to-night, monsieur, you and me, two princes, M. le Duc de Winterset and M. le Duc de Chateaurien—ha, ha! You see? We are goin' arm in arm to that ball, and I am goin' have one of those looks —I! And a rose! I! It is time. But ten minute', monsieur. I make my apology to keep you waitin' so long while I go in the nex' room and execute my pour mustachio—that will be my only murder for jus' this one evening—and invg' myself in white satin. Ha, ha! I shall be very gran', monsieur. Francois, send Louis to me. Victor, to order two chairs for monsieur and me. We are goin' out in-the worl' to-night!"

CHAPTER II.

The chairmen swarmed in the street at Lady Malbourne's door, where the joyous vulgar fought with muddled Frenchmen and spay link boys for places of vantage whence to catch a glimpse of quality and of raiment at its utmost. Dawn was in the east, and the guests were departing. Singly or in pairs, glittering in finery, they came mincing down the steps, the ghost of the night's ambrk fading to jadedness as they sought the dark recesses of their chairs. From within sounded the twang of fiddles still swincing manfully at it, and the windows were bright with the light of many candles. When the door was flung open to call the chair of Lady Mary Carlisle there was an eager pressure of the throng to see.

A small, fair gentleman in white satin came out upon the steps, turned and bowed before a lady who appeared in the doorway, a lady whose royal loveliness was given to view for a moment in that glowing frame. The crowd sent up a hearty English cheer for the beauty of Bath.

The gentleman smiled upon them delightedly. "What enchanting people!" he cried. "Why did I not know, that I was about' with them?" The lady noticed the people not at all. Wherwell, being pleased, the people cheered again. The gentleman offered her his hand. She made a slow courtesy; placed the tips of her fingers upon his own. "I am honored, M. de Chateaurien," she said.

"No!" he cried earnestly. Behol' a poor Frenchman whom emporors should envy." Then reverently and with the pride of his gallant office vibrant in every line of his light figure, invested in white and satin and very grand, as he had prophesied, M. le Duc de Chateaurien handed Lady Mary Carlisle down the steps, an achievement which had figured in the ambitions of seven other gentlemen during the evening.

"Am I to be left in such onhappiness?" he said in a low voice. "That rose! I have beg' for so long"—

"Never!" said Lady Mary.

"Ah, I do not deserve it, I know it well! But"—

"Never!"

"It is the greatness of my onworthiness that make me say daring your charity. Let your kin' heart give this little red rose; this great alms, to the poor beggar."

"Never!"

She was seated in the chair. "Ah, give the rose," he whispered. Her beauty shone dazzlingly on him out of the dimness.

"Never!" she flashed defiantly as she was closed in. "Never!"

"Ah!"

"Never!"

The rose fell at his feet.

"A rose lasts till morning," said a voice behind him.

Turning, M. de Chateaurien looked beamingly upon the face of the Duke of Winterset.

"'Tis already the daylight," he replied, pointing to the east. "Monsieur, was it not enough honor for you to han' out madame, the sunt of Lady Mary? Lady Rellerton retain' much trace of beauty. 'Tis strange you did not appear more happy."

"The rose is of an unlucky color, I think," observed the duke.

"The color of a blush, my brother."

"Unlucky, I still maintain," said the other calmly.

"The color of the veins of a Frenchman. Ha, ha!" cried the young man. "What price would be too high? A rose is a rose! A good night, my brother, a good night. I am full' of dreams of roses, red roses, only beautiful red, red roses!"

"Stay!: Did you see the look she gave these street folk when they shouted for her? And how are you higher than they, when she knows? As high as yonder horse boy?"

"Red roses, my brother, only roses. I wish you dreams of red, red roses!"

CHAPTER III.

'Twas well agreed by the fashion of Bath that M. le Duc de Chateaurien was a person of sensibility and heart too, that his retinue and equipage surpassed in elegance, that his person

These Two Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ayer's Cliff, Quebec. — "I have been teaching for three years, and at the end of the year I always feel tired and have no appetite. I was awful sick each month, too, having pains in my back until sometimes I was obliged to stop working. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I heard many women telling how good it was so I thought it would help me. And it did. Now I take six bottles every year and recommend it to others." — DONALDA FARTEUX, Ayer's Cliff, Quebec.

"Unable to Work"

Canning, Nova Scotia.—"I had irregular periods and great suffering at those times, the pains causing vomiting and fainting. I was teaching school and often for some hours I would be unable to attend to my work. Through an advertisement in the papers I knew of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has been of great benefit to me, the troubles being completely relieved." —LAURA J. EATON, Canning, King's County, Nova Scotia. C

Special Courses Being Held This Week.

A Course in Agriculture commenced on Tuesday morning in the Council Chamber, with twenty young men attending. Classes under the direction of J. Laughland and A. A. Werner are held each day from 9.30 till 4. This Friday afternoon there will be a special lecture on "Bees", by Mr. A. N. Ure, of Roseland. On Thursday, Feb. 9th, Dr. John Spencer, of Bowmanville, will be present to take up the subject of "Veterinary Science". Older farmers who are interested, as well as the young men in regular attendance, are invited to attend these special lectures. Fifteen girls are attending the Courses in Domestic Science and Sewing, conducted by Miss McManus, of Thistletown, and Miss Rolston, of Hamilton. Napanee Women's Institute has cooperated with the Department of Agriculture in arranging these Courses.

Extra Added Attraction, Famous Scotch Comedian, Jack F. Elder.

A treat is in store for the patrons of Wonderland Theatre, on February 8th and 9th. On these two nights Jack F. Elder, Canada's Own Favorite Singer of Scottish Songs, will appear here. The versatility of this artist is of the highest class. His program is varied in numbers in such a way as to bring to the audience the best entertainment possible. We cannot speak too highly of his costumed sketch numbers, his laughter, his hearty, wholesouled way of saying things in the Scotch dialect is infectious. His repertiore includes both ancient and modern classical and popular songs. Mr. Elder has a very pleasing personality and stage appearance, is very much adapted for this work, being a true blooded Scotchman, with a natural Scotch accent. His costumes are unique, plaids seldom used by artists in concert or theatrical work. They are a delight to look at; their dazzling brightness is wonderful. Keep the dates in mind. The engagement is for two days only. Admission, adults 35c., children 20c. 5a

Accomplished Blind Organist at Trinity Church

As Mr. H. Treneer, A.T.C.M., the blind organist of King St. Church, Oshawa, felt his way to the Trinity Church organ last Sunday morning, the words of Richard King, who devoted a large share of the profits of his three books, "Over the Fireside with Silent Friends," to "St. Dunstan's Hostel for the Blind," came to the mind of the writer of these notes. The sight of a blind man touches me more deeply than anything else in the whole world. Knowing them as I do and loving them so well, I cannot see a blind man in the street without desiring to raise my hat in humility and respect. For the courage of the blind is greater than any courage shown on the field of battle. It passeth all understanding. And it endureth—yes, that is the tragedy of it all—it endureth until the end of life." How praiseworthy then, is the achievement of a man whose world is limited to the reach of his hands and hearing, who has made himself accomplished in the fine art of music. For that is what Mr. Treneer has done. The manner in which he led the service of praise, his recital at the organ before the evening service, and his rendering of vocal solos at both services, were greatly admired by the splendid congregations which had been drawn to hear him. The recital numbers were: Toccata, by Guilmant; Allegretto Pastorale, by Gaul; Overture to Stradella, by Von Floten, Improvisation on the hymn, "Silent Night." Mr. Treneer's accomplishment last Sunday is more noteworthy in view of the fact that Trinity Church organ is constructed differently from the organ on which he plays each Sunday in Oshawa. He was greatly indebted to Miss Katherine Baird for familiarizing him with the mechanical control of the organ, and the arrangement of the stops. Miss Baird, with characteristic distinction, also played the organ accompaniments to his vocal solos at both services. These were: At the morning service "Open the Gates of the Temple," and at the evening service, "The Ninety and Nine." The choir merits great praise for their work at both services in their rendering of the anthems: "Just as I Am," "The Radiant Morn," and "Now the Day is Over." Mr. Treneer is a resident of Toronto, and organist of King St. Church, Oshawa, of which Rev. C. W. DeMille is minister. His visit here, and that of Prof. Baird to direct the service of praise and give an organ recital at King St., Oshawa, were arranged by the Musical Committees of both churches. Whilst in Napanee Mr. Treneer was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vandervoort.

Historical Society Lecture.

Prof. P. G. C. Campbell is always a favourite with a Napanee audience and on Friday he will be here to lecture before the Historical Society. He has a new set of lantern slides on the Chateaux of France. Dr. Campbell is an outstanding French scholar, who hasn't allowed his scholarship to rob him of his humor and his touch with a popular audience. He will lecture in the Historical Hall, over the Public Library, at eight o'clock on Friday, February 3rd. No admission fee.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR FOR LENNOX AND ADDINGTON MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE CO.

The fifty-first annual meeting of the Lennox and Addington Mutual Fire Insurance Company was held in the Council Chamber, Napanee, on Saturday, January 28th, 1928.

The President, Mr. A. C. Parks, presided, and in opening the meeting, congratulated the policy holders on the Company's splendid showing for the year 1927.

The Auditors' Report was presented to the meeting by Mr. Wm. M. Sills, and showed cash on hand amounting to $9016.63, and total assets of over $100,000.00. There were $3,495,160.00 of insurance in force on Dec. 31st, 1927, and the number of policies in force was 1364. The two retiring Directors, Messrs. A. Hartman and M. N. Empey, were re-elected, no other names being placed in nomination.

Messrs. Wm. M. Sills and S. C. S. McKim were re-elected Auditors.

General satisfaction was expressed by the policy holders present with the excellent progress made by the Company. The assets were the greatest in the Company's history, and placed the Company in the front rank of the Mutuals in Ontario.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors of the Company, Mr. A. C. Parks was elected President, and Mr. Albert Hartman Vice President for the year 1928.

CAMDEN EAST WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The January meeting of Camden East Women's Institute was held at Mrs. George Black's, on January 26th, with fourteen members in attendance. In answer to an appeal for aid in maintaining a doctor at Tobermory, (that isolated district on the north of Bruce Peninsula), the members voted the sum of five dollars to be sent at once.

At this meeting it was decided to give an oyster supper to those who took part in the play, "Deacon Dubbs". This event will take place on Thursday evening, February 2nd, at Mr. and Mrs. A. Rikbury's home. We cannot let this opportunity pass without thanking those who so kindly took parts in, and assisted with, the play, and the large and appreciative audience which made it such a huge success financially. "The best play ever seen in Camden East", "The largest audience we ever saw in a play in this village", "Didn't know we had such talent here", "The players were well chosen for the parts", "Couldn't have acted the parts better had they been professionals", were some remarks heard on all sides after the play. We heartily agree with the sentiments expressed in these quotations, and must say that if you want an evening's real enjoyment with lots of laughs, see the play, "Deacon Dubbs", acted by our players.

Our February meeting will be held at Mrs. C. Boulton's, on the last Thursday of the month. Roll call to be answered by "Suggestions for Next Year's Programme". It is hoped that each will give this careful thought so the suggestions will be a great help to our programme committee in planning our first yearly programme.

REV. FR. T. P. O'CONNOR PASSES.

Rev. Father T. P. O'Connor, for over twenty-two years Parish Priest of Napanee, died at St. Patrick's Presbytery, Napanee, on Wednesday morning, following an illness of only three days.

The late Father O'Connor was born in Kingston 72 years ago and was ordained to the Priesthood at Montreal 42 years ago. For about twenty years he had charge of the Parishes at Stanleyville and Kemptville respectively. In Napanee he was highly esteemed not only by the members of his own parish but the citizens in general. One sister, Mrs. Oldsin, of Kingston, survives.

The funeral will be held at St. Patrick's Church, Napanee, this (Friday) morning, with Archbishop Spratt, of the Archdiocese of Kingston, pontificating at the requiem high mass. Brother priests from the whole diocese will also be in attendance. Following the requiem services, the body will be taken to Kingston for interment in the family plot.

TOWN COUNCIL

Council Chamber,
Friday 6th, 1927.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening.

In the absence of Mayor Roy, the chair was occupied by Coun. Tustin.

Present—Reeve Boyes and Councillors Simpson, Daly, Kimmerly, Loucks and Dugan.

Minutes of last regular and special session were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from Mr. H. Chambers, asking for an increase of salary for his services as truck driver of the Fire Department.

Laid on the table until later in the evening.

Communications were read from J. LeMaistre and Wm. Morris, applying for the position of caretaker of the Harvey Warner Park.

Referred to the Parks Committee, with power to act.

A communication was read from the Bell Telephone Co., asking permission to attach a cable to the front of the fire hall building. The idea is to run a cable along the buildings on the north side of the market and thus do away with some of the poles.

Permission granted subject to the power of revocation at any time by Council.

A deputation from the Napanee Citizens' Band appeared before the Council, seeking information as to the possible amount of the donation the Council will be giving to the Band this year. Last year they were given $275.00, but the deputation were of the opinion that the grant this year should be $350.00.

Moved by Coun. Ungar, seconded by Coun. Daly, that a grant of $350.00 be given the Citizens' Band for 1928. Carried.

In motion of Coun. Kimmerly, seconded by Coun. Simpson, Mr. Frank Marcelo was appointed custodian of the instruments used by the Band and owned by the town.

A communication was read from the L.O.B.A., asking for the use of the Town Hall for the purpose of holding a dance on February 17th. They were willing to pay the caretaker's cost, but would like a rebate on the balance of the rental fee. Owing to the fire in the Rennie Block, they suffered a considerable loss, and are taking this means to raise funds.

Request granted.

Mr. J. Simpson, of Belleville, an architect by profession, asked that the Council keep his name in mind when the alterations are to be made on the Town Hall. He would like the position of overseeing the work.

Coun. Simpson, Chairman of the Finance Committee, presented the Treasurer's monthly statement.

Report adopted.

Mr. Mulholland, of the Hydro Electric Commission, addressed the Council on the question of a new lighting system for Dundas street. Considerable information was offered and the result will be that the Hydro Electric Commission will furnish the town with an estimate for the cost of additional lights on Dundas street.

Coun. Kimmerly, of the Town Property Committee, reported, asking for further time to report in reference to repairs to the fire hall. Also that a new furnace has been installed in the Public Library building at a cost of $250.00.

The Police Committee, to whom was referred the Chief Constable's report, recommended:—1st. That all working By-laws be made available for the use of Police; 2nd, That 18 enamel signs be secured for use on Dundas street; 3rd, reference to parking from 6 to 12 p.m. on Saturday evenings, allowing 15 minutes parking only; 3rd, In reference to carter's stand, that the Campbell House yards were available, and would be the carter's stand; 4th, Other items referred back to committee for a further report.

The By-law for providing the sum of $12,000 for improvement to the Town Hall, was given its third reading and finally passed.

A By-law providing for the borrowing of $50,000 from the Standard Bank for current use, to meet the current expenses of the town, was given its several readings and finally passed.

The Committee of the Chambers for increase of salary, together with the question of the purchase of some new fire equipment, was referred to the Fire and Water Committee for a report.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Kimmerly, that the Clerk be instructed to write the Kingston Fire Department, expressing to them the Council's appreciation of the promptness of their reply when appealed to for assistance at the time of the destruction of the Rennie Block by fire. Also that an honorarium of $5.00 per man, for the five firemen who came to Napanee, accompany the letter. Carried.

OUR NEW WARDEN

Arthur Charles Tummon, the newly elected Warden of the County of Lennox and Addington for the year 1928, was born in 1890, in the County of Hastings. He has lived at Selby for the past thirteen years, where he has built up a large veterinary practice throughout the district. He has taken a leading part in many activities in the County. Mr. Tummon was elected Reeve of Richmond Township in 1920, 1921, and 1927, and in 1928 was returned by acclamation. This is the first time in forty years that a Reeve and Council in Richmond have been returned by acclamation. Mr. Tummon is the first Reeve of Richmond to be honored by the position of Warden of the County since 1885, when Mr. Thos. V. Sexsmith held that office, although Mr. R. W. Paul and Mr. M. C. Bogart, as representatives of the Napanee County Council Division which included the Township of Richmond, were Wardens in the years 1904 and 1906 respectively. Mr. Tummon is a cousin of W. E. Tummon, M.P. of Tweed, federal member for Hastings. In 1927 he was Chairman of the County Roads Commission. It was in this year that the County of Lennox and Addington made a start in the building of permanent roads, something that this County has needed for some time.

THE POULTRY BANQUET

The annual banquet of the Napanee Poultry Association was held on Friday last at the Palsley House, and served another great success, not only in having a very popular speaker as the guest of the evening, Dr. Barnes, of Ottawa Dominion staff, but also a splendid turnout, as the spacious dining hall was well filled with the poultry men and their wives and guests, who were treated to a very splendid supper of roasted milk fed chicken and all the fixing, put on by our host Fitzpatrick, and his very capable wife and staff, in a very creditable and attractive manner.

At the head table were seated the following officers of the Association, and their guests:—Honorary Presidents, Dr. Ming, M.P.P.; Geo. Fralick, John Hayes; President, Ray Perry; Vice-President, M. B. Mills; Treasurer, Geo. Knox; the speaker of the evening, Dr. Barnes; Mr. Laugiland, Agricultural Representative of Lennox; Rev. R. J. Dunbrille, M.A., C. Hambly, ex-M.P.P., P. Gleeson, President of Chamber of Commerce; W. Wiggins, Secretary Chamber of Commerce; T. B. Wallace, and last but not least, our genial Secretary of the Lennox Pair, J. L. Boyes, who made the hit of the evening in his speech, replete with facts, figures, geniality and a quaint humor, which kept his audience in roars of laughter, and incidently gave the Poultry Association no stinted praise for the work they are doing in building up the poultry business and helping to make the Lennox Pair surpass all its past efforts this year.

Having regaled ourselves on the splendid repast, the President welcomed Dr. Barnes, in a few well chosen remarks, who rose to the occasion and delivered a very unique and splendid address, giving much practicable and useful information, couched in his usual masterly and attractive fashion, with just enough stories and humor thrown in to make good entertainment and a desire to welcome him again. Limited space prevents a full report of his splendid speech. But a few subjects touched on were the wonderful resources of Canada, especially in poultry, and a great future for the business of our strategic position being in the heart of the best producing section, and our great market, being the largest poultry fair in the Dominion right at our own door, built up by many years of close attention to selection and breeding of suitable poultry, and painstaking in feeding and everything pertaining until our experience is noted the province over, for her quality output of milk fed, crate fattened poultry.

He also mentioned the Chinchilla rabbit craze as a branch well worth taking up, as a great future is in sight, owing to the lessening supply of wild fur and the increasing demand for fur garments, etc. Many poultry men have already taken it up and are making good money.

On motion of M. B. Mills, seconded by Jack Hayes, a vote of thanks was tendered the speaker, who in a neat reply told the audience that he was always glad to come to Napanee as he meets with no better reception anywhere than in Napanee, and the attention given and hearty appreciation of him on to his very best effort.

Will "God Save the King", our most successful banquet came to a close.

THE COMMITTEE.

NEWBURGH

The February meeting of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church at Newburgh was held at the home of Mrs. Quail on Wednesday, 1st February. A large number of ladies were present to hear the report of the Belleville Presbyterial meeting, held in Picton a short time ago. The President had charge of the meeting, and after the opening devotional service and the routine business, Mrs. Perry gave an interesting account of the sessions held Tuesday, January 24th, when much business was carried through and reports received. Miss Joy Paul, of Newburgh, gave a paper on "Mission Circle Work," a group of girls from Picton Mission Band presented a beautiful exercise, and Miss Minnie Shipley, of Honan, China, spoke of conditions in that land. She gave several instances of the dark and the bright side of her work, and said that though along the border things are changing in the hills child marriage, foot binding, and other old customs have still to be dealt with. Miss H. M. Paul summarized the sessions of the second day. One of the periods of special interest and blessing was the Quiet Half Hour, taken by Mrs. (Dr.) Bishop, of Belleville, and again the Presbyterial had the privilege of hearing Miss Shipley, and others. The President spoke of the slogan: "Every woman in our church a member of the Auxiliary", which is yet far from being reached. The Presbyterial is to meet in Trenton next year. After thanking the ladies for their full and splendid concise reports, a meeting was dismissed, to meet in March at the home of Mrs. Courtney.

Mr. and Mrs. Wales entertained a number of her friends on Monday evening.

Quarterly services of the Free Methodist Church will be held at Odessa the last of the week.

Mrs. Ward Wartman spent the week-end with her parents at Moscow.

Mr. D. Bowerman is spending the week at Stillwell.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Dunwoody spent Monday evening at Camden East at the home of Mr. Lawrence.

Mrs. Pillar is recovering from her recent severe illness.

Mrs. L. Weese, of Switzerville, is the guest of her granddaughter, Mrs. Hubert Wartman, Wesley.

Not in a long time has the village been so grieved as they were on Friday evening last, when the sad news of the death of Miss Madelon Hinch was made known. The whole community sympathize with Mrs. Hinch and her two daughters in this very sad bereavement.

Mr. Clare Paul is busy drawing logs to the sawmill.

Proverbs 12 : 2—A good man obtaineth favor of the Lord, but a man of wicked devices will He condemn.

Mr. J. E. Shorey, of Toronto, was a recent caller on his mother, Mrs. S. Shorey.

On Thursday evening, at the close of the Prayer service, the members of the United Church Sunday School took occasion of it being the anniversary of Mrs. J. W. Courtney's birth, and also that just now after a great many years as teacher of the Primary class, she is relinquishing her position as teacher, to present her with an electric table lamp, with the following address:

Dear Mrs. Courtney,—Allow us to congratulate you and Mr. Courtney on this occasion of the anniversaries of your birth. Your friends sincerely wish you many happy returns of the day", and the continued enjoyment of good health. We have only one regret and that is you feel that you must relinquish the task of teaching the Primary Class, with which for so many years you have been associated. The Sunday School staff of officers and teachers are very sorry, and if it had been possible would gladly have had you recall your resignation. Many in our Sunday School began their Sunday School career in your Primary Class. In summer and winter, in sunshine and in storm no one has been more faithful and punctual in the attendance and performance of duty than yourself.

Now we hope that if you feel yourself unable to assume the burden of continued teaching, we may yet have your presence in our Ladies' Adult Class.

To show you that your fellow members of the Sunday School and teaching staff most surely appreciate your services and your own self, we ask you to accept this electric table lamp, hoping that it will help you to enjoy more than ever your evenings at home and add to your pleasure in reading. So too, may the light that cometh from above lighten all your days.

Signed on behalf of the Sunday School.

Rev. T. H. P. Anderson,
Pastor.
T. G. Cook,
Secretary.
S. S. Superintendent.

The presentation was made by little Miss May Holden, one of the members of Mrs. Courtney's class, assisted by Mrs. S. Vanderwater.

The young people of the Mission Circle are very busy, making ready for their Valentine social on Tuesday evening next.

Ernest—"Yeh! I did with mine and she skipt."

Isaac met Aaron as he was walking along the street, and their conversation turned to the Sabbath.

"Oh, by the way," said Isaac, "I dropped half a sovereign in the plate at the synagogue last week."

"Did you," answered Aaron, astonished. "Vat vas the matter with it?"

"I must call John by Long Distance and let him know I got here all right. Then neither of us will be worrying. It's wonderful to be able to visit you like this, and yet keep so close touch with home as if I were there. What must it have been like in the old days, before Long Distance made it possible?

"I'll place the call for you while you are taking off your wraps."

"That will be fine. Just ask for our number, 124, so I'll get the cheaper Station-to-Station rate. In a couple of days I'll call up again, in the evening, so I can have a few words with the children, too. The Evening Rate after 8.30 is really very low."

John Norman's Opportunity.

By C. R. Frame.

Copyrighted, 1927, by E. C. Parcells.

The hands of the city clock pointed to 6, and the streets leading to the station fairly hummed with life. Suburban shoppers, business folk and the idle minority were all homeward bound. Electric trains whirred and clanged in every direction, and eager crowds surged into them.

"Rosedale! Rosedale!" shouted the starter.

Helen Grey gathered her suit case, string bag and Boston fern and made at the seat's end. A brass curtain rod which she was carrying prodded him sharply in the ribs. She turned to apologize, but the words died on her lips when she found herself confronted by the baser face of "the enemy." With a brief word she drew the offending rod into place and tried to edge away from him.

He had passed her early in the morning bound city-ward in his motor car. She had encountered him a number of times during the day and when she had committed her one extravagance, lunch at Madam's, he, too, had sauntered in and had seated himself at a window table beside her. The enjoyment of her lunch was spoiled by the scrutiny of John Norman's gray eyes.

The feud between the Normans and Greys was of the fine, unreasonable New England type. There had been real cause for grievance at the outset, two generations back, but when the strife of this had. She was profoundly grateful for the cool, matter of fact way in which he took her rigid bearing again, and all of Rosedale that was riding home in that special car craned its neck in intense enjoyment at what was going on.

The motorman, angry at the delay, clanged the bell with furious insistence, and the conductor's sharp "Hurry up, hurry up, lady; don't keep the car waiting!" added still further to her nervous embarrassment.

John Norman's clear voice rang out. "Wait a minute, conductor," in the tone of one used to being obeyed. The conductor had a profound respect for Mr. John Norman and ran forward to stop the clanging bell. In the meantime Norman had produced his pocket-knife and had cut the knotted lacing his and hers. She gave a confused murmur of thanks, and Norman, instantly catching up the parcels, followed her out. There was no word of protest, and his sympathetic glance revealed quivering lips and big brown eyes suffused with tears.

The car whirred away, and a faint echo of laughter was borne back. It was the last straw.

"Fools!" he ejaculated, while the girl leaned against a nearby wall and sobbed till the tears ran down her cheeks.

The vagaries of women were beyond his comprehension, and he looked his bewilderment, standing mutely, with suit case, dangling string bag and pot of fern.

"Please, please forgive me," she pleaded. "I cannot imagine how I came to do such a stupid thing."

He liked the pleading tone and the kindly way in which she looked at him. "It was a happy mistake for me," he said eagerly, "and I hope that we may be friends."

She had an inkling that there was more than the thought of good fellowship in his mind as he held her hand in a lingering good night.

Some months later Mrs. John Norman, looking particularly pretty and charming, leaned across the dinner table and put a pertinent question to her husband.

"John, do you remember the evening that I tied myself to you?"

"Of course I do. Is it likely that I should forget anything so delightful?"

She hesitated. "I've been thinking"—Color came to her face. "John, did you know that I tied that string to yours?"

Norman leaned back in his chair and chuckled.

"Of course I did. Why, didn't I tell you, dearest? Do you think that after watching and waiting for months to make your acquaintance I would throw aside such an opportunity? You tied yourself to me, and I knew it a significant omen for our happy future."

HE LOOKED HIS BEWILDERMENT, STARED AND SMILED.

GOOSE RAISING ON THE FARM

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Goose raising is a very profitable side line for the farmer. Essentials to success in this line of poultry farming are proper selection of breed and breeding stock, and free range with an abundance of succulent green food.

The breeds of geese recommended for the farmer are Toulouse, Embden or African. Experiments conducted at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, have proven that the Toulouse is the most desirable breed.

Select one male and two or three good strong females in the autumn and confine the small flock in a suitable house during the winter months. Have all other geese removed from the building if you are making up a new mating.

Feed your geese moderately during the winter months on grains of good quality. About half of the food given during the time snow is on the ground should be green food such as clover or alfalfa hay which has been cut green and cured and stored so as to preserve the leaves. Geese take very kindly to green food and it provides them in no small measure with the vitamins necessary to keep them in a good state of health.

A little extra feeding in early March will stimulate egg production. Laying should commence during March. This providing the spring is beginning to open up. Gather the eggs regularly and keep them in a moderate temperature of about 50 Degrees.

When the goose becomes broody give her about ten eggs and put the balance under hens. Moisten the eggs daily during the 14th day. The period of incubation is 31 days. During that time feed only enough broody birds regularly. Do not disturb the geese at hatching time.

Leave the young brood alone for about ten days after hatching. Place a green sod near the nest to induce them to start feeding of their own accord. Water should also be provided in a shallow pan. Give the goslings moist bread crumbs for the first few feedings and then start with moist mash. Equal parts cornmeal, barley meal, bran and middlings make an excellent mixture.

Feed the goslings about five times daily for the first month, then three times daily. Good succulent pasture should always be available if goose raising is to be made profitable.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

"What is the cure for love at first sight?"

"Second sight."

The Oil at the People.—Many oils have come and gone, but Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil continues to maintain its position and increase its sphere of usefulness each year. Its sterling qualities have brought it to the front and kept it there, and it can truly be called the oil of the people. Thousands have benefited by it and would use no other preparation.

Auntie did not know that Lonny had just received a spanking, so when she found him crying behind the house, she said kindly:

"My dear, what is the matter? Is there anything I can do for you?"

"No," was the tearful response, "it's all been done."

Sores Flee Before It.—There are many who have been afflicted with sores and have driven them away with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. All similarly troubled should lose no time in applying this splendid remedy, as there is nothing like it to be had. It is cheap, but its power is in no way expressed by its low price.

Diner—"What on earth is the matter with you this evening, waiter? You give me the fish first, and then the soup."

Waiter (confidentially)—"Well, to tell the truth, sir, it was 'igh time you 'ad that fish."

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator will drive worms from the system without injury to the child, because its action, while fully effective, is mild.

City Girl—"What's worrying you, Dave, dear?"

Dave—"I was just wonderin' if dad would be sport enough to do th' milkin' w'en we're on our honeymoon a'posin' yeh said 'Yes,' if I asked yer."

Corns are painful growths. Holloway's Corn Remover will remove them.

A well-known medical man expresses the opinion that there is much to be said for the English climate. There is — but we daren't put it in print.

Like a Grip at the Throat. For a disease that is not classed as fatal there is probably none which causes more terrible suffering than asthma. Sleep is impossible, the sufferer becomes exhausted and finally, though the attack passes, is left in unceasing dread of its return. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is a wonderful remedial agent. It immediately relieves the restricted air passages as thousands can testify. It is sold by dealers everywhere.

Wife—"John, there's a tramp in the pantry, and I've just made a pie."

Husband—"Well, I don't mind so long as he doesn't die in the house."

Worms in children work havoc. These pests attack the tender lining of the intestines and, if left to pursue their ravages undisturbed, will ultimately perforate the wall, because these worms are of the hook variety that cling to and feed upon the interior surfaces. Miller's Worm Powders will not only exterminate these worms, of whatever variety, but will serve to repair the injury they have done.

Monsieur Beaucaire

outrage, next to the will to serve you, forms the dearest motive in the heart of the sweetest."

"Bravo!" cried Beaucaire softly.

Lady Mary leaned toward him, a thriving terror in her eyes. "It is false?" she faltered.

"Monsieur should not have been born so high. He could have made little break."

"You mean it is false?" she cried breathlessly.

"Od's blood, is she not convinced?" broke out Mr. Bantison. "Fellow, were you not the ambassador's barber?"

"It is all false?" she whispered.

"The most fine art, mademoiselle. How long you think it take M. de Winterset to learn that speech after he write it out? It is a mix of what is true and the most chaste art. Monsieur has become a man of letters. Perhaps he may enjoy that more than the wars. Ha, ha!"

Mr. Bantison burst into a roar of laughter. "Do French gentlemen fight lackeys? Ho, ho, ho! A pretty country! We English, do as was done tonight—have our servants beat them."

"And attend ourselves," added M. Beaucaire, looking at the duke, "somewhat in the background! But, pardon," he mocked, "that remind' me. Francois, return to Mr. Bantison and those gentlemen their weapons."

"Will you answer a question?" said Molyneux mildly.

"Oh, with pleasure, monsieur."

"Were you ever a barber?"

"No, monsieur," laughed the young man.

"Pah!" exclaimed Bantison. "Let me question him. Now, fellow, a confession may save you from jail. Do you deny you are Beaucaire?"

"Deny to a such judge!"

"Ha!" said Bantison. "What more do you want, Molyneux? Fellow, do you deny that you came to London in the ambassador's suit?"

"No, I do not deny."

"He admits it! Didn't you come as his barber?"

"Yes, my frien', as his barber."

Lady Mary cried out faintly and, shuddering, put both hands over her eyes.

"I'm sorry," said Molyneux. "You fight like a gentleman."

"I thank you monsieur."

"You called yourself Beaucaire?"

"Yes, monsieur." He was swaying to and fro. His servants ran to support him.

"I wish"—continued Molyneux, hesitating. "Evil take me, but I'm sorry you're hurt."

"Assist Sir Hugh into my carriage," said Lady Mary.

"Farewell, mademoiselle!" M. Beaucaire's voice was very faint. His eyes were fixed upon her face. She did not look toward him.

They were propping Sir Hugh on the cushions. The duke rode up close to Beaucaire, but Francois seized his bridle fiercely and forced the horse back on its haunches.

"The man's servants worship him," said Molyneux.

"Curse your insolence!" exclaimed the duke. "How much am I to bear from this varlet and his varlets? Beaucaire, if you have not left Bath by to-morrow noon, you will be clapped into jail, and the lashing you escaped to-night shall be given you three tenfold!"

"I shall be—in the assembly—room at 9—o'clock, monsieur. Provided to-night," answered the young man, faintly, though his lips were colorless. The words cost him nearly all his breath and strength. "You mus' keep—in the backgroun', monsieur. Ha, ha!"

The door of the coach closed with a slam.

"Mademoiselle—fare—well!"

"Drive on!" said Lady Mary.

M. Beaucaire followed the carriage with his eyes. As the noise of the wheels and the hoofs beats of the accompanying cavalcade grew fainter in the distance the handkerchief he had held against his side dropped into the white dust, a heavy red splotch.

"Only—roses," he gasped and fell back in the arms of his servants.

CHAPTER V.

Beau Nash stood at the door of the rooms, smiling blandly upon a dainty throng in the pink of its finery and gay furbelows. The great exquisite's best fin bodi; constantly in a series of consummately adjusted bows—before a great dowager, seeming to sweep the floor in august deference; somewhat stately to the young bucks; greeting the wife with gracious friendliness and a twinkle of raillery; inclining with fatherly gallantry before the beauties; the degree of his inclination measured the altitude of the recipient as accurately as a nicely calculated sand glass measures the hours.

The king of Bath was happy, for wit, beauty, fashion—to speak more concretely, nobles, belles, gamesters, beaux, statesmen and poets — made fairyland (or opera bouffe, at least) in his dominions; play ran higher and higher, and Mr. Nash's coffers filled up with gold. To crown his pleasure a prince of the French blood, the young Comte de Beaujolais, just arrived from Paris, had received Bath at noon in state, accompanied the Marquis de Mirepoix, the ambassador of Louis XV. The two dearly prized the society of the lofty, and the present visit was an honor to Bath, hence to the master of ceremonies. What was better, there would be some profitable hours with the cards and dice. So it was that Mr. Nash smiled never more benignly than on that bright evening. The rooms rang with the silvery voices of women and delightful laughter while the fiddles went merrily, their melodies chiming sweetly with the joyance of his mood.

He still all brazen effrontery of the ambassador's scoundrelly servant in passing himself off for a man of condition formed the point of departure for every conversation. It was discovered that there were but three persons present who had not suspected him from the first; and, by a singular paradox, the most acute of all proved to be old Mr. Bicksit, the traveler, once a visitor at Chateaurien; for he, according to report, had by a coup of diplomacy entrapped the impostor into an admission that there was no such place. However, like poor Captain Badger, the worthy old man had held his peace out of regard for the Duke of Winterset. This nobleman, heretofore secretly disliked, suspected of irregular love at play and never admired, had won admiration and popularity by his remorse for the mistake and by the modesty of his attitude in endeavoring to atone for it, without presuming upon the privilege of his rank to laugh at the indignation of society; in action the more praiseworthy because his exposure of the impostor entailed the disclosure of his own culpability in having stood the villain's sponsor. To-night, the happy gentleman, with Lady Mary Carlisle upon his arm, went grandly about the rooms, sowing and reaping a harvest of smiles. "I was sure work would be begun at once to rebuild the duke's countryseat, while several ruined Jews might be paid out of pocket. People gazing on the beauty and the stately but modest hero by her side said they would make a noble pair. She had long been distinguished by his attentions, and he had come brilliantly out of the episode of the Frenchman, who had been his only real rival. Wherever they went there arose a buzz of pleasing gossip and adulation.

Mr. Nash, seeing them near him, came forward with greetings. A word on the side passed between the nobleman and the exquisite.

"I had news of the rascal to-night," whispered Nash. "He lay at a farm till yesterday, when he disappeared; his ruffians too."

"You have arranged?" asked the duke.

"Fourteen bailiffs are watching without. He could not come within gunshot. If they clap eyes on him, they will hustle him to jail, and his outbreak shall not avail him a hair's weight. The impertinent swore he'd be here by 9, did he?"

"He said so, and 'tis a rash dog, sir."

"It is just 9 now."

"Send out to see if they have taken him."

PREPARATION FOR INCUBATION WORK.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Many are of the opinion that preparing for incubation work is only getting a nest ready for the broody hen or lighting the lamp of an incubator. Instead the preparation should commence with the selecting of suitable breeding birds at least six months before the hatching season. From results of actual tests at the Lennoxville Experimental Station, it has been proven that almost without exception, the chicks from matured hens will be much stronger and develop faster, than those from pullets during their first year of production. It is therefore to be recommended that vigorous healthy birds, which have been good producers during their first year, be selected about October or November, and that these be given a ration which will be most conducive to health without forcing egg production until nearer the hatching season. It is also advisable to make another selection of these birds just previous to hatching season in order to have only the best from which to select eggs for incubation.

Furthermore much depends upon a rigid selection of the eggs for hatching purposes. By using uniform, strong shelled, well shaped eggs, the percentage of chicks hatched is increased and thereby the cost of hatching chicks is reduced. The storing of the eggs for hatching is also responsible for much of the variation noted in hatching results. Overheating the eggs, or keeping them too long before incubating, is very detrimental to best results. While too great chilling is detrimental to unfeehability, eggs will even stand freezing temperatures for short periods without effecting hatching results.

The next step in preparation might be the security of a suitable place for incubation work, whether by broody hens or by incubator. For broody hens, a separate room, well disinfected and free from vermin, must be provided. Dust the birds with some good vermin powder, and remove them at night to their new clean nests. For hatching by incubators, it has been proved that a clean well-ventilated cellar, is much better than an upstairs room for locating the incubator. The moisture of a cellar helps to reduce the percentage of death in shell. All incubators should be thoroughly disinfected before each hatch, and should be in good working order before being entrusted with good hatching eggs.

In summarizing, let us suggest that if more attention were given to preparation, many of the losses during incubation could be considerably reduced.

CAMDEN EAST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The annual business meeting of the Presbyterian congregation, Camden East, was held in the church on Tuesday evening, January 24th.

The meeting was well attended, and practically all those holding office were present. The Pastor, Mr. Moffatt, occupied the chair. Reports were heard from the various branches of the church's work. After meeting all financial obligations, and making a number of voluntary contributions to various funds, the Treasurer's report showed a substantial balance on hand, much beyond the expectations or what had been hoped for. The Sunday School report represented a growth in school attendance, and a balance over all outlay equally gratifying with that of the church.

At a former meeting the repair and improvement of the church outbuildings was undertaken. This work having been completed, the committee in charge reported the expense therewith had been fully met early in the past year. It was then decided to repoint and re-paint and decorate the church proper and a committee was appointed to carry out the congregation's wishes in this respect, and to have done whatever other repairs they in their discretion may deem needful.

In conclusion a social hour was spent, at which refreshments were served by the ladies.

Are You Run-Down?
All That is Needed is a Tonic to Build Up the Blood.

There are many people who have been semi-invalids so long that they accept their condition as a life burden. They have endured nervousness, broken sleep and a generally run-down feeling so long that they have given up hope of again enjoying good health. In most of these cases a well chosen diet, fresh air and a tonic to build up the blood would do wonders. And as a blood-building tonic no other medicine can compare with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. There is scarcely a spot in Canada where you will not find some formerly ailing person who has found new health through the use of this medicine. The experience of Mrs. Thomas Ahearn, St. Malo, Que., bears out these statements. She says:—"I have the greatest reason to be thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I was in a very weak and run-down condition. Frequently I would feel faint and my legs would swell badly. It was almost impossible to do any housework. It seemed as if my blood was turning to water. I took this weak and despondent condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A few boxes proved that they were helping me, but I continued taking the pills until I had used a dozen boxes, by which time I found myself a completely restored woman, able to do my work without fatigue, a better appetite and a sense of cheerfulness, where before I had been despondent. For all this, thanks to the health-giving qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you are feeling run-down, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and new health will be yours. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Deborah Gray.

Mrs. Deborah Gray, widow of Robert Gray, died at the home of her son, Frank Gray, on January 5th, at the ripe age of 83 years.

Deborah, whose maiden name was Deborah Mercum, was born in the Township of Richmond, and resided there until the time of her marriage, in the year 1864, to Robert Gray, taking up their residence in the Township of Ernestown, where they continued to reside until the death of her husband in 1916. Surviving her are three sons, Daniel and Frank, of Richmond Township; John, of Barrie Township; and one daughter, Mrs. John Cook, of Forest Mills.

Her funeral was conducted at the home of her son, Frank, by her Pastor, Rev. J. Batstone, and was largely attended by friends and neighbours, showing the esteem in which she was held in the community. Her remains were interred in the cemetery at Harrowsmith.

Mrs. Gray was a member of the Methodist church for many years, and a faithful and consistent member and friend and neighbour to all in the community where she had resided during all her married life. Her last illness was of short duration, and loving hands ministered to her every need. Her end was peace, and she leaves to those who mourn her loss, the memory of a loving mother and a faithful Christian life.

Can't Talk to Wife, Too Cross and Nervous

"Even my husband couldn't talk to me. I was so cross and nervous. Vinol has made me a different and happy woman."—Mrs. N. McCall.

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. Wallace's Drug Store.

Troubled With Lame Back Day and Night

Dodd's Kidney Pills Relieved Him

Saskatchewan Man Has Not Been Troubled Since

Muenster, Sask., Feb. 6th, (Special)—"I was troubled very badly with lame back day and night," writes Mr. John Stell, a well-known and highly respected resident of this place. "I also had urinary trouble which caused me to get up many times during the night. Two years ago I took five boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills which relieved me from this trouble till a year ago when I got a touch of it again. Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills which relieved me from this trouble till a year ago when I got a touch of it again. Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills completely relieved me again and I have not been troubled since."

If you have any symptoms of Backache you may be sure your kidneys need attention. Neglected kidneys are the cause of more than half the ills to which mankind is heir.

Dodd's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys, making them strong and healthy. Sound kidneys mean pure blood. Pure blood means good health.

N.C.I., Sr., 46; N.C.I., Sr., 22.

One more an N.C.I. team bowed before a powerful Belleville Collegiate machine. On Saturday, February 4th, the local Senior Basketeers were defeated at the Belleville "Y" to the tune of 46-22. Although the locals showed a decided lack of experience, the game was good to watch, and the small crowd of spectators seemed to get their money's worth.

Nothing but praise is due the Belleville team. They presented the same line-up as a year ago, which goes a long way in accounting for the fact that Napanee was out-classed. All the old players were there, Parley Faulkner, "Davy" Davidson, McPee, etc., and their game was as nearly perfect as senior interscholastic could be. They did not make one foul.

The locals put up a good fight, but when the 1927 team could not beat Belleville, one could hardly expect the month-old 1928 team to do it. Doubtless with experience they will learn to think fast enough to know just when to pivot, dribble, shoot, etc. Black led in the scoring, and at centre could "get the jump" on anything Belleville had to offer. While he had chances to score and let balls go out, these were by no means responsible for the defeat, and he is showing all the earmarks of a real player.

The following is the line-up, the numbers after the players representing the points scored:—

B.C.I.—Centre, Faulkner, 22; forwards, Davidson, 0; McPee, 5; defense, Chadwick 1, Redfern 2; spares, Ridley, Byrne 2.

N.C.I.—Centre, Way 2; forwards, Merritt, Gilbride 2; defense, MacPadden (Capt.), Gibbard 8; spares, Black 10, Woodruff, Vick, Nugent.

Referee—W. Weir, Belleville.

N.C.I., Jr., 22; B.C.I., Jr., 8.

The Juniors, however, were more fortunate. They in turn outplayed Belleville, and the result was a 22-8 victory.

The Belleville team played good combination, but were a bit weak on the shooting. The locals "had it over them" in size, and considering this, the Belleville team put up a good game.

The local's game was a bit loose at first, but they soon steadied down and had command of the play throughout the game. The spares on the Senior team were used as the Junior regulars, and the subs were used frequently so that no one would become too tired.

The line-up was :—

B.C.I.—Centre, Ridley 3; forwards, Blakely, Williams 2; defense, Cather 1, Chadwick 2.

N.C.I.—Centre, Black 2; forwards, Woodruff 4, Vick 6; defense, Chapman, Nugent; spares, Robinson 6, Smith 4.

Referee—W. Weir, Belleville.

Next week's game has been indefinitely postponed because Belleville has to play hockey. The next game is here, with Albert College, two weeks hence. A few changes are expected in the local line-up, and when B.C.I. return their game here a closer contest will undoubtedly result.

Belleville made frequent use of a practically new mode of offense, namely, the pivot. Only one or two members of the local team used it on Saturday, and the team play would be a great deal more "tight" were it used.

"COSSA" HOCKEY.

Last week Napanee Collegiate and Deseronto High School played their home-and-home hockey matches to decide the championship of this division of the Bay of Quinte League. The Yellow and Gold decided to win it with two 5 and 2 victories respectively. Unfortunately, however, their admission fee was not in to the O. H. A. authorities on time, and so Deseronto will play off with Belleville.

The first game was played here and the score was 1-0 for the locals. The victors had the better of the play and were robbed of one or two goals at least. Davy was probably the pick of the players, though Vandusen, Vanluven and Edgar turned in excellent games. This game was flavoured with frequent penalties by both teams and it even took a big man like Edgar to show Deseronto its place once. Vandusen scored the lone goal.

Little is to be said of the game in Deseronto. Vandusen played fast hockey and netted two, while Vanluven wouldn't let D.H.S. break their goose egg. The entire team played well.

The following is the line-up :—

STUDENTS' COUNCIL.

The regular February meeting of the N.C.I. Students' Council was held in the school library on Tuesday, at 3.30 p.m. Hon. Pres. L. S. Beattie presided, and there were eighteen members present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The report of the Library Committee was read and adopted. The grant of the Board of Education has arrived and the money spent last fall for magazines is to be refunded to the Students' Fund. The remainder to be used in purchasing supplementary reading matter.

The Public Speaking Committee reported that the Oratorical contest would be held on Friday, Feb. 24th. Also that Lady Foster was unable to speak to the pupils during her visit to Napanee, but would endeavour to return and speak to the Canadian Club and Chairman M. Gibbard also recommended that the Canadian Club be re-organized. Report adopted.

Moved by President Gibbard, seconded by G. Gibson, that a meeting be held on Thursday at 4 p.m. of all interested in the Canadian Club, to consider its re-organization. Carried.

The financial report of the Girls' and Boys' Athletic Societies were read, and adopted.

Chairman Merrill, of the Property Committee, asked permission to have small cards printed by the Art Class so as to label each room to avoid any confusion in distinguishing the different classes.

Meeting adjourned.

THE BOYS' CLUB

The Boys' Club activities are under full swing now. Hockey or Basketball for every group on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday each week. The groups are equally divided in each sport, although on certain nights some players are not present and a lopsided score results, such as 75-12 in basketball and 17-1 in hockey. The different groups now have their names and colours :—

OBITUARY.

Mr. George Denison.

At Marlbank, Ont., on January 25th, 1928, death claimed the victim of George Denison, at the age of 87 years and 3 months.

The above was well known around the surrounding neighborhood, as he had always lived in the vicinity.

He was born near Roblin, and at the age of five suffered from scarlet fever, leaving him deaf for the remainder part of his life. Later in years he married Mary Ellen Rickley, who predeceased him twenty-two years ago.

Mr. Denison was in fairly good health until three weeks before his death, when he fell and broke his thigh, which was the cause of his death.

He leaves to mourn his loss his only son, Theodore, with whom he lived. He had seven grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

The funeral was held on Friday, 27th January, at Marlbank United Church and the remains were taken to Tamworth vault, to await interment in the spring.

Ross and Wilfred Lasher are home from Coe Hill, where they spent a time in the lumber camp. —A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mrs. Wm. Charters, when, about sixty of her friends and neighbours gathered to honor her seventy-ninth birthday. Mrs. Charters was taken completely by surprise, but made a very fitting reply in response to a few words of address by her friend, Mrs. D. Young, who presented her with a beautiful sheaf of carnations. After spending the evening in games and amusements, dainty refreshments were served, and the guests bade Mrs. Charters good night. Thus ending another pleasant evening spent with an ideal hostess, who for many years has contributed much to the entertainment of her neighbours and friends, and who has been a valued worker in all our church and social functions.

London Badly Overbuilt.

Gloom reigns throughout the building trades of London. Business is almost at a standstill, an immense army of skilled and unskilled workmen are without employment, and contracts have dwindled to vanishing point. The condition of affairs is the worst that has been experienced during the last quarter of a century. Unfortunately the prospect of present relief is not bright.

Master builders and contractors who have been interviewed have said that there were many contributing causes to account for the slackness. "No one can deny," a south London contractor and builder said, "that there has been overbuilding in recent years. I can take you to districts in the south, south west, and southeast London where there are whole streets of empty houses. In one street in Brixton there are forty-five vacant flats—a significant fact in a district so close to town and easy to reach. But look at the west end; it is no exaggeration to say that capital amounting to millions is lying there absolutely idle."

One of the members of a leading London building firm attributed the stagnation to the diversion of capital into other channels, presenting better prospects of profitable returns. One of the executive officials of a well-known London association intimately identified with the building trades said: "The present slackness is due to the sinister influence of the present Government upon capital. There is always a feeling of insecurity and uncertainty at which capital, ever sensitive to such impressions, has taken fright. Overbuilding has a lot to do with it, of course, but the present condition of politics is no mean factor."

A master builder largely interested in North London contracts said in that quarter conditions were not nearly so bad as they were in south and west London; but, at the same time, the outlook in north London was not very bright at present. Several contractors admitted that among their workmen the ill effects of the "slump" were keenly felt. Many trades auxiliary to that of building are also suffering from the present depression, and wholesale reduction of staff have been rendered absolutely imperative in many instances.

The number of empty houses had never reached such a high percentage before, said Ald. Howes at a meeting of the Finsbury borough council the other evening.

It was stated at a meeting of the Leeds city council recently that there were 10,000 empty houses in the town. The proportion of unoccupied to occupied houses is roughly one in nine.

FARM AND DAIRY'S GRAND FIGURE PUZZLE CONTEST

INSTRUCTIVE AMUSING

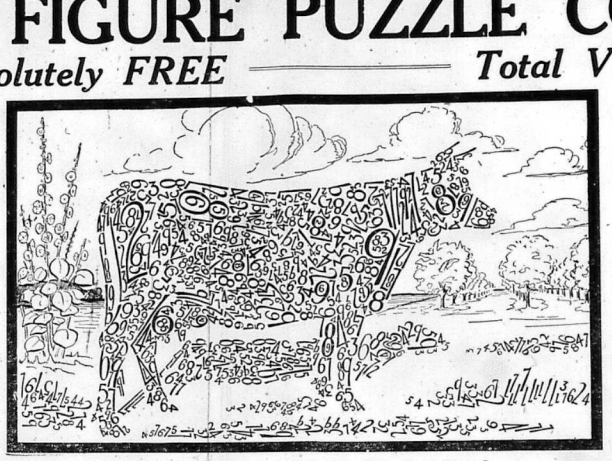
150 Prizes Absolutely FREE — Total Value $3,530.00

$3,530.00
in prizes

The prize list in this, our third and greatest contest, is the largest and best we have ever offered. It is justified by the great interest taken in our two former contests. There will be 150 prizes in all. Prizes to a total value of $3,530.00 are offered.

Grand Prize—Value $1,500.00

A Chrysler 52, Pontiac 6, or Essex 6 Sedan, as Each, or Pontiac 6, two-door Sedan, complete, $1,550.00 each, plus $140.00 in cash extra, at the rate of $20.00 cash for every dollar's worth of subscriptions sent in up to $5.00, and $10.00 cash extra for every $1.00 in subscriptions sent in from $5.00 to $100.00. (Not more than $10.000 in subscriptions can be sent in on one solution.) Total value $1,690.00. (A Toronto girl, Miss Alice M. Grant, of Ottawa, Ont., won the Grand Prize last year). A contestant must sent in at least $5.00 in subscriptions in order to qualify for this prize. The management reserves the right, should they so desire, to substitute a Chevrolet Touring Car, value $760.00, for the Ford Touring Car and cash prizes.



How Many Gallons of Milk Has This Cow Given?

First Prize—Value $900.00

If the contestant does not qualify as above, Total value $960.00. A Ford model Fordor Sedan, value $840.00, and $60.00 in cash. At the rate of $20.00 for each subscription sent in up to $1.00. If a contestant sends in $5.00 in subscriptions they qualify to win the Grand Prize. The management reserves the right to substitute a Chevrolet Landau Sedan, value $765.00, for the Ford Fordor Sedan, and cash prizes.

Second Prize—Value $700.00

A new 1928 Model Ford Touring Car, fully equipped, value $650.00, and $50.00 cash, at the rate of $5.00 for each $1.00 in subscriptions sent in from $5.00 to $5.00, and at the rate of $10.00 for each $1.00 in subscriptions sent in from $5.00 to $10.00. Thus, if the contestant who wins this prize sends in $5.00 in subscriptions she will win the Ford Touring Car and $10.00 in cash extra. If, however, he sends in $5.00 in subscriptions, he will receive the car and $50.00 in cash. The management reserves the right, should they so desire, to substitute a Chevrolet 1928 Model Touring Car, value, $765.00, in place of the Ford Touring Car and cash prizes.

Third Prize—Value $300.00

Ford, $50, $250.00, plus five times the amount sent in up to $100.00.

A $1,052.50 SEDAN AND $450.00 IN CASH EXTRA.
Miss Alice M. Grant, of Ottawa, and her Chrysler Sedan which she won as the First Grand Prize in Farm and Dairy's Picture Puzzle Contest last Winter.
A similar car, with all the 1928 improvements, or an Essex 6 or a Pontiac 6, two-door Sedan, with $400.00 in cash prize, will be given as the Grand Prize this year. See Prize List.

HOW TO OBTAIN THE ANSWER

Add together the figures in the picture, thus: 6+2+9+7=24. The sum total of all the figures is the answer to the problem. Every figure is complete and the drawing is entirely free from tricks and illusions. There are no figures hidden in the background. The figures are made from 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 0. Note that there are each standing alone, thus: 0, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. Note that there are no lines (1) one either in the picture or in the chart. The figures are closed and the bottoms are straight, thus: 4, 6, 9, 0. There is a tiny top and the bottoms are closed, also one bridge of cow's nose, and a six in top horn of the large right side of the cow's head are drawn backwards, both must be included in the total count. To pick out all the figures and add them together is a task that requires patience and accurate skill. This is the most attractive figure puzzle that we have ever produced. It is fascinating and will give you many a thrill. Even were no prizes offered it would be worth while trying to solve it. In the event that no one obtains the exact answer, the prizes will be awarded for the nearest correct solutions.

It must be clearly understood that there are no figures in any part of the picture except those which form the cow and the shadows in foreground. There is no trick in this puzzle. Every figure can be clearly seen. There are no figures hidden in the orchard or background.

A GUARANTEE OF FAIR AND IMPARTIAL TREATMENT

To make sure that no one knew the exact or correct answer to the problem, or how many gallons of milk this cow has given, E. S. Archibald, B.S.A., Ottawa, Director Dominion Experimental Farms, and W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist, Ottawa, kindly consented to erase one or more figures from the puzzle chart. This was done at different times, consequently no one knows just what numbers were taken out. Notes of these figures were made by E. S. Archibald and W. T. Macoun. These sealed and placed in a safety deposit box, where they will remain until after the close of the contest. Bear in mind that the Puzzle Contest Department knew the correct answer before the Judges erased some of the figures. After the contest is over, the Judges will inform the Contest Department just what numbers have been erased. These numbers will be substituted from the original correct answer, thus giving the present correct answer.

In addition to E. S. Archibald and W. T. Macoun, there are three Judges who will examine all correct receipts and award the prizes. Their decisions on the awarding of any prizes will be final. These Judges are, E. A. Peck, M.P.; W. H. Bradshaw, M.L.A., and J. C. Smith, Peterboro, Ont., a public accountant.

RULES GOVERNING THE CONTEST

1. Everyone living on a farm in Canada, retired farmers and their wives and sons not directly connected with the dairy, agricultural or horticultural industry can take part in the contest except:
   (a) Employees, their immediate families and anyone connected with Farm and Dairy and its companion papers, The Canadian Horticulturist, The Canadian Florist, and The Beekeeper.
   (b) Prize winners in our former contests who won more than $100 or who have won a main prize in any similar contest, or any of their relatives or close friends.

2. Additional puzzle charts, on a good grade of paper, may be obtained by writing to the Contest Department, Farm and Dairy, Peterboro. They will be mailed free of charge.

3. Every figure in this picture is complete, and the drawing is entirely free from tricks and illusions. If any contestant is in doubt, however, about a figure the Contest Department will be glad to give a ruling on it. Put a circle around the figure and send the marked chart with your letter. Also particulars under Rule 10.

4. When you have solved the puzzle, put your answer on the coupon and print or typewrite plainly. Fill out carefully and SEND A THREE-YEAR SUBSCRIPTION to Farm and Dairy at $1.00 as an entrance fee. Renewal subscriptions count the same as new and will be extended from the day the present subscription expires. A subscription for more than $2.00 will not be accepted. Every dollar sent in must represent your own subscription or one collected from a neighbor or friend.

5. Be sure the full amount of the subscription is sent direct to the Contest Department of Farm and Dairy. Contestants, because of the large prize lists, are not entitled to any premiums, nor can agents or postmasters deduct a commission.

6. The contest will close February 29. Solutions mailed as late as February 29 and bearing that postmark will be accepted.

7. Everyone has an equal opportunity. You can win the First Prize on a one dollar subscription, but note that the value of the first seven prizes increases if you send in more money (see Prize List). Aim to win the maximum value of the Grand Prize. Either new or renewal subscriptions collected from friends or neighbors are accepted and the amount will be applied to your answer. At the amazingly low cost of $1.00 for three years, you can easily persuade a friend or neighbor to subscribe to Farm and Dairy. Thus you may enter the contest providing they comply with the rules.

8. You can submit as many answers as you like, providing each answer is accompanied by a $1.00 subscription, but if one of your answers is correct the prize awarded with your other answers will not increase the total value of the prizes.

9. Contestants should remit by postal note, bank, postal or express money order. These should be made payable to Farm and Dairy.

10. Only one person in any household can win a regular prize. Not solution can be changed after it is once registered.

12. In case of tie for any prize, a second puzzle will be presented, which will be as practicable and as solvable as the first. Only those tied for a prize will be permitted to solve puzzle No. 2. Should two or more persons be tied for a prize, that prize and as many prizes following as there are persons tied, will be reserved for them before any prizes will be awarded for best correct solutions.

13. The Contest Department of Farm and Dairy reserves the right to alter the rules and regulations for the protection of contestants of Farm and Dairy, to refund subscriptions and disqualify any competitors whom they consider, undesirable, and to finally decide all questions which may arise. Competitors must be prepared to accept the rulings of the Judges as final and must agree to submit an affidavit upon any point, if requested.

A Tip on How to Win

Take a pencil and put down the numbers as you stroke them out, then add them up. We would suggest that you cut the chart into dozens of pieces, then check them from all sides. If you wish, try blotting them out with colored ink or pencil. Some think the best way is to pick out all the twos first, then the threes, then the fours, etc. Any they miss the first time they find later.

YOU CAN SEND FOR EXTRA CHARTS.

A Unique Contest

The difference between this contest and any other is that you can win all but the grand prize on your own subscription to Farm and Dairy. It is not "how much you do," but "how well you do it."

It does not take weeks of time—nor is it hard for you to win.

Save This Page

It may mean $1,500.00 to you. Over 150 Free Prizes. This is not a trick puzzle but merely a test of patience and skill. Surely your chance of winning is as good as anyone else's.

ENTERPRISE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The January meeting of the Enterprise Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ard Jackson, with a goodly number of members in attendance, also a few visitors. A paper on the subjects of "Canadian Women of Note", was given by Mrs. T. Wilson, and much enjoyed by everyone present. An interesting little reading called "Dishpan Hands", was given by our President, Mrs. Oliver. It was decided at the meeting to send again for the Travelling Library, and arrangements were made for an "Apron Tea", to be held on the occasion of the next monthly meeting of the Institute. Refreshments were served, and the meeting closed as usual.

Mother Goose China For Tiny Travellers

Special attention to kiddies, travelling with their parents on trains of the Canadian National Railways, has for some time been a feature of service on Canadian National dining cars. Nursery rhymes, illustrated with all the popular nursery rhyme characters, have been selected for the youngsters to see while they eat their special meals, and the children's tastes have been given another attractive form in the china has been provided, with the picture on each of the dinners of special dishes for the children, each of the plates, cups, etc., being decorated with paintings from the nursery rhymes. The famous cow jumping over the moon and Miss Muffet shrinking in horror from the spider which "sat down beside her" are but two of the nursery rhyme characters illustrated in colors on the edges of soup and dinner plates, cups and saucers. High chairs for the convenience of tiny travellers who are still too small to be seated at the regular table, and special bibs to prevent soiling of pretty dresses, are part of the equipment of every standard dining car.

Monsieur Beaucaire

BY BOOTH TARKINGTON

Author of "The Gentleman From Indiana" and "The Conquest of Canaan."

Copyright, 1900, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"All the cold was gone from the snows—long ago," she said.

"My beautiful!" he whispered. It was all he could say. "My beautiful!" But she clutched his arm, startled.

"Ware the road!" A wild halloo sounded ahead. The horn wound loudly. "Ware the road!" There sprang up out of the night a flying thunder of hoof beats. The gentlemen riding idly in front of the coach scattered to the hedge sides, and, with drawn swords flashing in the moon, a party of horsemen charged down the highway, their cries blasting the night.

"Barbier! Kill the barbier!" they screamed. "Barbier! Kill the barbier!"

Beaucaire had but time to draw his sword when they were upon him.

"A mort!" his voice rang out clearly as he rose in his stirrups. "A mort, Francois, Louis, Berquin! A mort, Francois!"

The cavaliers came straight at him. He parried the thrust of the first, but the shock of collision hurled his horse against the side of the coach.

"Sacred swine!" he cried bitterly. "To endanger a lady, to make this brawl in a lady's presence! Drive on!" he shouted.

"No!" cried Lady Mary.

The Frenchman's assailants were masked, but they were not highwaymen. "Barbier! Barbier!" they shouted hoarsely and closed in on him in a circle.

"See how he use' his steel!" laughed M. Beaucaire, as his point passed through a tawdry waistcoat. For a moment he cut through the ring and cleared a space about him, and Lady Mary saw his face shining in the moonlight. "Camaille!" he hissed as his horse sank beneath him, and, though guarding his head from the rain of blows from above, he managed to drag headlong from his saddle the man who had hamstrung the poor brute. The fellow came suddenly to the ground and lay there.

"Is it not a compliment," said a heavy voice, "to bring six large men to subdue monsieur?"

"Oh, you are there, my friend! In the rear—a little in the rear, I think. Ha, ha!"

The Frenchman's play with his weapon was a revelation of skill, the more extraordinary as he held in his hand only a light dress sword. But the ring closed about him, and his keen defense could not avail him more than a few moments. Lady Mary's outriders, the gallants of her escort, rode up close to the coach and encircled it, not interfering.

"Sir Hugh Guilford!" cried Lady Mary, wildly, "if you will not help him, give me your sword!" She could have leaped to the ground, but Sir Hugh held the door.

"Sit quiet, madam," he said to her. Then, to the man on the box, "Drive on."

"If he does, I'll kill him!" she said fiercely. "Ah, what cowards! Will you see the duke murdered!"

"The duke!" laughed Guilford. "They will not kill him, unless—be easy, dear madam, 'twill be explained. God's life!" he muttered to Molyneux. "I were mad to let the varlets had his lashing! D'ye hear her?"

"Barber or no barber," answered Molyneux. "I wish I had warned him. He fights as few gentlemen could. Ah—ah! Look at that! 'Tis a shame!"

Oh foot, his hat gone, his white coat sadly rent and gashed flecked, too, with red. M. Beaucaire wary, alert, brilliant, seemed to transform himself into a dozen fencing masters, and, though this skill appeared to lie in delicacy and quickness, his play being continually with the point, sheer strength failed to beat him down. The young man was laughing like a child.

"Believe me," said Molyneux, "he's no barber! No, and never was!"

For a moment there was even a chance that M. Beaucaire might have the best of it. Two of his adversaries were prostrate, more than one were groaning, and the indomitable Frenchman had actually almost beat off the ruffians when, by a trick, he was overcome. One of them, dismounting, ran in suddenly from behind and seized his blade in a thick leather gauntlet. Before Beaucaire could disengage the weapon, two others threw themselves from their horses and hurled him to the earth. "A mort, Francois!" they cried as he went down, his sword in fragments, but his voice unbroken and clear.

"Shame!" muttered one or two of the gentlemen about the coach.

"'Twas dastardly to take him so," said Molyneux. "Whatever his deservings, I'm nigh of a mind to offer him a rescue in the duke's face."

"Truss him up, lads," said the heavy voice. "Clear the way in front of the coach. There sit those whom we avenge upon a presumptuous lackey. Now, Whiffen, you have a fair audience, lay on and baste him."

Two men began to drag M. Beaucaire toward a great oak by the roadside. Another took from his saddle a heavy whip with three thongs.

"A moi, Francois!"

There was borne on the breeze an answer — "Monsieur! Monsieur!" The cry grew louder suddenly. The clatter of hoofs urged to an anguish of speed sounded on the night. M. Beaucaire's servants had lagged sorely behind, but they made up for it now. Almost before the noise of their own steeds they came riding down the moonlit aisle between the mists. Chosen men, these servants of Beaucaire, and like a thunderbolt they fell upon the astounded cavaliers.

"Chateaurien! Chateaurien!" they shouted, and smote so swiftly that, through lack of time, they showed no proper judgment, discriminating nothing between acquaintances and first into the group about M. Beaucaire and broke and routed it utterly. Two of them leaped to the young man's side while the other four, swerving, scarce losing the momentum of their onset, bore on upon the gentlemen near the coach, who went down beneath the fierceness of the onslaught, cursing manfully.

"Our just deserts," said Mr. Molyneux, his mouth full of dust and philosophy.

Sir Hugh Guilford's horse fell with him, being literally ridden over, and the baronet's leg was pinned under the saddle. In less than ten minutes from the first attack on M. Beaucaire the attacking party had fled in disorder, and the patrician noncombatants, choking with expletives, consumed with wrath, were prisoners, disarmed by the Frenchman's lackeys.

Guilford's discomfiture had freed the doors of the coach. So it was that when M. Beaucaire, struggling to rise, assisted by his servants, threw out one hand to balance himself, he found it seized between two small, cold palms, and he looked into two warm, dilating eyes that were doubly beautiful because of the fright and rage that found room in them too.

M. le Duc Chateaurien sprang to his feet without the aid of his lackeys and bowed low before Lady Mary.

"I make ten thousan' apology to be the cause of a such melee in your presence," he said, and then, turning to Francois, he spoke in French. "Ah, theu scoundrel! A little, and it had been too late."

Francois knelt in the dust before him. "Pardon!" he said. "Monseigneur commanded us to follow tar in the rear, to remain unobserved. The wind malignantly blew against monseigneur's voice."

"See what it might have cost, my children," said his master, pointing to the ropes with which they would have bound him and to the whip lying beside them. A shudder passed over the lackey's frame. The utter horror in his face echoed in the eyes of his fellows.

"Oh, monseigneur!" Francois sprang back and waved his arms to heaven.

"But it did not happen," said M. Beaucaire.

"It could not!" exclaimed Francois.

"No. And you did very well, my children"—the young man smiled benevolently—"very well. And now," he continued, turning to Lady Mary and speaking in English, "let me be asking of our gallants yonder what make' them to be in cabal with highwaymen. One should come to a polite understanding with them, you think? Not so?"

He bowed, offering his hand to conduct her to the coach, where Molyneux and his companions, having drawn Sir Hugh from under his horse, were engaged in reviving and reassuring Lady Rellerton, who had fainted. But Lady Mary stayed Beaucaire with a gesture, and the two stood where they were.

"Monseigneur!" she said, with a note of raillery in her voice, but raillery so tender that he started with happiness. The movement brought him a hot spasm of pain, and he clapped his hand to a red stain on his waistcoat.

"You are hurt!"

"It is nothing," smiled M. Beaucaire. Then, that she might not see the stain spreading, he held his handkerchief over the spot. "I am a little—but jus' a trifling—bruise'; 'tis all."

"You shall ride in the coach," she whispered. "Will you be pleased, M. de Chateaurien?"

"Ah, my beautiful!" She seemed to wave before him like a shining mist. "I wish that ride might las' for always! Can you say that, mademoiselle?"

"Monseigneur," she cried in a passion of admiration, "I would wish you would have be, should be. What do you not deserve? You are the bravest man in the world!"

"Ha, ha! I am jus' a poor Frenchman."

"Would that a few Englishmen had shown themselves as 'poor' to-night. The vile cowards, not to help you!" With that, suddenly overwhelmed by her anger, she swept away from him to the coach.

Sir Hugh, groaning loudly, was being assisted into the vehicle.

"My little peliroon," she said, "what are you doing with your fellow craven, Sir Hugh Guilford, there?"

"Madam," replied Molyneux humbly, "Sir Hugh's leg is broken. Lady Rellerton graciously permits him to be taken in."

"I do not permit it! M. de Chateaurien rides with us."

"But"—

"Sir! Leave that wretch to groan by the roadside," she cried fiercely, "which plight I would were that of all of you! But there will be a pretty story for the gossips to-morrow! And I could almost find pity for you when I think of the wits when you return to town. Fine gentlemen, you; hardy bravos, by heaven, to leave one man to meet a troop of horse single handed while you huddle in shelter until you are overthrown and disarmed by servants! Oh, the wits! Heaven save you from the wits!"

"Madam."

"Address me no more! M. de Chateaurien, Lady Rellerton and I will gratefully esteem the honor of your company. Will you come?"

She stepped quickly into the coach and was gathering her skirts to make room for the Frenchman, when a heavier step than his own sounded on the tree by the wayside.

"Lady Mary Carlisle will, no doubt, listen to a word of counsel on this point."

The Duke of Winterset rode out into the moonlight, composedly untying a mask from about his head. He had not abandoned the flight of his followers, but had retired into the shade of the oak, whence he now made his entrance jauntily with the utmost coolness.

"Gracious heavens, 'tis Winterset!" exclaimed Lady Rellerton.

"Turned highwayman and cut throat!" cried Lady Mary.

"No, no," laughed M. Beaucaire, somewhat unsteadily, as he stood, swaying a little, with one hand on the coach door, the other pressed hard on his side, "the only overseer." He is jus' a little bankrupt, sometime. He is a great man, but he don' want all the glory!"

"Barber," replied the duke, "I must tell you that I gladly descend to hearty words with you. Your monstrous impudence is a claim to rank I cannot ignore. But a lackey who has himself followed by six other lackeys"—

"Ha, ha! Has not M. le Duc been busy all this evening to justify me? And I think mine don' be the best six. Ha, ha! You think?"

"M. de Chateaurien," said Lady Mary, "we are waiting for you."

"Pardon," he replied. "He has something to say. Maybe it is best if you hear it now."

"I wish to hear nothing from him—ever!"

"My faith, madam," cried the duke, "this saucy fellow has paid you the last word. He is sure of you he does not fear you will believe the truth. When all is told, I do not agree he deserved the lashing we planned to"—

"I'll hear no more!"

"You will bitterly repent it, madam. For your own sake I entreat you to hear me."

"And I also," broke in M. Beaucaire. "Permit me, mademoiselle. Let him speak."

"Then let him be brief," said Lady Mary, "for I am earnest to be quit of him. His explanation of an attack on my friend and on my carriage should be made to my brother."

"Alias that he was not here," said the duke, "to aid me! Madam, was your carriage threatened? I have so deavored only to expunge a debt I owed to Bath and to avenge an insult offered to yourself through"—

"Sir, sir, my patience will bear little more!"

"A thousan' apology," said M. Beaucaire. "You will listen. I only beg, Lady Mary!"

She made an angry gesture of assent.

"Madam, I will be brief as I may. Two months ago there came to Bath a French gambler calling himself Beaucaire, a desperate fellow with the cards or dice, and all the men of fashion went to play at his lodging where he won considerable sums. He was small, wore black wig and mustachio. He had the insolence to show himself everywhere until the master of ceremonies rebuked him in the pump room, as you know, and after that he forbore his visits to the rooms. Mr. Nash explained (and was confirmed, madam, by indubitable information) that this Beaucaire was a man of unspeakable, vile, low birth, being, in fact, no other than a lackey of the French king's ambassador, Victor by name, de Mirepoix's barber. Although his condition was known, the hideous impudence of the fellow did not desert him, and he remained in Bath, where none would speak to him.

"If your tarrage night done, sir?"

"A few moments, madam. One evening, three weeks gone, I observed a very elegant equipage draw up to my door, and the Duke of Chateaurien was announced. The young man's manners were worthy — according to the French acceptance — and there idle to deny him the most monstrous assurance. He declared himself a noble traveling for pleasure. He had taken lodgings in Bath for a season, he said, and called at once to pay his respects to me. His tone was so candid—in truth, I am the simplest of men, very easily gulled—and his stroke so bold, that I did not for one moment suspect him, and, to my poignant regret—though in the humiliation I spirit I have shown myself eager to atone—that very evening I had the shame of presenting him to yourself."

The happy gentleman, with Lady Carlisle upon his arm, went about the room.

"The shame, sir!"

"Let me entreat, pray, madam. Ay, the shame! You know what figure he bath cut in Bath since that evening. All ran merrily with him until several days ago Captain Badger denounced him as an impostor, saying that Chateaurien was nothing."

"Pardon," interrupted M. Beaucaire. "Castle Nowhere' would have been so much better. Why did you not make him say it that way, monsieur?"

Lady Mary started. She was looking at the duke, and her face was white. He continued, "Poor Captain Badger was stabbed that same day"—

"Most befitting poor Captain Badger," muttered Molyneux.

"And as the adversary had the marvelous insolence to declare that he fought in my quarrel! This afternoon the wounded man sent for me and imparted a very horrifying intelligence. He had discovered the lackey whom he had seen waiting upon Beaucaire in attendance at the door of this Chateauriet's lodging. Beaucaire had disappeared the day before Chateauriet's arrival. Captain Badger looked closely at the Chateauriet at their next meeting and identified him with the missing Beaucaire, beyond the faintest doubt. Overcome with indignation, he immediately proclaimed the imposture, out of regard for me he did not charge him with being Beaucaire. The poor soul was unwilling to put upon me the humiliation of having introduced a barber, but the secret could be kept still no longer for me and put everything in my hands. I accepted the odium, thinking only once more to get at the varlet. I went to Sir John Wimpledon's fete. I took poor Sir Hugh, there, and those other gentlemen aside, and told them my news. We naturally observed this man and were shocked at our simplicity in not having discovered him before. These are men of honor and cool judgment, madam. Mr. Molyneux had acted for him in the affair of Captain Badger and was strongly prejudiced in his favor, but Mr. Molyneux, Sir Hugh, Mr. Bantison, every one of them, in short, recognized him, despite of his smooth face and his light hair the adventurer Beaucaire was very upon him amazing plain. Look at him, madam, if he will dare the inspection. You saw him Beaucaire well the day of his expulsion from the rooms. Is not this he?"

M. Beaucaire stepped close to her. Her pale face twitched.

"Look!" he said.

"Oh, oh!" she whispered with a dry throat and fell back in the carriage.

"Is it so?" cried the duke.

"I do not know. I—cannot tell."

"Gentlemen more," I begged these gentlemen to allow me to wipe out the insult I had unhappily offered to him, but particularly to you. They agreed not to forestall me or to interfere. I left Sir John Wimpledon's early and arranged to give the sorry rascal a lashing under your own eyes, a satisfaction due the lady into whose presence he had dared to force himself."

"Noblesse oblige!" said M. Beaucaire in a tone of gentle inquiry.

"And now, madam," said the duke, "I will detain you not one second longer. I plead the good purpose of my intentions, beggine you to believe that the desire to avenge a hateful

YOUNG WOMEN SUFFER MOST

These Two Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ayer's Cliff, Quebec. — "I have been teaching for three years, and at the end of the year I always feel tired and have no appetite. I was awful sick each month, too, having pains in my back until sometimes I was obliged to stop working. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I heard many women telling how good it was so I thought it would help me. And it did. Now I take six bottles every year and recommend it to others. — Donalda Fanteux, Ayer's Cliff, Quebec.

"Unable to Work"

Canning, Nova Scotia.—"I had irregular periods and great suffering at those times, the pains causing vomiting and fainting. I was teaching school and often for some hours proper judgment, discriminating nothing between acquaintances and first into the group about M. Beaucaire and broke and routed it utterly. Two of them leaped to the young man's side while the other four, swerving, scarce losing the momentum of their onset, bore on upon the gentlemen near the coach, who went down beneath the fierceness of the onslaught, cursing manfully.

"Our just deserts," said Mr. Molyneux, his mouth full of dust and philosophy.

Sir Hugh Guilford's horse fell with him, being literally ridden over, and the baronet's leg was pinned under the saddle. In less than ten minutes from the first attack on M. Beaucaire the attacking party had fled in disorder, and the patrician noncombatants, choking with expletives, consumed with wrath, were prisoners, disarmed by the Frenchman's lackeys.

Guilford's discomfiture had freed the doors of the coach. So it was that when M. Beaucaire, struggling to rise, assisted by his servants, threw out one hand to balance himself, he found it seized between two small, cold palms, and he looked into two warm, dilating eyes that were doubly beautiful because of the fright and rage that found room in them too.

M. le Duc Chateaurien sprang to his feet without the aid of his lackeys and bowed low before Lady Mary.

"I make ten thousan' apology to be the cause of a such melee in your presence," he said, and then, turning to Francois, he spoke in French. "Ah, theu scoundrel! A little, and it had been too late."

Francois knelt in the dust before him. "Pardon!" he said. "Monseigneur commanded us to follow tar in the rear, to remain unobserved. The wind malignantly blew against monseigneur's voice."

"See what it might have cost, my children," said his master, pointing to the ropes with which they would have bound him and to the whip lying beside them. A shudder passed over the lackey's frame. The utter horror in his face echoed in the eyes of his fellows.

"Oh, monseigneur!" Francois sprang back and waved his arms to heaven.

"But it did not happen," said M. Beaucaire.

"It could not!" exclaimed Francois.

"No. And you did very well, my children"—the young man smiled benevolently—"very well. And now," he continued, turning to Lady Mary and speaking in English, "let me be asking of our gallants yonder what make' them to be in cabal with highwaymen. One should come to a polite understanding with them, you think? Not so?"

He bowed, offering his hand to conduct her to the coach, where Molyneux and his companions, having drawn Sir Hugh from under his horse, were engaged in reviving and reassuring Lady Rellerton, who had fainted. But Lady Mary stayed Beaucaire with a gesture, and the two stood where they were.

"Monseigneur!" she said, with a note of raillery in her voice, but raillery so tender that he started with happiness. The movement brought him a hot spasm of pain, and he clapped his hand to a red stain on his waistcoat.

"You are hurt!"

"It is nothing," smiled M. Beaucaire. Then, that she might not see the stain spreading, he held his handkerchief over the spot. "I am a little—but jus' a trifling—bruise'; 'tis all."

"You shall ride in the coach," she whispered. "Will you be pleased, M. de Chateaurien?"

"Ah, my beautiful!" She seemed to wave before him like a shining mist. "I wish that ride might las' for always! Can you say that, mademoiselle?"

"Monseigneur," she cried in a passion of admiration, "I would wish you would have be, should be. What do you not deserve? You are the bravest man in the world!"

"Ha, ha! I am jus' a poor Frenchman."

"Would that a few Englishmen had shown themselves as 'poor' to-night. The vile cowards, not to help you!" With that, suddenly overwhelmed by her anger, she swept away from him to the coach.

Sir Hugh, groaning loudly, was being assisted into the vehicle.

"My little peliroon," she said, "what are you doing with your fellow craven, Sir Hugh Guilford, there?"

"Madam," replied Molyneux humbly, "Sir Hugh's leg is broken. Lady Rellerton graciously permits him to be taken in."

"I do not permit it! M. de Chateaurien rides with us."

"But"—

"Sir! Leave that wretch to groan by the roadside," she cried fiercely, "which plight I would were that of all of you! But there will be a pretty story for the gossips to-morrow! And I could almost find pity for you when I think of the wits when you return to town. Fine gentlemen, you; hardy bravos, by heaven, to leave one man to meet a troop of horse single handed while you huddle in shelter until you are overthrown and disarmed by servants! Oh, the wits! Heaven save you from the wits!"

"Madam."

"Address me no more! M. de Chateaurien, Lady Rellerton and I will gratefully esteem the honor of your company. Will you come?"

She stepped quickly into the coach and was gathering her skirts to make room for the Frenchman, when a heavier step than his own sounded on the tree by the wayside.

"Lady Mary Carlisle will, no doubt, listen to a word of counsel on this point."

The Duke of Winterset rode out into the moonlight, composedly untying a mask from about his head. He had not abandoned the flight of his followers, but had retired into the shade of the oak, whence he now made his entrance jauntily with the utmost coolness.

"Gracious heavens, 'tis Winterset!" exclaimed Lady Rellerton.

"Turned highwayman and cut throat!" cried Lady Mary.

"No, no," laughed M. Beaucaire, somewhat unsteadily, as he stood, swaying a little, with one hand on the coach door, the other pressed hard on his side, "the only overseer." He is jus' a little bankrupt, sometime. He is a great man, but he don' want all the glory!"

"Barber," replied the duke, "I must tell you that I gladly descend to hearty words with you. Your monstrous impudence is a claim to rank I cannot ignore. But a lackey who has himself followed by six other lackeys"—

"Ha, ha! Has not M. le Duc been busy all this evening to justify me? And I think mine don' be the best six. Ha, ha! You think?"

"M. de Chateaurien," said Lady Mary, "we are waiting for you."

"Pardon," he replied. "He has something to say. Maybe it is best if you hear it now."

"I wish to hear nothing from him—ever!"

"My faith, madam," cried the duke, "this saucy fellow has paid you the last word. He is sure of you he does not fear you will believe the truth. When all is told, I do not agree he deserved the lashing we planned to"—

"I'll hear no more!"

"You will bitterly repent it, madam. For your own sake I entreat you to hear me."

"And I also," broke in M. Beaucaire. "Permit me, mademoiselle. Let him speak."

"Then let him be brief," said Lady Mary, "for I am earnest to be quit of him. His explanation of an attack on my friend and on my carriage should be made to my brother."

"Alias that he was not here," said the duke, "to aid me! Madam, was your carriage threatened? I have so deavored only to expunge a debt I owed to Bath and to avenge an insult offered to yourself through"—

"Sir, sir, my patience will bear little more!"

"A thousan' apology," said M. Beaucaire. "You will listen. I only beg, Lady Mary!"

She made an angry gesture of assent.

"Madam, I will be brief as I may. Two months ago there came to Bath a French gambler calling himself Beaucaire, a desperate fellow with the cards or dice, and all the men of fashion went to play at his lodging where he won considerable sums. He was small, wore black wig and mustachio. He had the insolence to show himself everywhere until the master of ceremonies rebuked him in the pump room, as you know, and after that he forbore his visits to the rooms. Mr. Nash explained (and was confirmed, madam, by indubitable information) that this Beaucaire was a

Have you heard about Peps? Peps is a scientific preparation put up in pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds, chest and throat troubles.

Peps contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapor, and are breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the lungs.

While no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and healing commences.

Dr. Campbell at the Historical Society.

Dr. Campbell, head of the department of French, at Queen's, lectured on Friday evening last at the Historical Society hall, before a full house. The lecturer traced the history, growth and development of castles in Europe. Beginning with the earliest buildings which resembled little more than a pile of stones, he showed how they gradually changed to meet changed fashions in attack and defense. For the castle was originally and through most of its history, a stronghold against the aggression of another owner or feudal baron, and through the years they became more elaborate and more artistic until they reached the zenize and beauty of such places as Windsor Castle in England. The lecture was illustrated with lantern views, showing the varied stages in the development, which added greatly to the interest of the lecture. Other lectures in the series are being arranged, and notice will appear in due time. They are held always on a Friday evening, in the Historical Hall, over the Public Library, and the admission is free.

REACHES HIS EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY

The many friends and citizens generally, are pleased to extend hearty greetings to Mr. Chas. Stevens, who reached the eightieth mile-stone of his life on Sunday. Mr. Stevens was born in Camden East, Ont., in 1848, and came to Canada at the age of eighteen years. For some years he followed the vocation of sailing, and was the author of a very widely read book on the history of his life. He has made an enviable reputation for himself in Canada and the United States as a producer and importer of one of the best fertilizers on the market, known as "Canada Unleached Hardwood Ashes." Mr. Stevens although he was urged and passed the four score mark, is hale and hearty. For many years he took a keen interest in municipal affairs, and served with much credit to himself and the town upon the Council Board, also as Mayor. He is actively associated with Grace United Church, and is and has been for a good many years a member of the Official Board. The family are widely scattered, one daughter, Mrs. R. C. Rose, living in Napanee; three daughters, Misses Ada, Myrtle and Marion, in Toronto; one son, George, in Peterboro'; and two sons, Charles and William, residing in the United States. As a result of his many years of service in the church and throughout the district wish for him many more years of useful life.

IN MEMORIAM.

John Sidney Aylesworth was born May 21st, 1846, on a farm one mile from Odessa, being the youngest son in a family of eleven children. Their parents were of U. E. Loyalist descent, being Robert Aylesworth and Hannah Fraser. John received his early education at Odessa Academy, and was a clever student.

At the age of twenty he attended the School of Military Instruction, Kingston, receiving his certificates in 1866. He recruited a company in that year to assist in quelling the Fenian Raid. For this he was granted scrip for 160 acres in New Ontario, but he failed to locate the land.

His great life work, and the one he was most fitted for, was that of Civil Engineering. He qualified in Toronto and joined the Ontario Land Surveyors' Association on January 7th, 1871, and for forty-six years he worked as such. He was Drainage Engineer for some three or four townships in Lennox at different times and did a great deal of private work. No one came to him for help or advice that it was not given freely.

He was a Liberal in politics, and a Methodist in religion. A strong, quiet, able man, who will be greatly missed in the church and community. His brothers, sisters and wife predeceased him by several years. There are left to mourn his loss two daughters, Mrs. Schuyler Windover, Kingston, and Mrs. J. W. Humphrey, at home. Also one grandchild, Mrs. Kenneth Brebner, Newark, New Jersey.

He fell asleep on January 17th, 1928, and his funeral services were held from his late residence in Richmond, to Selby United Church, the Rev. Mr. Batstone officiating.

There is no flock, however watched and tended,
But one dead lamb is there;
There is no fireside, howso'er defended
But has one vacant chair.

LEST WE FORGET

Dear Mr. Editor,—I trust you will grant me space enough to publish how empty and hollow this heading apparently is Napanee.

I suppose this assertion will be resented by some, so to explain what prompted this open letter. I presume the majority of the population of this town know that Earl Haig, the most famous soldier that Great Britain has had in some generations, and Field Marshal in charge of the British Expeditionary Force in the Great War,—passed away some few days ago.

Did any of your readers notice any kind of a flag on the mast of our City Hall, or on the Armouries, which was placed here by the Militia Department, a subsidiary of that organization in which Earl Haig had gained the highest pinnacle?

Surely some one of our City Fathers could have had initiative enough to have seen that a flag was raised to half-mast on an occasion of this kind. Did they have to wait until Premier King received word from Westminster, or until the same honorable gentleman designed a new Canadian flag?

Even mere disgraceful was the absence of the flag on the Armouries. Who has control of this institution? Is there not a company of a Canadian regiment stationed there? Looks like Big "Bill" Thompson, of Chicago would be an influential personage in this town. I doubt very much if this incident was duplicated in another town in Ontario.

Now, Mr. Editor, when I went to school, two plus two equaled four, or thereabouts; so if such a distinguished soldier as Earl Haig was forgotten in ten years—when did we poor subordinates pass out of their memory? Before we returned home, I presume.

I think that my latter guess is correct, because as I am finishing this letter, the Conservative Executive of this riding convened and made recommendations for four Government appointments for this town, and all returned men's applications were practically ignored.

Do you wonder that some of us smile when we hear some nearly patriotic person or organization give utterance to "Lest We Forget"?

Thanking you for your valuable space, I am,

ONE OF HAIG'S MEN.

NAPANEE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Sixty members were present at the regular meeting of the Institute held in the Agricultural Classroom, on Tuesday, February 14th, at 2.30 p.m. The ladies greatly regretted the illness of the President, Mrs. Alpine Woods, but appointed Mrs. J. B. Miller, District President, to occupy the chair for the meeting. Very satisfactory and detailed reports of the general funds of the Society and of the Mother and Daughter Banquet, were read by the Treasurer.

Mr. James Laughland, B.S.A., then gave a talk on "Flowers", telling how soil for gardens should be prepared, and may be improved; its drainage; why perennials are so satisfactory for a garden; specific directions for growing some annuals; beauty of and best flowers for window-boxes; and how to combat different insects and fungus diseases. Mr. Laughland had prepared lists of perennials, annuals, shrubs, etc., for reference for the members when choosing garden seeds. Many availed themselves of the opportunity of asking questions also.

The Department of Agriculture not only withdrew the classes in Home Economics that the Institute might meet in its accustomed place, but the Instructors kindly gave talks. Miss McManus, in charge of the month's course, spoke on Home Decoration, choosing the subject under four heads: First, general effectiveness in regard to colour, furnishings and accessories; second, suitability to family needs; third, arrangement of furniture as regards comfort, convenience and balance; fourth, appearance of comfort under which must be considered colour, lighting and furniture. Miss McManus' talk was not only interesting, but instructive, and being illustrated by carefully prepared charts showing good taste and suitable decorations in various rooms of a home, gave many new ideas along this line.

Miss McMillan, the assistant for the last two weeks of the Course, spoke on Health, a question of vital interest to all, and to which none can pay too strict attention. Quoting "Florence Nightingale's definition, "Health is the ability to use every power that is given us, and without it life is not worth living", Miss McMillan urged her hearers to use every means of retaining health rather than just to learn how to cure. We cannot enjoy our homes and friends unless we have good health. Pay special attention to rest and exercise and proper food. It is not the exercise obtained going about your work, but that in the sunshine and open air which is so beneficial.

Mrs. Wagar's paper on Current Events was unusually fine, very interesting and instructive. It is a very special privilege Napanee members enjoy in thus being kept in touch with world happenings and conditions.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

ODESSA

Mrs. William Amey, Wilton, spent a few days last week the guest of Mrs. Pearl Storms.—Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Allen and little daughter, Dorothy, of Gananoque, spent Sunday with the former's mother, Mrs. Henry Allen.—John B. Aylesworth, of Newburgh, spent Sunday the guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Hamm.—Miss Helen Sproule, Sharp's Corners, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sproule.—Mr. Samuel Heath, of Watertown, spent the week end with his father, Peter Heath, and brother, John Heath. On his return home he was accompanied by Miss Bernice Moore, who has been spending some time with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Kilgannon.—Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Montgomery, Toronto, are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Montgomery.—Miss Jones, who has been spending the past week with her mother, Mrs. William Jones, who was ill, has returned to her position in Kingston.—About seventy-five neighbours, friends and relatives met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Clark, on Thursday night, and presented them with a handsome library table and two chairs, and also Mrs. Clark with a bible. Mr. and Mrs. Clark are leaving to make their home in Switzerville. Mr. Clark has sold his farm near Violet, where he has lived since childhood. Mr. and Mrs. Clark and family will be greatly missed by a large number of friends, and also from the Odessa Brass Band, as Mr. Clark and two of his sons were members.—The Maxson Band Tea held recently at the home of Mrs. George Conway, had about fifty members and honorary members of the W. M. S. present. —There were two sleigh driving parties from the village, taken by Mr. Meaford Montgomery and Mr. Charlie Wallace. The Maxson Band wish to thank Mrs. Conway and Miss Stella Conway for the enjoyable evening, and the delicious refreshments served, and particularly wish to express their gratitude to Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Wallace for their kindness in making it possible for them to attend.—The Euchre and dance held in the Town Hall, on Monday night by the Women's Institute, in aid of the Public Library, proved to be a great success. The extra fine night and good roads enabled pleasure seekers from a distance to attend. The prizes for euchre were won by Mrs. S. Denyes and Mr. J. C. Parrott. The lucky prize was a handsome cup and saucer, and the gentlemen's a pack of cards. The good orchestra music advertised was not misrepresented. All was surely excellent, and the refreshments (for which the Odessa ladies are noted) were excellent also.

MORVEN

Many of our people are suffering from severe colds, which accounts for their absence at service on Sunday night, when Rev. Mr. Merrick gave a splendid sermon from the words of the Psalmist, "O taste and see that the Lord is good."—Rev. Hope Swayne will kindly take charge of the service in St. Thomas' Church in the absence of the rector, who is ill.—Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bell spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Milling.—Mr. E. B. Gordanier and Mrs. Fraser visited Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bell, Bath, recently.—Mrs. George Clarke is spending a few days in town with Mrs. Arthur Clarke, who is very ill.—Mrs. Bruce Cummings spent the week-end with friends in Picton.—Mr. and Mrs. Allen Carl are rejoicing over the birth of a little son.—Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Chadwick entertained a large number of their friends at their home on Friday evening.—Mrs. Dowling, Ottawa, was a recent guest of her niece, Mrs. Roy Garrison.—It is with regret that we have learned of the Mr. Peter Storey family retiring from the farm. They expect to move in a few days.

All Throat Trouble.

Ask at Hooper's Drug Store about the new preparation for tonsilitis, bronchitis, and all throat trouble.

ERNESTOWN

The weather of the past week has been ideal.—Rev. Mr. Rose was called on the sick in our community recently.—Messrs. Melville and Charlie Thompson, of Morven, spent Sunday at Mr. Winzio Thompson's.—A number of our young people attended the Valentine Party in Bath Masonic Hall on Tuesday evening. All report a splendid time.—Mr. M. Wiseman, who has been ill for some time, is slowly improving. —In spite of the condition of the roads and the weather, a goodly number attended the tea meeting on Tuesday night of last week, which proved to be a decided success.—Mr. Percy Laidley was in Toronto on business lately. —Mr. Willie Kellar spent Saturday evening at Mr. F. Card's, Napanee. —Mr. Bert Smith went to Kingston on business on Saturday. —Mr. and Mrs. Arch Close, of Violet, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Spring recently.—The Farmers' Club unloaded a carload of feed on Tuesday.

DESMOND

A very enjoyable was spent at the school when the community held its annual oyster supper on Friday evening. About seventy-five were present and did ample justice to all the eats. —Mr. and Mrs. Dick Quinn entertained several of their friends to a Valentine Party.—Mr. Anthony McKeown is busy hauling wood to Newburgh, and has just filled the contract for the school here.—Mr. Victor Miller is sawing wood in this neighborhood.—Mr. and Mrs. Dyer and Ila took tea on Sunday at Mr. L. C. Switzer's. —Miss Thelma Dyer is spending with her aunt, Mrs. Fred Switzer, for a time.—Mr. and Mrs. Okel Drew at Fred Bell's for tea on Sunday.—Mr. F. Bell is gaining after being laid up from a bad sprain. —Mr. Archie Johnson, Millbrooke, called on old friends on Wednesday afternoon.

YARKER

(For last week.)

The play, "Among the Breakers", put on by a number of the young people, on February 3rd, under the auspices of the Women's Institute, was a decided success, if one may judge by the comments heard on every side, some of them being "I didn't know we had such actors in Yarker", "the best play ever put on here", "an all star cast", "no prompting needed". The play, which was coached by Mrs. Charlie Amey, received the most perfect attention, which was the highest compliment that could be paid to any entertainment. Sleighloads from Moscow, Wilton, Bethel, and others from Harrowsmith and Sydenham, attended the entertainment, which was enlivened by the splendid music given so cheerfully by the Orchestra. At the close a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the musicians, and a delicious lunch was served to players and orchestra by Mrs. S. Freeman, Mrs. A. Holland and Mrs. N. Boyce. Much credit is due the committee for the success of the evening. The play will be given in Harrowsmith on February 15th, and at Violet on February 28th.

MARLBANK

Our Ladies' Aid had the first meeting of the New Year on the 9th of February, with a good attendance. The following officers were elected:—President, Mrs. Reuben York; 1st Vice President, Mrs. Fred Booth; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. W. O. Asselstine; Treasurer, Mrs. Ida McLaughlin; Secretary, Mrs. Robert Asselstine; Visiting Committee, Mrs. Robert Fraser, Mrs. N. McCutcheo and Mrs. J. M. Carscallen; Press Reporter, Mrs. Robert Bird. Mrs. Reuben York intends having a Ladies' Aid quilting at her house on March 1st.—The remains of Mrs. Henry Beckwith was put in Tamworth vault on the 13th February. — Mrs. Card is very ill.—Mrs. Cephas Daffin had the misfortune to fall on the ice and break her wrist.—Mr. B. Clark is on the sick list.—Marlbank has two new cheesemakers. They ought to make things go this summer.—Our saw mill will be running soon again, as the mill yard is fast filling up with material.—Quite a number are sick with colds.

REIDVILLE

The farmers have completed getting up their supply of wood, and are anxiously waiting for the sawing machine to come along.—We are glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wagar back to Reidville. Mrs. Wagar formerly was Miss Ethel Hyland. They arrived on Tuesday.—Mrs. Harold Brown is having a Valentine party for her pupils at her home, which all are looking forward to with great interest.—Miss Daughie Pingland attended the "At Home" at Petersboro' Normal School, on Friday.—Miss Edna Wilson is spending a few days in Enterprise, with friends. — Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hyland and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McLaren and family spent an evening with Mr. and Mrs. S. Clancy, Wesley. —Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wilson are enjoying a new radio.—Miss Marie Pingland returned on Tuesday from Toronto, where she has been spending a couple of months.

HAWLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hill entertained Mr. and Mrs. A. Withers, Mr. and Mrs. C. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Craven, Mr. and Mrs. C. Day and Mrs. H. Simmons on Tuesday evening.— Mrs. C. Day and Mrs. G. Preston spent Monday with Mrs. M. Gall.—Mr. and Mrs. S. Parks and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Anderson were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Parks.—Mr. and Mrs. B. Parks, of Deseronto, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. S. Parks.—Miss Gladys Galt, Kingston, spent the week end at home.—Mr. and Mrs. I. Asselstine and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Pretty spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Creighton.—Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Gall were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Parks, on Tuesday.—Y. P. S. will meet at Mrs. Clayton Pretty, on February 17th.

NEWBURGH

Mr. Palmer, of the Whig-Standard, paid Newburgh a business visit during the week.

Miss Irwin, of Deseronto, who is attending Queen's University, spent the week end with Miss Ella Detlor.

Service each night at 7.30, in the Mission Hall, conducted by Rev. Mr. Halstead.

Mr. Porter, representative of McKay Dry Goods Company, was a business caller during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vanalstyne, of Palace Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Denison, of Napanee, were recent callers at Mr. James Farley's.

Miss Dorothy Kellar, of Napanee, was at home on Monday evening.

Mrs. Warren and Miss Mulholland, of Petersboro', visited in the village this week, and called on Mr. Wm. Mulholland, who is quite ill.

The interdenominational prayer meeting of Women's Missionary Society workers in connection with the World Day of Prayer, will be held in the United Church, Newburgh, on Friday, February 24th, at 2.30 p.m.

Rev. Geo. F. McCullogh, the Immigration Chaplain of the United Church at Winnipeg, gives some details of his work. During a certain period, immigrants coming to ocean for Canada, and registered as Methodist, Congregationalist, Presbyterian and Protestant, taken from the ship's manifest and forwarded to him numbered 11,447. These were all greeted, where the addresses were given, and put in touch with the United Church nearest to their residence. The names of all non-English Protestants were sent to the 12 non-English speaking ministers in Winnipeg. Young women in the number of 142, who came to Winnipeg as domestics, were invited to attend the Girls' Club at Knox Church. This Club is much appreciated by the girls, and does a fine service in welfare work. Mr. Laughland, introducing them to one another and to Canadian customs, thanks greeting these strangers, answering their questions and giving them directions, the Chaplain furnishes them with trusts, papers and magazines to read in the halls and take on the trains. Marriages, funerals, care of the sick, also fall among the Chaplain's duties, which, taken together, form a very useful bit of practical Christian service.

The Mission Circle entertainment held in the school room of the United Church on St. Valentine evening, was, in spite of the slippery streets and heavy roads, well attended. The young women had very appropriately and tastefully decorated the room with hearts and cupids, reminding all that it was St. Valentine's Day. The program was written on a large heart displaying cupid and hearts. The Mission Circle are very grateful to all who so generously and kindly presented a splendid program, which everyone agreed was unusually good. It was the first visit of Mrs. Wilfred Wilson, of Strathcona, to Newburgh, and she delighted the audience with her recitations. Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Dolph Milne, of Strathcona, are not strangers to a Newburgh audience and their reception was cordial, and the hearty encores showed the appreciation of their vocal efforts. Messrs. Pat and Wm. Hinch, with their stringed instruments, are favorites when they play here. The lady's rendering of "Jacob's Courtship", received a hearty encore. An old Newburgh boy, Mr. Frank Briscoe, who is home on a visit, contributed several solo selections. The dialogue by Mrs. and Mrs. Floyd Switzer, instrumental solos by Frances Sher, Hazel Winters, Dean Chandler, and Quartette, were features of the Mission Circle, and the story, "A Second Peter", by Mrs. Anderson, were all much enjoyed. After the program refreshments were served and the entertainment concluded with the National Anthem. The Mission Circle this year are aiming to raise enough funds to support a "cot" in one of our mission hospitals in Angola, West Africa. Everybody wishes them the best of success in their undertaking.

Mrs. T. H. P. Anderson, of Newburgh, is the recipient of a substantial cheque as the result of the high standing she attained in a recent MacLeanagram as conducted by MacLean's Magazine. This is the first resident of Newburgh to carry off one of these prize awards, and we hope to have the pleasure of recording the success of many more in the near future.

CAMDEN EAST

The heavy rain on Tuesday has made the roads almost impassable in getting around.—The oyster supper, which was held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid, was a decided success, and realized a nice sum for the Treasury.—Miss Lottie McKim, of Sydenham, and Mrs. Martha Switzer spent Saturday with their cousin, Mrs. Geo. Black.—The many friends of Mrs. Kenneth Amey were sorry to hear that she was in the General Hospital at Kingston, and all hope for a speedy recovery.—Mr. Bert Amey spent Monday in Napanee.—The Mission Circle held a Valentine party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everton Peters, at Ernestown, on Tuesday night.—The Women's Institute will hold their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Clarence Boulton, on Thursday, Feb. 23rd, at 2 p.m. Everybody welcome to attend.—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Black spent Saturday evening with Dr. and Mrs. Hudson, Newburgh, it being Master Gordon's birthday.—Mrs. Chas. Histed spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. James Henderson.—Miss Marsh took tea with Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hinch, on Sunday evening.—The many friends of Mrs. D. Williams are pleased to hear she is recovering, after her recent illness.—Mr. George Babcock is improving, and will soon be able to be in our midst again.—Flowers have been presented by the Woman's Institute to Mrs. Kenneth Amey, who is in Kingston General Hospital. — Miss Eva Stewart spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Chas. Histed.—Rev. Mr. Anderson took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Black, on Sunday last.

ODESSA
WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The February meeting was held in the evening, at the Public Library, and the men were invited to attend. The attendance was smaller than was expected as the weather and roads were very unfavorable. We were also disappointed in some of our programme.

The meeting opened in the usual manner, and the roll call was answered by "A Beautiful Thought in Poetry or Prose". After the business a short time was spent in community singing.

The address for the evening was given by Rev. G. McQuade, on the "Value of Good Reading", and proved most interesting and instructive.

He spoke first of the "Good" of valuable reading, it instructs and inspires. Ruskin said, "Good books build character". We should choose our books the same as our friends, we would not want to associate with any character that writes such terrible books. Our reading is divided into three groups, newspapers, magazines and books. No matter what church we attend take your church paper. Read a few good books every year, get them into your character. "Value" is something you keep—as money in a bank; so read news for their value and for pastime; have clean reading and read your Bible. There was so much "real value" in Mr. McQuade's talk, that we were sorry anyone had to miss the opportunity of hearing it, as the above is only a few of the thoughts he left with us.

The meeting closed with community singing and a social half hour was enjoyed, and lunch served.

Mrs. Clark Boice moved a vote of thanks to Mr. McQuade, which was seconded by Mrs. Earl Silver, and approved by a hearty applause.

At the next meeting we hope to have Mr. Holmes give a talk on "What Women Should Know About Banking".

The roll call will be "Wise or Otherwise".

Racked by Rheumatism

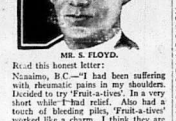
"Fruit-a-tives" Brought Speedy Relief

MR. S. FLOYD.

Read this honest letter:

Nanaimo, B.C.—"I had been suffering with rheumatic pains in my shoulders. Decided to try 'Fruit-a-tives'. In a very short while I found relief. Also had a touch of bleeding piles, 'Fruit-a-tives' worked like a charm. I think they are really marvellous." —Mr. S. Floyd.

"Fruit-a-tives" is composed of fresh fruit juices intensified and combined with tonics. The easy, natural action corrects constipation, stomach, kidney and bladder troubles, rids the system of poisons, purifies the blood, and banishes headaches and kindred pains. "Fruit-a-tives" is sold everywhere. 25c and 50c a box. Test it—to-day.

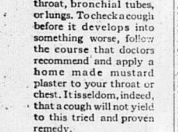


for a Cough

Chronic coughs are ordinary coughs that have been allowed to settle in the throat, bronchial tubes or lungs. To check a cough before it develops into something worse, follow the course that doctors recommend and apply a home made mustard plaster to your throat or chest. It is seldom, indeed, that a cough will not yield to this tried and proven remedy.

To make a plaster

mix two tablespoonfuls of Keen's Mustard with six of Linseed meal or flour into a paste with cold water. Spread between leaves of brown paper and cover with muslin.



Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Mr. A. O. Norton, the millionaire Jack Manufacturer, of Boston, who recently died, was a great "booster" for Zutoo Tablets.

He suffered from headaches from childhood and when he found Zutoo Tablets stopped these headaches in a few minutes and left no bad effect, he began recommending them to his family and friends. In an unsolicited letter, Mr. Norton says in closing:

"My family use them when ever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

ORGAN RECITAL WAS A MUSICAL TREAT

Church and Sunday School Auditoriums at King Street Taxed to Capacity.

Every seat in the church auditorium and adjoining Sunday School rooms filled, and members of the congregation occupying available seats in the choir loft, was the reception given last evening to Prof. W. T. Baird, L.T.S.M., of Napanee, who presided at the organ of King Street Church, both morning and evening, and gave a half-hour recital previous to the evening service.

Professor Baird has for a number of years been organist of Trinity United Church, Napanee, and while he was in this city yesterday, Mr. H. C. Treneer, organist of Kiny Street Church, was conducting the musical services of the Napanee organist. The recital preceding the evening service commenced at 6.30, and soon the church was filled to capacity, even Sunday School, classrooms and three empty seats in the choir loft being filled. Introducing such old favorites as "The Rosary", "Humoresque", and the "Overture from William Tell", together with several of the newer compositions, Mr. Baird held his audience at times spellbound in the world of sound to which he led them.—The Oshawa Daily Times, Monday, January 30th, 1928.

EAT MORE LAMB

Canadians do not generally appreciate the excellence of lamb as a food and the extent to which it might be used in their daily diet. The per capita consumption of lamb in Canada has always been much lower than that of other meats. At the same time there is no more tasty meat than good lamb and fresh killed, home-grown Canadian lamb is unsurpassed in quality. Lamb is seldom marketed in this country at over six months of age, and consequently varies very little in tenderness, tastiness and quality. If properly cut up and prepared for the table with reasonable skill it will surely make an appetizing and healthful meal. A small illustrated pamphlet on the Selection of Lamb Cuts, distributed by the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, gives many pointers on buying, cutting up and cooking this meat. According to the pamphlet the ideal lamb carcass weighs from 35 to 40 pounds with a preference for the heavier weight. It should be blocky and well rounded out, carrying a good leg of mutton and an even covering of fat. The meat should be fine in the grain, firm, juicy and nicely interspersed with fat. The coarse grain being the result of age or poor breeding. The pamphlet gives instructions for making the various cuts and for cooking in different ways.

LONDON'S FOGS.

They Are the Real Thing, These Dense, Damp Blankets.

Until one has passed a winter and spring in the British capital he knows nothing about a real fog. Perhaps there is one place where fogs are more frequently, but never so densely. That is on the banks of Newfoundland. The story used to be told of the veteran H. E. Judkins, commodore of the Cunard line, that when asked by a woman passenger if there was always a fog on the banks he replied severely:

"How do I know, madam? I don't live here."

But the Londoner who has to remain in town during the winter knows more about fogs than would the skipper of a lightship anchored in the path of transatlantic travel. It is because of the bad fog that the British owe so much to the country in winter and remains in the city during the summer. He regards the American rule. The height of the London season is at the very time when New York and other cities south of parallel 40 are sweltering in the heat and deserted by everybody who can afford to get away.

There is no such bad winter weather in London that a really fine day is a surprise. In the months between November and May the average resident of the British metropolis generally awakens to find that big town enveloped in a dense mist that drips on the window panes, finds its way into every crack and crevice, forms in drops of water upon the stone sills, only to drop to half open shutters below, searches for small openings at window tops and thereby gains admittance to the sleeping room, where the mist expands like the genii of the Arabian tales until it fills the apartment, first chokes the sleeper, then causes him to turn over, only to find that a new place on his pillow is damp and causes him to say, as every Londoner does times without number, "Another bad day!"

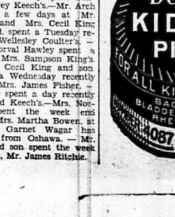
Here I'm to tell you that pedestrians constantly collide with one another, that the cries of the cabmen, and other drivers and people afoot are incessant and that objects animate or inanimate are often wholly invisible. No one foot distant you'd be incredulous, and yet such is the fact. Yet every fog is so dense as that, but they do occur in London.

A Parasite.

A world-wide tradition has it that the mistletoe was the tree from which Eve plucked the forbidden fruit in the Garden of Eden, and the tree was punished by having its fruit regarded as a parasite and still be forbidden to grow in the ground. All attempts to raise a tree from seed have failed. It remains a parasitic feeding on the life of other trees. But its other use makes us forget its bad habit in that respect.

Compile Beggars' Register.

Edinburgh, much to the delight of the city's charitable organizations, is now compiling a register in which will be entered the names of "pests" who beg in the streets. Appeals are also being made to householders that door-to-door beggars should receive no assistance, and the Edinburgh police is also being requested not to encourage those who sing in the streets.



How Delicate Girls Are Made Strong

Rich, Red Blood Needed to Keep Up Their Vitality.

It should be borne in mind that pale, bloodless girls need plenty of nourishment, plenty of sleep and regular out-of-doors exercise. But a lack of appetite and tired, aching limbs tend to hinder progress. To save the weak, thin-blooded sufferer, she must have new, rich blood, and nothing meets a case of this kind so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills not only enrich and increase the blood supply, they help the appetite and aid digestion, relieve the weary back and limbs, thus bringing new health and strength and transforming anaemic girls and women into cheerful, happy people.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the case of anaemic girls is proved by the case of Miss Lucy Shodart, Margaretville, N.S., who says: "From the age of 12 to 15, I was in an anaemic condition. I was very thin and nervous, had no appetite and had no desire to take part in the doings of those of my age. My mother got tonic after tonic for me, but they did me very little good. Then Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended and almost from the first they seemed to be just what was needed to restore my strength. After taking six pills for a time I felt an altogether different girl. I got up in the morning feeling bright and active, and ready for work or play. Since then I have always taken a couple of boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the spring as a tonic and have thus kept in the best of condition."

Every weak girl should promptly follow the example of Miss Stoddart, feeling sure that the pills will renew her health. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EASTERN CANADA GARDENING SERVICE

Snow may still cover the ground, but the seed catalogues have already been distributed, and the days are getting longer so the gardener must begin to plan for the work ahead. This planning is essential but is, with a few tools, a piece of land and a few packets of seed, all that is necessary. A beautiful display of flowers and prim rows of crisp vegetables are not hard to obtain. There is no mystery about gardening, only healthy exercise, a small quantity of cash, and a bit of ground from ten by ten feet upward being needed. With reliable seed so easy to obtain, fertilizer which will make the most barren soil productive, there is no excuse for the old style backyard and side dust when a bit is simple to replace with a sweep of vermont green grass leading up to gay beds of flowers.

Plan Garden Now

Much of the work of gardening is carried out indoors, and incidentally one gets almost as much pleasure from this as from the other. No one should think of going ahead without a plan, and an evening may be taken off for this at any time. It is remarkable what one can do in the way of raising vegetables and flowers even in a little space, if a full year's supply may be easily produced, and with rows wide apart, so that horse cultivation, the job is a simple one. In the latter case, there is no necessity for inter or double planting, and it is a good plan to make all rows at least thirty inches apart. With taller or spreading sorts of vegetables such as cucumbers, tomatoes, corn and possibly potatoes, a full yard is not too wide. When space is limited, as is the case in the average city or town garden, and the garden is cultivated by hand, distances can be cut down with the narrow vegetables such as carrots and beets twelve inches apart, beans and peas fifteen, and the taller and wider sorts a couple of feet. On these rows will be found rather narrow, and one will have to be careful in working around them. To get more freedom, plant alternate rows with quickly-maturing stuff like lettuce, spinach and radishes, which will be used up before their later growing neighbours require full space. Wherever possible, garden experts advize running such as cucumbers, squash, melons and even pumpkins, should be trained up along the fence, and tomatoes staked. Even in the unlimited gardens, the staking of tomatoes is strongly urged, as in this case the fruit will mature much earlier, be produced to better quality and will be cleaner than where the plants are allowed to sprawl over the ground. The vegetable garden may be made more attractive by planting a few showy flowers, such as zinnias, poppies, calliopsis, and marigolds around the edges. Here also should be grown those flowers for cutting purposes like sweet peas, calliopsis, and other tall and thin flowers of which is not particularly attractive. Formal rows of flowers whether straight or curved to the contour of the land will be found to be cleaner than where the plants are allowed to sprawl over the ground. The vegetables have freedom, plant alternate rows with quickly-maturing stuff like lettuce, spinach and radishes, which will be used up before their later growing neighbours require full space. Wherever possible, garden experts advize running such as cucumbers, squash, melons and even pumpkins, should be trained up along the fence, and tomatoes staked. Even in the unlimited gardens, the staking of tomatoes is strongly urged, as in this case the fruit will mature much earlier, be produced to better quality and will

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Wife—We must have Cousin Jane something for Christmas. It isn't the value of the thing, but the thought that goes with it.

Husband—Ouch! I guess it will be just as well Cousin Jane doesn't know too much about the thought that goes with it.

It Will Prevent Ulcerated Throat.—At the first symptoms of sore throat, which presages ulceration and inflammation, take a spoonful of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Add a little sugar to it to make it palatable. It will allay the irritation and prevent the ulceration and swelling that are so painful. Those who were periodically subject to quinay have thus made themselves immune to attack.

A very severe woman of the "uncouth" type accosted a man who, to put it very mildly, had taken more liquor than was good for him.

Woman—Do take one of these tracts, my good man—it will do you good.

Drunk (pulling himself together) —"Madam I writes 'em!"

Rub It In For Lame Back. — A brisk rubbing with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will relieve lame back. The skin will immediately absorb the oil and it will penetrate the tissues and bring speedy relief. Try it and be convinced. As the liniment sinks in, the pain comes out and there are ample grounds for saying that it is an excellent article.

A touring theatrical manager was playing "Hamlet," Unluckily, the leading actor was unable to appear, and the role of the Prince was undertaken by a somewhat feeble performer.

When Hamlet reached that noble declamation, "There is something rotten in the state of Denmark," a frank voice interposed, "And you're it, old man."

Customer (going into certain fishmonger's—This haddock you sold me has gone bad."

Fishmonger — "Impossible, madam; it was only cured yesterday."

Customer—"Then it must have had a relapse."

A judge was crossing the Irish Sea one stormy night, when he knocked against a lawyer suffering severely from sea-sickness.

"Can I do anything for you?" inquired the judge.

"Yes," gasped the lawyer; "will your lordship overrule that motion?"

Hard and soft corns both yield to Holloway's Corn Remover, which is entirely safe to use, and certain and satisfactory in its action.

"I'm happy and all that, of course, old chap; still I wish my wife wouldn't talk so much about her last husband."

"Forget it, old man—mine's always talking about her next."

Asthma is Torture. No one who hasn't gasped for breath in the power of asthma knows what such suffering is. Thousands do know, however, from experience how immeasurable is the relief provided by that marvellous preparation, Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. For years it has been relieving the most severe cases. If you are a sufferer do not delay a day in securing this remedy from your druggist.

Greene—"I told my wife that if she bobbed her hair I would leave her."

Browne—"But she bobbed it, and you're still living with her!"

Greene—"You bet I am. I'll show her she can't bluff me!"

It is usually safe to say that when a child is pale, sickly, peevish and restless, the cause is worms. These parasites range the stomach and intestines, causing serious disorders of the digestion and preventing the infant from deriving sustenance from food. Miller's Worm Powders, by destroying the worms, correct these faults of the digestion and serve to restore the organs to healthy action.

"I was speaking to messieurs about my cousin, who will meddle in the affair of his relative'. Well, that gentleman will make a marriage for me with a good and accomplish' lady, very noble and very beautiful—and amiable." (The young count at his elbow started slightly at this, but immediately appeared to wrap himself in a mantle of solemn thought.) "Unfortunately, when my cousin arrange' so I was a dolt, a little blockhead. I swear to marry for myself and when I please or never if I like. That lady is all things charming and gentle, and, in truth, she is—very much attach' to me—why should I not say it? I am so proud of it. She is very faithful and forgiving and sweet. She would be the same, I think, if I—were even—a lackey. But if I was a dolt, a little unsensible brute. I did not value such thing' then. I was too young, las' June. So I say to my cousin, 'No. I make my own choosing!' 'Little fool,' he answer, 'she is the one for you. Am I not wiser than you?' And he was very angry, and, as he has influence in France, word come' that he will get me put in Vincennes, so I must run away quick till his anger is gone. My good friend Mirepoix is jus' leaving for London. He take' many risk for my sake. His hairdresser die before he start', so I travel as that poor barber. But my cousin is a man to be afraid of when he is angry, even in England, and I mus' not get my Mirepoix in trouble. I mus' not be discover' till my cousin is ready to laugh about it all and make it a little jest. And there my spies. So I change my name again and come to Bath to amuse my retreat with a little training. I am al-way fond of that. But three day' ago M. le Marquis send me a courier to say that my brother, who know where I had run away, is come from France to say that my cousin is appeas'. He need me for his little theatre, the play cannot go on. I do not need to espouse mademoiselle. All shall be forgotten if, I return, and my brother and M. de Mirepoix will meet me in Bath to felicitate.

N.C.I. NEWS

EXHIBITION BASKETBALL.

Napanee 21, N.C.I. 8.

On Monday last in the Collegiate gym, the Napanee Intermediate E. O. B. A. defeated the N.C.I. Seniors in a fast game of basketball, with a score of 21-8. The game gave each team the needed practise.

The first part of the game was fast, ball with practically no scoring until the middle of the session. Both teams played well although the intermediates had the edge of the play. From then on they walked away from the Collegians and scored fifteen points to their opponents 4. Each captain decided to start practically all fresh men in the second period, and the play was much the same. The regulars were again on with about 8 minutes to go and the McDonaldites again dominated the play, missing many good chances to score. The game was very clean with very few personals.

Wartman, an old N.C.I. man, led in the scoring, registering 12 points. The rest of the scoring was equally divided. Both teams played good combination but seemed a bit weak on the shooting,—perhaps it was an off night.

The following is the line-up :—

Napanee—Centre, Wartman 14; forwards, McDonald (Capt.) 2, Stewart 2; defense, Murray, Cavanaugh 1; spares, Coates, Powell, Black 2, Alcombrack.

N.C.I.—Centre, Way; forwards, Gilbride 4, Vick; defense, McFadden (Capt.), Nugent; Spares, Black 2, Woodruff, Smith, Johnston 2, Chapman, Merritt.

Referee—C. Graham, Napanee.

The Collegiate team play Albert College this Friday, and Captain McFadden expects another victory. He says that with the locals on their own floor they should have no difficulty in coming out on top. He also expects to give Belleville Collegiate a run for their lives.

We heard from Ralph Cowle the other day. Cowie, the popular sterling defense captain of the 1927 team, is playing centre for a house team at Victoria College, Toronto. He scored a free shot for his team when they lost a game, the score being 2-1. Judging from the score it must have been a close game.

N.C.I. 32, K.C.I. 19.

At the Collegiate gym, on Friday, February 9th, the N.C.I. girls team won another game at the expense of the K.C.I. Seniors. The visitors had more height than the locals but the latter had the better of the play throughout the game.

It took the Kingston girls almost all of the first period to "get warmed up" and until then they hardly had a look-in. Dorothy Horwood was the pick of the team, playing ball and scoring 10 points. Jean Taylor followed her closely with 9.

Once again Kay Gleeson led the Blue and Gold in scoring, tallying 18. She is a real steady forward and has been the leading scorer in every senior game this year. "Nookie" Vhan that handy side-centre, scored 10. The defense seemed to have a pick on Agnes Cavanaugh and only allowed her 4. Marion Grass was a constant menace to the visitors' while the defense had the forwards all tied up. Aileen Harrison sprained her ankle in a practise on Wednesday, but Dorothy Douglas ably filled her place. Aileen is O.K. now and will be ready for the return game. Y. P. A. 7 p.m., Friday, 17th February.

The line-ups were :—

K.C.I.—Forwards, J. Taylor 9, D. Angrove; centres, E. Murray, D. Horwood 10; defense, L. Wilder, I. Cramer.

N.C.I.—Forwards, K. Gleeson 18, M. Cavanaugh 4; centres, M. Grass, M. Daly 10; defense, G. Boyes, M. Douglas.

Choose Dresses Constructed From Woolen Fabrics for Winter Comfort. We Present Many Charming and Individual Creations

The vogue for woolen dresses is on—and smartness is measured by weight, as Fashion has only a place for the sheerest of woolen fabrics as Wool Crepe, Wool Georgette, Wool Jersey, Wool Faille, and Wool Charmeen are receiving much attention for immediate and spring wear.

One and two piece vogues continue with charm and individuality neatly expressed by skilful manipulation of materials, by artistic grouping and placing of tucks, pleats and stitching; by deft touches of embroidery; by belts, and with colorful bunches of flowers.

Navy and Black are first place colors, with Rose and Tan tones close seconds.

Prices from $7.95 to $47.50.

See the New Spring Styles in The Gossard Line of Beauty on Display in Our Corset Section

Your frock is only as smart as your foundation garment is correct. A "close-up" on the new styles for Spring will give you a real insight into the dependency of the modes upon correct under-lines.

Gossard's Spring models express the newest thoughts in Corsetry. They have produced "a corset to suit your type". Our Corseteres will be glad to serve you. Arrange for a fitting as soon as you can.

Girls' Wool Dresses on Sale at $2.29 Each

Girls wearing these dresses simply don't know what it means to be cold, even on the coldest winter days. They are smartly fashioned too, showing clever touches of colorful ornamentation. Choose them in Flannel, Serge, Wool Crepe and in novelty Plaids. Sizes up to 6 have Bloomers to match.

Spectacular Sale of Fur Neckpieces and Muffs. Prices Have Been Drastically Reduced

We should have cleaned house here before—we know it now, and are prepared to take our medicine like real sports.

In several instances the styles are not so good, and women don't carry muffs—but here's the point, "The furs are exceedingly good quality—they are suitable to make over in present day collar and cuff setts—and they are marked low enough to enable you to do so profitably."

Featured are neckpieces and muffs in such dependable and fashionable furs as Wolf, Fox, Coon, Sable, Lynx, Mink, Opossum, Badger, Muskrat, Hudson Seal.

Prices are 33 1-3 per cent lower than cost price at time of purchase.

Neckpieces range from $3.50 to $35.00.

Muffs range from $2.00 to $15.00.

Y. P. S. OF CONWAY AND SILLSVILLE

The sixth meeting of the Union Young People's Society of Conway and Sillsville was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Hough, Sillsville, on Friday, February 10th, with the President presiding.

The religious part of the programme consisted of the singing of two hymns, prayer, and a religious topic prepared by one of the members. At present the topic is chosen from Hurlbut's Story of the Bible, a chapter being read at each meeting.

A well prepared paper on current events was given by Nellie Graham, and in this way the Society is brought in touch with world events.

The biography of the late Pauline Johnston, one of our foremost Canadian Poetesses, was read by Miss Elsie Magee, and was appropriately followed by one of her poems, "Wolverine", read by Mrs. Harold Hough.

Mr. Lewis Pengelley favoured the Society with "Our Ancestor From Celelee", an account of the efforts to establish the missing link between the anthropoid ape and man.

During the recreation period games were played, after which an excellent lunch was served.

MOSCOW WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The February meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Cline. Thirty members answered the roll call, by Aunt Het's sayings, with the President, Mrs. J. A. Amey, in the chair.

The report of the Secretary was then given. Plans were discussed for a quilting in the near future.

Mrs. Lampkin very kindly offered her home for the annual visit of the lady speaker, for next June. Miss Evelyn Potter gave a Valentine reading, which was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Lyall Milsap was the winner of the prize given in the spelling match.

Community singing was then indulged in, after which the meeting closed by singing "God Save the King".

Lunch was served by the committee in charge.

CAMDEN EAST LADIES' AID

The February meeting of the Ladies' Aid was held on the afternoon of the 14th, at the home of the President, Mrs. Bert Yeomans.

The meeting opened by the singing of Hymn 270, after which Mrs. George Black led in prayer. The President read the 93rd Psalm. Miss G. Gallagher then read the minutes of the previous meeting. This was followed by the Treasurer's report; then the meeting was opened for business, with fourteen members present to roll call, and one visitor.

It was decided upon to hold a St. Patrick's party in the United Church Hall on the 16th of March. A committee was appointed to look after the programme.

A motion was then made to send flowers to two in the community who are ill. Mrs. Geo. Black gave some very helpful suggestions to us for the benefit of the Society.

Four dozen more silver knives and forks have been purchased, and an order that the same be paid for was then given.

Plans for a play were discussed, and four ladies were appointed to look after it. The play is to be given early after Easter.

Hymn 383 closed the meeting. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Tom Hyland, on March 6th.

The oyster supper and entertainment held on the 10th inst., was a decided success. Visitors from far and near showed their appreciation for their past feasts given by this Society on previous occasions. Home entertainers were selected for the program, which raised the applause from the audience, and several times an encore. Proceeds amounted to a very neat sum.

TAMWORTH

(For last week)

The W. M. S. of the United Church are holding a Valentine supper on the 14th inst., and the Ladies' Aid a play on the 21st.—Services will be held on the United Church Circuit on Sunday next morning, afternoon and evening, at Reidville, Marlbank and Tamworth, in the order named.—The Reidville choir have ordered new anthem books and a number of additional chairs to meet the requirements of the Sunday services of the congregation. — The Young People's Union of the United Church held a very successful and well attended meeting in the League room of the church on Monday evening last. Miss Eulalia Floyd had charge of the programme. It is expected that the next meeting will be held in the Religious Education Building.—Rev. I. N. Beckstead preached sermons last Sunday on the Tamworth United Circuit, showing the need of Church organization for Christian work and giving New Testament examples. Without organization nothing permanent or largely helpful could be accomplished. —Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Carscallen are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Wolfe, in New York.—The ice harvest is good, the ice being 21 inches thick. There is a good supply coming into town for the summer.— The auction sale of the goods of the late Pat Flannigan, was held at his farm, near Erinsville, on Saturday last. Everything sold well, cows ranging as high as $80.00 to $90.00. Tom Flannigan, brother of the deceased, bought the farm. — New Sugar suits made to order. $24.00. 'at Floyd & Co.'s.

ENTERPRISE W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held in the church on Wednesday.

Despite the bad weather a goodly number were in attendance. The President, Mrs. H. A. Carscallen, had charge of the meeting.

After the devotional exercises and routine of business, Mrs. Nelson Bell gave a very interesting report of the Belleville Presbyterial meeting. She referred to the splendid reception the delegates received on their arrival there; of the friendly greetings and the excellent addresses on the home and foreign work. In summing up her report we thought the message she had for us was to try to have every woman in the congregation a member of our Auxiliary. To be a good member we must be a regular attendant, we must give of our time, our talents and money. A very hearty vote of 'thanks was given Mrs. Bell.

Enterprise was one of the many Auxiliaries that reached its allocation.

Rev. Mr. Burt closed the meeting with prayer. Lunch was served.

The World Day of Prayer will be observed in the United Church.

A HOPEFUL VIEW OF THE HORSE BUSINESS.

In his latest report of the work of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, the Honorable Mr. Motherwell expresses a very hopeful view of the horse breeding industry. In districts, he points out, where for the past decade horse breeding was almost neglected, attention is being given more and more to the raising of stock. The market for big draught horses has been increasing at all centres, which, the Minister states, have during the past year been at least 25 per cent higher than during the previous year. The shortage in the eastern provinces is being filled from the West and it is shown that during the twelve-month period under review the western provinces caused to Ontario 6,700 horses, to Quebec 10,000, while large shipments were required to supply the Maritime Provinces. Reference is made to the export of one thousand western horses to Russia that has made such a good impression that delegates representing that country have been on the outlook for larger shipments. Saddlers, hunters, and polo ponies, the Minister reports, continue to find a ready market at prices from 15 per cent to 25 per cent higher than in previous years. The difficulty of being able to supply the market with suitable stock of these classes is quite pronounced. Referring to the horse breeders' clubs that are operated under the Federal assistance policy, the Honourable Mr. Motherwell points out that these have increased 20 per cent over the preceding year with an increased demand for the better class of sires, which it is being learned is doing much to establish a definite type and to grade up the horses of the district by the use of the improved blood.

(Issued by the Director of Publicity, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.)

ST. ANDREW'S SUPPER MANAGERS ENTERTAIN

The Managers of St. Andrew's United Church entertained the congregation to a Valentine Supper on Wednesday evening. The school room was prettily decorated with Valentine decorations and the tables with red paper hearts and candles. The supper was served at six-thirty, and had been prepared by Mr. J. M. Thomson and his cohorts. It was all that could be desired. After supper Mr. Beattie led in community singing for a time, and then the work of the church was reviewed. Mr. Moffat, the chairman, called on Mr. Wilson, who gave a statement of the work of the United Church of Canada as a whole. The woman's work was ably presented by Mrs. Gilbride, who pictured the place of the women in the church both at home and abroad.

Mr. W. T. MacKenzie spoke on behalf of the Managers. He gave a very interesting statement of the early days of St. Andrew's, and traced its growth up to the present generation.

Mr. Beattie briefly pointed out the place of religious education in the life of the community, and urged more attention to that phase of the work, particularly on the part of the parents.

Mr. Howitt reviewed the financial work of the past year, and Mr. Went gave his impression of Napanee and St. Andrews as a new comer.

Mr. Corkill concluded the speaking with one of his humorous and inimitable addresses.

In between there were musical numbers rendered by Mrs. Valkman and Mr. Caldwell. Miss Baughan officiated at the piano.

In spite of the uncertainty of the weather and the slippery walking, practically the whole congregation were present.

—The family of the late Mrs. J. J. Bush wish to thank their many friends for kindness and sympathy during their recent bereavement. 7ap

DORLAND

The roads have been much improved since the ice storm of last Wednesday, although for a few hours travelling of any kind was a dangerous undertaking.—Mr. Frank Vesterveit is moving from Mr. T. Chalmers' to a farm near Selby.—The men on Third Concession are very busy hauling gravel from Brooks' pit and banking it at intervals along the road.—A large number from this locality were in Picton last Saturday. J. S. Johnson purchased a fine horse there from the carload that recently arrived from the West.

The variable weather still continues. Sharp frost following rain or snow so closely keeps everything in an icy condition.—The bright moonlight last Thursday evening was ideal for the Y. P. S. social evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ruttan. About fifty were present, and all enjoyed a jolly time. The programme was varied, consisting of both educative and amusing numbers. An evening along similar lines is planned for February 17th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Roblin.—An interesting W. M. S. meeting was held at Mrs. T. N. Davis' home on Friday afternoon.—The first practice on the play, "Back to the Farm", to be given by the Women's Institute, was held at the home of Mrs. Russel Cousins, on Tuesday evening.—Mr. and Mrs. Blake Humphrey were presented with a variety shower in the hall, on Friday evening. Dancing was enjoyed by those present.

Napanee's Ambitions

Napanee wants more population, more industry, more capital, more trade, more prosperity.

And the unfailing formula for accomplishing these ambitions is to make Napanee attractive--then, keep it so. There is plenty of room in our town for citizens of the right sort. They will come, if Napanee broadcasts an inviting message beyond the borders of this community.

For years, country populations have gone cityward. But the peak has been reached. The tide has turned. City folks are flocking out to the small and medium-sized towns--where they find more joy in living.

Napanee can reap its share of this vast number of home seek- ers. But ambitions have got to be backed up by performance. We must be receptive to the coming of good citizens. We must stimulate pride and patriot- ism within the community. We must make certain that we can provide all the essentials that make for moral and physical well-being of all who would come among us.

Good government, thriving industries, good schools and church- es, pure water, clean streets, better roads, opportunities for the rising generation, a progressive community spirit and true co-operation--all make for a splendid inducement to folks looking for a real home town.

Let each one do his part toward making Napanee a better place to live in and then---spread the good word to every corner of the globe.

The following progressive firms and individuals heartily endorse this sentiment:

What makes you always so popular?" I asked the speedy young spark. "Not me," he said with a grin. "As the powdered her chin—I was all the boys in the dark."

"Madge's honeymoon was completely spoiled. "How?" "The papers containing an account of the wedding failed to reach her."

Monsieur Beaucaire

BY BOOTH TARKINGTON

Author of "The Gentleman From Indiana" and "The Conquest of Canaan."

Copyright, 1900, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"Gladly." The beau beckoned an attendant and whispered in his ear.

Many of the crowd had edged up to the two gentlemen with apparent carelessness, to overhear their conversation. Those who did overhear repeated it in covert asides, and this circulating undertone, confirming a vague rumor that Beaucaire would attempt the entrance that night, lent a pleasurable color of excitement to the evening. The French prince, the ambassador and their suite were announced. Polite as the assembly was, it was also curious, and there occurred a mannerly rush to see the newcomers. Lady Mary, already pale, grew whiter as the throng closed around her. She looked up pathetically at the duke, who lost no time in extricating her from the pressure.

"Wait here," he said. "I will fetch you a glass of negus," and disappeared. He had not thought to bring a chair, and she, looking about with an increasing faintness and finding none, saw that she was standing by the door of a small side room. The crowd swerved back for the passage of the legate of France, and pressed upon her. She opened the door and went in.

The room was empty save for two gentlemen, who were quietly playing cards at a table. They looked up as she entered. They were M. Beaucaire and Mr. Molyneux.

She uttered a quick cry and leaned against the wall, her hand to her breast. Beaucaire, though white and weak, had brought her a chair before Molyneux could stir.

"Mademoiselle"—

"Do not touch me!" she said, with such frozen abhorrence in her voice that he stopped short. "Mr. Molyneux, you seek strange company!"

"Madam," replied Molyneux, bowing deeply, as much to Beaucaire as to herself, "I am honored by the presence of both of you."

"Oh, are you mad?" she exclaimed contemptuously.

"This gentleman has exalted me with his confidence, madam," he replied.

"Will you add your ruin to the scandal of this fellow's presence here? How he obtained entrance"—

"Pardon, mademoiselle," interrupted Beaucaire. "Did I not say I should come? M. Molyneux was so obliging

"Had you known this Beaucaire was loner, though of peasant birth, would you"

as to answer for me to the fourteen friends of M. de Winterset and Meestaire Nash."

"Do you not know," she turned vehemently upon Molyneux, "that he will be removed the moment I leave this room? Do you wish to be dragged out with him? For your sake, sir, because I have always thought you a man of heart, I give you a chance to save yourself from disgrace —and your companion from jail. Let him slip out by some retired way, and you may give me your arm and we will enter the next room as if nothing had happened. Come, sir!"

"Mademoiselle"—

"Mr. Molyneux, I desire to hear nothing from your companion. Had I not seen you at cards with him I should have supposed him in attendance as your lackey. Do you desire to take advantage of my offer, sir?"

"Mademoiselle, I could not tell you on that night"—

"You may inform your high born friend, Mr. Molyneux; that I heard everything he had to say; that my pride once had the pleasure of listening to his high born confession!"

"Ah, it is gentle truth one with his birth, mademoiselle? Ah, no! There is a man in my country who say strange things of that—that a man is not his father, but himself."

"You may inform your friend, Mr. Molyneux, that he had a chance to defend himself against accusation; that he said all"—

"That I did say all I could have strength to say. Mademoiselle, you did not see—as it was right—that I had been stung by a big wasp. It was nothing. A scratch; but, mademoiselle, the sky went round and the moon dance' on the earth. I could not wish that big wasp to see he had stung me; so I mus' only say what I can have strength for, and stan' straight till he is gone. Beside there are other rizzons. Ah, you mus' belief! M. Molyneux I sen' for, and tell him all because he show courtesy to the yo'ng Frenchman, and I can trus' him. I trus' you, mademoiselle—long ago—and would have tol' you ev'rything, excep' jus' because —well, for the romance, the fun! You belief' it is so clearly so. You do belief, mademoiselle?"

She did not even look at him. M. Beaucaire lifted his hand appealingly toward her. "Can there be no faith in—in"—he said timidly, and paused. She was silent, a statue, my Lady Disdain.

"If you had not belief' me to be an' impostor; if I had never said I was Chatearien; if I had been jus' that M. Beaucaire of the story they tol' you, but never with the heart of a lackey, an honest man, a man, the man you knew, himself, could you—would you"—He was trying to speak firmly, yet as he gazed upon her splendid beauty he choked slightly and fumbled in the lace at his throat with unsteady fingers. "Would you—have let me ride by your side in the autumn moonlight?" Her glance passed by him as it might have passed by a footman or a piece of furniture. He was dressed magnificently, a multitude of orders glittering on his breast. Her eyes took no knowledge of him.

"Mademoiselle, I have the honor to ask you: if you had known this Beaucaire was hones', though of peasant birth, would you"—

Involuntarily, controlled as her icy presence was, she shuddered. There was a moment of silence.

"Mr. Molyneux," said Lady Mary, "in spite of your discourtesy in allowing a servant to address me, I offer you a last chance to leave this room undisgraced. Will you give me your arm?"

"Pardon me, madam," said Mr. Molyneux.

Beaucaire dropped into a chair with his head bent low and his arm outstretched on the table. His eyes filled slowly in spite of himself, and two tears rolled down the young man's cheeks.

"An' live men are jus'—names!" said M. Beaucaire.

CHAPTER VI.

In the outer room Winterset, unable to find Lady Mary and supposing her to have joined Lady Bellenoux, disposed of his pegus, then approached the two visitors to pay his respects to the young prince, whom he discovered to be a stripling of seventeen, arrogant looking, but pretty as a girl. Standing beside the Marquis de Mirepoix, a man of quiet bearing, he was surrounded by a group of the great, among whom Mr. Nash naturally counted himself. The beau was felicitating himself that the foreigners had not arrived a week earlier, in which case he and Bath would have been detected in a piece of gross ignorance concerning the French nobility—making much of de Mirepoix's ex-barber.

"'Tis a lucky thing that fellow was got out of the way," he ejaculated under cover.

"Thank me for it," rejoined Winterset.

An attendant begred Mr. Nash's notice. The head bailiff sent word that Beaucaire had long since entered the building by a side door. It was supposed Mr. Nash had known of it, and the Frenchman was not arrested, as Mr. Molyneux was in his company and said he would be answerable for him. Consternation was so plain on the beau's trained face that the duke leaned toward him anxiously.

"The villain's in, and Molyneux hath gone mad?"

Mr. Bantison, who had been fiercely elbowing his way toward them, joined heads with them. "You know well say he is in," he exclaimed, "and if you want to know where, why, in yonder card room. I saw him through the half open door."

"What's to be done?" asked the beau.

"Send the bailiffs"—

"Fie, fie! A file of bailiffs? The scandal!"

"Then listen to me," said the duke. "I'll select half a dozen gentlemen, explain the matter and we'll put him in the centre of us and take him out to the bailiffs. I will appear arrested. Do you remain here and keep the attention of Beaujolais and de Mirepoix. Come, Bantison, fetch Townbrake and Harry Rakell yonder. I'll bring the others."

Three minutes later his grace of Winterset flung wide the card room door and, after his friends had entered, closed it.

"Ah!" remarked M. Beaucaire quietly, "Six more large men."

The duke, seeing Lady Mary, started, but the angry signs of her interview had not left her face and reassured him. He offered his hand to conduct her to the door. "May I have the honor?"

"If this is to be known, 'twill be better if I leave after. I should be observed if I went now."

"As you will, madam," he answered, not displeased. "And now, you impudent villain," he began, turning to M. Beaucaire, but to fall back, astounded. "Od's blood, the dog hath purloined one of the bench prince!" He forgot Lady Mary's presence in his excitement. "Lay hands on him!" he shouted. "Fetch these orders from him!"

Molyneux threw himself between. "One word" he cried. "One word before you offer an outrage you will repent all your lives!"

"Or let M. de Winterset come alone!" laughed M. Beaucaire.

"Do you expect me to fight a cut-throat barber, and with bare hands?" "I think one does not expect men sient to fight anybody. Would I fight you, you think? That was why I had my servants that evening we play. I would gladly fight almos' any one in the worl', but I did not wish to sull my hand with a"—

"Stuff his lying mouth with his orders!" shouted the duke.

But Molyneux still held the gentlemen back. "One moment," he cried.

"M. de Winterset," said Beaucaire, "of what are you afraid? You calculate well. Beaucaire might have been belief'—an imposter that you yourself expose? Never! But I was not goin' reveal that secret. You have not absolve' me of my promise."

"Tell what you like," answered the duke. "Tell all the wild lies you have time for. You have five minutes to make up your mind to go quietly."

"Now you absolve me, then? Ha, ha! Oh, yes! Mademoiselle," he bowed to Lady Mary, "I have the honor to reques' you leave the room. You shall miss no details if these frien's of yours kill me, on the honor of a French gentleman."

"A French what?" laughed Bantison.

"Do you dare keep up the pretense?" cried Lord Townbrake. "Know, you villain barber, that your master, the Marquis de Mirepoix, is in the next room."

Molyneux heaved a great sigh of relief. "Shall I"— He turned to M. Beaucaire.

The young man laughed and said, "Tell him to come here at once."

"Impudent to the last!" cried Bantison as Molyneux hurried from the room.

"Now you goin' to see M. Beaucaire's master," said Beaucaire to Lady Mary. "'Tis true what I say, the other night, I cross from France in his suit; my passport say as his barber. Then to pass the ennui of exile I come to Bath and play for what one will. It kill the time. But when the people hear I have been a servant they come only secretly, and there is one of them—he has absolve' me of a promise not to speak—of him I learn something he cannot wish to be tol'. I make some trouble to learn this thing. Why I should do this? Well—that is my own rizzon. So I make this man help me in a masque, the unmasking it was, for, as there is no one to know me, I throw off my black wig and become myself—and so I am 'Chatearien,' Castle Novan. Then this man I use', this Winterset, he"—

"I have great need to deny these accusations?" said the duke.

"Nay," said Lady Mary wearily.

"Ahhah! I tell you why I mus' be 'Victor' and 'Beaucaire' and 'Chateaurien' and not myself!"

To escape from the bailiffs for debts for razors and soap," gibed Lord Townbrake.

"No, monsieur. In France I have got a cousin who is a man with a very bad temper at some time', and he will never enjoy his relatives to do what he does not wish"—

He was interrupted by a loud commotion from without. The door was flung open, and the young Count of Beaujolais bounded in and threw his arms about the neck of M. Beaucaire.

"Philippe!" he cried. "My brother, I have come to take you back with me."

M. de Mirepoix followed him, bowing as a courtier in deference, but M. Beaucaire took both his hands heartily. Molyneux came after, with Mr. Nash, and closed the door.

"My warmest felicitations," said the marquis. "There is no longer need for your incognito."

"Thou best of masters!" said Beaucaire, touching him fondly on the shoulder. "I know. Your courier came safely. And so I am forgiven! I forget." He turned to the lady. She had begun to tremble exceedingly. "Fairer of all the English fair," he said, as the gentlemen bowed low to her deep courtesy, "I hop' the honor to prese'n' to Lady Mary Carlisle, M. le Comte de Beaujolais. M. de Mirepoix has already the honor. Lady Mary has been very kind to me, my frien's. You mus' help me make my acknowledgment, Mademoiselle and gentlemen, will you give me that favor to detain you one instan'?

"Henri," he turned to the young Beaujolais, "I wish you had shared my mask—I have been so gay!" The surface of his tone was merry, but there was an undercurrent, weary-sad, to speak of what was the mood, not the manner. He made the effect of addressing every one present, but he looked steadily at Lady Mary. Her eyes were fixed upon him, with a silent and frightened fascination, and she trembled more and more. "I am not a lackey, Henri. These gentlemen are yet scarce convince' I am not a lackey! And I mus' tell you that I was jus' now to be expelled for haring been a barber!"

"Oh, no!" the ambassador cried out. "He would not be content with me. He would wander over a strange country."

"Ha, ha, my Mirepoix! And what is better, one evening I am oblige' to fight some frien's of M. de Winterset there, and some ladies and cavaliers look on, and they still think me a servant. Oh, I am a great actor! 'Tis true there is not a peasant in France who would not have then known one from'; but they are wonderful, this English people, holding by an idea once it is in their heads — a mos' worthy quality. But my good Molyneux here, he had speak to me with courtesy, jus' because I am a man an' jus' because he is al-ways kind. I have learn' that his great-grandfather was a Frenchman. So I sen' to him and tell him ev'rything and be

TO WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Wilson's Experience a Guide to Women Passing through the Change of Life

Hamilton, Ontario.—"I have taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot speak too highly of it as I was at the Change of Life and was all run-down and had no appetite. I was very weak and sick, and the pains in my back were so bad I couldn't move. I got very sad at times and thought I had not a friend on earth. I was not sure if I lived or died. I was very nervous, too, and did not go out very much. A friend advised me to try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I did. I am a farmer's wife, and always worked hard until lately, and was in bed for two months. I began to feel like a new woman after the first bottle and I recommend it with great success, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about your medicines, as I cannot speak too highly of them."—Mrs. EMMA WILSON, 471 Wilson Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

B. C. Man Tells About Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mr. John Innes Sucered With Aching Pains in the Small of the Back.

New Westminster, B.C., Feb. 16th, (Special)—"I have proven Dodd's Kidney Pills to be all that they are recommended for," writes Mr. J. Innes, a well-known resident of this place, "and have taken them many times. My best trial of Dodd's Kidney Pills was some two or three years ago. My back ached so badly I could hardly sleep at night. I could scarcely move in bed and when I would stand for a few minutes for a few minutes I could not straighten myself up because the pain in my back was so bad. In the newspaper I read about Dodd's Kidney Pills and got a box to try. After a few days I was O.K. When I get the slightest pain in my back now I take the good old remedy—Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Dodd's Kidney Pills work with Nature by encouraging and assisting the kidneys to cast out everything impure or diseased.

The Tuesday afternoon judging will be held at the farm of C. W. Miller.

"SLICKERS"

On Wednesday evening, at Wonderland Theatre, the "Community Players", an organization of the best known of the local amateur talent, produced the first of a series of theatrical performances.

Although the hour was set for 8.15 p.m., such is the popularity of this group that at 6.15 the crowd began to arrive, and when finally the curtain was drawn, a crowded house greeted them. And it was plain that the packed house were delighted with the performance, for they were kept in a continual burst of laughter and applause from the start to the final curtain.

The players were all admirably cast for their parts. The leading part was probably that of "Sis Riggs", played by Miss Dorothy Scott, the comedienne of the company. Although Miss Scott is a comparative newcomer to theatrical work, she gave a stellar exhibition and all will watch with eagerness for her next appearance. Her comedy scenes, particularly when she played the eavesdropper in the first act, were among the best in the show.

Miss Margaret Nolan, as Miss Gladys May Merridew, from the city, was exceptionally good, and she gave another of those fine performances for which she is noted. Miss Mary McGrath did not have a heavy part, but her scene with Aaron in the third act was irresistably funny. Mr. Joseph Marshall, as the scheming swindler, was immense, and he surprised everyone, as his part was so different to the parts he usually plays. Mr. Gerald Gleeson played the part of the "detective", and played it exceptionally well.

The principal male part was taken by Mr. Grant Paul, who appeared as "Aaron Slick of Punkin Crick". He has given many fine character delineations in the past, but he will be longest remembered as the bashful farmer, who was not so green as he seemed. The players were directed by Mrs. Katherine Powell, who also played opposite "Aaron" as "Mrs. Rosy Berry", an Oklahoma widow. Mrs. Powell's expert coaching was apparent throughout the play, and she is deserving of the highest praise not only for the excellence of her own performance, but for the excellence of the whole production. The players were indeed fortunate to have so fine a director, and it looks as if many local organizations had erred in the past when they engaged out of town directors for their shows.

Several songs were introduced into the play, Mrs. Powell and Mr. Paul rendering a comic duet in the first act which was a scream. Miss Scott was heard in Act II in a new number, "Is He My Boy Friend", which was specially adapted. Her fine clear voice was applauded for many minutes. The third act opened with a splendid solo by Mr. Gleeson, followed by the singing of "Carmina" by Miss McGrath. Miss McGrath is the prima donna of the company, and her beautiful soprano solo was heard to good advantage in her fine number. The show finished with a chorus by the ensemble. We must not forget to give credit to Mr. William Powell for his work as stage manager and his impersonation of a cat and a turkey gobbler (off stage).

Mr. B. M. Black's Orchestra furnished the music and accompaniments.

The players have many applications on hand for their show under various auspices in the neighborhood, and have decided to accept all of these that they can so that those who were unable to get in to see "Slickers" may have another chance.

It is pleasing to think that this talented group will be seen here regularly in the future.

Seed Cleaning Demonstration.

W. B. Ferguson, of Strathroy, will be the special speaker at the Agricultural Course, Town Hall, Napanee, on Monday, Feb. 20th. He will deal with the subject of "Field Crop Improvement," and show how to equip fanning mills to do efficient work. This is an open meeting and a good attendance of other farmers as well as boys is requested. Meeting begins at 1.30, and will be followed later in the afternoon by a reed cleaning demonstration in one of the mills.

HOCKEY

At a meeting held in Trenton last Monday night, after the Trenton-Picton hockey match, it was decided to form a Bay of Quinte League. Although rather late in starting, it was felt that there would yet be good hockey weather during the balance of the month and by playing two games a week the schedule could be worked out satisfactorily. The league is composed of three teams, Trenton, Belleville and Napanee. Officers were elected, schedule drawn up, and other business matters were discussed.

The Canadian Industrial Motion Picture Co., located in Trenton, are backers of the Trenton team, and Mr. Bert Camm, of Trenton, presented a very beautiful cup for competition. The cup will have to be won by a team three years in succession before it can become personal property. The cup will be forwarded to Napanee in a few days, and will be on display in one of the store windows on Dundas Stt.

All the game in Trenton on Monday night the greatest enthusiasm was shown. About 800 spectators were at the game. The Trenton Band was in attendance, and before the game started the Canadian Industrial Motion Picture Co. presented to the Trenton Hockey Club a large floral horseshoe. Immediately after the game a parade was formed, headed by the Band, and marched through the streets to the Boston Cafe, where a banquet was held, through the courtesy of the Picture Company.

The following is the list of officers and schedules —

Hon. President—Capt. Bruce Bairnsfather, Trenton.

President—Mr. Bert Camm, Trenton.

1st Vice President—Mr. W. J. Wiggins, Napanee.

2nd Vice President—(Belleville).

Secretary Treasurer—Howard Jarrett Trenton.

Executive Committee—Managers of Belleville, Trenton and Napanee Hockey Teams.

Feb. 17—Trenton at Napanee.
20—Belleville at Trenton.
24—Napanee at Trenton.
27—Belleville at Napanee.

Mar. 1—Trenton at Belleville.
2—Napanee at Belleville.

Belleville will play their home game with Napanee in Napanee.

The first game in the newly formed league will be played on Friday night, when Trenton play Napanee in the local arena. Trenton are at present a much stronger club than when they last visited Napanee. Bowen, who played with Belleville Intermediates, will be in the nets, and he is about the best goalie in this neck of the woods. Shoniker, Anderson, Allore, and Johnston will appear with Trenton. Napanee will be at full strength and they will try to get the draw on Trenton in their first game. Powell will be in goal, while Jimmy Naphin and Gleeson will form the defense in front of them. Johnston, Bentley and Wilson will have the call on the forward line, while Dave Cook, of Deseronto, and Harry Skitch will look after the subs. It looks like a well balanced team, and one that will be hard to hold their own in any kind of going.

Arrangements are being made to try and have the Napanee band at the game, but at this time it is not sure that they will be able to attend. Although there are counter attractions in town on Friday night, the Club felt that it would be to the league over the games would have to be brought on as quickly as possible, and they therefore had no reasonable than to play the game here on Friday night. The game should be a good one, and with the added interest of a league fixture, there should be plenty of excitement at this game.

Either Joe Smith or Claire Devlin, of Kingston, will handle the bell.

Napanee 4. Picton 1.

Napanee won its fourth straight game of the season on Friday night, when they walked into Picton and defeated them by the score of 4-1. It was the first time in many years that a Napanee team has ever defeated Picton on the latter's ice.

The ice was very heavy and it made very hard going for the players, the players continually overskating the puck. It was not the best of hockey under such conditions, but Napanee adapted themselves better than did Picton, and several times had Picton hemmed in behind their own blue line. Napanee got the first goal along near the close of the period. Naphin broke clear and when near Picton defense shot, and Croft in Picton goal, did not see the puck until it had landed behind him. This goal looked like although both teams rushed and were dangerous, but with the rolling puck it was hard to make an accurate shot.

In the second period Napanee got another by Bentley, but Picton came back shortly after to tie the count. In the last period Bentley and Johnston scored for Napanee, while Picton was held scoreless. Croft, in Picton goal, played a great game and he picks them out of the air with ease. Three of the goals that beat him were on plays that were close in, and no goal tender could be expected to stop them. one was scored from a scramble of legs, sticks and pucks.

The return game with Picton will be played on Monday night, February 20th. Picton will be down with a better line up, and expects to get revenge by sealing the locals on their own. Get behind the boys and cheer them on to another win.

JUNIOR CANADIAN CLUB ORGANIZED

On Thursday, February 17th, at 4 p.m., in the N.C.I. Assembly Hall, the Junior Canadian Club was re-organized for the fourth time. As many will remember, this Club was organized at the Collegiate Institute by the past-principal, Dr. Morden, four years ago. Its aim is to foster patriotism amongst the pupils of the school and also the citizens of the town. Many speakers have spoken to the Club, such as Sir George Foster, Dr. Sasgen, J. B. Wollworth, and others.

Malcolm Corkill was President the first year, and Ralph C. Cowle followed him the next year. The luncheons which were held and the speakers who were heard these first two years, were enjoyed by all the members, fifty in all.

Last year it was again re-organized, and Archibald C. Wilson was elected President, but because of the confusion during the year due to the change of Principals and Dr. Morden's absence, no meetings were held.

This year it has again been organized and the following officers were elected:—

President—Chas. A. Walters, Jr.
Vice President—Donald Caton.
Secretary—Grace Joyce.
Treasurer—Ruth Daly.
Executive Committee—Leslie B. Merrill, Adolphus Mumford, Helen M. Grange, Dorothy A. Daverin.

The former membership fee of 50c. per member will again be charged, and the membership is limited to 80 due to the inadequate facilities at the school.

Lady Porter has promised to return and address the Club and there is no doubt that President Walters will be able to procure other notable speakers. It is to be hoped that the citizens of the town and friends of the N.C.I. will hear these speeches.

SHARP'S CORNERS

The most of the weather this winter has been fine, but it is drifting to-day and the roads are becoming very heavy. —The farmers have been very busy drawing up their wood, so as to be ready for the wood saw.—Messrs. Ell and Walter Thompson have their sawing machine in good condition, and expect to be sawing for their neighbors in a few days.—The auction sale at Mrs. Rose Pinney's was well attended, and proved to be quite a success, good fall prices being realized.—We are very pleased to hear that Mr. Henry Graham, who has been very ill during the winter months, was able a few days ago to take a drive to Napanee. — Mr. and Mrs. Ross McConnell and children, Glenn and Lois, spent Friday evening with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tale, Selby West.—Mr. Bert Hughes purchased a fine team of horses at Mrs. Pinney's sale.—Mr. Crossley Bradshaw, Selby, is doing some fine work on Mr. C. Thompson's house. — Mrs. Elliott Bowen, a highly respected resident of this neighborhood, passed peacefully away on January 24th, after an illness of several months' duration. Deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. Alex. Sharp's funeral, and was a life long resident of Sharp's corners. Her husband predeceased her several years ago, and she was left to manage the farm which an only daughter, but Mrs. Bowen was a lady of good business ability and met with success in nearly every undertaking. She will be greatly missed, not only in the home, but also in the neighborhood, being a kind neighbor, ever ready to help in every time of need. She had been a member of the Methodist Church for years, and was often present at the quarterly sacramental service. She was visited several times during her illness by her pastor, Rev. J. Batstone, who also conducted the funeral service at Selby United Church. Besides an only daughter, Mrs. C. Thompson, Mrs. Bowen leaves to mourn her loss, three grandsons, Walter, Willie and Hubert Thompson, who resided with her, and to whom she was greatly attached. The remains were laid to rest in the vault in Riverside cemetery.—We are sorry to learn that Mr. Geo. Colling is ill. We hope a speedy recovery.—Visitors: Mrs. Schuyler Windover, Kingston, with her sister, Mrs. J. W. Humphrey; Miss May McCutcheon at Mr. Arch Graham's; Misses Annie and Dorcas Bush, Consecon, at Mr. Geo. Bush's; Mrs. A. Hagerman, Odessa, with her cousin, Mrs. Pinney; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McConnell, Lime Lake, at Mr. Christie Thompson's; Mr. John H. and Miss Edna Wilson, Reidville, with Mr. and Mrs. Ross McConnell.—We were very sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Bush, Napanee, a former resident of this neighbourhood, who passed peacefully away, on Sunday, February 19th, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Earl Deline. Mrs. Bush resided in our midst for several years, until the death of her husband, a year ago last June, when she went to Napanee to reside with her daughter. The deceased was highly respected and loved by her many friends. She was a member of the United Methodist Church for years, and a regular attendant at church service, until a few years ago, when it became impossible for the aged couple to be present. So often have we seen her rise to her feet during the fellowship service, and listened to her inspiring message of a "Blessed Hope" beyond this life. Two daughters and one son, Mrs. Earl Deline and Mrs. Jas. McIlwaine, Napanee, and Mr. George Bush, Sharp's Corners, are left to mourn the loss of a patient and unselfish mother. The funeral service at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Earl Deline, was conducted by her former Pastor, Rev. J. Batstone, assisted by Rev. W. P. Woodger. Mr. Batstone addressed the sorrowing friends with a comforting message from the text, "For to me to live is Christ and to die is gain", Phil. 1 : 21. The remains were laid to rest in Riverside vault.—Mr. and Mrs. S. Storring and daughter, Miss Mildred, attended the Evangelistic services at the Holiness Movement Church, Roblin. — Miss Electa Jayne spent a day recently with her cousin, Mrs. John Fraiken, Napanee. We have just heard the sad news of the death of Mr. A. McNeil, who passed away last night, Feb. 21st, after a lingering illness of several months. We extend our sympathy to the sorrowing friends in their bereavement. — The following from this neighbourhood attended the funeral service of the late Mrs. John Bush: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McConnell, Miss Electa Jayne, Mr. C. Thompson, Mrs. George Colling, Mr. W. J. McConnell, Miss Edith Hughes, and Mr. Alex. Colling.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Arch. McCutcheon.

On Tuesday, January 24th, 1928, Mrs. Arch. McCutcheon passed to her eternal rest, at her home at Selby.

The deceased, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Ann Piper, was born near Centreville, on April 11th, 1849, and was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noble Piper, both of which had come from Ireland. She was united in marriage to Arch McCutcheon, of Roblin, and lived there until sixteen years ago, when they moved to Selby.

The late Mrs. McCutcheon was a woman of sterling qualities, a loving wife, a devoted mother, a kind and thoughtful neighbor and friend, and was deeply loved by all who knew her.

She became converted early in life at a revival meeting held in Roblin, by the Rev. Mr. Neville, and joined the Methodist Church, of which she was a consistent member unto the end.

Four years ago she suffered a breaking of the hip, but bore it all with Christian fortitude and patience. The funeral service, conducted by her Pastor, Rev. Mr. Batstone, of Selby, was held from her late residence to the Selby United Church, thence to the Napanee vault. Her sons and nephews acted as pall bearers. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband and children, Mrs. Fred Jackson, Dorland and Luman McCutcheon, all of Selby.

THOMAS GURREN CELEBRATES HIS ONE HUNDREDTH BIRTHDAY

Thos. Gurren, one of the most highly respected citizens of South Fredericksburgh, celebrated his 100th anniversary on February 15th last.

Despite his remarkable age Mr. Gurren, who is hale and hearty, was able to take a leading part in this most unique event.

The sumptuous dinner given in his honor, whose guests included the immediate family and a few close friends was his cutting and later personally extinguishing the 100 candles that lit up the pretty cake.

During the day he was the recipient of many expressions of continued happiness from old friends both far and near, included in these was one from the congregation of St. Paul's Church, Sandhurst, all of which were much appreciated.

Later in the day he was able to join in the evening party also given in his honor, and in the presence of some sixty guests, presided at the cutting of another beautiful birthday cake.

The venerable gentleman was born in Longford, Ireland, and came to Canada when but a young boy. He happened to go to the Fredericksburgh district and has been a valued citizen of that community ever since. Sixty-one years ago he purchased the farm on which he now resides and a few years later married Eliza Wiseman, of Howe Island, who died in 1920. This union was blessed with a family of eight children, three of whom survive. They are: Mrs. H. M. Robinson, Thomas W., and George H., all of Sandhurst. George H. is farming the homestead. Florence, Frederick and Arthur died in their youth, and Walter J., of St. Louis, and Mrs. Luke Trumpour, of Napanee, both died some years ago.

Thomas Gurren has been an ardent and faithful Anglican and a staunch Conservative all his life. He is a member of St. Paul's Church, Sandhurst, which he helped to build. This wonderful old man has a remarkable memory—a veritable storehouse of stirring events connected with the early history of Canada and of many interesting and forgotten events of local interest. For sometime past he counts many of these experiences for the pleasure of his friends and neighbors who never tire of hearing history from the lips of a man who lived and took part in the events which happened almost a century ago.

Although he took a keen interest in politics, Mr. Gurren never aspired to office but was content to serve humbly as a useful and law-abiding citizen.

FOURTH LINE

The big snow storm over the week end has all the side roads blocked. It will be though February will go out like a lion instead of in. There was a big crowd attended the church service on the fourth line last Sunday evening.—Mrs. Alfred Jackson has returned home, feeling much improved, after having been confined to Bethel General Hospital.—Mrs. Baines is not improving as fast as her many friends wish to see her.—Mr. Archie Johnston, of Millbrook, visited relatives in this neighborhood on Sunday.—The Mission Circle was held at Mr. Ernest Parrott's on Friday evening, with the regular members in attendance. A good programme was given and enjoyed very much by all.—A number from here took in the play on Friday night, at Centre Hall, put on by the talent from Stone Church, Sydney. A report a good entertainment.—Mrs. Jas. Robson and daughter are spending some time with her mother, Mrs. Storms, of Odessa.—Mr. Tom Freemantle is improving nicely, after being confined to his bed for the past few weeks. — Mrs. MacLean and children have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Penny, at Pittsburg. — A Ford Sunday visitor was Mr. Eldon with friends at Wilton. — Mr. Elgin Parrott met with a misfortune last week by falling on the ice, and fracturing his shoulder bone.—Mrs. Edward Ellis is visiting with her son, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snider, of Violet.

BROOKSIDE.

February has not lived up to its blustery record this year, and it is to be soon be over.—School is progressing favorably under the able management of Miss Velma Ellerbeck.—Several from here took in "Deacon Dubbs", at Yarker, on Tuesday evening, while others enjoyed "Bashful Mr. Boggs", at Harrowsmith, on the same evening.—Mr. and Mrs. Storms, of Odessa, and Pearl and Alice, and Harold took tea with Mr. and Mrs. Shea, on Thursday evening last.—Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Shea, Freeman and Miss Ellerbeck attended the "At Home" at Sydenham High School, last Friday evening. — Several of the old friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Emberley on the evening of February 17th, and presented them with a handsome mantel clock. As Mr. and Mrs. Emberley are leaving here to make their home in Napanee, we hope, as the clock ticks out each minute of the day, that only pleasant memories of old friends will ever be brought to their minds. Mr. and Mrs. Emberley have always lived in this place, and they will be missed in the daily rounds of life. — Miss Marion Wallace spent a few days with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Shea, Yarker, and her little cousin, Norman McFarlane, accompanied her home for the week end.—Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Freeman took tea recently with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Shea.—Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Babcock and Gwendolyn, attended the sale held by their cousin, Mr. Ross Babcock, and report a good sale.—We are glad to report that Fred and Bruce Shangraw, who have been ill with scarlet fever, are both getting favorably.—Miss Norma Boyce is making an extended visit with her grandmother, Mrs. McMahon, at Sydenham.—Much sympathy is extended to Mr. Silver and family, Yarker, in the misfortune of losing their home by fire.

Services are being held in the Mission Hall each evening, except Saturday and Monday.

Mrs. Bowerman and Miss Bernice Bowerman spent Tuesday evening at Sillsville.

Mr. Will Files, of Point Anne, is spending a few weeks at home.

Little Ronald Wales, son of Mr. Fred Wales, is still confined to his bed through illness.

Nice winter weather prevails, with good roads.

Sloan's large truck of Belleville brought a load of groceries to Mr. G. M. Wartman on Wednesday.

Mrs. G. Wager entertained a number of her friends on Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Mrs. Willis Galbraith, of Napanee, visited her mother, Mrs. Pero, for a couple of days.

Master Paul Wartman has been confined to his home with mumps. From the result of injuries received when he was struck with a horse and cutter while coasting on the south hill.

One of the characteristics of the christian religion is that it develops a spirit of compassion in those who come under its influence. This, of course, is because the Author, for the great founder of christianity was, Himself, a man of compassionate heart, and could not look upon pain without the wish to relieve it. And so it has been most natural that the church, in fulfilment of her Lord's commission, to accompany the preaching of the gospel and the teaching of doctrine with such care for the sick and relief for the suffering. United churches of Canada has hospitals among new Canadians at Wetaskiwin, Man., Hafford, Sask., and Lamont, Alta., and five of these hospitals a little Polish boy had been brought. He had fallen off a wagon and had been kicked by a horse, breaking both bones of his right leg, a compound fracture, the child received attention two hours after the accident, and had an excellent leg as a result.

On Friday afternoon, the 24th inst., the women interested in missionary work will meet in the United Church, Newburgh, for prayer, in connection with the Inter-denominational Day of Prayer. All are invited.

Miss Helen Ramsay, of the Standard Bank, is off duty, owing to illness.

Mr. H. H. Carter and Mr. Frank Gerow are spending a few days at the Dairy School, Kingston, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Bowen spent Sunday at Mr. Yates', and also with Mr. Arthur Yates spent Sunday at his home.

Mrs. C. Hinch spent the week-end at her father's, Mr. George Thompson, Sharp's Corners.

Mr. Chester Pero and little Mabel spent Wednesday in town.

Mr. Laurie Thompson was in the village on Tuesday.

Miss Leah Ramsay has returned from a week's stay in Toronto.

On Monday evening the choir of the United Church gathered at the home of the leader, Mr. Wm. Vanderwater, to give a farewell to Mr. Wm. Nugent, on the eve of his leaving to engage in work in Toronto. Everybody reports a good time and all wish Mr. Nugent every success. He has very generously and cheerfully helped in the choir, and his services are appreciated. We will miss him.

Miss Queenie Paul sent a splendid paper on "Citizenship," to be read at the Y. P. L. on Tuesday evening. Too bad some of the older folk could not have heard the paper. Miss Paul has been engaged at a school south of Napanee. Miss Marguerite Wartman was made 4th Vice President in her stead. Preparations are being made in the Sunday School to celebrate next Tuesday evening. Everybody invited.

DORLAND

Just at present we are enjoying some old-fashioned winter weather. — Mr. Keith Mage returned home on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Foster, Mr. Mage spent the last three months with his grandmother at Milford. — Owing to weather conditions the Ladies' Aid meeting at the home of Mrs. T. N. Davis was postponed from last Wednesday afternoon until Thursday afternoon, this week.—Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Roblin very kindly opened their home for a social evening of the Y. P. Sunday night after church

Both the Henderson boys are far away from the old home. But Sunday is still a very special day for Father and Mother, for every Sunday night after church the telephone bell rings and the old folks know that one of the boys is calling them from the distant city.

Harry calls one week, and Fred the next.

Long Distance is wonderful for keeping family ties strong. It is so simple, so inexpensive, to call distant friends for a few minutes' chat. And how welcome is the sound of their voices!

REVIEW OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Commensurate with care something in the nature of a record has been accomplished by the Ontario Legislature during the first week of the Session. Following a policy of businesslike administration, legislation has been advanced through the committee stage of the House earlier than ever before in the history of the Province. With barely a week gone by the Speech from the Throne has been given consideration and the debate on the Reply well advanced.

Firm declarations of policy enunciated in the Speech from the Throne have been met with approval from the legislature. Determination of the Provincial Government to adhere to the view that the compact of Confederation should be observed in all respects was strikingly emphasized and received with approval by the House. It was maintained that the future Canada could best be assured by maintaining the status of the Provinces as established under the British North America Act.

The House was informed that the transference of settlers from unsuitable locations in the province to more promising situations was progressing favorably. Sufficient headway has been made in this connection by the government to warrant further settlement of a like nature.

One of the features of the session to date has been the prompt action of the government in issuing a commission to Judge Godson of the Mining Court to probe into the recent disaster at the Hollinger Mine. Premier Ferguson has also appointed Peter White, K.C., as special counsel in connection with the probe, while, in addition, ample facility will be given the miners to state their case and put forth their recommendations with the view of preventing similar catastrophies in the future.

Prompt action was taken by Premier Ferguson in connection with the assertion of W. E. N. Sinclair that ballot papers were found on the streets of Ottawa after the last provincial election. The Premier announced on Thursday that the Privileges and Elections Committee of the House would sit in open enquiry on the matter. Announcement was also made that if special legislation was needed to facilitate a thorough investigation, it would be rushed through the House. Answering the Premier in the Legislature, Mr. Sinclair stated that the ballots had no marks on them of any kind and that he was not for a minute advancing the suggestion that there had been malpractice of any kind.

Practice of certain urban dairies in selling 8 per cent cream, known to the trade as "cereal" cream, will be brought to the attention of the Committee on Agriculture Hon. John S. Martin announced in the legislature. Legislation will be introduced to block the loophole in the present legislation that governs this commodity.

Ontario Department of Agriculture is preparing for further action in connection with the stamping out of tuberculosis among the herds of the Province. Answering a question in the House, the Minister of Agriculture stated that the Agricultural College was making a thorough and constant study of the disease. At the present moment the method in use in testing cattle is deemed to be the best. An increased demand for T.B. tested cows was also reported by the Minister.

Second reading was given legislation allowing municipalities to capitalize health department expenditures instead of meeting capital costs in the year in which they are incurred from the general funds of the city. Approval was also given an amendment to the Mothers' Allowance Act making two years' residence in Ontario necessary before eligibility to a pension can be established.

Amendments to the Succession Duty Act were approved by the House. Under the amendments insurance will not be taxable and duties payable within the period of one year, rather than eighteen months, as heretofore. The bill also provides for reciprocity with other provinces in collecting succession duties from properties situate outside of Ontario. "This is a step towards eliminating double taxation," stated the Premier.

Speaking in the Legislature, Premier Ferguson complained that many public men were criticizing the liquor system before it had is fair trial. He announced the government's intention to see that the legislation had a fair trial, and that it would remain substantially unchanged in the meantime. The Act, he stated, had been a much-needed thing in many parts of the province in reducing the bootlegging evil that had previously flourished on a wide scale.

Airflow Belanger, Liberal Member for Russell, was loud in his approval of the government in taking steps toward a better understanding between the French and English races of the Province. Speaking in connection with Regulation 17, the Liberal member stated that the present government had taken steps in that connection that should have been taken by previous governments as late as thirty years ago.

Painless and perfect in their action, Miller's Worm Powders are always a safe and reliable remedy for children who show symptoms of worms. These symptoms are easily recognizable in a feverish restlessness, frequently ending in convulsions. A point of notable importance is that after Miller's Worm Powders have expelled the worms, the stomach and bowels are toned up into a very healthy condition.

THE SULTAN'S JEWELS

PILED UP TREASURES ARE INCALCULABLE.

There Are Many Superstitions Clinging to Precious Stones—Some Are Credited With Changing Color If Wearer Becomes Ill.

The value of the piled up treasures of the Sultans of Turkey are incalculable, and many and strange are the superstitions clinging to them, writes Marjorie Moore in the Kansas City Star.

A famous Swiss jewel expert who saw the treasure, told the writer of a solid bronze door so heavy that it took eight men to open it. Armed sentinels before it, and behind the door is a throne chair of pure gold incrusted with 20,000 pearls and several thousand rubies and emeralds; bejewelled vases and ornaments; a poniard with a hilt consisting of a single huge emerald, and trays piled with loose diamonds, rubies, emeralds and pearls of unbelievable size.

When he entered the jewel room of the sultan's palace, through that guarded door, this was the sight that met his wondering eyes. His mission was to estimate the value of the treasure, and he failed because the riches were uncountable.

Among the sultan's jewels may have been the famous opal of which rumor tells:

"About the middle of the eighteenth century a peasant found a brilliant stone in some old ruins at Alexandria, Egypt. This stone was set in a ring. It was as large as a hazel nut and is said to have been an opal cut on cabochon.

"According to the report it was eventually taken to Constantinople where it was estimated to be worth several thousand ducats. The description gives of this gem, its apparent antiquity, and the high value set upon it have contributed to induce many to conjecture that it was the celebrated 'Opal of Nonius'." Of course this was nothing but a romantic fancy.

The years are no more respecters of jewels than they are of sultans. Doubtless other deleterious changes have taken place in the brilliant hoard. Many of the emeralds and diamonds are said to be of archaic cut, or have flaws, and "the pearls have lost their lustre from being so long isolated from contact with the flesh?"

Of this last allbi an expert is scornful. "That theory is mostly nonsense," he said. "I have seen many of the famous pearls, and I believe that a pearl which is perfect in the first place will not lose its lustre. For example there is the most perfect string of pearls that belonged to the Empress Eugenie. After fifty years their lustre is as beautiful as it ever was.

Equally as lowly as the stomach of an oyster was the resting place of the toadstone of mythology. It was supposed to lie embedded in the forehead of a toad. That the toad "wears a precious jewel in his head" was a profound belief of the Middle Ages. Contemporary writers describe the stone, which is found in the heads of old and great toads, as a species of black pebble which would cure toothache and diseased kidneys.

Curious charges are reputed to take place in various jewels—most of which, like the recent story of the Von Maltzan pearls—are of legendary origin. One pearl in a string which for centuries has belonged to the family of the late Ambassador of Germany to the United States, is said to have darkened whenever the death of a member of the family was imminent. When the pearls were taken out of the safe after Ambassador von Maltzan's death, the whole string was reported to be discolored.

When the dreaded Black Death carried off thousands of people in the fourteenth century, the opal became an object of fear and gruesome associations, due to a curious metamorphosis in the stone. Opals worn by those stricken are said to have become suddenly brilliant. The brilliance lasted until the death of the victim, when the lustre entirely departed. Dr. Kunz, a famous expert, tells of a more cheerful belief about the opal:

"We are told that blend maidens valued nothing more highly than necklaces of opals, for while they wore these ornaments their hair was sure to guard its beautiful color.

Of coral, which for many centuries was classed among precious stone, it was asserted that:

"If worn so that the substance came in direct contact with the skin the color would pale and the coral lose its brightness if the wearer became ill, or even if he were only threatened by illness."

The beads of an amber necklace are declared to have become mud-colored and cracked after having been worn for several months by a lady suffering from hay fever.

An actual change takes place in Alexandrite, the emerald green variety of chrysoberyl which is named for Alexander II. of Russia. It shows a green color in the daylight, which changes to a glowing crimson by artificial light. It became popular in Russia because of this combination of the national colors.

Emeralds and rubies have the reputation of being luminous stones. The ruby of the King of Ceylon was said to shine in the night like a torch. Certain diamonds, including the Brazilian stones, the kunzite named for Dr. Kunz, and other minerals possess the power of absorbing sunlight or artificial light and then giving it off in the dark.

Dr. Kunz, who is a man of science and is one of the greatest authorities on precious stones, considers the superstitions regarding the opal and other jewels to be foolish. Nevertheless he cherishes the quaint legends and ancient superstitions about gems as part of the traditional history of mad.

The longest lived of British mammals is probably the red deer. Forty, fifty, even sixty years is given as the age of this animal. The famous white hind of Loch Treig is said to have lived one hundred and ten years.

Its Habits Produce Constipation, which "Fruit-a-tives" Corrects

MONTREAL, Que. — "After suffering many years from constipation, I was advised to try 'Fruit-a-tives.' All my ills are gone now." Mrs. H. Godin.

Indoor work, soft, rich foods, lack of exercise impair our bodily functions. The most common evidence is constipation. Normal intestinal activity, denied to most of us by our way of living, is restored and maintained by "Fruit-a-tives," made of the juices of fresh, ripe fruit, blended with health-building tonics.

Is one in memory ever dear;
A day that comes with sad regrets,
And one I know we will never forget.
Forget her, no we never will,
Although she's gone, we love her still;
Her memory is as sweet to-day,
As on the day she passed away.

SELBY Y.W.C.T.U.

The regular monthly meeting of the Selby Y. W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Miss Beulah Hudgins on February 4th, which was well attended.

Our President, Miss Hudgins, occupied the chair. The meeting was opened with Hymn 125; afterwards Mrs. Hudgins led in prayer. Miss Grace Winter read the Scripture lesson, after which Hymn 242 was sung. Chapter 5 of Alcohol in Experience and Experiment was read by Miss E. Hudgins, and much enjoyed by all who were present.

An interesting paper on Scientific Temperance facts was given by Miss Gertrude Grange. Misses Wilma Jackson and Ruth Wilde favoured us with instrumental music. Miss Beulah Hudgins gave us a very instructive talk on Temperance and Life, which was greatly appreciated.

The Noble Life of Francis E. Willard was read by Miss Velda Henderson. Then Mr. McCormick gave us a speech on Government Control in Saskatchewan.

The members repeated the pledge and yell. The meeting was brought to a close by a hymn, and the Benediction was pronounced.

A social hour followed, consisting of music, contests, and fames, afterwards dainty refreshments were served.

—Don't fail to see the play in St. Andrew's School Room, Monday, February 27th, at 8 p.m. 8a

OBITUARY

Mrs. Thomas Bell.

At Hay Bay, North Predericksburgh, on Sunday morning, February 19th, at her late home, Lydia Hambly, beloved wife of Mr. Thomas Bell, passed to her reward, after a brief illness with pneumonia.

Mrs. Bell was a daughter of the late Mary and John Hambly, of Bethany, and was one of twelve children, four sisters and four brothers of whom still survive. She lived her whole life of over seventy years in this neighborhood, and for many years has been a valued member of Bethany Methodist Church.

In 1891 she married Thomas Bell, and has lived at her late home since that happy event, respected and loved by all who knew her. Besides four brothers and sisters, she leaves her husband and one son to mourn her loss.

The funeral was held on Tuesday at one o'clock, from her late residence, and was largely attended by friends and neighbours.

HINCH

The heavy snow fall on Sunday night, made the road almost impassable, and our mail drawer has been unable to make his rounds for a couple of days.—Mrs. J. A. Wartman spent a day recently at Mrs. A. Hughs.—Several from here attended the Oyster supper, and Valentine dances at Marlbank, and Enterprise. —Mr. and Mrs. S. Hughes and family, left on Tuesday for West Point, Alta. where they intended spending some time.—Miss Celia Hawkins returned home after spending a short time with her sister—Mrs M. Aylesworth was a recent visitor at W. Cameron's.—Mrs. Rose Penny's sale was largely attended.—Miss Edith Hughes and Robert Hinch spent the week end at their respective homes.—Mrs. Abe Hagerman was the guest of her mother for a few days last week.—Mr. and Mrs. C. Hinch and family spent Sunday at Roblin.

TAMWORTH

The Ladies' Aid of Tamworth United congregation presented the play, "The Joggsville Convention," on Tuesday evening and made a very good impression. Those in attendance enjoyed many hearty laughs as the convention proceeded. — Services on the Tamworth United Circuit will be held at Tamworth in the forenoon, Redville in the afternoon, and Marlbank at night. At the morning service there will be carried out the installation of Elder-elect Mr. Jacob Wagar. — The funeral of the late Benjamin Clarke was held in Marlbank United Church on Thursday, the 16th inst., and was conducted by Rev. J. N. Beckstead. The late Mr. Clarke was 88 years of age. He resided for many years in Richmond, later at Marlbank. Interment was made at Marlbank.—The re-Parm" staged by the Dramatic Club of the Stone Church, Sidney, on behalf of the Women's Missionary Society, last Friday night, in the Town Hall, proved a wonderful success. The talented artists delighted the audience with their ability in the various parts, and the vaudeville numbers between each act, added life and amusement, and made the entertainment one of the best heard here for some time. The large hall was filled, and perfect order was kept during the three acts. — Charlie Hillier's sale on his farm last Wednesday afternoon was largely attended by anxious buyers, and the sales were very satisfactory. Mr. Hillier moved to the village about a year ago.—Charlie Lee, Kingston, spent a few days last week with his relatives. —Archibald Johnston, Millbrook, is visiting his grandfather, Mr. James Denyes, and other relatives.—Donald Dawson, who has been assisting Mr. McNeely, at his garage, has accepted a position in Deseronto, and is home with his parents, who moved from here a short time ago.—John Heath has returned from spending the past week with his brother, Samuel Heath, at Watertown.—The young people of Yarker have arranged for their popular play, "Among the Breakers" in the Town Hall, Friday night, March 2nd, in behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society of the United Church. Admission 35c. and 20c.—The many friends of Kenneth McKenzie Laughlin were sorry to hear that he passed away last Friday at his home in New Haven Connecticut. His father, Alexander Laughlin, has been in poor health for some time, and his only sister, Miss Aggie Laughlin, left Saturday to attend her brother's funeral, in New Haven.—The Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. James Boyce, on Wednesday evening. Even though the condition of the roads was very disagreeable, there were forty members and visitors present. The meeting was opened in the usual way by Mrs. Amy Snider. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Arthur Fraser, roll called, and minutes read and adopted. Arrangements were made for a fancy work sale and tea to be held in the near future. Miss Loyst gave a very interesting paper on "The Ladies' Aid". Miss Nesbitt gave a choice vocal selection, and Miss Leatherland a paper on her trip with the teachers' excursion to the Northern Counties of Ontario, which was very much enjoyed. Rev. Mr. McQuade then took charge of the community singing. Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies, and the meeting amounted to $6.25. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. J. H. Babcock's, on Wednesday evening, March 14th. Every one welcome.

OBITUARY.

Andrew N. Diamond.

Andrew N. Diamond, for over 25 years a grain merchant in this city, died early yesterday morning at his home, 977 Bloor Street West. He was in his 81st year, and had been in failing health for the past three years.

Mr. Diamond was born at Hay Bay, Prince Edward County. As a young man, he farmed in that district for many years and subsequently moved to Napanee, where he opened a flour and grain mill. After 35 years in business there, he came to Toronto, where he had since bought and sold grain.

Mr. Diamond was a Presbyterian. Predeceased by his wife thirty years ago, he is survived by two sons, Thomas and Davis, and two daughters, Mrs. S. T. Clapp and Mrs. George Maguire, all of Toronto.—Mail and Empire, February 21st, 1928.

Appleton Jones Cole.

Following an illness of six weeks' duration, Appleton Jones Cole, a well known and highly respected Chatham man, passed away December 18th, 1927, at his residence, 4 Sarn Avenue.

Mr. Cole was born in Napanee, Ontario, eighty-one years ago. As a young man he went to Watertown, N.Y., where he conducted a furniture business. Forty years ago, he moved to Sault Ste. Marie, where he conducted a business until his retirement seven years ago, when he went to Chatham. He was a member of Park Street United Church.

The surviving relatives are his wife and one sister.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon, at 2.30, from the residence, and was conducted by Rev. B. H. Robinson. The remains were taken to the mausoleum where they remained until Mrs. Cole recovers from a slight illness. The body will then be accompanied by Mrs. Cole to Watertown, N.Y., for interment in the family plot.

Mrs. Gilbert Harkness.

An old resident of Tamworth, Ont., Margaret P. Hassard, wife of the late Gilbert Harkness, died on Monday evening, February 20th, of bronchial pneumonia, in her eighty-fourth year.

The late Mrs. Harkness leaves surviving two daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) Fred Coates, nee Grace Harkness, and Mrs. W. W. Wartman, of Aylesham, Saskatchewan, nee Blanche Harkness, and the sons, Frederick J. Harkness, of Toronto, and Ed. Harkness, now resident of British Columbia.

YARKER-COLEBROOK WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular meeting of the Yarker-Colebrook Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Thos. Keyes, of Colebrook, on February 15th, with twenty-eight members and two visitors present, and the President, Mrs. Norman Boyce, in the chair. The meeting opened in the usual manner with the Opening Ode and the Lord's Prayer.

In answer to the roll call each member handed in her earliest photo, after which a guessing contest was held as to the identity of the photos, which caused much merriment.

It was decided to accept the offer of the Department to send a summer speaker and that the Secretary invite Camden East Women's Institute to hold a joint meeting with them on that occasion.

Five dollars of the County grant of $15.00 was granted to the District; also $5.00 to assist in subsidizing a doctor for the Tuberculosis Hospital; also $1.00 a week to be given to a family where the wage-earner is ill.

Letters of appreciation were read from those who had received sympathy and gifts of fruit in sickness and bereavement.

A splendid Current Events paper was given by Mrs. Wm. Johnson on "Session of Parliament", and also local events.

A reading, entitled "Strangers Within Our Gates", was contributed by Mrs. Rufus Jackson, and one by Mrs. H. Freeman, on "Is a Woman's Vote Worth Anything?" Both of these were much enjoyed.

A vote of thanks was given to those who assisted in making the play such a splendid success.

Lunch was served by the hostess and Lunch Committee, and everyone enjoyed a social time.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Alfred Martin, on March 3rd.

MAPLE LEAF WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The February meeting of the Maple Leaf Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ray Perry. The members met at 1 p.m. on February 9th, in order to quilt during the afternoon, and besides have the regular programme. Mrs. Hill pieced and quilted the quilt. The ladies quilted it during the afternoon, and it was sold at auction the following night. The proceeds go to put a bulge in the Institute purse.

Mrs. John Saunders gave a very interesting "Special Day" paper for the month. Mrs. B. Perry furnished music for the afternoon. The members are busy practising for a play which they will stage shortly.. Watch for the announcement. They are also making arrangements for a course in Domestic Science in the near future.

There were eighteen members present, and the collection was $1.50.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem, and lunch was served.

BOARD OF COMMERCE

At the Paisley House, on Friday evening, the Napanee Chamber of Commerce entertained the boys of the Agricultural Class, which meets each day in the Town Hall.

A very excellent dinner was provided and following the dinner, Mr. P. Gleeson, President of the Chamber, extended a hearty welcome to the guests, who were about equally divided between town and country residents. The Agricultural Class boys were at the banquet as guests of the Napanee Rotary Club and were individually introduced by the members of the Rotary Club. Those present were : Geo. Fisher, Jas. Clark, Ross Miller, Wm. Vankoughnet, Roy Miller, Will Miller, Henry Luther, W. Ballance, Aubrey Woodcock, Carl VanSlyck, Glen Chambers, Cecil Denison, Harold Scott and Leonard Hawley.

Mr. J. A. Laughland introduced the speaker of the evening, Prof. W. J. Bell, of the Kemptville Experimental Farm.

Prof. Bell gave a very interesting address, especially to the farmers and farmers' sons, as his address dealt almost altogether with farming problems.

The speaker asked the farmers present why they continued to grow timothy when alfalfa furnished twice as much milk producing material as timothy. He is also a firm believer in the virtue of sweet clover as an ensilage crop. It is a sure crop, increases the fertility of the land and the ensilage is relished by every animal on the farm. Co-operative marketing, and a number of other subjects of interest to farmers were touched upon, but Prof. Bell was strongly of the opinion that though the difficulties of the farmers are many that the most of them can be overcome by education, and as a class there are more farmers ready to retire at the age of 60, than could be found in any other walk of life. In closing his address, Prof. Bell invited all of those present to pay a visit to the Kemptville farm and school.

Mr. G. A. Aylesworth, of Newburgh, moved a very hearty vote of thanks to the speaker, seconded by Rev. A. J. Wilson, and the meeting closed with "Auld Lang Syne".

OBITUARY

Francis Bartels.

Francis Bartels, a resident of St. Hyacinthe, Que., for many years, died Sunday evening, February 12th, 1928, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles Baker, 231 Frank Street, after a long period of ill health. Although Mr. Bartels had been confined to bed only one week, he had not been well since coming to Ottawa last July.

Born in Napanee, Ont., on January 10th, 1850, he went to St. Hyacinthe when a young man and lived there until coming to Ottawa about six months ago. He was first employed in the Merchants Bank of Canada and of late years was a representative of the Canada Insurance Company. His wife predeceased him by several years. He was a member of the Church of England and of Royal Albert Lodge No. 29, A.F. and A.M., Montreal.

Surviving are one son, Rev. R. C Bartels, in India; a sister, Mrs. Charles Baker, and a niece, Miss Frances Baker, both of Ottawa.

Rev. Canon J. F. Gorman, of St. John's Church, will conduct funeral services at 2.30 p.m. Tuesday, at 231 Frank Street. Interment will be made in Beechwood cemetery.

Among the floral offerings received by the family were a wreath from Royal Albert Lodge, No. 29, A.F. & A.M. Montreal; Sprays from The Scottish Rite, Hazel Rebekah Lodge No. 40, and many others from personal friends.

Give the children Howard's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. It builds up, strengthens the throat and chest, and prevents serious colds. Large bottle, (nearly a pint), $1.00; smaller sizes, 35c. and 60c. Fresh each week, at Wallace's.

THE SPEAKER'S MACE.

Origin of the Emblem of Authority Used In Congress.

At the right of the speaker's desk in the hall of the house of representatives in the capitol at Washington stands a large cylindrical pedestal made of highly polished green marble.

When the house is called to order each day, the sergeant at arms or one of his deputies places upon the pedestal the mace, which is the symbol of authority in the house. When the body adjourns he removes it and keeps it in safety until the house meets again.

This mace is of very ancient and honorable origin. Under the old Roman republic the magistrates passed on foot from one place to another administering justice, trying public offenders and imposing penalties.

Each of these magistrates was attended by a small body of men known as lictors, whose duty it was to make way for the officers of the law, preserve order, make arrests and inflict punishment on condemned citizens.

Each of these lictors carried with him a bunch of rods tied together with thongs and having an ax bound to the outside of it. The thongs were used for scourging and the ax for beheading. Sentences imposed by the magistrates were at once carried out. Those bundles of rods were known as fasces. When the Romans conquered Britain the use of the fasces as a symbol was brought with them, and many other Roman customs remained with the British people.

While it was no longer used for inflicting punishment, it continued to be used as a symbol by the early English magistrates, and when an officer appeared carrying the fasces his authority was immediately accepted by all. It was, in effect, his badge of office.

The English form of the fasces was slightly changed in that the ax was placed inside of the bundle of rods, with the blade protruding from the top.

The great councils of the early Saxons gradually developed into one general body, which in the fourteenth century became known as the house of commons. In all these earlier councils the use of the fasces was continued, but it then came to be known as the mace, which has remained as the emblem of legislative authority in that body down to the present day.

The house of representatives of the United States was modeled closely after the house of commons by the framers of our constitution, and the usage of the mace was borrowed from the English custom.

The first mace adopted by the house was destroyed by fire when the British burned the capitol in 1814. From 1814 until 1842 a mace of painted wood did service, but in the latter year the present mace was made after the model of the original one.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Your sons probably please you as well as you pleased your father.

If you don't look carefully after your own affairs, who do you imagine will?

A good many people try to administer forgiveness and punishment at the same time.

About all some men get for their efforts to be dignified is a reputation of having the swelled head.

The greatest triumph for a boy is the privilege of being accepted as an equal by boys somewhat older than himself.

Don't begin to wonder how other people can afford so many things that you can't afford. That is a big step in the direction of growing envious and sour.

We have noticed that people who do exactly as they please, whether their friends like it or not, get along about as well as those who are always trying to please.

Tobacco Smoke Poisonous.

It is often said that tobacco smoke is a powerful germicide. The composition of tobacco smoke is complex, the principal constituents being oils of a tarry nature. Nicotine itself is a strong germicide, but the quantity of this poison in tobacco smoke is minute. The oily matter which accumulates in a tobacco pipe is highly poisonous, but does not contain any appreciable quantity of nicotine, the chief constituent of this residue being a very poisonous oil known as pyridine. Tobacco smoke contains a decided quantity of carbon monoxide, which is a preservative and which must possess germicidal properties. One of the principal constituents accounting for the germicidal properties of tobacco smoke is the powerful antiseptic formaldehyde.

BOLIVIA'S TRAGIC TRAIL.

Probably the Most Inaccessible Country In the World.

Bolivia is probably the most inaccessible country in the world. It can only be reached by crossing the Andes or by taking a long and difficult journey through the Argentine. Thus, although it is four times as large as Great Britain, its population is only one-quarter that of London.

It lies wholly in the tropical belt, but much of its surface consists of a lofty tableland running up to 12,000 feet, where the climate is intensely dry and cold, with considerable snow and fearful electric storms.

A track crosses this great plateau to the western seaboard, and along this trail travels a constant stream of mules and donkeys carrying rubber and other products of the forest to the coast. In many places the track is a mere shelf or rock with nothing between its edge and a drop of thousands of feet. In places the track rises to 15,000 feet above sea-level. The whole trail is lined with the bleached skeletons of pack animals, and the losses are enormous.

On this plateau, at a height of 12,000 feet, is the vast Lake Titicaca, almost as big as Lake Erie.

Dividends to Policyholders increased for eighth successive year

EXTRACTS FROM DIRECTORS' REPORT

Substantial advances have been made in all departments during the year. . .

The total net income for the year exceeded one hundred million dollars . . .

The strength and resources of the Company have been further enhanced . . .

The high earning power of the Company's investments has been again demonstrated. The net rate of interest earned on the mean invested assets, after fully providing for investment expenses, was 6.47 per cent. This gratifying result has been made possible by dividend increases, bonuses and stock privileges accruing on many of the Company's holdings.

The wisdom of the investment policy which has been consistently followed in past years, in favouring long term bonds and the stocks of outstanding and very carefully selected corporations, has been once more emphasized. The appraisal of our securities shows that the excess of market values over cost increased during the year by $19,235,889.99. In addition, a net profit of $5,028,033.20 accrued from the redemption or sale of securities which had risen to high premiums.

The quality of the investments listed in the assets is testified by the fact that on both bonds and preferred stocks not one dollar, due either as interest or dividend, is in arrear for even one day, while the dividends accruing to common stocks are greatly in excess of the dividends payable on the same stocks at the time of purchase.

The surplus earned during the year amounted to $38,511,029.67 from which the following appropriations have been made:

$5,000,000 has been deducted from the market value of our securities as a further provision against possible future fluctuations, increasing the amount so set aside to $10,000,000.

$1,500,000 has been added to the account to provide for unforeseen contingencies, which now stands at $12,500,000.

$1,000,000 has been written off the Company's Head Office building and other properties.

$500,000 has been set aside to provide for the greater longevity of annuitants, bringing the total provision under this heading to $2,000,000.

$50,000 has been set aside to provide for claims in respect of total disability as yet unreported.

$11,090,056.61 has been paid or allotted in profits to policyholders during the year. In addition, $6,205,573.00 has been contingently allotted to deferred dividend policies issued prior to 1911, and to five year distribution policies, to provide for profits accrued but not yet payable.

After making these deductions and allocations, $11,269,330.89 has been added to the undivided surplus, bringing the total over all liabilities, contingency account and capital stock to $45,280,896.14.

Your Directors are gratified to announce, for the eighth successive year, a substantial increase in the scale of profits to be distributed to participating policyholders during the ensuing year.

Girl—"No."

"Good; then we'll take a tramcar."

HANDLING HILLSIDE LAND

(Experimental Farms Note).

To prevent erosion of very steep slopes they should never possibly be kept in sod crops such as meadows and pasture. Sod crops absorb large quantities of rainfall, retard the flow of water down the slope, which gives it more time to be absorbed, and their fine roots bind the soil particles together.

Ploughing of hillsides which cannot be kept permanently in grass should never be done up and down, but always across the slopes, and planting should be done in the same manner. When cultural operations are performed across the slopes, furrows and crop rows obstruct the rapid flow of rainfall down the hill and allow for more absorption. This reduction in the rate and amount of run-off prevents, to a considerable extent, the removal to lower levels of the fertile soil from the surface of the slopes. Spring ploughing is usually most desirable.

Shallow surface ditches with very slight fall grassed in the bottom, may be run across the slope to conduct excess moisture along the hillside to well grassed, or otherwise well protected, main ditches extending up and down the slope. When the land is ploughed, the shallow grassed drains should be skipped.

Canada blue grass, red top, Kentucky blue grass and white clover are useful permanent pasture plants for hillsides. Alfalfa is a splendid crop, sweet clover and the common mixture of red clover, alsike and timothy may also be used. Oats, rye, wheat and corn are crops frequently grown on rolling lands, but these crops are not so effective in controlling erosion as hay and pasture crops.

Fall and winter applications of manure to hillsides are not desirable, but spring applications, ploughed under before any loss of fertility takes place, are very desirable. A light manure application or a mixture of 50 pounds of nitrate of soda, 200 pounds of superphosphate and 25 pounds of muriate of potash would constitute good dressings for the improvement of meadow and pasture crops. These materials should be applied as soon as possible after the spring freshets are over. For acid soils one ton of finely ground limestone may usually be used with profit.

Man So Nervous Feels His Stomach Jump

"I got so nervous my stomach felt like it was jumping. Vinal entirely relieved the trouble. I feel better than in years."—J. C. Duke.

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. Wallace's Drug Store.

What makes a Hen worth more Money?

Eggs, of course! And what can you do to get your hens to lay more eggs?

Here's the answer. Feed Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash. Your hens will lay more eggs. Bigger profits for you.

Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash is a scientific balance of many ingredients with an oatmeal base—so proportioned to give hens the correct amount of protein and carbohydrates. Bone meal and calcium carbonate provide the necessary minerals. In addition Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash contains Cod Liver Meal to make all ingredients do better work, and replace missing sunlight during winter months. Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash restores to the hen those elements she puts into eggs—thus keeping her in condition for heavy production.

You will find Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash the most economical feed. No waste. All feed. Hens eat every bit of it. Get larger, stronger-shelled eggs and of more uniform size. Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash and Ful-O-Pep Scratch Grains make the ideal combination. Ask your dealer for them.

Coniston, Ontario.—"After a severe operation and a three weeks' stay in a hospital I returned home so weak that I was unable to move a chair. For four months I was almost frantic with pains and suffering until I thought there could be no more pains in my left side and suffered agony every month. One day when I was not able to get up my mother begged me to try your medicine. My husband got me a bottle of Vegetable Compound at once and I took it. I started a second bottle, and to my surprise and joy the pains in my side left me completely and I am able to do all my work without help. I am a farmer's wife, so you see I can't be idle long. In all, I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, five boxes of the Compound Tablets, two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, and have also used the Sanative Wash."—Mrs. L. LAJEUNESSE, Box 128, Coniston, Ontario.

RUINS IN RHODESIA

Four of Disease Retards Explorations to Uncover Lost Cities of Africa.

Africa is still a mysterious continent, but glimpses of the romantic past are always being revealed to explorers. The recent discovery of an ancient city in the tropical bush at Gedi, near Mombasa, is one of many fascinating finds.

These relics of lost civilizations must make the archaeologist feel that he is on the edge of incredible wonders. Year after year the misty legends of primitive natives are taking shape as new links with the ancients come to light. Desert, jungle and bush are giving up their secrets.

Fever, sleeping sickness, dozens of African diseases make research work dangerous in many remote corners of the continent. That is why so little exploration has been carried out in Rhodesia, a land rich in traces of the ancients, probably the fabled Land of Ophir. Beyond a certain amount of work at the famous Zimbabwe ruins practically nothing has been done to uncover lost cities that are known to be awaiting the spade of the explorer.

At Inyanga, in Southern Rhodesia, there are miles of terraced walls along the slopes of mountain range. No organised party of scientists has investigated the strange finds which have been made there. An urn containing bangles was dug up by a farmer not long ago, and experts agreed that they were thousands of years old. The bangles were of pure copper and had evidently been made by craftsmen who understood the art of refining minerals.

Zimbabwe has absorbed the interest of excavators and other ancient cities in the Rhodesian bush have been left alone. There is a forgotten city to the north of the Limpopo much greater than Zimbabwe, with walls and brick towers and slave dungeons hewn out of the solid rock. It has been visited, but that is all. Yet this lost city may contain the key to the mystery of the old, unknown gold workers of Rhodesia, for many of the buildings strongly resemble the architecture of South Arabia.

Old Portuguese settlements are often rediscovered in the palm forests of East Africa. Jesuit priests sailed out of Lisbon bound for Africa as early as the sixteenth century. In the cellar of one of these medieval missions interesting relics were found a few years ago—a priest's private seal, silver plate, a molten silver cross, gold chain and bronze breech-loading cannon bearing the Portuguese royal coat of arms.

Wave after wave of invaders swept southward into Rhodesia or voyaged perilously from the east in tiny dhows to the African coast. Persian pottery and Nanking china have been found in some of the ruins, and there are many relics which are supposed to be the work of the Phoenicians.

In the Kalahari desert of Bechuanaland live a brown people called the Makalakas. Prof. E. H. L. Schwarz, the well-known South African scientist, thinks they are the descendants of Malays who colonised Madagascar 2,000 years ago, sailed on to the mainland and built towns near the lakes of Bechuanaland. Makalaka women people of the sun, and their arts are certainly the arts of the east. Their towns offer a splendid field of research. Until Prof. Schwarz visited them a year or so ago the existence of this remote tribe was hardly known to anyone.—New York Herald-Tribune.

The Dog Sentry.

The motorist who is compelled to leave his car for a time can seldom do better than leave it in charge of a dog.

An amusing situation was caused recently, when a dog mistook another car standing near for the one left in his charge, and vigorously opposed the rightful owner when he tried to take it away.

For a long while the man endeavored to gain possession, but was unsuccessful until accidently he tooted his horn. The dog stopped, cocked up his head, looked at the car, and then with an eloquent look of apology trotted off and lay down beside the right one.

It is generally acknowledged that dogs quickly learn to recognize the sound of car-horns, and often a dog lying in front of a fire will jump up at the sound of his master's motor-horn, even though hundreds of other cars may have passed the house during the day.

After 2,000 Years.

Two beautiful galleys of Imperial Rome, which have been lying on the muddy bottom of Lake Nemi for nearly 2,000 years, are to be restored to Rome by an arduous piece of engineering.

High-powered electric pumps are expected to accomplish the task which has baffled Roman engineers for five centuries. They will pump the lake dry, the water being conveyed to the neighboring Lake Albano by a pipe-line.

The galley lying on the higher part of the lake's bottom should be visible in September this year, while it is estimated that the entire work of salvage will take nearly a year.

New Fifty-Franc Coin.

Love, war and labor constitute the designs adorning the new fifty-franc note issued by the Bank of France, to replace the old-fashioned bills, which represented pastoral scenes. Cupid shooting an arrow at Mars, looking over a stock of shells and guns, constitute the love and war combination on one side of the bill, while a huge blacksmith standing under a tall tree represents labor forging tools for the harvest fields.

Mount With Two Peaks.

Mt. Kilimanjaro, Africa's highest mountain, has two peaks, one 2,000 feet higher than the other.

There's a saying both witty and sage,
We accept it without a demur;
A woman stops telling her age
When her age begins telling on her.

First Cook—"And yer mean to say yer kept yer larst job two months; yer must 'ave liked it."

Second Cook—"We was a cruisin' all the time in a steam yacht, and I could not swim."

Rheumatic People Can Obtain Relief

By Enriching Their Blood With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood. It attacks people when the blood is thin and impure, thus setting up inflammation of the muscles and joints. Wet or cold weather may start the pains of rheumatism, but is not the cause. The cause is in the blood. Hot applications or rubbing with liniments may ease the pain, but do not reach the cause and the pains are soon back again. To get rid of this most painful trouble you must treat it through the blood and for this purpose nothing else can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which from first dose to last actually make new, rich blood, thus driving the rheumatic poisons from the system. Mr. Henry E. Amiro, Lower East Pubnico, N.S., tells what these pills did for him. He says:—"I had an attack of acute rheumatism so bad that I could not walk a hundred yards without as much suffering that I would feel faint. I could not do the least work, and any movement caused great pain. I was under the care of a doctor but did not improve much. Then reading of a similar case in a newspaper I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. By the time I had used three boxes, there was no doubt they were helping me. I took altogether about a dozen boxes when I was entirely relieved of the trouble, able to walk four miles to my work, chop wood all day, and then walk home again. To anyone suffering from rheumatism I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Give me ten minutes a week and I'll knock dollars off your tire bills"

SET a day every week—preferably any one but Saturday or Sunday—and let me look over your tires. It'll mean dollars off your tire bill.

Maybe they need more air. Two or three pounds under pressure will take miles off the life of a tire. Maybe there's a nail or a flint just waiting to work through and make trouble. Maybe they're O.K. and you can drive away in comfort.

Ten minutes! But isn't it worth it to feel sure of your tires?

Car owners spend many a half-hour on the side of the road because they won't take the ordinary precaution. And that's saying nothing of the extra mileage they might get and the money they might save.

Boxing Show.

The following is taken from the Ottawa Times, Thursday, Feb. 16th, 1923, about Everett "Slim" Fraser, of St. James A.C., Toronto, formerly of "B" Co., Frontenac Club, Napanee, lightweight boxer:—"Slim" Fraser, of the St. James A.C., knocked out Norm Attersley, of the Regiment, after two minutes and fifteen seconds of fighting in the second round. Attersley started aggressively in the first frame, but Fraser's left was kept continually poking away at his face, and stealing Attersley's thunder, he had Attersley down for two counts of nine before the finish. Attersley took a full rest in emulation of the king of them all Mr. Gene Tunney. The second round was packed with action with a little too much from Fraser to Attersley's liking. Fraser showed fine style at times, and combined it with unusual tenacity.

The Day of Prayer.

On Friday, February 24th, at 3 p.m., in the Anglican Church, Napanee, will be held the international and interdenominational Day of Prayer. Not only members of the Women's Missionary Societies, but all women of the town and community are expected to attend. While this is called the most materialistic age the world has ever known—and it may be so—it has yet produced a World Day of Prayer, on which women of all the world meet together in their respective countries to implore God's blessing for mankind.

HOCKEY

Napanee 4; Trenton 2.

In one of the best games of hockey that has ever been played in the Napanee arena, Napanee defeated Trenton on Friday night of last week, by the score of 4-2, after ten minutes of overtime. It was the first game in the newly formed Bay of Quinte Hockey League, and if this first game is any criterion of the class of hockey displayed, it should be a very close race with close scores.

Both teams were well matched in speed, and the players on both teams kept up a withering pace during the entire game. The ice was not in the best condition, and it made very hard going, but it didn't seem to slow up the play. The puck rolled and just when one team or the other seemed likely to score a goal, the player couldn't control the rolling puck for an accurate shot on goal. Even under these conditions the hockey that was played by both Trenton and Napanee was wonderful. Napanee, if anything, had a little the better of the game, and it was one of the toughest breaks that a team could have had, when with only fifteen seconds left to play, Trenton tied up the game on a fluke goal. To the spectators who remembered other occasions when Napanee teams were involved in overtime games, there was that tremor of fear that this tough break in the last few seconds of play might ruin the chances for Napanee. But instead of being disheartened the locals came back with renewed vigor and fire, and carried the play to the visitors and litterally skated them off their feet in the overtime. But it was not until the last five minutes of the period that they could find the twine behind Bowen, and then Napanee scored two in quick succession to win the game.

Every man on the local team played brilliant hockey, but perhaps the lion's share of the honors goes to Jimmy Naphin, who played a super-natural game. Time after time Naphin rushed from his own defense and his rushes like drive was turned aside by Bowen. But in the overtime Jimmy Naphin got a goal, and at the time it looked like "a million dollars" and the crowd howled with joy. Freddie Bentley and Ernest Dafoe skated out there for the full seventy minutes. He had tough luck in the first overtime period when he stickhandled through the whole team; and after drawing the Trenton goalie out of position missed the open net by inches.

Before the players took their positions, the Napanee Citizens' Band played "God Save the King", and the game was on. The play was very even with both teams playing very difficult shots. Napanee scored first, while Trenton was held scoreless. In the second period Napanee scored again, while Trenton also scored. With the third period nearly over, and Napanee holding to their one goal lead, Trenton tied it up. The shot was high one and it bounded back in front of the goal. Powell tried to play the puck out of the danger zone and it hit his skate and was dragged under his feet just over the goal line for the tying score.

Trenton had a much improved line over their previous visit to Napanee, and in Shoniker, Anderson, Blaikie, Schenell, and Johnston, they had five players who more than matched Napanee. But they could not get away. The persistent and relentless back checking of Wilson, Tucker, and Fidler, old Johnston, broke up their plays before they could get started. Maurice Detlor played great backed and his back checking featured his play. Gleeson and Gerald Johnston subbed, and both played useful games.

The game was well handled by Claire Devlin, of Kingston, who kept the play clean, and his eagle eye caught all offside plays. The large crowd thoroughly enjoyed the game, and they will all be back again when Napanee plays Belleville, on February 27th.

Presentation and Address.

Selby Sunday School held a very enjoyable social on Wednesday evening, February 15th, in the School Room of the United Church, in honor of the retiring Superintendent, Mr. W. J. Winter. A splendid program of vocal and instrumental music, interspersed with readings, was rendered to a large and most appreciative audience. At the conclusion of the program Mr. Winter was called to the platform and presented with a beautiful writing desk and book. Mrs. B. F. Denison read the address, and Messrs. J. Tate and J. Grange made the presentation.

Selby, Feb. 15th, 1928.

To Mr. W. J. Winter.

We, the members and friends of Selby Sunday School, have assembled this evening to express our regard and appreciation of one who has given so largely of his time and talent for the advancement of this important branch of our Church work.

As Superintendent of the School for the past three years, we found you ever punctual and faithful in the performance of duty—willing to render sympathic assistance to the officers and pupils of our School, in the various departments.

Your pleasing personality and encouraging words have been a real inspiration to each member to strive onward and upward in the Christian life; your worthy example should ever remind us that—

"There is only one thing should concern us,
To find the task that is ours;
And then having found it, to do it
With all of our God-given powers."

Now that you have seen fit to retire from the Superintendency, we take this occasion to present to you, as a tangible token of our good will and esteem, this writing desk and History of Lennox and Addington, which we trust may in their usefulness, convey to you more than our words can express.

We also desire to assure you that for days to come you shall ever find a warm place in our School and community life until we are one and all called to that larger School of Eternity.

Signed on behalf of the School.

CHAS. ANDERSON,
S. S. Superintendent.

Mr. Winter, though taken by surprise, made a most appropriate reply saying that they need not think he didn't believe in social gatherings, because he did, but would rather they were in honor of the other fellow and that their presence here no-night under the conditions they had met with these beautiful and useful gifts were more to him than a truck load of flowers on his casket, and when he came to that to please give the flowers to the living as he would have further use for them, concluding with a sermonette on "Watchfulness".

Mr. Anderson and Rev. Mr. Balstone followed with short addresses suitable to the occasion. While the ladies were preparing to serve refreshments, Mr. Balstone led the gathering in community singing, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. At a late hour the evening entertainment was brought to a close by singing "Blest be the Tie That Binds", followed by the Benediction.

SHORT COURSE IN HOME ECONOMICS

The four weeks' Short Course in Home Economics was brought to a close on Friday, February 24th, 1928. There was a good attendance of girls at all three courses, Domestic Science, in charge of Miss Estelle McManus, of Thistletown; Sewing, in charge of Miss B. Rolston, of Hamilton; Nursing and First Aid, in charge of Miss Mabel McMillan, of Seagrave. Each of the courses were very interesting and instructive, giving the pupils a greater insight into the different kinds of work which can be carried on. We students feel that we have gained knowledge that will be invaluable to us in the years that are to come, and we would advise all the girls that have an opportunity to take a course of this kind not to let it slip by them. We feel very grateful to Mr. Laughlin, our Agricultural Representative, through whose influence the course was held at Napanee this year. Being very enthusiastic over this course, it was little trouble to secure members to form a Junior Women's Institute. In the near future this Napanee Junior Women's Institute is going to be heard from, doing some valuable work in this district. We urge all girls in the County of Lennox and Addington, who have not been canvassed personally to join this organization, to drop a card to the Secretary, Miss Beatrice Sager, Napanee R.R. No. 1, submitting your application and fee of 25c. The meetings are to be held on the first Wednesday in every month, at 2 o'clock, in the Agricultural Rooms.

The officers are as follows:—

Hon. President—Mrs. Jas. Laughland.

President—Mrs. Frank Mills.

1st Vice President — Miss Eileen Pringle.

2nd Vice President—Mrs. Robert Woodcock.

Secretary—Miss Beatrice Sager.

Treasurer—Miss Helen Alkenbrack.

Directors—Misses Wilma Jackson, Jennie Woodcock and Annie Keech.

"The closing of this very successful course was held at the Paisley House, Friday evening, February 24th, in the form of a sumptuous banquet at 7 o'clock, followed by a short programme in which Mr. J. E. Whitelock gave a very interesting and inspiring address. This was followed by two hours of dancing to the strains of Wagar's ever popular Orchestra.

B. SAGER, Reporter.

REV. DR. SEAGER VISITED PARISH OF BATH

On Sunday, February 26th, the Rt. Rev. Dr. Seager, Lord Bishop of Ontario, visited St. John's Church, Bath, and at the morning service dedicated a beautiful stained glass window to the Glory of God, and in loving memory of Reuben Wilson, Jane Wilson and Mary Elizabeth Brisco, U. E. Loyalists, and some time members of this congregation. The window is the gift of their son, Mr. Norris A. Brisco, New York.

The Bishop delivered two powerful sermons, which were followed with close attention by large congregations.

In the afternoon also, at 3 o'clock, service was held at St. Thomas', Morven, where the Bishop again preached a forceable sermon, and dedicated a handsome oak Lectern to the Glory of God, and in affectionate memory of Mrs. Dibb, wife of the late Rev. Rural Dean, Frederick Thomas Dibb, some time Rector of Bath, and during whose ministrations the Morven congregation was organized and St. Thomas' Church erected. The lectern was the gift of their daughter, Mrs. Duane R. Hall, Napanee.

Notwithstanding the poor condition of the roads, good congregations were present at all the services, making a bright, hearty and inspiring.

The many friends of the Rector, Rev. W. G. Swayne, were glad to see that he was again able to attend service, after several weeks of serious illness.

Wallace's Rum, Honey and Tamarac Balsam is unequalled for coughs and colds. A large bottle, 35c., at Wallace's only.

Y. P. S. OF CONWAY AND SILLSVILLE

The seventh meeting was held on February 24th, at the home of Mrs. Geo. Clapp, Sillsville. For an hour previous to opening the meeting everyone played games. Following the devotional period, a good literary programme was presented. It consisted of a debate, "Resolved that science has done more for humanity than art". The affirmative was upheld by Leonard Mellow and Marion Young, while the negative side of the question was supported by Lewis Pengelley and Nellie Graham. The affirmative side won by a narrow margin.

At the next meeting a paper on "The Metallurgy of Iron and Steel", will be presented. Also one on "The Preservation of America's Birds".

For Lice on Cattle, Wallace's new Electric Louse Powder works wonders. Two applications, the second to kill the "nits", will do the trick. 35c. a lb. or 3 lbs. for $1.00, at Wallace's. 9a

OBITUARY

Mr. W. J. Wilson.

A very highly respected resident of Marlbank, Mr. W. J. Wilson, passed away quietly at his home, on Saturday, February 18th, at the age of 78 years. In his earlier years he had been a school teacher, and after that owned and conducted a general store in Marlbank for a few years ago. He was a very active man and took much interest in the welfare of the village, and especially in the church. He was a staunch member of the Anglican Church, and in politics a Conservative. Mrs. Wilson passed away several years before. He leaves three sons and two daughters, namely: John, of Napanee; William, of Marlbank; Nathaniel, of Windsor; Mrs. Jos. Mowbray, Napanee; Mrs. Jackson, John Stinson, Erinsville; Mrs. Margaret Rogers, Marlbank; and one brother, Mr. Thos. Wilson, of Napanee, all of whom attended the funeral which was largely attended, was conducted in St. Matthew's Church, on Monday, at 2 p.m., by Rev. Morgan, assisted by Rev. Canon Jones, Kingston, a friend of the family. The remains were taken to Tamworth and placed in the vault to await interment. The sympathy of the community is extended to the sorrowing members of the family.

Teressa Kenny.

The sympathy of their many friends will go out to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kenny, Richmond Street, Thorold, in the loss of their daughter, Teressa, aged 16 months. She passed away at noon Sunday, in the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, after a very serious operation on the spine. Every hope was held out for her recovery, until on the seventeenth day she suddenly collapsed. The funeral was held on Tuesday, at 3 p.m., from the family residence, to Lakeview cemetery, where interment took place. The floral tokens from relatives and friends were many and beautiful. Rev. Father Hefferly officiated at the graveside.

A child too sweet and pure upon this earth to roam.
So God just sent an Angel down and took our Teressa home.

—St. Catharines Standard.

ODESSA Y. P. S.

The young people of Odessa United Church have organized a Young People's Society, and hold their meetings in the Sunday School Room, every Monday night. Mr. Bruce Smith is the President; Miss Violet Jackson, Secretary; Mr. Bruce Hambleton, Treasurer, and Mr. Roy Schermerhorn, Corresponding Secretary.

The meeting of February 27th was under the leadership of Miss Flossie Clyde, 1st Vice President, and was Music night. This was very interesting and instructive. Several papers were read, such as "The Love of Music", "The Boy's Music Lesson", and "Music and Health". Following the reading paper was a short sketch of the life of P. P. Bliss, a Hymn writer, after which all joined in the singing of one of his hymns.

Four little girls sang very sweetly, "The Train is Coming". They were the Misses Maud Cairns, Marion Emmons, Betty Huggard and Dorothy Smith. There were also a few vocal duets by Ernest Smithers and Irene Giddy, and the Misses Hazel Smithers and Irene Hagerman. The Orchestra contributed two selections.

The officers feel very much encouraged as both attendance and membership are growing each week.

Next week we are looking forward to having Wilton Y. P. S. come over and spend the evening with us. We extend an invitation to all the young people to come and help make the meetings a success.

ERNESTOWN

Sawing wood is the order of the day in our vicinity.—The social evening, under the Ladies' Aid of Union United Church, was held on Thursday evening at the home of the President, Mrs. Milton Thompson. About fifty were in attendance. The evening was enjoyed by all, each answering to the roll call by "Sing, Say, or Pay". This being leap year, the ladies chose their partners for a guessing contest, the prizes being won by Mrs. Lovica Kellar and Mr. Wilfred Spring. Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies, all doing justice to the abundant supply of sandwiches, cake and pie. A collection of $5.50 was realized. The evening was then brought to a close by all singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows".—We are glad to report that Mrs. Herb Revelle is improving after her recent illness.— Mr. Clarence Thompson took a sleighing party of fifteen on Saturday evening to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spring. After the tea hour games and conundrums were enjoyed by all, the prize being won by Mrs. Geo. Spring and Mr. Winslow Thompson.—Miss E. Glenn spent the week end at her home with Amherst Island.—Mr. Herman Wood spent Sunday evening at Mr. Herb Belch's.—Mr. and Mrs. Joel Kellar, and Mrs. Bert Smith, visited Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Thompson took on Sunday last.—A number of our men folk attended the sale at Millhaven on Wednesday.—Much sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Christie Thompson in the loss of their infant daughter.—Mr. Arnold Baker spent Sunday in our midst.—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Spring spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Horace Dennys.—We are sorry to report that Mrs. Fred Hudson is ill at time of writing. We hope for a speedy recovery.—A number of our young people took in the kitchen shower for Mr. and Mrs. W. Ruttan, on Friday evening.

MOSCOW

Miss Myrtle Card, the junior teacher, has been confined to her home by illness for the past few days.—The Women's Institute held their monthly meeting on March 1st at Mrs. J. H. Lucas'.—Some of the boys from Bloomfield United Church will present "The Challenge of the Cross" in the United Church here next Sunday evening at 7.30.— Mr. Alvin Allen and sisters, Nellie and Florence, spent Tuesday at Yarker with their brother, Blake Allen.—A party of our young people spent Saturday evening in Napanee, and enjoyed a skate on the rink there.—The frequent storms keeps the new snow and ice constantly on the roads.—Mrs. Allen from the sudden changes of the weather.—Mrs. Herb Reid visited among relatives at Enterprise over the week-end.—Mr. and Mrs. George Sutton-sons and daughters, spent some home at Fredericksburgh Station last Thursday. They will be greatly missed. On the occasion of their departure nearly eighty friends and neighbors met to spend a social evening and bid them farewell. During the evening an address was read, and they were presented with a purse of money. Mr. Lucas responded, and dainty refreshments were served, after which the guests departed, all wishing Mr. and Mrs. Sutton-Lucas health, happiness and prosperity in their new home.

YARKER SOUTH

Archie Card, of Yarker, called through here with his sawing outfit this week, sawing wood for Charlie Curl and Arthur Wilson.—Mr. and Mrs. Basil Casey spent Friday evening at Dennis Smith's, Yarker.—Misses Annie Love and Hilda Davy, of Kingston, spent the week end at the homes of their parents here.—Mrs. Martha Love and Mrs. Harold Huff and Dorothy spent Friday afternoon with Mrs. Ed. Hamilton.— Mr. W. NEWBURGH

The season of Lent is once more with us. This season has many benefits; not only the spiritual value that comes from self denial and reflection, but the material advantage of getting the spring sewing and house cleaning done. We hope that there will not be too much thought given to festivities after Easter, but that some time will be allowed, after the season passes, to put in practice the benefits received.

During the session of the Sunday School of the United Church, Mrs. G. I. Perry gave an interesting missionary address.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Courtney entertained the Choir on Friday evening last.

Miss Maud Welbanks was in Craigville, attending the funeral of her sister, Mrs. George Martin (Martha Welbanks).

The community sympathize with Mr. Welbanks in the death of his daughter, Mattie, (Mrs. George Martin), which occurred during the week. Mrs. Martin was well known here, having spent her school days here, and had many friends who regret to hear of her passing.

Mrs. John Wartman is visiting with friends in Prescott this week.

Mrs. Alvin Vanluven, of Kingston; Mrs. Sager, of Deseronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard were in the village the first of the week, owing to the illness of Mrs. Sager.

Mrs. Lillie Price visited Mrs. J. W. Courtney for a few days.

A few facts about the United Church hospital at Vita, Man. Vita is a village of some four hundred inhabitants, practically all Ukrainian. The municipality of Stuartburn, in which it is situated, is in South Eastern Manitoba, and its population is about 97% of Ukrainian descent and numbers about 4500. The nearest doctors to this municipality, before the church put in the hospital, were forty-three miles to the West, fifty-two miles to the North, or forty miles to the South (in the States). The whole district is rather poor for farming, and only by cattle, milk and cream, cutting of the timber, manage to get along. The population includes Ukrainian, Galician, Roumanian Austrian, German, Polish, Russian, Bohemian, Bulgarian, Norwegian, Swede, Icelander, Dutch, and a few English, Scotch, Irish, French, and English-speaking Canadians and Mennonites—people who before the church put in the hospital, had little or no medical or maternity, or surgical attention, and Presbyterian Church, at this time the only distances a doctor had to come, and on account of their own poor financial condition.

Mr. W. W. Adams was at Russel, Ont., on Monday, attending the funeral of his mother, who was in her 97th year.

Mr. Bowerman is spending the week at Sillsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Moran have moved to Strathcona, where Mr. Moran is employed.

Mrs. Rhoda Sager, widow of the late Stautts Sager, passed away at her home, on Tuesday evening, February 28th, following a stroke which occured on Thursday evening last. The funeral was held on Thursday, from her home, the Rev. Dan Parnsworth, a former Pastor, officiating. Rev. Mr. Parnsworth's address on Mrs. Perry's house.

Little Miss Jean Shortts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shortts, is convalescing, in the Kingston Hospital, following an operation for appendicitis.

The regular meeting of the League was held on Tuesday evening, the President, Miss E. Shorey, in the chair. Mr. Milne, of Strathcona, and Mr. Frank Briscoe gave vocal solos; Miss Marguerite Warman gave a piano solo, and Mrs. Wager read the lesson. A debate, "Resolved that the city depends on the country to a greater extent than the country depends on the city". Mr. Hubert Simpkins and Mrs. Shier upheld the negative, while Mr. Edgar Drew and Mr. Wilmot Breault spoke on the affirmative. Each side gave some splendid arguments. The judges, Reeve Aylesworth, Mr. Jenkins of the High School, and Mrs. Dan Rogers, after carefully considering the points, decided in favor of the negative. Adjournment for an enjoyable evening was held.

REVIEW OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Representations that have been made to the government in connection with the sale of a dairy product known as "cereal" cream are receiving the attention of the Committee on Agriculture of the Legislature. Representatives of the Ontario Milk Producer's Association have requested that the government amend, in order to correct what is termed an indefiniteness in the Act, the legislation respecting the sale of milk and cream within the Province. Objection is raised to the sale, by certain dairies in Toronto, Hamilton, and Ottawa, of an 8 per cent cream which is sold under the trade name of "cereal cream" or "cereal treat".

Milk producers contend that the product in the nature of a substitute and that its general sale should be prohibited. It is also contended that this restriction should be imposed as a means of protecting the public. Dairies handling the product take the stand that the product is merely a mixture of milk and pure cream steped down to 8 per cent of butter fat. Denial was issued that foreign substances were added to the mixture. Representatives of many dairies now handling the product stated that they did not desire to sell the 8 per cent mixture, but were doing so only to meet competition of other firms. The committee has the question before them and will probably send on to the Legislature some measure to correct the situation.

Use of low grade butter rather than cream in the manufacture of ice cream is also to receive the attention of the government. Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, has informed the Agricultural Committee that some step should be taken in this connection. Objection to this practice was raised before the committee when members stated that the ice cream sold in all parts of the Province had little or no butter fat content.

Net revenue received by the Government from the gasoline tax from 1924 to 1927 was $9,383,434.43. Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, informed the Legislature. Gross revenue for the period was $9,777,002, the rebates totalling the sum of $393,570.94.

During the fiscal year 1925-1926 the gross revenue was $3,533,744.82; rebates amounted to $157,584.26, the net revenue being $3,376,090.56. For the period elapsing 1926-1927 the gross revenue was $4,266,279.90; rebates amounted to $233,570.94, the net revenue being $4,032,909.77.

While no commission was paid by the government for the collection of the tax, agents were allowed to deduct the following fees: 1924-25, $40,294.59; 1925-26, $71,976.99; 1926-27, $107,012.80. Total fees allowed since the institution of the tax amounted to $219,284.38.

Premier Ferguson informed the House that up until October 31st, 1927, exactly 444,476 operator's licenses had been issued for drivers of motor cars and 64,916 chauffeur licenses. In 1926 39,513 chauffer's licenses were issued, indicating that about 25,000 people deemed it more in their interest to secure this form of license instead of the ordinary operator's license.

Speaking in the Legislature, William Newman (Liberal, North Victoria) had more than a measure of praise for the government. Discussing the Liquor Control Act, Mr. Newman expressed the opinion that it was in the best interests of the Province. He was, he said, not going to take a back seat to anyone in supporting a government that would get the best out of the Province. He believed that the Liquor Control Act had proved itself a beneficial measure. The Liberal member also urged the extension of the Domestic Science course for farm women at the Agricultural College, a question that is already receiving the attention of the government.

Some measure of relief for townships from the financial burden due to their share of the costs of road construction and subsequent maintenance has been promised by Premier Ferguson. Speaking in the Legislature, Premier Ferguson stated that the Department of Highways had the matter under consideration and that he was confident that some action would be taken in the near future.

J. G. Lethbridge (Progressive Leader) assured the Premier of the hearty co-operation of the Progressive group in this connection. He pointed out that it was a step in the right direction and one that would meet with the approval of the farmers of the province at large.

"The government realizes that the cost of construction of such highways by the people who get the advantage of using them," stated the Premier. "The Highways Department is endeavouring to work out some method whereby they can give support and assistance to rural townships. People who are remote from Provincial Highways should not be burdened with the costs. The people who use them should pay for them."

* * * *

Suggestion that aid be given by the government in connection with class "B" fall fairs is receiving the attention of the Department of Agriculture. Representations have been made by those interested in fairs in county towns. It has been pointed out to the government that these fairs are of vast importance to the Province as a whole and the suggestion that a grant towards the exhibitions by given by the government is receiving the attention of the Minister of Agriculture.

* * * *

While it has been stated that no action will be taken this year at least, Premier Ferguson has intimated that the impost on gasoline is likely to be increased. Making this announcement the Premier pointed out that the people of the Province were clamoring for more good roads and forgetting the cost. "That means," he said, "the gasoline tax will have to be increased." Ontario Good Roads Association in convention in Toronto has already gone on record as favoring an increase in the tax.

Dealing with the costs of building highways, Premier Ferguson stated: "We must cut down our expenditure somewhat, and we must re-arrange our financial system. You will see that those who use the roads must pay most of the cost. That means that the gasoline tax will be increased."

* * * *

Intention of the government to improve the racial feeling between the English and French populations of the Province through the adoption of some new method following the decision to dispense with Regulation 17 has been received with approval by the Legislature. Speaking in the House, Hon. J. R. Cooke discussed the government's viewpoint in this connection. Discussing the workability of Regulation 17, Mr. Cooke stated that owing to the knowledge which came to the Minister of Education in regard to conditions that prevailed in some schools a change had to be made.

"The Minister of Education", he said, "would have been absolutely false to the trust imposed on him if he had failed to try and devise some other method," stated Mr. Cooke. "Report of the Commission to study the question shows that Regulation 17 was a sordid and dismal failure in respect to achieving what it was intended to do. We are now going to enforce more effective methods to bring about the result Regulation had in view."

Mr. Cooke stated that even the experiment the government was now making might have to be subjected to review within a period of five years.

Mention of rural hydro development has brought the information to the Legislature that for every day last year the government had paid $3,000 as a gift to take hydro power and light to the farms of the Province.

Presentation and Address

On February 15th, about seventy of their friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Cranston, and presented them with an electric floor lamp and Japanese hand-painted fruit dish, and the following address:—

Switzerville, Feb. 15th, 1928.

To Mr. and Mrs. Cranston, Switzerville.

Dear Friends,—It is with mingled feelings that we gather in your home this evening, because we are beginning to realize that this privilege of meeting in your home as a close neighbour will soon be a matter of the past. We deeply regret that your state of health has made it necessary for you to lay aside the strenuous activities of the farm for the present, but hope that after a prolonged rest you will feel so much improved in health that you will come back to our community again. But whatever the future has in store for you, we cannot tell, but we can and do recall the past years that you have lived among us, and gratefully remember the neighbourliness and helpful kindliness that we have received from you. In sickness or need you were ready to do all that was humanly possible to assist, therefore we are glad that you have been citizens of our neighbourhood for so many years, and wish you could remain; but as Providence is directing you in other ways, we meekly bow to his sovereign will, who directs our ways for our highest good. We wish therefore to assure you that while we deeply regret your removal from our midst, we want you to know that we have greatly appreciated the contribution you have made to the common good of our thriving community, and trust that you will receive these presents as a visible and lasting expression of our united good will and best wishes for the future.

LENS

(For last week.)

A storm of near blizzard proportions started on Sunday afternoon, accompanied by a high wind, and snow fell a considerable depth. It has taken people by surprise, after having so much mighty like weather. Miss Marion Hyland spent the week end in Tamworth with friends.—Mr. and Mrs. Willie Hanes arrived in Lens from British Columbia, and are renewing friends and acquaintances. — Misses McCall, of Wooler, are visiting their sister, Mrs. J. L. Wilson.—Mrs. Cameron is spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. J. W. Reid.—Mr. J. Hannah is attending the Good Roads Convention in Toronto this week.—Mr. A. Hart passed through here last week with his sawing machine, doing some record jobs.—Mr. Barber, of Hamilton, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Geo. McLaren.—Geo. Hyland is reported better.—Owing to the blocked roads on Monday night, people from here were unable to attend the play in Enterprise.—Mr. A. Hyland and Mr. Fred Reid have completed putting in their supply of ice.—The Valentine party given by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown for the later's pupils, was in every way a decided success. Games and music were indulged in until a late hour, when delicious refreshments were served. The youngsters were very loud in their praise over the pleasant evening spent.—Miss Lela McKnight, of Tamworth, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Lochhead. — Considerable excitement was caused here, when several cars of a freight train were derailed between Roblindale and Lens. Plenty of help was soon on hand, and all wreckage was cleared away about 10.30 p.m.

Mistakes Mothers Make In Care of Little Ones

Many mothers give their children solid foods at too early an age and say proudly that their baby can eat everything that grown up people do." Such a course is almost certain to bring on indigestion and lay the foundation of much ill-health for the little one.

Other mothers administer harsh, nauseating purgatives which in reality irritate and injure the baby's stomach and bowels and at the same time cause the children to dread all medicine.

Absolutely no meat should be given to a child until it reaches the age of 18 months, and then only if approved by the doctor. For medicine, all strong, disagreeable oils and powders should be abandoned and Baby's Own Tablets given instead.

Baby's Own Tablets are especially made for little ones. They are pleasant to take and can be given with absolute safety to even the newest babe. They quickly banish constipation and indigestion, relieve colds and simple fevers and make the cutting of teeth easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

(For last week.)

Hauling wood is the order of the day. —Several from around here attended the dance held at the United Church Hall, Camden East, on Monday evening last, and report a good time.—Mr. A. Alkenbrack passed through here one day last week, buying veal calves. —Mr. George Scott has been confined to his home for two weeks with an attack of influenza, and is improving slowly.—Quiltings were held at the homes of Mrs. L. Peters and Mrs. A. Robinson's, recently.—Mr. J. Curran is very low at time of writing. We are glad to state that Mrs. T. Hyland is able to be around again after an attack of pleurisy.—Many are looking forward to the hockey match between Camden East Terriors and Wolverines of this place.—A parlor party was held at Mr. Percy Scott's, on Thursday evening, which proved to be a real success.—Mrs. W. Dunn is recovering from her recent illness, and is able to be out again.—Mr. George Phelps, of Ottawa, is spending a limited time with friends here.—A severe cold kept Mr. Everton Peters from business several days, but he is able to be around again.—We are sorry to hear that Mr. Arthur Parrott has been hurt quite seriously while skating. — Mr. Arthur Amey has moved his ice-cutting outfit here to cut the annual supply of ice for Mr. Percy Wilson and Mr. John Fairbairn. — Mr. William Dunn has been appointed manager of Big Creek creamery.

A HUGE RANCH.

Widow Operates Farm of Two Hundred Square Miles.

The story of a woman pioneer's struggle in the 3,000 miles north of Alice Springs, in the centre of the continent of Australia is told by an Adelaide correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor. She is a widow, Mrs. F. A. Price, whose husband was the postmaster at Alice Springs, and she has a family of two sons and two daughters. The husband had laid out plans for developing a big holding some distance north of Alice Springs, and despite handicaps and difficulties, the widow determined to proceed with them.

So, with 200 head of cattle, she set out for the station. With the temporary help of a man and her daughters (still in their teens) a rough shack was built in the wilds and named Wurlie, the designation given by the blacks to a camping place. Thus the long battle began for a living in the strange and inhospitable bush, and it required skill and industry to manage a property extending over 200 square miles. Occasionally the help of the blacks was obtained in carrying out the arduous work, but the capacity of organization shown by Mrs. Price soon told its tale.

To-day she has 1,000 sheep, as well as cattle and goats. Her eldest daughter, Mollie, is considered one of the best riders in the Northern Territory. The outback pastoralists regard her as quite as accomplished in bushcraft as any qualified station hand.

All the shearing is done by the women on the station, and they also do the branding—in fact, no job which usually falls to the lot of a man is shirked by them. Even the art of tracking human beings, animals and reptiles is practiced with skill, and they are able to identify the movements of particular horses from the tracks of the mob. One of Mrs. Price's latest feats was to drive 200 sheep from the station to Oodnadatta, a distance of 500 miles. The only help she had on the long journey was that provided by two sons, both of whom are mere boys.

Mrs. Price's property promises to be one of the most successful in Central Australia. She has so trained her children that they are able to share in the responsibilities of management. For instance, while the mother and other sister were down in the city at the marriage ceremony for one of the daughters, Mollie and a small brother carried on the work. The nearest telegraph station is 40 miles from the home, and the closest neighbor is the same distance away. The only mode of travel is by horseback, but the girls think nothing of a ride of 40 miles for the mail, which arrives only once a fortnight.

PROVED BY TREE RINGS.

Indians Lived In British Columbia Before Advent of White Man.

The stump of a cedar tree that grew up out of an Indian shell heap at Ucluelet, B.C., has enabled fix the antiquity of the Indians who once lived there. A preliminary count of rings as thus proved to be at least three or four hundred years old. Some, however, may be centuries older, perhaps preceding the Christian era, Mr. Smith says, and unless geological evidence comes to the contrary there is little chance of learning the true dates where these old American settlements flourished.

The Honor of the Big Snows

By James Oliver Curwood

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

PROLOGUE.

Up in the "Big Snows," near the dome of the earth, lies the scene of this story—of men and real women, who have all of the virtues of their hardening environment and few of the failings of their more civilized relatives. This is a tale for reading when one is tired of the artificialities of civilization—or at any other time when a good story is appreciated. You will find in it romance and adventure and mystery mixed in such skillful manner and in such proportion that no ingredient interferes with another. Yet all go to make fine reading for women who like to hear of brave deeds and sacrifice for love's sake and for men with even a drop of the spirit of adventure in their veins. And one thing more—the author has lived among the people whose lives he describes, and he knows how to tell a story.

CHAPTER I.
The Music.

"LISTEN, John. I hear music!"

The words came in a gentle whisper from the woman's lips. One white, thin hand lifted itself weakly to the rough face of the man who was kneeling beside her bed, and the great dark eyes from which he had hidden his own grew luminously bright for a moment as she whispered again:

"John, I hear music!"

A sigh fluttered from her lips. The man's head drooped until it rested very near to her bosom. He felt the quiver of her hand against his cheek, and in its touch there was something which told John Cummins that the end of all life had come for him and for her in this world of snow and ice and forest very near to the dome of the earth. His heart beat fiercely, and his great shoulders shook with the agony that was eating at his soul.

"Yes, it is the pretty music, my Melisse," he murmured softly, choking back his sobs. "It is the pretty music in the skies."

The hand pressed more tightly against his face.

"It's not the music in the skies, John. It is real—real music that I hear."

"It's the sky music, my sweet Melisse. Shall I open the door so that we can hear it better?"

When she looked again at the woman her eyes were open, and there glowed in them still the feeble fire of a great love. Her lips, too, pleaded with him in their old, sweet way, which always meant that he was to kiss them and stroke her hair and tell her again that she was the most beautiful thing in the whole world.

"My Melisse!"

He crushed his face to her, his sobbing breath smothering itself in the soft masses of her hair, while her arms rose weakly and fell around his neck. He heard the quick, gasping struggle for breath within her bosom, and, faintly again, the words:

"It—is—the—music—of—my—people!"

"It is the music of the angels in the skies, my sweet Melisse. It is our music. I will open the door."

The arms had slipped from his shoulders. Gently he ran his rough fingers through the loose glory of the woman's hair and stroked her face as softly as he might have caressed the cheek of a sleeping child.

"I will open the door, Melisse."

His moccasined feet made no sound as he moved across the little room which was their home. At the door he paused and listened. Then he opened it, and the floods of the white night poured in upon him as he stood with his eyes turned to where the cold, pale flashes of the aurora were playing over the pole.

It was an hour past midnight at the post, which had the barren lands at its back door. It was the hour of deep slumber for its people. But tonight there was no sleep for any of them. Lights burned dimly in the few rough log homes. The company's store was aglow, and the factor's office, a haven of the men of the wilderness, shot one gleaming yellow eye out into the white gloom. The post was awake. It was waiting. It was listening. It was watching.

As the woman's door opened, wide and brimful of light, a door of one of the log houses opened and then another, and out into the night, like dim shadows, trod the moccasined men from the factor's office and stood there waiting for the word of life or death from John Cummins. In their own fashion these men, who without knowing it lived very near to the ways of God, sent mute prayers into the starry heavens that the most beautiful thing in the world might yet be spared to them.

It was just two summers before that this beautiful thing had come into Cummins' life and into the life of the post. Cummins, red-headed, ruthless as a rat, big souled as the eternal mountain of the Crees and the best of the company's hunters, had brought Melisse thither as his bride. Seventeen rough hearts had welcomed her. They had assembled about that little cabin in which the light was shining now, speechless in their adoration of this woman who had come among them, their caps in their hands, their faces shining, their eyes shifting before the glorious ones that looked at them and smiled at them as the woman shook their hands, one by one.

Perhaps she was not strictly beautiful as most people judge, but she was beautiful here, 400 miles beyond civilization. Mukee, the half Cree, had never seen a white woman, for even the factor's wife was part Chipeway Indian, and no one of the others went down to the edge of the southern wilderness more than once each twelve month or so.

The girl—she was scarce more than budding into womanhood—fell happily into the ways of her new life. She did nothing that was elementally unusual, nothing more than any pure woman reared in the love of God and of a home would have done. In her spare hours she began to teach the half dozen wild little children about the post, and every Sunday she told them wonderful stories out of the Bible. She ministered to the sick, for that was a part of her code of life. Everywhere she carried her glad smile, her cheery greeting, her wistful earnestness, to brighten what seemed to her the sad and lonely lives of these silent men of the north.

And she succeeded, not because she was unlike other millions of her kind but because of the difference between the fortieth degree and the sixtieth. The difference in the viewpoint of men who fought themselves into moral shreds in the big game of life and those who lived a thousand miles nearer to the dome of the earth.

A few days before there had come a wonderful event in the history of the company's post. A new life was born into the little cabin of Cummins and his wife. Then had come the sudden change, and the gloom, that brought with it the shadow of death, fell like a pall upon the post, sitting its lift and bringing with it a grief that those who lived there had never known before.

There came to them no word from Cummins now. He stood for a moment before his lighted door and then went back, and the word passed softly from one to another that the most beautiful thing in the world was still living her sweet life in that little cabin at the end of the clearing.

"You hear the music in the skies—now, my Melisse?" whispered the man kneeling beside her again. "It is very pretty tonight!"

"It was not that," repeated the woman.

She attempted to stroke his face, but Cummins saw nothing of the effort, for the hand lay all but motionless. He saw nothing of the fading softness that glowed in the big, loving eyes, for his own eyes were blinded by a hot film. And the woman saw nothing of the hot film, so torture was saved them both. But suddenly the woman quivered, and Cummins heard a thrilling sound.

"It is the music," she panted. "John, John, it is—the music—of—my—people!"

The man straightened himself, his face turned to the open door. He heard it now. Was it the blessed angels coming for his Melisse? He rose, a sobbing note in his throat, and went, his arms stretched out, to meet them. He had never heard a sound like that—never in all his life in this endless wilderness.

"My Melisse, my Melisse!" he sobbed.

A figure came from the shadows, and with the figure came the music, sweet and soft and low. John Cummins stopped and turned his face straight up to the sky. His heart died within him.

The music ceased, and when he looked again the figure was close to him, staggering as it walked, and a face white and thin and starved came with it. It was a boy's face.

"For the museek of the violon—something to eat!" he heard, and the thin figure swayed and fell almost into his arms. The voice came weak again. "There is Jan—Jan Thoreau—and his violon."

The woman's bloodless face and her great staring, dark eyes greeted them as they entered the cabin. As the man knelt beside her again and lifted her head against his breast she whispered once more:

"It is the—music—of my people—the violin!"

John Cummins turned his head.

"Play," he breathed.

"Ah, the white angel is seek—ver' seek," murmured Jan, and he drew his bow gently across the strings of his violin.

From the instrument there came something so soft and sweet that John Cummins closed his eyes as he held the woman against his breast and listened. Not until he opened them again and felt a strange chill against his cheek did he know that his beloved's soul had gone from him on the gentle music of Jan Thoreau's violin.

For many minutes after the last gentle breath had passed from the woman's lips Jan followed, swaying weakly, for the last of his strength had gone in the playing of the violin. Midway in the cabin he paused, and his eyes glowed with a wild, strange grief as he gazed down upon the still face of Cummins' wife, beautiful in death as it had been in life and with the sweet softness of life still lingering there. Some time, ages and ages ago, he had known such a face and had felt the great clutching love of it.

"Ah, the white angel is seek—ver' seek," murmured Jan.

Cummins had partly closed the door after him, but watchers had seen the opening of it. A door opened here and another there, and paths of yellow light flashed over the hard trodden snow as shadowy life came forth to greet what message he brought from the little cabin. When the word came to them at last and passed from lip to lip and there came grim, tense face to another the doors closed again and the lights went out one by one, until there remained only the yellow eye of the factor's office and the faint glow from the little cabin in which John Cummins knelt with his sobbing face crushed close to that of his dead.

There was no one who noticed Jan Thoreau when he came through the door of the factor's office. His coat of caribou skin was in tatters. His feet thrust themselves from the toes of his moccasins. His face was so thin and white that it shone with the pallor of death from its frame of straight dark hair. His eyes gleamed like black diamonds. The madness of hunger was in him.

An hour before death had been gripping at his throat when he stumbled upon the lights of the post. That night he would have died in the deep snows. Wrapped in his thick coat of bear skin he clutched his violin to his breast and sank down in a ragged heap beside the hot stove. His eyes traveled about him in fierce demand. There is no beggary among these strong souled men of the far north, and Jan's lips did not beg. He unstrapped the bear skin and whispered:

"For the museek of the violon—something to eat!"

He played even as the words fell from him, but only for a moment, for the bow slipped from his nerveless grip and his head sank forward upon his breast.

In the half Cree's eyes there was something of the wild beauty that gleamed in Jan's. For an instant those eyes had met in the savage recognition of blood, and when Jan's head fell weakly and his violin slipped to the floor Mukee lifted him in his strong arms and carried him to the shack in the edge of the spruce and balsam.

And there was no one who noticed Jan the next day, except Mukee. He was fed. His frozen blood grew warm. As life returned he felt more and more the pall of gloom that had settled over this spark of life in the heart of the wilderness. He had seen the woman in life and in death, and he, too, loved her and grieved that she was no more. He said nothing; he asked nothing. But he saw the spirit of adoration in the sad, tense faces of the men.

It was not hard for Jan to understand, for he, too, worshiped the memory of a white, sweet face like the one that he had seen in the cabin. He knew that this worship at Lac Bain was a pure worship, for the honor of the big snows was a part of his soul. It was his religion and the religion of these others who lived 400 miles or more from a southern settlement.

It meant what civilization could not understand—freezing and slow starvation rather than theft and respect for the Tenth Commandment above all other things. It meant that up here,

B. C. Man Tells About Dodd's Kidney Pills

Ir. Herman Wewers Suffered Severely With Pains in His Back

Lumby, B.C., March 1st, (Special)—"About 25 years ago, in the States when hushing corn, I got a pain in my back, so bad I had to stop work," writes Mr. Wewers, well known in this district. "The farmer I was working for advised me to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. I did, and was soon able to work again. I, always keep Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house and if my back gets sore I take a few and am soon all right again."

Dodd's Kidney Pills purify the blood and pure blood carried to all parts of the body means new health and increased energy all over the body. Dodd's Kidney Pills are an excellent tonic, and now is the opportune time to take them. During the long, weary winter months the system becomes weakened and gets in a run-down condition. Dodd's Kidney Pills work with Nature by encouraging and assisting the kidneys—to cast out everything impure or diseased.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving memory of Flossie B. Young, who departed this life March 5th, 1927.

Only a memory of by-gone days,
A sigh for a face unseen,
And a constant feeling that God alone knows.
Though he draws the veil between.

"Orient Purple Stripe" is a fine gauge, full fashioned Silk Stocking, especially designed for women who find the best actually the cheapest. The superior quality of the silk and the exquisite finish of this stocking leaves little to be desired in appearance, quality or value. "Purple Stripe" comes with silk to the hem, and has re-inforced heels and toes. A few of the Spring colors are :—

Flesh, Mother Goose, Crane,
Nude, Pearl Blush, Moonlight.

"Orient Full Fashioned" is another very desirable grade that gives utmost satisfaction for the lesser price. This is a pure thread silk hose of a fine, even weave. In colors of :—

Nothing, Shell, New Silver, Gunmetal,
Flesh, Sand, Ecstacy.
Price, $1.50 Pair.

Spring's Tailored Top Coats. "Prince of Wales" Styles, in Navy Poiret Twill and Tricotine

Priced at $16.50 to $22.50.

Perfection in tailoring is the keynote of these popular coats. Quality fabrics are, of course, essential, and good linings of equal importance. In our present Spring collection of "Tailored Coats" you will find that all of these features have been carefully considered. Variety steals into the mode this season; thus we have coats impeccably tailored, others braid bound, models tucked from collar to hem in the back, models in double breasted effects, trimmed with large pearl buttons.

"Navy Blue" is the correct shade. A full complement of sizes are in stock.

A small "Cash Deposit" will hold the coat of your choice until Easter, if required.

New Spring Hats From Foremost Canadian Artists, Exploiting the Smart New Modes For The Season

Smart frocks look smarter when topped by smart and attractive looking hats. Our assemblage of New Easter and Spring Hats have that indescribable "smart" appearance.

Featured are appropriate hats for all spring-time occasions. Hats, conceived and created by the clever Canadian milliners. Hats, that are copies and adaptations of exclusive and expensive New York and Paris originations.

Our collections, too, represent consistent values. While our first specifications called for authentic style lines, variety and exclusiveness, prices were not overlooked—hence our values are consistent—second to none, and most cases actually much better than the average. Choose from a wide range of delightful new colorings and choose early.

Prices range from $2.69 to $9.95.

A Wonderful New Pattern in "Velvet Rugs Has Just Arrived From England

Rugs of to-day form a dual capacity. Besides being an attractive floor covering, they also form a background for the color scheme of the entire room. They are of utmost importance, hence they must be chosen carefully. This wonderful new Velvet design expresses artistically the present day "Tides of Fashion" in floor coverings. It comes with a soft sandstone back-ground shading out to deeper wood tone in the border. The pattern is semi oriental in character, concentrating on a large centre medallion, which is further enhanced by the use of several smaller figures in blending colors. Obtainable in four sizes :—9 ft. x 12 ft., $55.00; 9 ft. x 10 ft. 6 in., $52.50; 9 ft. x 9 ft., $45.00; 4 ft. 6 in. x 7 ft. 6 in., $16.95. We invite your inspection.

Men's Made-to-Measure Suits for Spring "Fit-Reform" and "Levinson" Brands

Mr. Man, are you on the war path for a new Spring Suit? If such is the case be sure your steps bring you to C. D. S. L. We have just "opened-up" two remarkably fine sets of samples, samples from two of Canada's finest clothiers. Manufacturers famous for their impeccable tailoring and for the wealth of beauty in their materials.

Spring fabrics show a decided change. The trend is toward smaller and neater designs, while a preference is being forecast for fine finished worsteds.

Grey, in various pleasing tones, is a favored color; light tones of Browns and Fawns are in evidence, while Hairline Stripes are of noteworthy importance.

Conservative minded men will delight in the new Grey and Navy Serges this season.

The new models, with their shorter and narrow lapels, their shorter length coats, possess a trimness of design that make for personality and individuality.

See these new materials, we would welcome the opportunity of demonstrating their attractiveness to you. The prices for Made-to-measure Suits range from $25.50 to $47.50.

I want another Buckeye Colony Brooder

People who already own Buckeye Brooders are our best customers—because they all make big profits. And they put their money into more Buckeyes for still bigger profits. Ask the Buckeye user—he knows. He'll tell you, you can't get Buckeye results with anything but a Buckeye Colony Brooder—whether coal or oil burning. You'll grow three chicks where one grew before, at the lowest running expense—and you'll raise them to maturity and make real money. Come in and see these remarkable brooders today. We have the very size you need.

WEDDING BELLS

Merritt—Smith.

Watertown, Feb. 17th, 1928.—Floyd Arthur Merritt, 117 North Orchard Street, and Kathleen Eileen Florence Smith were married Friday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, at the home of Miss Peggy Gilbert, 220 Clinton Street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frederick A. Miller, Pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church. The couple was attended by Miss Bessie M. Kane and Frank R. Davis. The bride was attired in white crepe and a corsage of pink sweet peas. Miss Kane was attired in pale green crepe. Following the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served at the Gilbert home. Upon their return from an extended wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Merritt will reside at East Hounsfield. The bride was a native of Switzerville, Ont., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith.

THE MILLS HATCHERY

JUNIOR FARMERS' ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED

The young men who attended the Four Weeks' Course in Agriculture, organized a Junior Farmer's Association with the following officers:—President, William Tuner; Vice-President, Clarence Craig; Secretary, Morley Oliver; Directors, William Vankoughnett, Roy Miller. The object of this organization is to foster everything that tends to develop Agriculture in this district. Meetings will be held to discuss improved methods so that production costs will be cut down and larger profits realized. The social and intellectual side of farm life will be promoted through the organization, and debates and sports, including a soft ball league.

The girls also formed a Junior Institute, with Mrs. Frank Mills as President; Eileen Pringle and Mrs. Robert Woodcock, Vice Presidents; Beatrice Sagar, Secretary; Helen Alkenbrack, Treasurer, and Wilma Jackson, Jennie Woodcock and Annie Keech as Directors.

To mark the conclusion of the Courses, an enjoyable banquet was held at the Paisley House, with about eighty young people present. The programme consisted of numbers by Mrs. Frank Mills, Nina McKim, Helen Alkenbrack, and Gladys Parrott. J. E. Whitelock, of the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, delivered an inspiring address.

WEDDING BELLS

Shephard—Instant.

On Monday evening last, February 27th, 1928, a very pretty and unique wedding took place at the United Church parsonage, Bath, when Rev. G. E. Ross, M.A., united in marriage Mr. Fredrick Arthur Shephard, of the City of Kingston, to Miss Mary Elspeth Instant, of Adolphustown.

The rare beauty of the youthful bride was enhanced by a charming gown of French beige crepe-de-chine, trimmed with rose, with shoulder bouquet of the same shade, having hose, shoes and hat to match; while her travelling coat was of crimson maple marvello, trimmed with mink tibbetine.

The groom was ably supported by Mr. George Dawey, Jr., of Bath, while the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Anna Instant, who was becomingly attired in a dress of peach beige crepe-de-chine, trimmed with colonial rose.

After the ceremony, the bridal party repaired to the home of the groom's father, where a dainty buffet luncheon was served, and a most enjoyable evening spent under the parental roof.

The happy couple motored the same evening to Kingston, and will visit other Eastern points, and on their return will reside at Adolphustown.

The young people are very highly esteemed and carry with them, not only confetti, but the best wishes of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

ODESSA

There was a social dance held in the Town Hall last Monday night by the Odessa Brass Band. The excellent music was furnished by the Wagar orchestra, of Napanee. — Mrs. Carrie Hagerman has returned from spending the past two months with her son, Mr. Kelly Hagerman, Rochester, N.Y.—Mr. Fred Davison, of Oxbow, Sask., called on friends last Thursday. — Mrs. Price, of Newburgh, who has been visiting Mrs. Henry Allen, has returned to her home.—Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Topliff spent Friday as guests of Mrs. George Watts, who is spending the winter months with her daughter, Mrs. J. G. Ettinger, King St., Kingston.—The many friends of Mr. Isaac Fraser, are sorry to hear of his serious illness.—William Vrooman, of Kingston, spent the past week with his son, Herman Vrooman.—Mrs. E. O. Clark's many friends will be interested to know that a letter was received recently and that she is well and spending the winter months with her son, Reginald Clark, Chicago. For some time after her home was broken up here, about eighteen months ago, she was with her son, Gladwin Huntington, West Virginia.—Wylie McDonald was taken to the Kingston General Hospital last week for an appendicitis operation, and is getting along nicely. All hope for a speedy recovery.

TAMWORTH

Mr. A. B. Carscallen returned on Saturday from Toronto, where he was in attendance at the Good Roads Convention.—The people of Tamworth are enjoying very good lighting facilities following the installation of certain new parts in connection with the electrical plant.—The Y. P. U. of the United Church held their regular meeting on Monday evening. Mr. Donald McLaughlin had charge of the meeting. Rev. Mr. Beckstead gave a talk on "Self Control".—The Women's Day of Prayer for Missions service was held in the Anglican Church last Friday evening. Rev. Mr. Morgan conducted the service.—Miss Hattie Reid spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Preslar, near Napanee.—Mr. Jacob Wagar was regularly inducted as Elder in connection with Tamworth United Church, at a service held on Sunday morning last. The minister, Rev. I. N. Beckstead, addressed the congregation on the organization of the United Church and the duties of the several classes of officials found in a congregation of that denomination.

THE BEST THAT'S MADE IN EVERY GRADE

The Honor of the Big Snows

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD.
Author of "The Danger Trail"

Copyright, 1928, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

under the cold chill of the northern skies, things were as God meant them to be and that a few of his creatures could live in a love that was neither possession nor sin.

A year after Cummins brought his wife into the north, a man came to the post from Fort Churchill, on Hudson's bay. He was an Englishman belonging to the home office of the Hudson's Bay company in London. He brought with him something new, as the woman had brought something new, only in this instance it was an element of life which Cummins' people could not understand.

Cummins was away for a month on a trapline that went into the barren lands. At these times the woman fell as a heritage to those who remained, and they watched over her as a parent might guard its child. Yet the keenest eyes would not have perceived that this was so.

With Cummins gone the tragedy progressed swiftly toward finality. The Englishman came from among women. For months he had been in a torment of desolation. Cumming wife was to him like a flower suddenly come to relieve the tantalizing barrenness of a desert, and with the whim and ways of civilization he sought to breathe its fragrance.

As yet there was no suspicion in her soul. She accepted the Englishman's friendship, for he was a stranger among her people, she did not hear the false note, she saw no stealthat promised evil. Only the men at the post heard and saw and understood. But they were quiet, evaded the Englishman as much as possible and watched—always watched.

One day something happened. Cummins' wife came into the company's store, and a quick flush shot into her cheeks and the glitter of blue diamonds into her eyes when she saw the stranger standing there. The man's red face grew redder, and he shifted his gaze. When Cummins' wife passed him she drew her skirt close to her.

That night Mukee, the half Cree, slunk around in the edge of the forest to see that all was well in Cummins' little home. Once Mukee had suffered a lynx bite that went clear to the bone, and the woman had saved his life. After that the savage in him was enslaved to her like an invisible spirit.

Then Mukee's Hands Changed. They Flew to the Thick Throat of the Man From Civilization.

He crouched for a few minutes in the snow, looking at the pale filter of light that came through a hole in the curtain of the woman's window, and as he looked something came between him and the light. He crouched close to the snow be peered around the logs. It was the Englishman who stood looking through the window.

Mukee's moccasined feet made no sound. His hand fell as gently as a child's upon the stranger's arm.

"There is not the honor of the beeg snows," he whispered. "Come!"

The Englishman chuckled. Then Mukee's hands changed. They flew to the thick, reddening throat of the man from civilization, and without a sound the two sank together upon the snow.

The next day a messenger behind six dogs set out for Fort Churchill with word for the company's home office that the Englishman had died in the big snow, which was true.

Mukee told this to Jan, for there was the bond of blood between them.

CHAPTER II.
Little Malissa.

THEY carried Cummins' wife to where a clearing had been cut in the edge of the forest, and at the foot of a giant spruce, towering sentinel-like to the sky, they lowered her into the frozen earth. Unsplingly Williams, the old factor, stumbled over the words on a ragged page that had been torn from a Bible. The rough men who stood about him lowered their wild heads upon their breasts, and sobs broke from them.

At last Williams stopped his reading, stretched his long arms above his head and cried chokingly:

"The great God keep Mees Cummins!"

As the earth fell there came from the edge of the forest the low, sweet music of Jan Thoreau's violin. No man in all the world could have told what he played, for it was the music of Jan's soul, wild and whispering as the winds, sweetened by some strange inheritance that had come to him with the picture which he carried in his throbbing heart.

He played until only the tall spruce and John Cummins stood over the lone grave. When he stopped the man turned to him, and they went together to the little cabin where the woman had lived.

There was something new in the cabin now—a tiny white, breathing thing over which an Indian woman watched. The boy stood beside John Cummins looking down upon it and trembling.

"Ah," he whispered, his great eyes glowing, "it ees de leetle white angel!"

"It is the little Mellsse," replied the man.

He dropped upon his knees with his face close to the new life that was to take the place of the one that had just gone out. Jan felt something tugging in a strange way at his heart, and he, too, fell upon his knees beside John Cummins in this first worship of the child.

From this hour of their first kneeling before the little life in the cabin some thing sprang up between Jan Thoreau and John Cummins which it would have been hard for man to break.

That night when Jan picked up his violin to go back to Mukee's cabin Cummins put his two hands on the boy's shoulders and said:

"Jan, who are you and where did you come from?"

Jan stretched his arm vaguely to the north.

"Jan Thoreau," he replied simply. "Trees is my violon. We come alone through the beeg snow. We starve seven day in the beeg snow. My violon keep the wolf off at night."

"Look again, Jan. Didn't you come from there or there or there?"

Cummins turned slowly, facing first to the east and Hudson's bay, then to the south, and lastly to the west. There was something more than curiosity in the tense face that came back in staring inquiry to Jan Thoreau.

The boy hunched his shoulders, and his eyes flashed.

"It ees not lie that Jan Thoreau and hees violon come through the beeg snow," he replied softly. "It ees not lie!"

"There is plenty of room here now," said Cummins huskily. "Will you stay with the little Mellsse and me, Jan?"

"With de leetle Mellsse!" gasped the boy. "I—I—stay with de leetle white angel for ever and ever!"

No man learned more of Jan than had Cummins. Even to Mukee his history was equally simple and short. Always he would that he came from the east of the north, which meant the Barren lands, and the Barren lands meant death. No one knew better than Jan how near them as Jan had come, and at another time and under other circumstances Cummins and his people would have believed that he had.

But they knew that Jan Thoreau had come like a messenger from the angels, that the woman's soul had gone out to meet him, and that she had died sweetly on John Cummins' breast while he played. So the boy, with his thin, sensitive face and his great, beautiful eyes, became a part of what the woman had left behind for them to love. In a way he made up for her loss. The woman had brought something new and sweet into their barren lives, and he brought something new and sweet—the music of his violin. He played for them in the evening in the factor's office, and at these times they knew that Cummins' wife was very near to them and that she was speaking to them through the things which Jan Thoreau played.

There were hours of triumph for Jan in the factor's office, but it was the sadness in the little cabin that Jan liked best, and, most of all, he loved to have the little Mellsse alone. As the days of early spring trapping approached and the robberies for a hundred miles around the post was crisscrossed with the trails of the Cree and Chippewayan fur savage in him was absent for days at a time, strengthening the company's friendships and bargaining for the catch that would be routing to market about eight weeks later.

This was a year of intense rivalry, for the French competitors of the company had established a post 200 miles to the west, and rumor spread that they were to give sixty pounds of flour to the company's forty and four feet of cloth to the yard. This meant action among Mukee and his people, and the factor himself, the son of a duke, had his own plunged into the wilderness.

The exodus left desolate lifelessness in the post.

In the silence and lifelessness Jan Thoreau felt a new and ever increasing happiness. To him the sound of life was a thing vibrant with harshness; quiet—the dead, pulseless quiet of lifelessness—was beautiful. He dreamed in it, and it was then that his fingers discovered new things in his violin.

He often sent Mabalia, the Indian woman who cared for Mellsse, to gossip with Williams' Chippewayan wife, so that he was alone a great deal with the baby. At these times, when the door was safely barred against the outside world, it was a different Jan Thoreau who crouched upon his knees beside the cot. His face was aflame with a great, absorbing passion which at other times he concealed.

"Ah, ze sweet leetle white angel! he would cry as she tugged and kicked. "I luf you so—I luf you an' will stay always an' play ze violon! Ah, you will be so gr-r-r-eat bea-utiful white angel lak—her!"

He would laugh and coo like a mother and talk, for at these times Jan Thoreau's tongue was as voluble as his violin. His voice grew soft and low, and his eyes shone with a soft mist as he told her those things which John Cummins would have given much to know.

"Some day you shall understand why it happened, sweet Mellsse," he whispered, bringing his eyes so near that she reached up an inquiring finger to them. "Then you will luf Jan Thoreau!"

Once, when Mellsse straightened herself for an instant and half reached up her tiny arms to him, laughing and cooing into his face, he gave a glad cry, crushed his face down to hers and did what he had not dared to do before—kissed her. There was something about it that frightened the little Mellsse, and she set up a wailing that sent Jan in a panic of dismay for Mabalia. It was a long time before he ventured to kiss her again.

It was during this fortnight of desolation at the post that Jan after a short absence one day discovered the big problem for himself and John Cummins.

Upon her knees in front of their cabin he saw Mabalia, industriously rolling the half naked little Mellsse about in a soft pile of snow and doing her work, as she firmly believed, in a most faithful and thorough manner. With a shriek, Jan threw off his pack and darted toward her like a wild thing.

"Sacre bleu—you keel—keel ze leetle Mellsse!" he cried shrilly, snatching up the half frozen child. "Mon Dieu, she ees not peposed; she ees veerilliss—veerilliss!" and he ran swiftly with her into the cabin, flinging back a torrent of Cree anathema at the dumbly bewildered Mabalia.

At last Mabalia went into an ecstasy of understanding. Mellsse was not to be taken out and rolled in the snow so she brought in the snow and rolled it over Mellsse.

When Jan discovered this his tongue twisted itself into sounds so terrible, and his face writhed so fiercely that Mabalia began a wailing that thereafter no snow at all, either out doors or in, was to be used in the physical development of the little Mellsse.

This was the beginning of the problem, and it grew and burst forth in all its significance on the day before Cummins' departure in from the wilderness.

For a week Mabalia had been dropping sly hints of a wonderful thing which she and the factor's half breed wife were making for the baby. On the day before Cummins' arrival Jan came in from chopping wood. Mellsse was smiling and making queer, fluttering little signals to him from the table. She was standing upright, wedged in a coffin shaped thing from which only her tiny white face peered out at him, and Jan knew that this was Mabalia's surprise. Mellsse was in a papoose sling!

"Mellsse, I say you shall be no papoose!" he cried, running to the table. "You ees veerilliss! You shall be no papoose, not if twen' 'fous'nd devil come tak Jan Thoreau!"

And he snatched her from her prison. Thing Mabalia's handiwork out into the snow and waited impatiently for the return of John Cummins.

Cummins returned the next day, not that his work among the wild trappers to the south was finished, but because he had suffered a hurt in falling from a slippery ledge. When Jan from his wood chopping in the edge of the forest, saw the team race up to the little cabin and a strange Cree half carry the wounded man through the door, he sped swiftly across the open with visions of new misfortune before him.

But the injury was not serious and Jan lost no time in revealing his fears after Mabalia had been sent to the factor's wife. With graphic gesture he told of what had happened. Cummins had come to the door to look upon the wallow in the snow and babbled back to the table when Jan ran there in excited imitation of the way in which he had found the little Mellsse in his bella's sling.

"She ees veerilliss!" finished Jan not. "She ees not papoosed. She shall be no lak—her!" His great eyes shone, and Cummins felt a lump rising in his throat as he looked into them and saw what the boy meant. "Mabalia mak papoose out of Mellsse. She grow—know nothing ink papoose, talk tak pa papoose—"

"Yes, she must be like her, Jan—just as good and just as sweet and just as beautiful," interrupted Cummins gently.

There was a quick intaking of his breath as he bobbed back to his own cot, leaving Jan at play with the baby.

That night, in the dim, sputtering glow of an oil lamp John Cummins and Jan Thoreau together set to work to thrash out the great problem that had suddenly entered into their existence. To three of two there was an element of humor in what they were doing, for into their keeping had been given a thing for which God had not schemed them.

So far as Cummins knew, there was not a white woman nearer than Fort Churchill, 200 miles away. In all that region he knew of only two full white men, and they were Williams and himself. The baby Mellsse was hopelessly lost in a world of savagery—honest, loyal, big souled savagery—but savagery for all that, and the thought of it brought the shadows of fear and foreboding to the two into whose lives the problem had just come.

Long into the night they talked sentinels of the matter, while Mellsse slept; and the longer they talked the greater loomed the problem before them. Cummins fancied that he already began to see signs of the transformation in Mellsse. She was passionately fond of the gaudy things Mabalia gave her, which was a sign of savagery. She was charmed by confinement in the papoose sling, which was another sign of it, and she had not died in the snow wallows, which was still another.

So far back as he could remember, Cummins had never come into finger touch of a white baby. Jan was as blissfully ignorant. So they determined upon immediate and strenuous action. Mabalia would be ceaselessly watched and checked at every turn. The million children would not be allowed to come near Mellsse. They two —John Cummins and Jan Thoreau—would make her like the woman who slept under the sentinel spruce.

"She ees veerilliss," said Jan with finality, "an' we mus' keep her veerilliss!"

Cummins counted back gravely upon his fingers. The little Mellsse was four months and eighteen days old.

"Tomorrow we will make her one of those things with wheels, like the baby wagons they have in the south," he said. "She must not go in the papoose slings."

"An' I will teach her to museek," whispered Jan, his eyes glowing. "That ees veerilliss."

Suddenly an eager light came into Cummins' face, and he went to a cribbo covered box standing upon end in a corner of the room.

"Here are the books—her books, Jan," he said softly, the trembling thrill of inspiration in his voice. He drew the books out, one by one, his fingers trembling and his breath coming quickly as he touched them, a dozen worn, dusty things. At the last one of all, which was more ragged and worn than the others, he gazed for a long time. It was a little Bible, his wife's Bible, finger worn, patched, pathetic in its poverty. The man gulped hard.

"She loved this, Jan," he said huskily.

"She loved this, Jan," he said huskily. "She loved this worn, old book more than anything else, and little Mellsse must love it also. Mellsse must be a Christian."

"Ah, yes; so leetle Mellsse mus' love ze great God," said Jan softly.

Cummins rose to his feet and stood for a moment looking at the sleeping baby.

A missionary is coming over from Fort Churchill to talk to our trappers when they come in. She shall be baptized."

Like a cat Jan was on his feet, his eyes flashing, his long, thin fingers clinched, his body quivering with a terrible excitement.

"No, no! Not baptize by missioner!" he cried. "She shall be good an' love ze great God, but not baptize by missioner! No, no, no!"

Cummins turned upon him in astonishment. Before him Jan Thoreau stood for a minute like one gone mad, his whole being consumed in a passion terrible to look upon. Little giant of muscle and fearlessness that he was, Cummins involuntarily drew back a step, and the undisputing of instinct within him prompted him to lift a hand as if to ward off a leaping thing from his breast.

Jan noted the backward step, the guarded uplift of hand, and with an agonized cry he buried his face in his hands. In another instant he had turned and, before Cummins' startled voice found words, had opened the door and run out into the night. The man saw him darting swiftly toward the forest and raised to him, but there was no response.

Painting itself each instant more plainly through the tumult of his emotions was what Jan had come to know as the picture in his brain. Shadowy and indistinct at first, in pale, elusive lines of mental fabric, he saw the picture growing, and in its growth he saw first the soft, sweet outlines of a woman's face, and then great luring eyes, dark like his own. And before these eyes, which gazed upon him with overwhelming love, all else faded away from before Jan Thoreau. The fire went out of his eyes, his fingers relaxed, and after a little while he sank up out of the snow, shivering, and went back to the cabin.

Cummins asked no questions. He looked at Jan from his cot and watched the boy silently as he undressed and went to bed, and in the morning the whole incident passed from his mind.

WINTER WONDERS OF NIAGARA

The wonders of Niagara Falls which have for years attracted sightseers from all parts of the world, are even more striking when the frosts of winter have played their part in beautifying this magnificent spectacle. The Falls are coated with ice in peculiar formations and are, perhaps, even more attractive than during the summer months when the water runs freely over their brink.

So great has been the interest in the winter appearance of Niagara that a series of excursions have been arranged by the Canadian National Railways from American points such as Chicago, Detroit and intermediate cities. Special trains are being operated from Chicago, South Bend, Battle Creek, Lansing, Flint, Detroit and other points. It is anticipated that because of the facilities provided, thousands of tourists will make the journey to view the Falls in Winter.

A. B. Chown, General Passenger Agent of the System at Chicago, states that enquiries from prospective visitors are pouring in from all directions.

HOW THE SUN LIFE MADE THIRTY-EIGHT MILLIONS PROFIT IN THE YEAR 1927

Participating Policyholders Receive Ninety-Five Per Cent. of Profits. — Dividends to Policyholders Again Increased. — Company Seeks Legislation to Maintain Canadian Control.

Montreal, March 1.—The phenomenal record of the Sun Life Assurance Company is an inspiration to all Canadians. Its income of $102,000,000 is already equal to the total revenue of the Government of Canada in the year 1910, and $38,000,000 is certainly an amazing sum to have earned as profit in one year. Not many corporations anywhere can report such figures. The President's intimate, practical comments at the annual meeting explaining how these huge profits were made were illuminating.

Of even greater moment, however, were his statements regarding the danger that this great Canadian institution may pass from Canadian control. Some months ago, Mr. Macaulay referred to the activity of Wall Street in the buying of Sun Life stock, and cautioned policyholders and shareholders of the menace it involved to an institution which was founded and developed by Canadians and which has obtained its phenomenal growth under Canadian management. Subsequent events have justified these misgivings, and at the meeting to-day the first public intimation was given that the Sun Life directors are seeking legislation at the present session of Parliament which is intended to effectively forestall this danger.

Precautions to Maintain the Company Canadian in Character.

In concluding his address to the shareholders and policyholders the President made the following reference to the matter :—

"There is but one cloud on our horizon. Our very prosperity has created a remarkable demand for our capital stock. We desire to ensure that this great company shall always remain strictly Canadian in its control and in particular that its investments shall never come under Wall Street domination. A bill which we have introduced into Parliament will be submitted for your approval. If it be passed, it will give us the protection we so much need, and I know we can rely on the whole-hearted sympathy and support, not only of our stockholders and policyholders here present, but of our army of policyholders throughout the country."

The meeting unanimously approved of the measure in question. How important and how vital to Canadians are the interests at stake is disclosed in the report submitted to the annual meeting of the Company.

In moving the adoption of the report, President Macaulay said :—

"You gentlemen have become so accustomed to our presenting every year a statement surpassing all previous records that you come prepared to hear another report of that description. I am quite sure, however, that not one of you, in his most optimistic mood, expected a report so favourable as that which you now have. Our record for 1927 is indeed a remarkable one. Let me touch on the main features :—

Remarkable Growth, Strength and Profits.

"The new assurances completed amounted to $328,000,000, an increase of over $62,500,000.

"The amount in force at the close of the year had risen to $1,487,000,000; and at the present moment is well over $1,500,000,000.

"The income exceeded $102,000,000, an increase over the previous year of $23,800,000. To me, this is very impressive. Not only has this item passed the one hundred million mark, but the increase alone is equal to what was our total income but eight years ago. This has been accumulated by forty-nine years of strenuous effort. A life company with a total income no greater than our increase would be an important corporation.

"The assets have increased by $56,000,000, and now exceed $400,000,000.

"But the most wonderful of all these wonderful figures is the amount earned as profit—$38,000,000. How great this figure is may be judged from the fact that the earnings of the previous year, in which we so rejoiced, were $20,500,000. It would be hardly reasonable to assume that our earnings of future years will continue on such a tremendous scale, and we have therefore set aside a large part of this sum to provide for future contingencies.

A Great Surplus and Contingency Fund.

"Our securities have been valued on a very conservative basis, but from even those moderate values we have set aside another $5,000,000 to provide for market fluctuations, making the total deduction under this heading $10,000,000.

"We have also set aside the following amounts :—

"A further $1,500,000 for unforeseen contingencies, raising that item to a specially greater longevity of annuitants, making that item to $2,000,000; and $1,300,000 to increase our reserves on tropical business; besides writing off another $1,000,000 on our Head Office and other buildings.

"We have distributed $11,100,000 in profits to our policyholders, and have also set aside $6,200,000 to cover profits accrued on policies.

"After providing for all these amounts, we have added $11,000,000 to our undivided surplus, raising that sum from $34,000,000 to $45,000,000.

Scale of Profits Increased for Eighth Successive Year

"The announcement, however, that will be received with the greatest enthusiasm is that for the eighth consecutive year we have increased the scale of profit payments to our policyholders. The basis of distribution for 1928 will call for nearly $900,000 more than would the basis of last year.

Profits to Policyholders Unexcelled in the World

"We can already say that in profitableness to our policyholders, we are not excelled by any life company in the world; but we are not satisfied and will not be satisfied until we can make an even stronger statement than that. Years ago, I told our field force that we hoped to be able to announce an increase in our profit scale for ten consecutive years. We have maintained that record for eight years, but the ninth and tenth years have yet to come, and their story has yet to be told. Our huge undivided surplus and our great contingency funds are the best guarantee our policyholders can have as to their future dividends.

Large Dividends the Result of a Wise Investment Policy

"You ask how we are able to make these huge profits. The $38,000,000 earned may be divided as coming approximately $14,000,000 from the regular life assurance operations of the Company, $5,000,000 from profits actually realized by the redemption or sale of securities and $19,000,000 from increase in market values. And, of all the profits made in the participating branch, the policyholders get ninety-five per cent.

"I would not have you suppose that we ever speculate. We do not. We, of course, do not hesitate to sell bonds or other fixed-interest securities when they rise to such premiums that the yield is no longer satisfactory, but when we buy a stock we buy for permanent investment, we buy to keep, and we never sell merely because the market value may have risen to a high figure. We have, however, had an arithmetic of security redemptions, and as a result we have the $5,000,000 of realized profit.

High Interest Rate Earned, With No Arrears

"Even the normal earnings of a life company depend very largely on the rate of interest it can obtain on its investments. The current rate of interest has been steadily dropping for years, and there is every indication that it will continue to drop — for how long we cannot tell. The outlook for investors in bonds and mortgages is not encouraging. That fact causes us no anxiety. We have enlisted many large groups of the broadest, most experienced, most energetic and most successful men on the continent to work for us to maintain large interest earnings. We get their co-operation by becoming stockholders in the outstanding basic corporations of the country, so that we share in all the profits that they make. The dividends which we receive on our stock holdings are already two millions more than were payable on the same stocks when we bought them. Our interest account, of course, includes also our dividend receipts, and our record is illuminating. In 1921 the average rate earned on our funds per cent. was 6.20 per cent; in 1924, 6.38 per cent; in 1925, 6.41 per cent; in 1926, 6.69 per cent; and in 1927, if we were to use the same basis of calculation in previous years, the rate would be 6.81 per cent. We, however, do not wish to show such a high rate, and as we always make a charge of 5 per cent against our interest earnings for investment expenses, you will note that we are quoting only the net rate, 6.47 per cent, after deducting that investment expense. The falling rate of interest has no terrors for us.

"The quality of our securities may be judged by the fact that not one dollar of interest or dividend on any bond, preferred or common stock listed in our assets is in arrear for even one day.

Business Doubled in Four Years

"The position we have attained justifies enthusiasm, but we must always look on the present as a mere vantage ground from which to plan for the future. What is that future to be? Year after year we have been confidently predicting the glorious future yet to come, and that promised future is now unrolling itself before our eyes in all its greatness and strength. But what of to-day's future? I have just been reading my own remarks of two years ago, and already the figures of which we were then so proud look small and outgrown. We have doubled in size now every five and a half years since the Company began, but our last doubling has taken only four years, and we are to-day growing more rapidly than ever before in our history. I predict that the figures of two years hence will make even the figures of to-day ook small and outgrown in their turn.

Sun Life Sets Its Own Pace

"People sometimes say when speaking of our progress :—Yes, life assurance is a growing wonderful? So it is; but the Sun Life is not content to grow only at the rate of life assurance generally. Statistics now available indicate that in 1927 the aggregate new business of all Canadian companies operating in the United States exceeded the total for 1926 by only one per cent and in Canada by seven per cent, while the new business of the Sun Life of Canada shows an increase of twenty-three per cent. We set our own pace. Our prosperity and popularity, and the enthusiastic support of our six hundred thousand policyholders, makes our growth both rapid and certain. The future still before us will, I am convinced, be more wonderful than anything we can now imagine. And it is indeed a happy thought that all that growth in size and all that growth in prosperity means increased service to humanity, and service at steadily lowering cost to our policyholders."

The President closed his remarks by his reference to the need of safeguarding the future of the Company, as above quoted.

The Board of Directors of the Sun Life is composed of the following :—T. B. Macaulay, F.I.A., F.A.S., President and Managing Director; Arthur B. Wood, F.I.A., F.A.S., Vice-President and Actuary; Robert Adair, W. M. Birks, Hon. Raoul Dandurand, J. Redpath Dougall, Sir Herbert S. Holt, Abner Kingman, J. W. McConnell, C. E. Neill, Carl Riordon, John W. Ross, His Honour James C. Tory, Hon. Lorne C. Webster. Three new directors were added at the meeting—Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Ross H. McMaster and C. B. McNaught.

EXPECTANT MOTHERS

Read Mrs. Menard's Letter. Her Experience May Help

Gentbem, Ontario.—"I want to tell you how much good your medicine has done me. Before my baby came I felt so weak and rundown that I could hardly do my work. My head ached continually and I was so discouraged that I could cry from morning till night. I had another baby just one year and a half old and it gave me a lot to do. So I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as I had read so much about it in the little books. I found a difference right away as my head was relieved and my tired feelings gone. My sister had been doing my washing and she continued doing it, as she said it might set me back if I started to do it again. It sure did help me and I had taken just two bottles when my baby came. He is a fine big boy, now nearly five months old. I am taking your medicine again and I am able to do my work all by myself now. I always recommend the Vegetable Compound to women, and especially to expectant mothers, as I believe they need help at those times."—Mrs. OLIVE MENARD, 34 Harvey St., Chatham, Ontario. c

CONWAY WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The February meeting of the Conway Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. John Vanderburg. There was the average attendance, and the meeting was very interesting.

It opened in the usual way with the singing of the opening ode, followed by prayer. Roll Call was answered with "Conundrums", which helped to bring a humorous side to the meeting. Several business matters were discussed. It was decided to hold a demonstration, "Food Values and Cookery" during the summer, if enough members would promise to attend the demonstrations. It was decided to have the Ernestitown and Bay View Institutes were joining with ours for the annual meeting in June, to be held in the Masonic Hall, Bath.

After the business was concluded, Miss Edwards, A.T.C.M., gave a splendid piano number entitled, "Fintanella". Mrs. Ross Sibbald, who was the former Polish war song and their National Anthem.

Mrs. (Dr.) Northmore, of Bath, very kindly came to our meeting and gave an interesting address on the "Care of Dahlias". Mrs. Northmore is very interested in flowers herself and in the care of the dahlias especially. She certainly gave some good ideas as to how to have the best results with them, and it was brought out that the word "dahlia" has no accent on the "a" as it is thought to have by so many.

Miss Ham then played Rubinstein's much-loved "Melody in F", after which Dr. Northmore talked for a time on "Food Values". His talk was very much enjoyed, and proved to be very helpful in helping us to learn the values of the different foods.

Last, but not least, Mr. Harry Phippen recited one of Robert Service's poems, "The Reckoning", in his own inimitable manner.

The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of our National Anthem, after which a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Young.

Rich, Red Blood A Real Nerve Tonic

The Source of All Nervousness Is Weak, Watery Blood

Many people, both men and women, find themselves run down through overwork, or anxieties. Such sufferers find themselves tired, low-spirited and depressed. Their nerves seem to be worn out and they suffer from headaches and other nerve pains. All this comes from starved nerves.

Doctoring the nerves with poisonous sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of rich red blood. Therefore to relieve nervousness and run-down health Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be taken. These pills enrich the blood, which tones the nerves, improves the appetite, gives new strength and spirits and makes hitherto despondent people bright and cheerful. Miss Irene Dence, R.R. No. 1, Washago, Ont., tells what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her, as follows :—"I suffered for a long time with my nerves and a generally run-down condition. I grew so weak that I had to be in bed a part of every day. I could not do any work and was taking medicine after medicine trying one medicine after another. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and for reason be thankful that I acted on this advice, as this was the first medicine that gave me any relief. After a few boxes I noticed a short time restored me to the blessing of good health. When I think of the marvellous good these pills did me, I can most highly recommend them to all weak, nervous people."

If you are at all run-down, or weak, you should begin at once to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and you will soon be well and strong. These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ONE-CABIN STEAMERS.

Era of Moderate-Priced Accommodation for Tourists Is Here

Changes just announced in the handling of transatlantic passenger travel indicate the rapid growth in the tourist travel to Europe and forecast the era of one-cabin vessels, says the Christian Science Monitor.

Despite recent announcements of the construction of large vessels, the tendency in the shipping world is toward steamships of more moderate-priced accommodations. Four post-war ships of the Cunard and Anchor-Donaldson lines, operating between Montreal and European ports, will be devoted entirely to tourist third-cabin and straight third-class travel next season, it has just been announced, these ships being the Antonia and Andania of the Cunard and the Athenia and Letitia of the Anchor-Donaldson Line.

The move of the Cunard Line is an answer to the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company, which is building two ships of the new "Duchess" type to be devoted to the tourist traffic exclusively between European and St. Lawrence river ports.

Conversion of numerous ships now engaged in the transatlantic trade and operating from New York indicate more completely the changing standards in ocean travel. The United States Lines' steamship George Washington is to become a cabin ship, with first and second-class combined and a tourist third-cabin, making all the ships of this American-flag company cabin vessels with the exception of the Leviathan.

The White Star is changing some of its older vessels to cabin ships, including the Baltic, while its new steamship, Laurentic, is also of this type and will be used in the St. Lawrence trade next season.

After an excellent season in 1927, passenger traffic officials look forward to an even more successful year in 1928. David A. Burke, general manager of the United States Lines, said that since the war steamship business has been on the upgrade, but has not yet reached its pre-war status, due to restricted immigration.

"This loss of business, however, is being overcome by the ever-increasing demand for the popular tourist third-cabin accommodations," he said. "This type of travel, at a nominal cost, has passed the state where it is only a summer inducement to the tourists, and we have found it necessary to accommodate requests for an all-year service of this character on some of our ships."

Rates in cabin ships, Mr. Burke said, are approximately three cents a mile, which is cheaper than the cheapest sleeper alone, while the steamship lines provide meals and berths for this fare.

Despite the tendency toward cabin ships, there also is evidenced a growth trend toward still vessels capable of four and five-day transatlantic crossings.

CLINIC FOR RHEUMATISM.

Twelve Thousand Individual Patients Will Be Treated Each Year.

Clinics for the treatment of rheumatism in adults are to be established by the British Red Cross Society in thickly-populated centres throughout Britain.

The first of these clinics is to be established in London, at a cost of £40,000. For this purpose an option has been secured on a suitable building near Portland road station, Marylebone road.

Administered by a committee of management, set up by the British Red Cross Society, to which representatives of the medical profession and industrial organizations will be co-opted, the clinic will benefit two classes of patients:

(1) Those who are able and willing to pay a reasonable fee for treatment.

(2) Industrial workers who can receive treatment and continue their employment in a normal manner.

From both these sources it is hoped to make the clinic self-supporting.

Treatment will include radiation in the form of heat, light, and ultra-violet rays, and electricity in the form of constant, interrupted, and high frequency currents.

It is estimated that approximately 12,000 individual patients will be treated each year.

Travel de Luxe.

Special coaches for their Majesties the King and Queen of Afghanistan have been constructed by the Northwest Railway at a cost of about $90,000. They are of Burmese teak, with gold bronze fittings, while the tiled bathrooms have silver fittings. Every coach has electric lights, fans and heaters. The train is altogether 880 yards in length, and weighs 520 tons. It will require four engines on the mountain track between Quetta and Chaman.

The Laziest Man.

The laziest man in the world died at Lurgan, County Armagh, a few days ago. He took to bed in early manhood and decided to leave it for thirty years until, indeed, his mother who supported him, was forced to enter the workhouse. He accompanied her. The authorities said that he couldn't lose, but he stayed with them anyway until his death.

The Candle Fish.

The candle fish, found in the river mouths of the northern Pacific coast, is so named because of its extreme oiliness of flesh. The Indians convert them into candles by inserting a wick through the length of the body.

The Aviation League.

"Branches of the Aviation League of Canada are being formed in cities, and within a year we should have at least 50 branches," Major-General MacBrien, president of the League, informed the annual meeting.

Missionary Lecture.

Rev. Dr. J. Fraser Smith, formerly of Honan, N. China, will give an illustrated lecture on "China, Yesterday, To-day and To-morrow", in St. Andrew's Church, on Wednesday night, March 7th, at 7.30 o'clock, under the auspices of St. Andrew's W. M. S. Grace and Trinity Churches are uniting in this service, and all interested in this subject are cordially invited.

League Game Monday Night.

All lovers of hockey who were fortunate enough to witness the Belleville-Napanee hockey match at the Arena on Monday evening last, will be sure to avail themselves of this opportunity of seeing these two teams meet again. Belleville have got to win this one, in order to stay in the running, so the game on Monday night is sure to be well worth going to see.

Free Lecture by Prof. Roy.

Professor Roy, of Queen's University, has visited Napanee several times. He has always been popular with a Napanee audience. His Scotch sense of humor, combined with a thorough knowledge of his subject, makes him one of the most interesting lecturer available. In addition this time his lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides, and that always is an attraction in itself. Professor Roy will lecture on "Old Edinburgh", a subject with which he is intimately familiar. The lecture is open to the public. No admission is charged. The Society finances these lectures out of subscription fees, which are one dollar a year, and all who are in sympathy with the effort to bring good lecturers to the town should take out membership. Rev. A. J. Wilson, who is the Secretary, will be glad to receive fees.

HOCKEY

On Friday night, at the Napanee Arena, an interesting game of hockey will be played between Picton and Napanee. Picton have always had real good hockey teams, and in Croft the goal, they have one of the best goalies in this part of the country. Boyle and Church are on the defense, while Welsh, Burns and other junior players, will round out a real good team, that will give the locals plenty of argument.

On Monday night, March 5th, the Belleville Hockey Club will play its return game with Napanee at the Napanee Arena, and Belleville are coming down with an improved lineup, and are determined to defeat the locals on their own ice. The last game between these two clubs was one of the most interesting games of the season, and if the locals can come through with a win, they will be tied with Trenton for the leadership of the Bay of Quinte Hockey League. The boys are playing real hockey and are confident they can again defeat Belleville.

The Napanee Band will be in attendance and will furnish music between periods.

Trenton 4, Napanee 1.

Napanee suffered its first defeat of the season last Friday night, when they were defeated by Trenton by a score of 4-1. Three goals seems a big margin of victory, but it by no means indicates the play, as after the first period Napanee were a little if anything the better of the two teams. But they could not score; Bowen, in the Trenton goal, was unbeatable. In the last period it was a regular bombardment, but he was all over the goal, and he must have stopped fifty shots "dead-on" for the nets.

The game was lost as far as Napanee were concerned in the first period, when Trenton scored three goals. The locals attribute this showing to the long trip up on the bus and they did not have a long enough warming up and therefore could not find their legs. After the first period they went better and outplayed Trenton, and only the sensational work of Bowen in the Trenton goal, prevented a Napanee victory.

The game was late in starting owing to the conditions of the road and it was 9 o'clock when the game started. Trenton were not long in opening up the scoring. Very loose defense work by Napanee allowing the puck carrier to work right through, and before the period was over they had enough goals to win. In the second period Napanee forced the play and in a few minutes Naphin shot from outside and scored. They had several golden chances to score, but they couldn't beat Bowen. In the third period Napanee again forced the play trying hard to score, but Trenton broke through and scored making the game sure. In a last effort to get goals Napanee sent every man but the goaltender up on the line and had Trenton hemmed in their end of the rink. The puck would slide across in front of the goal, while shots were rained on the goal from all sorts of angles, but it was in vain. Every player on the Napanee team gave his best and it was a tough game to lose.

An Early Start.

Leonard Mellow, of Sandhurst, has the distinction of being the first wide awake poultry man to deliver his eight hundred hatching eggs to the MILLS HATCHERY, this season. He believes in having well matured birds for the annual Poultry Fair to draw the highest price, and also to have early fall layers, when the price of eggs is highest.

N. C. I. NEWS

Once again the N.C.I. Assembly Hall was filled. This time it was a musical and dramatic entertainment, on Friday evening. The annual Oratorical Contest was also held. The varied programme was under the auspices of Form IV., assisted by the Glee Club and Orchestra.

The chair was occupied by Miss Marjorie Gibbard, President of Form IV.

The Glee Club, which has been practising under Mr. C. Waite's capable leadership, gave two choruses, "The Goslings", and "Come to the Fair". These showed the talent in part singing which has been developed. The Collegiate Orchestra again upheld its reputation, playing "A Song in the Night", and "The Call of Bagdad". Mrs. C. Wilson was leading the Orchestra.

The "French Doll Dance" by Misses Margaret Walters and Mary Galbraith, and the "Irish Lilt" by Misses Helen and Jean Lancaster, Helen Drake, Marion Sills, Grace Joyce and Jean Milling, were much appreciated by everyone.

A piano solo, "The Rustles of Spring", and a duet, "I Trovatori" by Helen and Jean Lancaster, were rendered in an equally delightful fashion.

The Oratorical Contest for the W. J. Taylor Challenge Cup, and a gold medal donated annually by Mr. T. B. Wallace, was won by Mr. Munroe Beattie. Besides the winner, Mr. Presnail Gilbride and Miss Edith Mortine entered, and the judges, who were Mrs. Wagar, Mr. E. F. Corkill, I.P.S., and Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C., had a really difficult task to decide the winner. The orations were all well given. Rev. A. J. Wilson presented the cup and medal, and wished the winner luck in the District finals in Kingston.

The program was concluded by a short one-act sketch, entitled "The Bishop's Candlesticks", a scene from "Les Miserables" by Victor Hugo. This play was different from Booth Tarkington's, but was one of the best put on at the Collegiate in the last few years. The following is the cast :—

Persome—Miss Katherine Gleeson.
Marie—Miss Mae Hawley.
The Bishop—Mr. Munroe Beattie.
The Convict—Mr. Chas. Walters, Jr.
Sergeant of Gendarmes—Mr. Presten Gilbride.
Gendarmes—Messrs. W. Exley and E. Way.

Every part was exceedingly well acted and much credit is due Miss M. A. White, under whose capable direction the play was put on. Munroe Beattie proved to be an excellent Bishop, as well as an orator. Charles Walters cleverly interpreted his role as a convict, while Miss Katherine Gleeson as the Bishop's niece, certainly more than did herself justice. Those who had the minor parts played them equally well.

The opinion of many was that a better programme has never been put on at the N.C.I. and it is to be hoped that more will be put on in the future.

Spartans 35, Athenians 20.

At the end of the Literary program, the Spartans repeated last year's performance by defeating the Athenians by the margin of 35 to 20, in a game of basketball.

The Spartans were the taller team and this goes a long way in accounting the large margin in the score.

Most of the men on both teams were from the school senior team, but the first part of the game was poor ball. The Spartans had a pretty fair lead throughout the game. Both teams started the subs. In second session the Spartans ran up a fourteen point lead. The Athenians could not shoot "inside", and consequently few of their long shots touched the chains. The Spartans, however, were more accurate and few shots were missed.

Woodruff, Gilbride, Smith and Gibbard literally fed the ball to Black and he did most of the scoring. The defense worked well and it was mighty few times that the Athenians got near the basket.

The Athenians lacked defense, but Merritt filled the guard position with Asselstine admirably. Many thought that they would have stood more of a chance had they played the ball instead of the man, but no one can tell for certain.

The line-up was :—

Spartans—Centre, Black 20; Forwards, Gilbride 3, Woodruff 8, defense, Nugent (Capt.), McFadden; subs, Miller, Chapman, Smith, Gibbard 2.

Athenians—Centre, Way, (Capt.); Forwards, Vick 6, Robinson 4; Defense, Merritt 8, Asselstine; subs, Conway, Daverin 2, Kinkaid.

Referee—Mr. Beattie.

N. C. I. NEWS

K.C.I. 34; N.C.I. 31.

On Friday last a large number of students accompanied the N.C.I. Senior Girls' cage-team to Kingston to see them swamp the K.C.I. girls.

The game was very mild, and K.C.I. could hardly make the game interesting at time, and were hopelessly outclassed. The local girls did not have to extend themselves, hence the slow game.

The locals all played well, although, perhaps, Marion Douglas showed up more than anyone else. She played a stellar game. However, the rest of the team more than upheld their reputation, and gave all they needed to. It was feared the defense would be weakened since Grace Boyes is laid up with a sprained ankle, but Marion Embury, the Junior guard, filled in well. Perhaps had Grace been on, K.C.I. would not have had a look-in. The scoring was evenly divided, the locals scoring 10 in the first, 15 in the second, and 6 in the final.

Kingston had a good combination, but always lost the ball when they needed it most, that is, just before they were ready to shoot. They may lack experience or it might have been an off-night.

The line-up was:—

N.C.I.—Forwards, K. Gleeson, M. Douglas; centre, M. Grass. M. Daly; defense, E. Harrison, M., Embury; spares, M. Graham, D. Wilson, E. Aylsworth.

K.C.I.—Forwards, D. Angrove, J. Taylor; centres, E. Murray, D. Horwood; defense, L. Wilder, G. Simmons; spares, I. Craner, B. Thompson.

The local fans also saw the Varsity-Queen's Sr. Intercollegiate fixture and Varsity certainly showed smooth basketball. Queen's did their best but it would have taken some team to stop Varsity. Durrie and Mitchell are two real stars, and the game was a treat to watch. The Toronto men also defeated McGill by a good margin the following night so they deserve to win the trophy.

Albert College upset the local Intercholastic league by defeating Belleville Collegiate by 25-24. The game was real fast ball, and the highest excitement reigned throughout the scrap. It will be remembered that N.C.I. easily defeated Albert by 19-5, and defeated by Belleville by 45-22. It seems odd that Albert should turn around and defeat Belleville, and either the Albert trainer, Mr. Scott, has worked wonders with his team or else B.C.I. was so sure of victory that they couldn't recover in time to win. Both are possible since Scott has played Sr. O. A. B. A. and knows the game from top to bottom. The latter is probable too since Belleville's winning streak may have gone to their heads and a break was bound to come. However, let B.C.I. pride themselves on their steady game, so Albert may have vastly improved.

All kinds of ties and complications are possible because no one can be sure of any one team. If N.C.I. can win by their home game they should be sure to be in the finals. Albert College come down here this Friday, and the team that beats B.C.I. would be in a good drawing card. A good crowd is expected.

ERNESTTOWN

The snow and wind of Sunday have blocked the roads, making it impassable for cars again.—Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Davidson have returned to their home here, after spending the winter in Belleville. Everyone is glad to see the smiling faces restored to again.—Mrs. Herbert Laidley spent a day in Kingston, recently.—Miss Glenn, of Amherst Island, spent Wednesday evening at Claude Thompson's.— We are sorry to report that Mr. Vanalstine is quite ill at time of writing. ODESSA

The many friends of Mr. Isaac Fraser were sorry to hear that he passed peacefully away last Friday afternoon, at his late home on Ferguson Avenue, after a comparatively short illness. Everything that loving hands could accomplish was done by his daughters, Mrs. Allen and Mrs. C. W. Lucas. He was a highly respected citizen, and had reached his eighty-seventh year. He leaves to mourn his loss two sons, Almond and William, of Calgary, and three daughters, Mrs. Henry Allen and Mrs. G. W. Lucas, Odessa, and Mrs. Fred Scott, Montreal. Mrs. Fraser predeceased him less than two months ago. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon; Rev. G. McQuade officiating. The high esteem in which the deceased was held was clearly manifested in the large number of relatives and friends present at the funeral, and the beautiful floral offerings. The pall bearers were Percy Sharpe, James Boyce, H. J. Smith, S. W. Holmes, W. E. Toplift and Wesley Sharpe. The remains were placed in Morven vault, and will be interred in the family plot in Violet cemetery. The out-of-town mourners were his daughter, Mrs. Scott, Montreal, and his grandson, Percy Allen, Kingston.

The Yarker Dramatic Club staged their popular play, "Among the Breakers", in the Town Hall, on Friday night, in behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society. The attendance was large, and all were delighted with the gifted and talented artists.

Miss Myrtle Card, Moscow, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Card.

Miss Helen Sprague, of Sharp's Corners, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sprague.

Miss Code, formerly of the Continuation School staff, and now of Queen's University, was the week end guest of Mrs. Orange Babcock.

Miss Verna Benjamin, who has been spending the past winter in Watertown, has returned to her home.

The W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Amy Snider, on February 22nd, with a fair attendance of members and visitors. In the absence of the President, Miss Frankie Asselstine, the Vice President, Miss Lillian Aylsworth, took the chair. After the devotional exercises there were two choice vocal selections, Mrs. James Robertson, and Mrs. H. J. Smith and Mrs. Pearl Storms. Mrs. John Prink, Wilton, who was delegate for the Presbytery at Picton, gave a very interesting report that was very much appreciated. Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies. Mrs. H. J. Smith invited the Auxiliary for their next meeting, March 21st.

The School and Home Club, which has been formed recently in connection with the Public School, held an evening meeting in the class rooms, February 28th, and was very satisfactorily attended. The meeting was opened by the singing of "O Canada", followed by a prayer from the President, Mrs. Ralph R. Cairns. Mr. Turnham then delighted his hearers with a choice vocal solo. After the business was transacted Mr. Clarence Giddy rendered two very pleasing instrumental selections. As a climax to the evening entertainment a warmly contested debate, "Resolved that children in rural communities have more advantages than children living in the city". The affirmative was upheld by Mrs. Wm. Smith, Mrs. Lewis Snider and Mr. Walter Turnham, and after careful consideration of the arguments offered by each side, that the debate was a tie. This was followed by refreshments and a social half hour.

REIDVILLE

The storm over the week-end eclipsed all others for this winter. March has been very rough so far.—A gloom was cast over this community early on Saturday morning when the news was flashed over the wires of the death of Jean Doupe, who passed away at the General Hospital, Kingston. The funeral, which was held on Monday, was largely attended. The sympathy of the bereaved family is extended to the entire family.—Mr. A. Fingland was a business caller in town on Wednesday.—Mrs Helen Amey spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Wilson and family.—Mr. Arthur Wilson spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wilson.—Mrs. Geo. McLaren is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Merrickville.—Mr. J. Hannah spent a few days at Kingston, recently.—Mr. S. S. met at the home of Mrs. A. Fingland on Thursday, March 1st, and was well attended.

Mr. N. Reid and sister took dinner at Mr. R. J. Wilson's on Sunday.—Mrs. Harry Peters spent Wednesday with Mrs. John Lyman. — Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wagar entertained on Wednesday evening.—Mrs. R. J. Wilson entertained her Sunday School class on Wednesday evening. The class was all present, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

ENTERPRISE

We have very severe weather this week, resulting from Tuesday's storm. There are no cars running around the village now.—Nearly everyone has their wood cut and split, ready for the spring.—Mr. and Mrs. Byron Sparks and Jean took dinner at E. R. Bell's on Sunday last.—Mr. Ross Cousins and Mr. Charles Graham have installed radios this week, purchased from F. R. Wilson.—Mrs. Thos. Thompson spent Tuesday visiting Mrs. Ard. Jackson.

Mrs. Wilfred and daughter, of Verona, visited her sister, Mrs. Truman Jackson, last week.—Miss Elizabeth Mellow, nurse-in-training, Kingston, spent Sunday last with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mellow.—Mrs. Hazel Kellar returned home last week. —Mr. and Mrs. Wellesley Coulter spent Sunday last with friends in the village. —There was no Mission Band last Sunday, owing to the storm. It will meet on Sunday next, March 11th.

Disappointment is a feeling caused by being unable to find the easy to easy payments.

CAMDEN EAST

Crows have made their appearance once more in this vicinity.—The W. M. S. will hold their monthly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Black, on Wednesday, March 14th, at 2 o'clock. All ladies are cordially invited to attend.—The many friends of Rev. Mr. Anderson are very sorry to hear of his recent illness. We hope for a speedy recovery.—It is reported that Mr. Percy Scott, who is in Kingston Hospital, where he underwent a serious operation, is progressing favorably.—Mrs. F. E. McWilliam is on the sick list. We hope for a speedy recovery.—Mr. W. Hawley, of Napanee, spent the week end with his mother and brother, Earl.—Several ladies from here attended the Ladies' Aid meeting at the home of Mrs. T. Hyland, at Ernesttown, on Tuesday afternoon. — Dr. Huxtable called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Black, on Tuesday.—Mr. R. O'Neil, who has been carrying on a barber shop here, moved last week to Sydenham.—Mrs. Archie Allenbrack is in Ottawa, visiting her daughter, Lillian, who is a nurse-in-training.—Mrs. Chas. Histed spent Thursday evening with Mrs. J. Thomas.—Mrs. James Skinner returned home on Thursday of last week, after visiting for three weeks with her daughter, Mrs. E. Goodwin, at Toronto.—Mr. R. Gibbard spent Sunday afternoon and evening at Newburgh, with some friends.—Mr. Robert Longmore received the sad news on Sunday last of the death of his sister, Mrs. Dunwoody, who passed away very suddenly.—Mrs. Kenneth and Neil Delbert, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Card.

Miss Helen Sprague, of Sharp's Corners, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sprague.

Miss Code, formerly of the Continuation School staff, and now of Queen's University, was the week end guest of Mrs. Orange Babcock.

Mr. N. Reid and sister took dinner at Mr. R. J. Wilson's on Sunday.—Mrs. Harry Peters spent Wednesday with Mrs. John Lyman. — Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wagar entertained on Wednesday evening.—Mrs. R. J. Wilson entertained her Sunday School class on Wednesday evening. The class was all present, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

ENTERPRISE

We have very severe weather this week, resulting from Tuesday's storm. There are no cars running around the village now.—Nearly everyone has their wood cut and split, ready for the spring.—Mr. and Mrs. Byron Sparks and Jean took dinner at E. R. Bell's on Sunday last.—Mr. Ross Cousins and Mr. Charles Graham have installed radios this week, purchased from F. R. Wilson.—Mrs. Thos. Thompson spent Tuesday visiting Mrs. Ard. Jackson.

Mrs. Wilfred and daughter, of Verona, visited her sister, Mrs. Truman Jackson, last week.—Miss Elizabeth Mellow, nurse-in-training, Kingston, spent Sunday last with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mellow.—Mrs. Hazel Kellar returned home last week. —Mr. and Mrs. Wellesley Coulter spent Sunday last with friends in the village. —There was no Mission Band last Sunday, owing to the storm. It will meet on Sunday next, March 11th.

Disappointment is a feeling caused by being unable to find the easy to easy payments.

NEWBURGH

Mr. Roy Bray spent Monday in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carter have returned to their home, after spending the Past two months with Mr. and Mrs. Penn, Ernestown.

Miss Stella Switzer, of Kingston Business College, Sundayed at her home.

Mrs. Ross Thompson, of Napanee, spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Jaynes.

Mr. M. Vandervoort is having the interior of his store remodelled to meet the demands of his ever-increasing trade.

Quarterly services will be held this week in the Mission Hall; service on Sunday morning at 9.30, and Sunday evening at 7.30. Rev. E. J. Lee, Kingston, and the Pastor, Rev. Mr. Linstead, will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunwoody received word on Saturday night of the sudden death of Mrs. Dunwoody's sister, in Deseronto. They attended the funeral on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Switzer visited on Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paul.

Rev. and Mrs. Linstead visited at Mr. John Walroth, on Wednesday, when Yeoman spent Monday in Kingston.

Misses Gladys Slade and Maud Wagar, nurses-in-training at Kingston General Hospital, called on their parents the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Fitchett, Mrs. Nettie Sager, Mrs. James Dawson, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dewitt, Deseronto, were in attendance at the funeral of Mrs. Rhoda Sager, on Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Orison Benn, of Sillsville, visited at Mr. Bowerman's, over Sunday.

On Tuesday evening the Rev. Principal Kent, of Queen's Theological College, gave a lecture on "The Spade and the Bible in Palestine", illustrated with forty lantern views. This lecture is one of a series of University extension lectures which the Villages so near to Queen's at Kingston would do well to avail themselves of the advantages and privileges. Everybody was interested and delighted. We hope to have the Principal again soon and can assure him and his colleagues, if they come of a hearty welcome.

Mrs. Wm. Wilde has been visiting a few days with her sister) Mrs. T. I. Winters.

Everybody regrets the removal of Mr. Ross Anderson from the Village of Newburgh. During the several years that Mr. Anderson has been manager of this branch of the Standard Bank he has won for himself a host of friends, by his geniality and sterling qualities of promptness and faithfulness to customers to business for the bank and its patrons. We hope at Killaloe, to which he has been transferred, Mr. Anderson will find congenial friends.

On Monday, 5th inst., the Mission Circle held its February meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gerow. A large attendance and a fine meeting is reported.

Dr. W. W. Read, Superintendent of the United Church Hospital in Pine, Man., has said: "It is fortunate that there are organizations in Canada which realize that our duty is not finished when we get in immigrants and put them in a rotten district. It is not done until we make the newcomers realize that Canada is satisfied only when their physical, moral, and mental needs are supplied. In this and other church hospitals we have a great example of that ideal of "service to others" which is the ideal of all better Canadians. As an example of the work done: They had two very bad fracture cases in one month and one in another, and these cases had to go to Winnipeg for treatment, it just happened that it would have been forty-eight hours from the time of their accident till they could have been attended to. As it was they were all fixed up within five hours, and had been days in pain, with a good, if not a better result due to the short time from the breaking of the bone to the setting. A little Ukrainian girl had double pneumonia and a temperature of 105.6 when brought in. She is a daughter of a section foreman of the C. N. R. at Vita, a great friend of the hospital. For nine days the doctor was doubtful of pulling her through, but then she took a turn for the better and came through with colors flying."

LENS

Sunday's storm was the worst of the season, and all our roads were badly blocked.—The funeral of little Jean Doupe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Doupe, was held on Monday, in Enon Church, and was largely attended. Much sympathy is extended to parents and family in their sad bereavement.—The W. M. S. held their monthly meeting at Mrs. A. T. Fingland's.—Miss Helen Amey spent a few days visiting with Mrs. R. J. Wilson.—Mr. Alex. Hart sawed sixty-cords of wood at A. T. Fingland's in three hours, and thirty loads of sleigh lengths at Dave Keech's, in seven hours, which we believe would measure when piled seventy-five cords.—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Milligan visited George Hyland on Monday last.—Mr. Nath Reid and sister, Elizabeth, spent Sunday with R. J. Wilson.—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McLean spent an evening recently at Mrs. Wilson Hyland's.—Mrs. R. J. Wilson gave a grand party to her Sunday School class on Wednesday evening last. A very enjoyable time was spent playing games. At 10.30 a dainty lunch was served, after which all returned to their homes well pleased with their evening's entertainment. — Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hannah spent Saturday in Kingston.—Mr. Hugh Fingland spent the week end at Tamworth.

REVIEW OF THE LEGISLATURE.

The session of the Legislature may be said to have reached its "peak" of interest and importance, possibly, this week, in view of the fact that the address debate was concluded, the budget brought down, first report of the Liquor Control Board tabled, and two divisions held in the House. Debate on the budget commences Tuesday, with R. F. Miller, of Haldimand, Liberal financial critic, leading off. Adjournment before Easter is still in prospect.

* * * * *

On Tuesday the House disposed of Frank W. Wilson's resolution for legislation at this session permitting sale of beer by the glass, under the local option plan. The member for Windsor East made quite an able presentation of his case, as the Prime Minister later commented, but Hon. Mr. Ferguson made it clear that the Control Act could not yet be considered to have had a fair trial, and that the government's attitude toward the resolution, and Mr. Wilson still demanding a poll of the House, his motion was snowed under, 92 to 4. Besides the mover and his seconder, W. G. Weichel, of North Waterloo, only T. Legault and E. Proulx, Liberal members for Sturgeon Falls and Prescott, voted for the beer resolution.

Unlike last session, there was a division on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, due to the fact that Mr. E. R. Birchall, Liberal Leader, had proposed an amendment calling for old age pension legislation at this session. Premier Ferguson pointed out in closing the debate that a survey of the situation in the province was absolutely essential; the government would not be rushed into a project involving expenditure of millions without knowing where it was going. He remarked also that Ottawa, with a Progressive government, had declined to be stampeded on the issue. He expressed hope, however, that before next session some progress would be made toward finding a sane and sound plan. The House thereupon voted 68 to 27 in favor of the government sub-amendment expressing satisfaction at announcement that it might be being taken to gather information regarding the better care of our dependent and aged population, so that the people of the province may have a proper understanding of this great problem and of the financial obligations to be assumed by them under a plan of old age pensions, framed to meet the needs of the province and receive the approval of the Legislature. The U. F. O. members voting with the Opposition, it was a straight party vote, in which the government had a majority of 41. It is understood that arrangements for the proper land survey will be made soon after the Session closes.

* * * * *

The deadlock in the Privileges and Elections Committee, over the South Ottawa ballot incident, arising from allegation would be turned over to a judicial body, composed of Mr. Justice Logie and Mr. Justice Hodgins, of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. The Prime Minister said that strong party feeling had quite evidently developed in the committee, and preferred the matter should be taken to and be searched which would be acceptable to the House and the public. He did not think such a proposition ment to be made as would leave the impression that it was the result only of a party majority in the committee. Their lordships may get to work next week, and till no doubt have a report before the session closes. Meantime, there is a general impression that the matter, as one member said, is a bit of fuss over nothing, and the only solution of the government's declared heard is that it is much like killing a fly with a sledge hammer.

* * * * *

First report of the Liquor Control Board has been brought down, covering 64 course, operations only to end of the fiscal year, October 31st last, a period of five months. Total sales of $17,333,000, were divided as follows: Store sales, wine and spirits and other beverages, $11,942,000; beer, $4,762; beer sales by breweries and warehouses, $5,122,000; warehouse sales to hospitals, $22,228. The Board is pleased, by speaking, is satisfied with the actions of distilleries, wine producers and brewers in connection with the law. It is noted that a stand has been taken against indiscriminate establishment of clubs along the international boundary, and no permits for use of beer or wines at banquets have been issued by way of general conclusion, the commissioners, after expressing appreciation of public co-operation, say, "It must by any means claimed that perfect liquor has been attained but the Board does believe that many good results have been achieved—notably, a marked cutting down of the bootlegging evil; a lessening of youthful temptation to break prohibitory laws; the bringing about of greater respect for all law; a decrease if not an elimination of the making of homebrew; and, it is hoped, a real stimulation to temperance in all things by education and home training rather than by prohibiting which does not prohibit. Recent rumours of the forthcoming resignation of Chairman Hanna and Commissioner Manion have been denied.

* * * * *

Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, delivered on Tuesday, a noteworthy review of the whole situation in regard to operation of the Control Act, and quoted copious statistics proving that infractions of the law had been decreased, as compared with conditions under the O.T.A. With continued cooperation of the public, he said, there would undoubtedly be further improvement. The Government is, by intent upon enforcing the new law, the Minister pointed out, but deprecates the attitude of former supporters of the O.T.A. who seek to put the present measure in a bad light. "It should be the right thing," he said, "for all our citizens to be anxious to see this Act a success, not because it happens to be the policy of the Government, but because we want to have law-abiding citizens, people drinking less, and we want to control what they do drink. You can do a great deal by moral suasion and the Government desires to have behind the Act the great body of public opinion." He announced that the Control Board was paying into the treasury $2,800,000 from profits in the first five months of operation.

* * * * *

The provincial treasurer has budgeted for receipts of $7,000,000 from the Control Act in the present fiscal year. Hon. J. D. Monteith, in his budget speech on Thursday, made an unworthy presentation of the finances of the province, announcing not only a balanced budget but a surplus of $350,000, in addition to $3,000,000 paid off his debt. In the present year a similar amount will be applied to the debt, and a surplus of $177,000 is estimated. Relief from taxation, directly and indirectly, in the past fiscal year, the treasurer placed at over $5,000,000. Ordinary revenue, $56,206,000 was the highest in the history of the province. Revenue for the present fiscal year is estimated at $55,790,000, and expenditure reduced accordingly to $55,613,000.

"The Treasury of this province, under the present Administration," he said in conclusion, "is no special prop for any particular class or section; it is the financial bulwark of the entire province. The trinity of financial virtues—patience, prudence and perseverance—has affixed to the Ferguson regime another record year of outstanding achievement. Supremacy of the law and the interest of the people are the Magna Charta of the British Constitution. Efficiency, economical, honest and businesslike administration are the Magna Charta of Ontario's finances. There are no secrets or tricks in our financing, and it is based on strict adherence to the financial laws. Sound administration over a period of four years has restored Ontario to the happy financial position the new enjoys."

REGISTERED COCKERELS — AN ASSET IN FREEDING FOR HIGHER EGG YIELDS

(Experimental Farms Note)

Success in breeding for increased egg production depends, to a very large extent, on the selection of the proper male. Breed character, constitutional vigour, male characteristics and proper development are all very necessary when making this selection, but the most important factor of all is the breeding of the sire himself. He must be bred from a high producing dam and also from a sire which has blood lines concentrated to high egg production parents on both sides. These are the important factors to be found in registered cockerels.

What then is a registered cockerel? What guarantee has the breeder as to the bird's breeding?

A registered cockerel is the son and grandson of registered females, both of which have laid 200 eggs or over in one of the Canadian National Egg Laying Contests. As no female is eligible for registration unless her eggs average 24 ounces to the dozen during the contest year, and as registered cockerels can be bred only from daughters of registered hens which have themselves qualified, these male birds have at least two successive generations of 24 ounce eggs or better, as well as 200 eggs or better for an annual production. There are two very desirable characteristics.

On the sire side the greatest care is exercised in selection. The sire is mated to head a pen of registered females is usually a tried and proven cock bird, a bird that has produced daughters the previous year which have laid well over 200 eggs in their pullet year, and which consistently produced large eggs. It can be seen, therefore, that these registered cockerels possess breeding of the very choicest quality.

The guarantee of breeding that goes with each registered cockerel is the Registration Certificate which is the seal of the Canadian Department of Agriculture, and is the highest mark of quality given birds by any Government. The services of qualified men for registration of poultry is the Canadian National Egg Laying Contest. The work of inspection of registered matings, the banding of chicks the product of such matings, and the recording, approving and marking of each registered cockerel after he is six months old is carried on by Department of Agriculture officials who assist in making this guarantee authentic.

No other system of recording production and following up the work of scientific breeding of poultry is so carefully handled as that known as Canada National Poultry Registration Policy.

Scarlet Fever Left Her With Kidney Trouble

Nova Scotia Lady Highly Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. E. Young Suffered Untold Agony From Her Kidneys

Halifax, N.S., March 8th, (Special) —"I can truly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from kidney troubles," writes Mrs. E. Young, who lives at 101 Barrington Street. "When I was a girl of fourteen I was stricken with scarlet fever. On recovering it left me with kidney trouble. I suffered with untold agony. Doctors' medicine was of no avail. I could not walk. A neighbour said 'Why not try Dodd's Kidney Pills?' My sufferings were soon at an end, and I took three boxes. I found relief and have not been troubled since. Any one who suffer with their kidneys as I did should use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I always recommend them when I hear of anyone suffering from pain in the back caused from kidney trouble."

There is no reason why anyone should continue to suffer when Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from druggists everywhere, or The Dodds Medicine Co., Ltd., Toronto, 2.

ERNESTOWN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Mild weather and splendid sleighdriving acted as wonderful incentives to visit that ever popular event, the monthly gathering of the Ernestown Women's Institute. Mrs. Thomas Creighton lent her delightful home for the occasion, and her charming personality added greatly to the cuseess of the meeting. In the regrettable absence of our popular president, Mrs. Fred Hamm, Mrs. Andrew Miller, the Vice President, ably filled the chair. The roll call was answered by a use for apples.

Business being dispensed with, it was decided to hold a Euchre, Drive and Dance, in the Masons' Hall, Bath, the following week. Mrs. A. E. Sharpe next demonstrated the making of "Patience candy, which, in the words of Sullivan's opera by the same name, was "highly delectable, and distinctly recorish". Mrs. Adelaide Stevens, of Pretts of the Maple Leaf branch, honored the meeting by their presence and delighted the members with their singing. Mrs. Priest read an extract from the Farmers Advocate, entitled "Canadian Coal for Canadian Women, showing how the National Council of Women are investigating this burning topic of the day. Refreshments and the social hour made a pleasant climax to another successful meeting and one felt in the lines of the opening ode:—

"A goodly thing it is to meet
In friendship's circle bright."

It is hoped the March roll call, "What would you do with a million dollars?" will meet with a ready response. Don't forget a towel for the towel contest.

EASTERN CANADA GARDENING SERVICE

Growing Plants Indoors.

One can get the garden off to an early start and also grow those tender plants which require a longer season than our climate allows, by starting many flowers and vegetables indoors. Supplies for the window box or hanging basket can also be produced in this way. Among the flowers zinnias, petunias, cosmos, marigolds, in fact practically anything except annuals which do not transplant readily, can be started under glass in March or April, and will benefit from being moved around a few times before they are placed in their permanent locations in the vegetable line, tomatoes, cabbage, head lettuce, cucumbers, melons, and even a few early beets, carrots, and corn can be planted. A box a couple of inches deep with holes bored in the bottom for drainage and filled with sand mixed with a little loam, makes the best material for indoor planting. If such material is not available, the nearest greenhouse man will be able to supply some. Moisten the earth, then mark off the rows, which need only be an inch apart, sow the seed and cover the box tightly with a piece of packing or burlap. This covering will hasten germination, and prevent the seeds from being washed out. It should be put on the plants potted in a dark, warm cellar, and after they have pushed up through the soil, remove the covering and place them in full sunlight, at least a foot away from the glass, if it is single, or closer if a storm window has been provided. Make sure that they are protected on nights when the thermometer registers down to 40°.

Where a large quantity of plants is desired, it is advisable to provide a hot bed. This is simply a glass-protected bed placed on a pile of horse manure, which should be fresh, at least eighteen inches deep. The bed should face the South with the glass sloping a few inches that way, so that water will run off, and the sun rays caught fully, and should not be planted until the manure is heated up and cooled down again to about seventy degrees. In cold weather, water very sparingly, and only on bright days. Ventilate a little by raising the sash, and keep this open longer as the weather gets warmer. Plants grown in a hot bed should be transplanted to a cold frame, that is a glass protected bed without the heating manure underneath, where they are hardened off before transplanted outdoors.

Can Place No Value on a Garden

There will always be many critics who will maintain that, if the labour involved in gardening was valued at so much an hour, it would be cheaper to buy vegetables than grow them. Such a calculation, however, neglects to take into consideration the exercise and recreation derived from the growing of vegetables and flowers upon which no proper value can be placed. No money could purchase the quality of vegetables grown within a few yards of the kitchen door, picked fresh picked from the beds at the door.

Best Vegetable Varieties.

The following list of vegetables, suitable for planting in Eastern Canada, is recommended by the Government authorities at Ottawa: Asparagus, Washington, satisfactory from the standpoint of disease resistance and a good cropper. Beans, Pencil Pod Wax, Round Pod Kidney Wax. Stringless Green Pod with Kentucky Wonder Green Pod and Early Wonder Golden Pod as pole sorts. Beets, Flat Egyptian Early and Detroit Dark Red later. Cabbage, Golden Acre, as a round-headed first early, followed by Copenhagen Market and Enkhuizen Glory as mid-season, with short stem Danish Ballhead for winter storage. Cauliflower, Early Snowball and Early Dwarf Erfurt. Carrots, Chantenay and Danvers. Corn, Extra Early Cory, Golden Bantam and for later use, Stewell's Evergreen. Cucumbers, Perfection. Celery, Golden Plume and Paris Golden Lettuce, Grand Rapids, Nonpareil, and Iceberg. Muskmelons, Hearts of Gold or Hoodo, Miller's Cream or Osage, Bender Surprise and Emerald Gem. Onion, Yellow Globe Danvers, Prize Taker Yellow Globe, Red Globe. Peas, Thomas Laxton, Blue Bantam, Hunderfold, Stratagem, Parsnip, Hollow Crown. Radish, Scarlet Turnip, White Tip, French breakfast. Spinach, Bloomsdale and New Zealand. Squash, Hubbard for mid-season early, followed by Earliana with John Baer and Bonny Best as the main crop. Tomato, Earliana for the first early, followed by Bonny Best as the main crop, and for later varieties. Vegetables to have the highest quality must be grown quickly. To get this result, there must be thorough soil preparation and after seeding and a quickly available fertilizer, such as nitrate of soda, should be applied every two weeks during the early part of the season. The easiest way to apply this is to dissolve about a tablespoonful in a gallon and scak the ground about the plants with a watering can.

Address and Presentation

About twenty-five relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cook gathered at their home, 81 John St., Oshawa, and gave them a surprise, on the evening of February 24th, which marked the 20th anniversary of their wedded life. Cards were played until just before lunch, when the bride and groom of nine years ago were called to the centre of the room, and the following address was read by Mr. A. Hagerman:—

Dear Archie and Lillie,—We, your friends, have gathered here to-night, on the evening of your ninth anniversary. We feel we could not let this occasion pass without showing some token of esteem for you. We have to go journey to Toronto to-morrow, that is until next Friday morning, and of the good time you had nine years ago. Our thoughts also go with you. As a little remembrance of the day we ask you to accept this electric iron. Each Tuesday morning as you use it we hope it will remind you of your friends in Oshawa. Archie, please accept this scarf as a token of friendship.

Wishing you many more happy years of married life.

Signed on behalf of the friends,
MRS. CROUSE.
MRS. HAGERMAN.
MRS. GRAY.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook, although taken by surprise, thanked their friends for remembering them on the occasion of their anniversary.

CHAPTER III.

The Caribou Carnival.

THE education of the little Melisse began at once, while the post was still deserted. It began, first of all, with Alcibiella. She stared dumbly and with shattered faith at these two creatures who told her of wonderful things in the upbring of a child—things of which she had never so much as heard rumor before. Her mother instincts were aroused, but with Cree stoicism she made no betrayal of them.

The leather tanned immobility of her face underwent no whit of change when Cummins solemnly declared that the little Melisse was about to begin teething. She sat grimly and watched them in silence when between them upon a bearskin stretched on the floor they lined vainly to persuade Melisse to use her feet.

Weeks passed and Williams came in from the southern forests. Mukee followed him from the edge of the Barrens. Old Pe-ee, partly Eskimo, reached from the Eskimo people, three-quarters starved and with half of his dogs stolen. From the north, east, west and south the post's fur rangers trailed back. Life was resumed. There was a softness in the air, a growing warmth in the midday sun. The days of the big change were near. And when they came, John Cummins and Jan Thoreau, of all the factor's people, wore patches at their knees.

One afternoon in the beginning of the ninth snow a long team of rakish malemutes, driven by an Athabasca French-Canadian, raced wildly into the clearing about the post. The entire post hushed out to meet the newcomer. He was Jean de Gravois, the most important man in the Fond du Lac country, for whose goodwill the company paid a small bonus. That he had made a record catch even the children knew by the size of the packs on his sledge and by the swagger in his walk.

Gravois was usually one of the last to appear at the annual gathering of the wilderness fur gatherers. He was a big man in reputation as he was small in stature. He was one of the few of his kind who had developed personal vanity along with unerring cunning in the ways of the wild. Everybody liked Gravois, for he had a big soul in him and was as fearless as a lynx, and he liked everybody, including himself.

He explained his early arrival by announcing in a nonchalant manner that after he had given his malemutes a day's rest he was going on to Fort Churchill to bring back a wife. He hinted with a punctuating crack of his whip that he would make a second visit and a more interesting one at just about the time when the trappers were there in force.

Jan Thoreau listened to him, bunching his shoulders a little at the other's manifest air of importance. In turn the French Canadian scrutinized Jan good naturedly.

Every hour after the half breed's arrival quickened the pulse of expectancy at the post. For six months it had been a small and solitary unit of life in the heart of a big desolation. The first snow had smothered it in a loneliness that was almost the loneliness of desertion. With that first snow began the harvest days of the trappers.

Now the change was at hand. It was like the breath of spring to the awakening wilderness. The forest people were moving. Trap lines were being broken, shacks abandoned, sledge dogs put to harness. On the day that Jean de Gravois left for Hudson bay the company's supplies came in from Fort Churchill—seven toboggans drawn by Eskimo dogs laden with flour and cloth, fifty pounds of beads, ammunition and a hundred other things, to be exchanged for the furs that would soon be in London and Paris.

Fearfully Jan Thoreau ran out to meet the sledges. There were seven Indians and one white man. Jan thrust himself close to look at the white man. He wore two revolver holsters and carried an automatic. Unquestionably he was not a missionary, but an agent of the company, well prepared to care for the company's treasure.

Jan hurried back to the cabin, his heart bubbling with a strange joy.

"There ees no missioner, Melisse," he cried triumphantly, dropping beside her, his face glowing with the gladness of his tidings. "You shall be good and beautiful, ma her, but you shall not be baptize by missioner! He has not come!"

A few minutes later Cummins came in. One of his hands was torn and bleeding.

"These Eskimo dogs are demons!" he growled. "If they knew how to stand on their legs they'd eat our hides alive. Will you help me with this?"

Jan was at work in an instant bandaging the wounded hand.

"It ees not deep," he said, and then, without looking up, he added. "The missioner did not come."

"No," said Cummins shortly. "Yet ther has the mail. He is with that"

He did not notice the sudden tremble of Jan's fingers, nor did he see the startled look that shot into the boy's down turned eyes. Jan finished his bandaging without betraying his emotion and went back with Cummins to the company's store.

The next morning two Chippewayans trailed in with a team of mongrel curs from the south. Thereafter Cummins found but little time to devote to Melisse. The snow was softening rapidly, and the daily increasing warmth of the sun hastened the movement of the trappers. Mukee's people from the western Barren lands arrived first, bringing with them great loads of musk ox and caribou skins and an army of big footed, long legged Mackenzie hounds that pulled like horses and wailed like whipped puppies when the huskies and Eskimo dogs set upon them.

From east and west and south all trails now led to the post. By the end of the third day after the arrival of the company's supplies a babel of fighting, yelling, ceaselessly moving Discord had driven forth the peace and quiet in which Cummins' wife had died. The fighting and discord were among the dogs, and the yelling was a necessary human accompaniment. Half a hundred packs, almost as wild and as savage as the wolves from whom half of them possessed a strong inheritance of blood, were thrown suddenly into warring confusion.

There was no cessation in the battle of the fangs. Half a dozen battles were fought to the death each day and night. Those that died were chiefly the south bred curs—mixtures of mastiff, Great Dane and sheep dogs—and the fatally slow Mackenzie hounds.

Yet beyond all this discord and bloody strife there was a great, throbbing human happiness—a beating of honest hearts filled to overflowing with the joys of the moment, a weiling of new friendships, a renewal of old ones, a closer union of the brotherhood that binds together all things under the cold gray of the northern skies. There were no bickerings among the hunters.

These were days of unprecedented prosperity and triumph for the baby, as they were for the company. The cabin was half filled with strange things, for all went to look upon the little Melisse and gave something to her. There were polar bears' teeth, brought down by the little black men who in turn had got them from the coast people; strange gods carved from wood, bits of fur, bushy foxtails, lynx paws, dried fruits, candy bought at fabulous prices in the store and musk —always and incessantly musk—from Mukee's people of the West Barrens.

Jan had og played upon his violin since the coming of Jean de Gravois, but one evening he tuned his strings and said to Melisse:

"They have been good to you, my Melisse. I will give them te museek of se violon."

It was the big night at the post—the night that is known from Athabasca to Hudson bay as the night of the caribou roast. A week had passed, and there were no more ...e to be disposed of. In the company's ledger each man had received his credit, and in the company's store the furs were piled high and safe. Three caribou had been killed by Pe-ee and his hunters, and on this night, when Jan took down his violin from its peg on the wall, a huge fire blazed in the open, and on spits six inches in diameter the caribou were roasting.

The air was filled with the sound and odor of the carnival. Above the fighting and snarling of dogs the forest people lifted their voices in wild celebration, forgetting in this one holiday of the year the silence that they would carry back into the solitudes with them. Shrill voices rose in meaningless cries above the roaring of the fire. Caribou whips snapped fiercely. Chippewayans, Crees, Eskimos and breeds crowded in the red glare. The factor's men shouted and sang like mad, for this was the company's annual "good time"—the show that would lure many of these same men back again at the end of another trapping season.

Huge boxes of white bread were placed near to the fire. A tub of real butter, brought 5,000 miles from across the sea for the occasion, was set on a gun case thrown where the heat played upon it to yellow glory. In a giant copper kettle, over a smaller fire, bubbled and steamed half a barrel of coffee.

The richness of the odors that drifted in the air set the dogs gathering upon their haunches beyond the waiting circle of masters, their lips dripping, their fangs snapping in an eagerness that was not for the flesh of battle. And above it all there gleamed down a million stars from out of the skies and the aurora flung its banners through the pale night.

Seated upon the edge of one of the bread boxes, Jan began to play. It was not the low, sweet music of Cummins and the little Melisse that he played now, but a wild, wailing song that he had found in the autumn winds. It hung above the crackling fire and the tumult of man and dog in a weird and savage beauty that hushed all sound, and life about him became like life struck suddenly dead. After a while his violin sang a lower song, and sweeter, and still softer it became, and more sweet, until he was playing that which he loved most of all—the music that had filled the little cabin when Cummins' wife died.

As he continued to play there came an interruption to the silence—a low refrain that was almost like that of the moaning wind. It grew beyond the tense circle of men, until a song of infinite sadness rose from the throats of a hundred dogs in response to Jan Thoreau's violin.

Cummins saw the surrounding circles become thinner as man crushed closer to man, and he saw strained faces turned from the player to where the dogs sat full throated upon their haunches, with their heads pointed straight to the stars in the sky.

"For the love of heaven, play no more of that!" he cried in the boy's ear. "Play something fast."

Jan lifted his head as if from a dream. In an instant he perceived the strange effect of his music, and his bow raced across the strings of his violin in a rhythm swift and buoyant. His voice rising shrill and clear in words familiar to them all:

"Oh, se caribou-oo-oo, Se caribou-oo-oo-oo,
His roa' on high,
Jes' under se sky,
Ze tree whits caribou-oo-oo!

"Oh, se caribou-oo-oo, se caribou-oo-oo,
He brown an' juic' an' sweet!
Ze caribou-oo-oo be ver' polite—
His roa' on high,
Jes' under se sky,
He ready now to come an' eat!"

With yells that rose above the last words of the song Mukee and his Crees tugged at their poles, and the roasted caribou fell upon the snow. Jan drew back and, with his violin hugged on one arm, watched the wild revelers as, with bared knives flashing in the firelight, they crowded to the feast. Williams, the factor, joined him.

"Looks like a fight, doesn't it, Jan? Once I saw a fight at a caribou roast."

"So did I," said Jan, who had not taken his eyes from the jostling crowd.

"It was far to the west and north," continued Williams, "beyond the Great Slave country."

"Far beyond," said Jan, lifting his eyes quietly. "It was ver' near to ze Great Bear. Zee who ven fight at ze

Great bear.

The factor was silent, and the muscles of his arms grew like steel as he saw the madness in Jan's face. Suddenly he reached out and gripped the boy's wrists. Jan made no effort to evade the clutch.

"For who you fight?" he cried again. "For who you fight at ze Great Bear?"

"We tried to kill a man, but he got away," said Williams, speaking so low that only Jan heard. "He was"— The factor stopped.

"Ze missioner!" panted Jan.

The wild light went out of his eyes as he stared up at Williams, and the softer glow which came into them loosened at once the factor's grip on the boy's wrists.

"Yes, the missioner."

Jan drew back. He evaded meeting the eyes of Cummins as he made his way among the men. There was a new burst of song as Mukee and his Crees pulled down a second caribou, but the boy paid no attention to the fresh excitement. He thrust his knife into its sheath and ran—ran swiftly through the packs of dogs fighting and snarling over the scraps that had been thrown to them, past Mukella, who was watching the savage banquet around the big fire, and into the little cabin to Melisse.

Here he flung himself upon his knees, and for the first time he caught the baby in his arms, holding her close to him and rocking her to and fro as he cried out sobbingly the words which she did not understand.

"An' when I fin' been an' kill beem I will come back to you, my angel Melisse," he whispered. "And then you will let Jan Thoreau for letting out the blood of a missioner!"

He put her back into the little bed, kissed her again and turned to the door.

For a few moments Jan stood with his back to Melisse and his eyes upon the carnival about a great fire. As he looked the third caribou was pulled down from its spit, and the multitude of dogs rushed in upon the abandoned carcasses of the other two.

He caught his breath quickly as a loud shout and the wailing yelp of a hurt dog rose for an instant above all other sounds. Only one thing was wanting to complete another picture in his brain—a scene which had burned itself into his life forever and which he strove to fight back as he stood staring from the doorway. He half expected it to come—the shrill scream of a boyish voice, an instant's sullen quiet, then the low throated thunder of impending vengeance—and the fight.

With marvelous quickness his excited mind reconstructed the scene before him into the scene that had been. He heard the scream again, which had been his voice, saw as if in a dream the frenzied rush of men and the flash of knives, and then from where he lay, trampled and bleeding in the snow, the long, lean team of swift huskies that had carried in mad fight the one whose life those knives sought.

Williams had been there; he had seen the fight—his knife had flashed with the others in its demand for life. And yet he—Jan Thoreau—had not been recognized by the factor out there beside the caribou roast!

He hurried toward the fire. Halfway across the open he stopped. From out of the forest opposite Cummins' cabin there trailed slowly a team of dogs. In the shadows of the spruce, hidden from the revelers, the team halted. Jan heard the low voices of men, and a figure detached itself from the gloom, walking slowly and in the manner of one near to exhaustion in the direction of the carnival.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Wife and Mother, who passed away March 7th, 1927.

God knew that you were suffering.
He knew your were in pain;
He knew that you would never get better
In this world again.
God saw the road was getting rough.
The hills were hard to climb;
So He closed your weary eyelids,
And whispered "Peace to thine."
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see a smile,
But they little know the heart ache
That the smile hides all the while.
Sadly missed by Husband and Children.

New Modes for Spring are on Display at C. D. S. L.

"Millinery for Spring"

For this Spring season it's the "Brim" that makes the difference Fashion has slashed it, rolled it, or tucked it under in ways never witnessed before. It is conspicuous on many hats by its absence entirely. By their brims you will know the hats of Spring, 1928, and by their delicate feminine touches that's been missing for many seasons. You will find much to interest you in our present assemblage of Spring and Easter hats. Canada's leading milliners have contributed their outstanding successes. Most of them are direct copies, others are adaptations of New York and Paris creations. Presented in a delightful range of new pastel colorings, also stressing Red, Navy, and Black.

INDIVIDUAL SPRING HATS FOR MATRONS

These hats possess lines and are created from materials that successfully and artistically grace older faces. They are especially designed by especially trained artists, hence nothing has been overlooked in appropriate styling. Medium and large headsizes are obtainable. Black is the prevailing color. Priced from $3.95 to $10.50.

Wool Jersey and Wool Crepe Again Fashion These Delightful All Occasion Frocks

Frocks that successfully baffle chilly spring winds, frocks so comfortable and colorful under lighter weight coats, frocks so appropriate for sporting or business-like engagements. Styled in one and two-piece effects, with trimmings that run to geometric panels, to tucks and pleats, to button trimmings. Several two-toned blending color combinations are obtainable. You'll find these inexpensive frocks so useful that you will want at least a couple in your spring wardrobe. In a full range of new colors.

Priced $13.95 to $17.95.

A HUGE DEVELOPMENT

Statements of the improving trend of business conditions through 1927 are well supported by the fact, pointed out in the annual report of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, of a net gain during the year of 38,222 telephones. On December 31st last, there were 688,383 Bell Telephones in service in Ontario and Quebec.

The importance of this development is appreciated when, adding to this number the 120,581 telephones operated in the two provinces by independent companies which connect with Bell exchanges, it becomes apparent that the total of 801,964 telephones given in Ontario and Quebec a notable status as regards this vital service. In comparison, the European countries of France, Roumania and Portugal combined had 799,909 telephones in service at the beginning of 1926.

CAMDEN EAST WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Camden East Women's Institute held the February meeting at Mrs. Boulton's, on the 23rd, with fifteen members present.

Mrs. A. Huffman, the District President, was with us and presided over the meeting. In opening the meeting she spoke a few well chosen and meaningful words on "The Ode", which if lived up to should dispel all unfriendliness, gossipping and envy and tend toward the ideal community spirit where "each shall seek the common weal, the good of all mankind".

The answers to roll call were interesting and should prove very helpful to the committee in charge of programmes.

An invitation from Yarker Institute asking us to join them in the "summer series" was read and accepted, and we shall try to have a large number present at the meeting.

The Flower Fund was discussed, planned and decided upon.

A motion was then put that we make a donation to Camden East Public Library. This met with the approval of a large majority, and $15.00 was voted to aid the library in purchasing new books.

The village street lights came next for our consideration, and it was decided to give them some assistance in the coming year. In order to avoid confusion and so each light should benefit, the sum of one dollar for each light was voted. This to come into effect at the beginning of the light's financial year, which is also the time our Institute year begins.

Mrs. Huffman gave an instructive talk on Institute standards and the electing of officers in Branch, District, and Federated Institutes. This was followed by the voting of five dollars for our Federated dues. In the course of the address, mention was made of the misunderstanding which invariably cropped up in the community where an Institute was organized. All eyes and ears naturally turn to the new group, and those ready to find fault never fail to do so. But as the speaker said "if each puts the claims of her Church first and gives the Institute second place in her thoughts and work, no harm will come to the Church, and much good will be accomplished by the Institute also". It certainly never has been our aim to work against any church, but rather to comb the ground over after the church and take up the work they have not touched upon. The Institutes early in their work determined that anything of a controversial, partisan, racial, or sectarian character should be kept out of the Institutes, and it is the ideal of each Branch to live up to that standard.

Since our last report our Dramatic Group presented their play, "Deacon Dubbs", in Bath and Yarker. They had a large and appreciative audience in each place, and the financial results were very gratifying.

The March meeting will be at the home of Mrs. A. H. Robinson. Remember our meetings are held on the last Thursday of each month.

LAPUM

We are having real winter weather at time of writing and the roads are not in very good condition.—Mr. and Mrs. James Huff and Mrs. Love have returned home, having spent the past week with friends at Glenhaven.—Miss Helen Gates, of Westbrook, spent a week recently with her cousin, Mrs. Maitland Boulton.—A number from here attended the Lenten services in the Parish Hall at Camden East, on Thursday evening.—The young people of this community were invited to a social evening by the young people of Odessa. All report a pleasant evening. —Mrs. Hilton Robinson spent the past week with friends in Kingston. — Mrs. Albert Reid spent a day recently in Napanee, accompanied by Mrs. M. Boulton and Miss Helen Gates. — Mr. Arnold Brown entertained a number of his friends on Monday evening. — Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Huff spent the week end with her brother, Clifford Redden, Colebrook East. — Messrs. Maitland Boulton and Erwell Huff are busy cutting wood for the school. — Mr. Barr is drawing logs to Odessa.—Harold Brown is spending a few days under the parental roof.—Mr. J. E. Boulton spent Thursday afternoon in Camden East. — Mr. Ernie Bailey is convalescing, after having a serious fall.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Huff entertained a number of their friends on Saturday evening.—Mrs. H. Garrison is staying for a few days with her sister, Mrs. Elmer Clyde who is on the sick list.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lemmon and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Martin are with Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Huff. — Messrs. Stanley Brown, Albert Reid and Bernie Kennedy are busy cutting wood.

TAMWORTH

The A. Y. P. A. and the Y. P. U. of the Anglican and United Churches, are planning a debate to be held later in March.—The regular meeting of the Y. P. U. of Tamworth United Church was held on Monday evening. A fine programme was carried out under the leadership of Miss Eulalia Floyd. Mr. James Wallace was in the chair.—The play, "The Joggsville Convention," which was so well received in Tamworth a few weeks ago, is to be repeated at Roblin on Friday, the 16th inst.—The Bible Circle of the United Church is appointed to meet at the parsonage on Wednesday evening next.

—The funeral of the late Jean Doupe, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Doupe, was held on Monday last at Reidville Church. Deep sympathy is felt for these friends in their sad bereavement.—Norman Woodcock is visiting his sister, Mrs. Moss, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Woodcock.—Miss Gladys Barnes, of Queen's University, visited her friend, Miss Eulalia Floyd, over the week-end. — Misses Bernice Berry and Bernice Millican, Hazel Moss, Grace Beckstead, Bernice White and Isabel Carscallen were home for the week-end. — Mrs. Elias McKim entertained at tea last Friday. Rev. L. N. and Mrs. Beckstead and Miss Hattie Read being among the guests.—Mrs. Miles Wagar is recovering slowly from a badly sprained wrist, caused by a fall on the ice some weeks ago.—Suits made to order at Floyd's, $22.00.

VIOLET WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Violet Institute met Thursday afternoon, March 1st, at the hospitable home of Mrs. Walter Lemmon. A goodly number of the members and several visitors added interest to the meeting.

The roll call was answered to "Teaching our children habits of courtesy", and many helpful suggestions were offered the mothers of growing children.

A very interesting and well prepared paper was given by Mrs. John MacDonald, "Suggestions as to the lessons we may derive from the Institute Ode" How easy it would be for us if we only half tried to live up to our ode. Mrs. MacDonald's paper has been repeated by request.

"Suggestions for the Bride's Hope Chest", by Mrs. John Kellar, was a very helpful and instructive paper and Mrs. Kellar adapted the requirements to meet all needs. This paper was very much appreciated by the members, especially the younger members.

Another carefully prepared paper was given, "The Development of Woman Through the Ages", by Mrs. E. A. Wright, and dealt with the avenues opening up to women in the business and professional world. Mrs. Wright compared conditions with that of women in the earlier centuries, when the position was almost that of a serf.

A very interesting diversion was the pie contest, and the judges, Mesdames G. Hannah and Alva D. Sager, had a busy time of it deciding on the ideal pie. After considering from every angle, the prize, a dainty cherry tray, was awarded to Mrs. John Kellar.

The next meeting will be held at the home of the President, the roll call being a "book contest", each member to wear something to represent her well known book, the prize to be awarded being a book.

All the ladies in the community are asked to bear this meeting in mind. We want you at our meeting the first Thursday of every month.

ODESSA Y. P. S.

The regular meeting of the Odessa Young People's Society was held on Monday evening, March 5th, the meeting being the Literary and Social night in charge of Misses Thora Enderley and Reta Hagerman. We had the pleasure of entertaining the Wilton Y. P. S. and although it was a very cold evening, the attendance about the one hundred and fifty mark.

The Literary part of the programme consisted of vocal selections by Miss Nesbitt and Miss B. Hagerman; a duet by Miss Marie Amey and Ford Lawler, entitled "Let's Grow Old Together", met with great applause. There were also readings by Miss Loyst and Miss Clyde. Miss Letherland gave a very instructive talk on her trip to Calgary. An instrumental duet was given by Misses Doris and Winnie Cairns. The Orchestra also gave a selection.

The social part of the programme consisted of contests, after which lunch was served. All went home reporting an enjoyable evening.

CAMDEN EAST LADIES' AID

The March meeting of the Ladies' Aid was held on the afternoon of Tuesday, March 6th, at the home of Mrs. T. Hyland. Meeting was opened by our President, Mrs. B. Yeomans, by all singing Hymn 256. Then all repeated the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Yeomans then read from Luke 19 : 12-26.

The minutes were then read by Miss G. Gallagher, and approved. Mrs. Alkenbrack read the treasurer's report.

Arrangements were made for a St. Patrick party on the 16th, in the United Church Hall.

The Flower Fund was discussed and some new plans were talked of. A letter of thanks for flowers received, was also read.

Hymn 234 closed the meeting, followed by the Mizpah benediction. The hostess served a very dainty lunch.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. G. Scott.

SILLSVILLE W.M.S.

The March meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Phippen, Thursday, March 1st. Meeting opened by Mrs. Geo. Sharpe, presiding. After devotional exercises, and business disposal, a musical program was given by Mr. and Mrs. Plant and Miss Mitchell, a questionair conducted by Mrs. B. Robertson, responded to by members, made a very enjoyable and instructive programm.

The allocation for the year was discussed, all feeling that an effort must be made to reach it. A layette for home mission work was also assumed as part of the year's work, members being willing to become responsible for individual articles.

After closing exercises, refreshments were served. The Easter meeting will be held at Sillsville Church, Thursday, April 5th, at 2.30 p.m. Easter Thankoffering will be given. Let us make it a worthy one.

—While radio fans throughout the country are taking a keen interest in the rebroadcasting of programs from distant stations in England and Australia, it seems that a local boy has set a mark for them all to shoot at. While listening in some time ago on a clear night, Harold Barrager, an employee of Gibbard's Furniture factory, distinctly heard the signals and part of the program of station KZIR, Manila, the Philippine Islands. Barrager has also picked up several California stations on an aerial strung along the floor. He claims that he gets all his results on a standard four-tube set, and that he will match it against the best of them.

CHAPTER IV.

The Fight at Dawn.

IT was a new sound. It find come from the trails to the east, and Jan's pearl gave a sudden jump as he thought of the supplementary sled that expected with the overdue mail. At first he had a mind to interrupt the heavy labouring across the open, but without apparent reason he changed his course and approached the sledge.

As he came nearer he observed a second figure, which rose from behind the dogs and advanced to meet him. A dozen paces ahead of the team it stopped and waited.

He Shot Out a Powerful Fist and Sent the Boy Reeling to the Ground.

"Our dogs are so near exhaustion that we're afraid to take them any nearer," said a voice. "They'd die like puppies under those packs."

The voice thrilled Jan. He advanced with his back to the fire, so that he could see the stranger.

"You come from Churchill?" he asked.

His words were hardly a question. They were more of an excuse for him to draw nearer, and he turned a little, so that for an instant the glowing fire flashed in his eyes.

"Yes; we started from the Brawney just a week ago today."

Jan had come very near. The stranger interrupted himself to stare into the thin, fierce face that had grown like a white cameo almost within reach of him. With a startled cry he drew a step back, and Jan's violin dropped to the snow.

For no longer than a breath there was silence. The man wormed himself back into the shadows inch by inch, followed by the white face of the boy. Then there came shrilly from Jan's lips the mad shrieking of a name, and his knife flashed as he leaped at the other's breast.

The stranger was quicker than he. With a sudden movement he cleared himself of the blow, and as Jan's arm went past him, the point of the knife ripping his coat sleeve, he shot out a powerful fist and sent the boy reeling to the ground.

Stunned and bleeding, Jan dragged himself to his knees. He saw the dogs turning, heard a new voice urging them to the trail and saw the sledge disappear into the forest. He staggered from his knees to his feet and stood swaying in his weakness. Then he followed.

He forgot that he was leaving his knife in the snow, forgot that back there about the fire there were other dogs and other men. He followed, sickened by the blow, but gaining strength as he pursued. Ahead of him he could hear the sound of the toboggan and the exultant lashing of a whip over the backs of the tired huskies. The sounds filled him with fierce strength. He wiped away the warm trickle of blood that ran over his cheek and began to run, slowly at first, swinging in the easy wolf lope of the forest runner, with his elbows close to his sides.

At that pace he could have followed for hours, losing when the pack took a spurt, gaining when they lagged, an insistent Nemesis just behind when the weighted dogs lay down in their traces. When he heard the cracking of the whip growing fainter he dropped his arms straight to his sides and ran more swiftly, his brain reeling with the madness of his desire to reach the sledge. In front of him the man who had struck him, to choke life from the face that haunted that mental picture of his, grinning at him and gloating always from the shadow world, just beyond the pale, sweet loveliness of the woman who lived in it.

He did not feel the soft, sun packed snow under the heat of his feet. He received the lash of low hanging branches without experiencing the sensation of their sting. Only he knew that he wanted air—more and more air—and to get it he ran with open mouth, struggling and gasping for it and yet not knowing that Jean de Gravois would have called him a fool for the manner in which he sought it.

He heard more and more faintly the rim of the sledge. Then he heard it no longer. His heart swelled in a final bursting effort, and he plunged on until at last his legs crumpled under him and he pitched face downhard in the snow, like a thing stung by sudden death.

It was then, with his scratched and bleeding face lying in the snow, that reason began to return to him. After a little while he dragged himself weakly to his knees, still grappling from his mad effort he had made to overtake the sledge. From a great distance he heard faintly the cracking whip, the whispering echo of half a hundred voices, and he knew that the sound came from the Indians at the post. It was proof to him that there had been no interruption to the carnival and that the scene at the edge of the forest had been witnessed by none. He turned again off the trail.

Where the forest broke into an open, dotted by the stars, he found blood in the footprints of the leading dog. Halfway across the open he saw where the leader had swung out from the trail and the others of the pack had crowded about him, to be urged on by the lashings of the man's whip. Other signs of the pack's growing exhaustion followed close.

The man now traveled beside the sledge where the trail was rough and rode where it was smooth and hard. The deep imprints of his heeled boots in the soft snow showed that he ran for only a short distance at a time—a hundred yards or less—and that after each running spell he brought the pack to a walk. He was heavy and lacked endurance, and this discovery brought a low cry of exultation to Jan's lips.

The stars began fading out of the skies. Jan followed more and more slowly. There was hard breathing effort now in his running—something that caused him physical pain and discomfort. His feet stumbled occasionally in the snow. His legs from thigh to knee began to ache with the gnawing torment that centers in the marrow-bone, and to this was superadded the "runner's cramp" by which he was afflicted with a new and poignant terror.

Would his foes never give out? Sloughing in his trail, bleeding at every foot, would they still drag their burden beyond the reach of his vengeance? The fear fastened itself upon him, driving him to greater effort, and he called upon the last of his strength in a spurt that carried him to where the black spruce gave place to thin bush and the bush to the barren and rocky side of a huge ridge, up which the trail climbed strong and well defined. For a few paces he followed it, then stopped and rolled back on the fatal words he dreaded all power of movement in his limbs. He lay where he fell, mouthing out his grief with wide staring eyes turned straight up into the cold cruelty of the starless sky.

For a long time he was motionless. Then he began slowly to crawl up the trail. Some of the dull paralytic pain was gone from his limbs, and as he crawled his blood began to course once more into new strength until he stood up and sniffed like an animal in the wind that was coming over the ridge from the south.

There was something in that wind that thrilled him. It stung his nostrils in a quick sensation of the presence of something that was human. He smelled smoke. In it there was the pungent odor of green logs mixed with a faint perfume of pitch pine, and because the odor of pitch grew stronger as he advanced he knew that it was a small fire that was making the smoke, with none of the fierce, dry welter to burn up the smell. It was a fire hidden among the rocks in the fire, over which the fleeing mischiefmaker was cooking his breakfast.

A fierce exultation seized upon his giddiness, and the old mad strength returned to his body. Near the summit of the ridge he lifted his face to the sky in a short, thick club with the heavy end knotted and twisted.

Cautiously he lifted his face over the rocks and looked out upon a plateau still deep in snow swept bare by the winter's winds and covered with rocks and bushes. Jan's face was so white that at a little distance it might have been taken for a snow hare. It went through the bushes and rocks as he saw the fire, the man and the dogs.

The man was close to the little blaze, his head drooping, his shoulders bowed over, steadying a small pot over the flame. Beyond him were the dogs huddled about the sledge, inanimate as death.

Jan drew himself over the rocks. Once he had seen a big footed lynx creep upon a wide awake fox, and, like that lynx, he crept upon the man beside the fire. One of the tired dogs moved, and his pointed nostrils quivered to the air. Jan lay face to the snow. Then the dog's muzzle dropped between his paws, and the boy moved on.

Inch by inch he advanced. The inches multiplied themselves into a foot, the foot lengthened into yards, and still the man remained hunched over his simmering pot. In a flash Jan took the last leap, and his club crashed down upon the missioner's head. The man pitched over like a log, and, with a sobbing cry, the boy pounced at his throat.

"I am Jan Thoreau!" he shrieked. "I am Jan Thoreau—Jan Thoreau—come to get you!" He dropped his club and was upon the man's chest, his slender fingers tightening like steel wire about the thick throat of his foe. "I see you now—slow!" he cried as the missioner struggled weakly.

The great thick body heaved, moaned, and put all his strength into his hands. Something struck him again and again. "I am Jan Thoreau, an' I see you—see you!"

The blood poured from his face. It blinded him until he could no longer see the one from which he was choking life. He bent down his head to escape the blows. The man's body heaved more and more; it turned until his face was half under it, but still he clung to the thick throat, as the weasel hangs in tenacious death to the jugular of its prey.

The missioner's weight was upon him in crushing force now. His huge hands struck and tore at the boy's head and face, and then they fastened themselves at his neck. Jan was conscious of a terrible effort to take in breath, but he was not conscious of pain. The clutch did not frighten him. It did not make him loosen his grip. His fingers dug deeper. He strove to cry out still his words of triumph, but he could make no sound, except a gasping like that which came from between the gaping jaws of the man whose life his body and soul were fighting to smother.

There Was Death in Each of the Two Grips.

There was death in each of the two grips, but the man's was stronger, and his neck was larger and tougher, so that after a time he staggered to his knees and then to his feet, while Jan lay upon his back, his face and hair red with blood, his eyes wide open and with a lifeless glaze in them. The missioner looked down upon his victim in horror. As the life that had nearly ebbed out of him poured back into his body he staggered among the dogs, fastened them to the sledge and urged them down the mountain into the plain. There was soon no sound of the sledge.

* * * * *

Half a mile down the ridge, where it sloped up gradually from the forests and widened out of the plain, a team of powerful malemutes were running at the head of a toboggan. On the sledge was a young half Cree woman. Now beside the sledge, now at the head of the dogs, cracking his whip and shouting joyously, ran Jean de Gravois.

He was bringing back with him a splendid young woman with big tawny eyes and hair that shone with the gloss of a raven's wing in the sun. She laughed at him proudly as he danced and leaped beside her, replying softly in Cree, which is the most beautiful language in the world, to everything that he said.

Jean leaped and ran, cracked his caribou whip and shouted and sang until he was panting and red in the face. Just as fuscina had set upon him to stop and get a second wind the malemutes dropped back upon their haunches where Jan Thoreau lay, twisted and kneeling, in the snow.

"What is this?" cried Jean.

He caught Jan's limp head and shoulders up in his arms and called shrilly to Iowaka, who was clambering herself from the thick furs in which he had wrapped her.

"It is the fiddler. I told you about, who lives with Williams at Post Lac Bain!" he shouted excitedly in Cree. "He has been murdered. He has been choked to death and torn to pieces in the face as if by an animal." Jean's eyes roved about as Iowaka kneeled beside him. "What a fight!" he gasped. "See the footprints—a big man and a small boy, and the murderer has gone on a sledge!"

"He is warm," said Iowaka. "It may be that he is not dead."

Jean de Gravois sprang to his feet, his little black eyes flashing with a dangerous fire. In a single leap he was at the side of the sledge throwing off the furs and bundles, and all other objects except his rifle.

"He is dead, Iowaka. Look at the purple and black in his face. It is Jean de Gravois who will catch the murderer—but you will stay here and make yourself a camp. H-l-o-o-o-o!" he shouted to the malemutes.

The team twisted sinuously and swiftly in the trail as he sped over the edge of the mountain. Upon the plain below he lined upon the toboggan with the ride in front of him, and at his low, pissing commands, which reached no farther than the dogs' ears, the team shrieked their way down in pursuit of the missioner and his huskies.

Jean knew that whoever was ahead of him was not far away, and he laughed and hunched his shoulders when he saw that his magnificent malemutes were making three times the speed of the huskies. It was a short chase. It led across the narrow plain and into a dense growth of swamp, where the huskies had picked their way in aimless wandering until they came out in thick balsam and Banksian pine. Half a mile farther on, and the trail broke into an open which led down to the smooth surface of a lake, and two-thirds across the lake was the fleeing missioner.

CHAPTER V.

For Her.

THE malemute leader flung open his jaws in a deep baying triumph, and with a savage yell Jean cracked his caribou whip over his back. He saw the man ahead of him lean over the end of his sledge as he urged his dogs, and the huskies beat no faster, and then he caught a glitter of something that flashed for a moment in the sun.

"Ah!" said Jean softly as a bullet sang over his head. "He fires at Jean de Gravois!" He dropped his whip, and there was a warm glow of happiness in his little dark face as he leveled his rifle over the backs of his malemutes. "He is not Jean de Gravois, and it is Jean who can hamstring a caribou at 300 yards on the run!"

For an instant, at the crack of his rifle there was no movement ahead, then something rolled from the sledge and lay doubled up in the snow. A hundred yards beyond it the huskies stopped in a rabble and turned to look at the approaching strangers.

Beside the dead body stood when he saw the face that stared up at him, he clutched his thin hands in his long black hair and cried out in shrill amazement and fear.

"The saints in heaven, it is the missioner from Churchill!"

He turned the man over and found where his bullet had entered under one arm and come out from under the other. There was no sign of life left. The missioner was already dead.

"The missioner from Churchill!" he gasped again.

He looked up at the warm sun and kicked the melting snow under his moccasined feet.

"It will thaw very soon," he said to himself, looking again at the dead man, "and then he will go into the lake."

He headed his malemutes back to the forest. Then he ran out and cut the traces of the exhausted huskies, and with his rifle clattered them in front of him over the ice.

"Go to the wolves!" he shouted in Cree. "Hide yourselves from the rest, or Jean de Gravois will cut out your tongues and take your skins off alive!"

When he came back to the top of the mountain he found Iowaka making hot coffee, while Jan was bundled up in furs near the fire.

"It is as I said," she called. "He is alive!"

Thus it happened that the return of Jean de Gravois to the post was never more dramatic than he had schemed it to be, for he brought back with him not only a beautiful wife from Churchill, but the boy Jan, a dead man from the scene of battle on the mountain. And in the mystery of it all he kneeled for two days by Jan de Gravois' side and not a word about the dead man on the lake beyond the forest, nor did the huskies come back into camp for bandage to give a hint of the missing missionary.

* * * * *

From the day after the caribou roast the fur gatherers began scattering. The Eskimos left the next morning. On the second day Mukee's people from the west set off along the edge of the Barrens. Most of the others left by open water routes into the wilderness to the south and east.

Less than a dozen still put off their return to the late spring trapping, and among these were Jean de Gravois and his wife. Jean waited until the third day. Then he went to see Jan. The boy was bolstered up in the cot, with Cummins balancing the little Mellise on the edge of the bed when Jean entered.

For a time Jean sat and watched them in silence. Then he made a sign to Cummins, who joined him at the door.

"I am going the Athabasca way today," he said. "I wish to talk with Jan before I go. It may have a word to say to him which no ears should hear but his own. Will it be right?"

"Talk to him as long as you like," said Cummins, "but don't worry him about the missionary. You'll not get a word from him."

Jean spoke with a devotion greater than words as Jean de Gravois came and sat close beside him. He knew that it was Jean who had brought him alive into the post.

"Ah, it was man-to-e-n-o-tiffni fight," he said softly. "You are a brave boy, Jan Thoreau!"

"You did not see it?" asked Jan.

Unconsciously the words came from him in French. Jean caught one of his thin hands and laughed joyfully, for the spirit of him was French to the bottom of his soul.

"I see it? No, neither I nor Iowaka, but there it was in the snow, as plain as the eyes in your face. And did I not follow the trail that staggered down the mountain, while Iowaka brought you back to life? And when I came to the lake did I not see something black out upon it, like a charred log? And when I came to it was it not the dead body of the missioner from Churchill? Eh, Jan Thoreau?"

Jan sat up in his bed, with a sharp cry.

"The thaw will open up the lake in a few days. Then he will go down in the first slush." And Jean looked about him cautiously again and whispered low—"if you see anything about the dead missioner that you do not understand think of Jean de Gravois."

He rose to his feet and bent over Jan's white face.

"I am going the Athabasca way today," he finished. "Perhaps, Jan Thoreau, you will hear after a time that it would be best for Jean de Gravois never to return again to this Post Lac Bain. If so you will find him between Fond du Lac and the Beaver river." He passed out.

When Cummins returned he found Jean's cheeks flushed and the boy in a fever.

"Devil take that Gravois!" he growled.

"He has been a brother to me," said Jan simply. "I love him."

On the second day after the French-man's departure Jan rose free of the fever which had threatened him for a time, and in the afternoon he professed Cummins deep, for the last of the trappers had started from the post that morning, their sledges and dogs sinking heavily in the dewy-eyed slush, and Jan set off over the smooth toboggan trail made by the company's agent in his return to Fort Churchill.

This trail followed close along the base of the ridge upon which he had fought the missionary, joining that of Jean de Gravois just beyond. Jan climbed the ridge. From where he had made his attack he followed the almost obliterated trail of the French-man and his malemutes until he came to the lake, and then he knew that Jean de Gravois had spoken the truth, for he found the missionary with his face half buried in the slush, stark dead.

He no longer had to guess at the meaning of Jean's words. The bullet hole under the dead man's arms was too large to escape the Jan's ken. In the little hidden world which he treasured in his heart there came another face, to remain always with him—the face of the courageous little forest dandy who was hurrying with his bride back into the country of the Athabasca.

From that night Jan's eyes were no longer filled with the nervous, glittering flashes which at times had given him an appearance almost of madness. In place of their searching suspicions, there was a warmer and more companionable glow, and Cummins felt the effect of it.

March Weather Dangerous to Baby

Our Canadian March weather—one day bright; but sloppy, the next blustery and cold—is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mother to keep the little ones indoors. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against these colds and to keep the baby well till the better, brighter days come along, use Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which, never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels and thus they relieve colds and simple fevers and keep the baby well. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Oil for the Farmer.—A bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the farm house will save many a journey for a doctor. It is not only good for children when taken with colds or croup, and for the mature who suffer from pains and aches, but there are directions for its use on each case and should always be a bottle of it in the house.

Peggy has been to the circus, and being somewhat naughty on her return, was asked by her mother: "Now you think that if dogs and monkeys can obey so well, little girl, who knows so much more than animals, should obey even more readily."

Peggy thought a moment, then said, "Yes, of course, if she had been as well trained."

Sleep is the great nourisher of infants, and without peaceful sleep the child will not thrive. This cannot be got if the infant be troubled with worms. Miller's Worm Powders will destroy worms and drive them from the system, and afterwards the child's rest will be undisturbed. The powders cannot injure the most delicate baby and there is nothing so effective for restoring the health of a worm-ridden infant.

Montreal, Metropolis of the Dominion of Canada, is so fortunate as to possess a great natural playground in the heart of the city so that it is but a few steps from the everyday matter-of-fact world of trade and commerce into the realms of romance. Montreal possesses attractions in every reason of the year and for every age. In winter time it affords numerous paths for ski enthusiasts, providing level ways for the leisurely and swift runs for those who want thrills. Mount Royal has the added attraction of being forbidden to the automobile at all times. From the point where the camera man has found the ski line a wide view of the city and the surrounding district is obtainable. Manufacturing plants vie with the spires and roofs to the left of the middle distance the fane of Notre Dame contrasts with a vast grain elevator. At the right may be seen part of Victoria Jubilee Bridge connecting the Island of Montreal with the South Shore, crossing the St. Lawrence and covered with its winter mantle of ice and snow. Man So Nervous Gets Sore When Spoken To Easily irritated me to have anyone talk to me. I was so nervous, I just could this and I feel wonderful now. Fahy.

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates and liver peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, run-down people are surprised how quickly the iron, phosphates, etc., in Vinol add new pep. Vinol tastes delicious. Wallace's Drug Store.

More Eggs, Less Feed, Greater Profit

To get the biggest profits you must have maximum production. Feeding hens Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash is the certain method of getting most eggs.

Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash is a scientific balance of many ingredients with an oatmeal base. It provides the right amount of protein and carbohydrates necessary for heavy working hens. Bone meal and calcium carbonate supply the necessary minerals. All elements which the hen reproduces in eggs are fully restored, keeping her fit for heavy production. The Cod Liver Meal in Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash replaces the missing sunlight during shorter days, and its vitamines make other ingredients do better work.

Because finely ground, Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash is easily digested. No waste. All feed. Hens eat every bit of it. Cheapest feed you can use BECAUSE IT GIVES MOST EGGS FOR THE LEAST MONEY. Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash and Ful-O-Pep Scratch Grains form the ideal combination. Ask your dealer for them.

EASTERN CANADA GARDENING SERVICE

Hedges and the Garden.

If all possible the urban gardener should take into consideration the time of his summer holiday when he is planting his flowers and vegetables. Of course, in the country one can always be a good show of bloom and a steady supply of salad material from the first of June on, but in the amateur's layout there is usually a time when the garden is at its best. This should not come when the owner is away at some summer resort or on a distant motor tour. One can quite easily arrange to have things come on at the full either in July, August, or September. If the gardener is going away, for instance in July, it is best to delay planting of gladiolus, dahlias, and the main annual flowers grown from seed until a week or two later than usual. The same rule should be practiced with beets, carrots, corn, tomatoes, and melons. When this is done, the main crop, of both flowers and vegetables will come on in August. If one is not taking holidays until August, however, it is well to get some flowers and vegetables in as early as possible, and the balance in very late, so that there will be a show before going away and a second one after arrival home. In any case, it is well before leaving the garden for a few weeks in the summer to cut everything well back, particularly buds and flowers, to mulch well with grass clippings or straw to conserve the moisture when it is not possible to have a neighbour turn his hose over the fence once in a while, so that top growth will be checked while one is absent.

An Ideal Soil.

If it were always possible for a gardener to pick his soil, he would pick one composed of an equal mixture of organic and inorganic matter, a light, deep sandy loam with plenty of humus in it. This is the ideal toward which to work in bringing the soil to condition. Gardeners have to take the soil as they find it and bring it into condition, not a difficult work at all if undertaken intelligently, but one requiring patience and perhaps several seasons to secure the proper tilth. A soil of the composition mentioned is particularly valuable for its ability to absorb fertilizer. Heavy soils absorb it too slowly and sand too rapidly so that admixture with humus as the carrier is the proper mixture. Every time a crop with the luxuriant growth of a favoring climate is taken off the soil, a portion of the soil fertility goes with it, and it is necessary to replace it. The plowing under of green manures, the spading in of stable manure and the adding of vegetable compost and commercial fertilizers is a continuous process.

Garden Paths.

Paths add much to the attractiveness of any flower garden or lawn. If a supply of limestone is plentiful and cheap, a pleasing effect may be produced by paving crazy style or in regular fashion. Simply dig out sod or soil the same size and exact depth of your stone and plant irregularly. If this is done carefully, the lawn mower can run right over the path, or with a window commending the view if the porch is so placed that it is impracticable as sods. To trim the edges of the path lead up to a rose-covered garden seat or archway through the flower garden into the vegetable patch. If there is room, the main path may circle a garden pool in which water plants are growing, or if this is too elaborate, a birdbath or sun dial may be used for similar effect.

Spinach is a Standard Vegetable.

Spinach will be one of the first vegetables harvested in the vegetable garden, and, if planted at intervals of a couple of weeks, from the time the soil is fit to work, until June, will furnish delightful greens for the table until midsummer. This vegetable delights in a warm, rich soil, and must be heavily manured, and, like all other vegetables, should be pushed quickly with regular applications of nitrate of soda. The rows should be at least twelve inches apart, and where horse cultivation is practiced, two feet or a yard. If preferred, and the soil is clean, it may be broadcast, but in this case it is harder to keep down the weeds. After the plants are up well, then well to at least eight inches apart, and keep the soil cultivated and fertilized. Bloomsdale Savoy Leaved is one of the hardiest and is an early variety as well. This, like the Victoria, is wrinkled like Savoy cabbage, succulent and curled. King of Denmark is one of the most valuable of the recent introductions, and will keep in condition for cutting for a week or two after other varieties have gone to seed, although it is not as early as the first two named. Some of the spinaches after cutting will grow up again and furnish a second crop, but the quality of these is not equal to the others.

"Have what?"

"Insignia—Does he wear a chain around his neck?"

"A chain?" said the astonished porter.

"Na, na, he gangs loose; but dinna be feared, he's quite harmless."

OBITUARY.

The Village of Selby and surrounding district have lost one of its brightest young citizens, who had a promising future before him, in the death of John Anthony McDonald, on Thursday, February 23rd. Probably never before have the people witnessed anything sadder. He was deservedly popular with all who knew him, and his untimely death has caused a widespread regret among his many friends, a beautiful character, and his life an exemplary one. To him had been given in large measure the loveable qualities of the ideal son, and to there is sympathy sincere and general through the community for the family who are called upon to bear the poignant grief occasioned by the death of one whose standard of life had ever been love and self sacrifice for them, for seldom do you see such love and obedience to his parents from such a young boy nowadays.

He was taken ill on Monday and rushed to the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, for treatment, where it was pronounced by the Doctors he had appendicitis, and an operation was performed, after which he seemed to rally on that occasion, and was conscious of the loving ministration about him, but on Wednesday evening he became suddenly weaker, and passed away Thursday morning about 8 o'clock, in spite of the skillfulness of the Doctors and kind nursing of the nurses, and prayers of the Holy Sisters, together with the sympathy of his friends, will never be forgotten. In every way they could show their feelings, they did it.

The beautiful floral and unusual number of spiritual offerings which rested on the casket were silent tributes of heartfelt sympathy from the many friends of the bereaved ones.

The funeral was held at St. Patrick's Church, Napanee, at 9 o'clock, where a solemn requiem mass was celebrated by his loving Pastor. After mass the remains were deposited in the vault to await interment in the spring.

Besides his parents are left to mourn two brothers and four sisters. The pall bearers were Messrs. Greer, Johnson, Windover, Hayes and the two Breeze boys.

Presentation and Address.

On the evening of February 22nd about eighty friends and neighbours met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lucas, to bid farewell and wish good luck to Mr. and Mrs. George Sutton Lucas, who intend moving in the near future to their new home at Fredericksburgh. During the evening Mr. E. VanLuven called on Mr. Everett Evans to read the following address, and Miss Nellie Allen made the presentation of a purse of money.

To Mr. and Mrs. George Sutton-Lucas.

We are sorry that you and your family intend to remove from the midst of our neighbourhood, and feel that our community is losing valuable citizens and workers of a kind we can ill afford to lose. We wish you could have remained with us, but circumstances seem to say that Providence has called you to other fields of service, and we are sure that wherever you may locate your presence and help, there will remain with us the reminder of the past and the hearty social service so long had from you as neighbours and members of our church.

Therefore we take this opportunity to express to you our appreciation of your friendly neighbourliness and good citizenship amongst us, and desire with these few words and this humble gift, to hope that you may long retain health and prosperity in your new home, and may this gift remind you of the years spent among your friends at Moscow.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours.

E. L. VANLUVEN.
C. A. BAKER.
EVERETT EVANS.
CALVIN ALLEN.
MISS NELLIE ALLEN.

Mr. Lucas responded feelingly, thanking the people for their expression of regret, and afterwards several men of the neighborhood took the opportunity to tell of their regret at the departure of the family, and to wish them every success. Lunch was served and the rest of the evening spent in music, games and social intercourse.

New Strength For All Weak Girls

Comes From the Rich, Red Blood Made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

There must be no guesswork in the treatment of pale, anaemic girls and children. If your daughter is languid, has a pale, sallow complexion, is short of breath after slight exertion or on going up stairs, if she has palpitation of the heart, a poor appetite, or a tendency to faint, she has anaemia — the medical name for poverty of the blood. Delay in treatment may leave her weak and sickly for the rest of her life. When the blood is thin and watery give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, coupled with nourishing food and gentle out-of-door exercise. The new life-giving blood which comes from a fair use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills, increases the appetite, stimulates the nerves and brings a glow of health to pale cheeks. Mrs. Robert Jackson, R.R. No. 5, Shelburne, Ont., praises this medicine for restoring her daughter's health. She says:—"When my daughter was nine years old she was so weak and thin that we feared we would lose her. She was very nervous, and going to school seemed too much for her. Often she would have to stay at home for days at a time. At times she would have a very high fever, and the doctor's treatment did not help her. I tried several remedies, but with no good results. One day a friend advised me to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I did so. It was not very long after till we began to see the pills that I could see a change for the better. She kept on taking the pills for several months, and through them grew into a strong, healthy girl. Since then, if a tonic has been needed at any time, it has always been Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

The pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RESTORED to GOOD HEALTH

Mother of Eleven Children Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Her Interesting Experience

Buckingham, Quebec.—"I am the mother of eleven living children, and my baby is five months old. I am only 38 years old and I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and my nerves. I know it from my sister, Dame Edouard Bellefeuille of Ramsayville. For five years I was in misery and was always ready to cry. Now I am so happy to have good health. My daughter, who is 18 years old, has also taken it and will be happy to recommend it to all young girls."—Dame WILLIAM PARENT, Box 414, Buckingham, Quebec.

Why suffer for years with backache, nervousness and other ailments common to women from early life to middle age, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will give you relief?

In a recent contest wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, over 250,000 replies were received, and 98 out of every 100 reported they were benefited by its use.

MIGRATING BIRDS.

Lack of Protection South of Equator Offsets Conservation In North.

In view of additional protection recently accorded shore birds in this country by amendment to the regulations under the migratory bird treaty act, a new bulletin just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture—"Our Migrant Shore Birds in Southern South America"—is of special significance. Many of the birds migrating between Canada and the United States and protected under the treaty make extended journeys each year and winter in southern South America.

Of the many species of North American shore birds there are only twelve that do not visit South America part of the year, and no fewer than twenty-four species pass so far south as Argentina and Chile. In spite of ample protection during their breeding season many of these birds had been decreasing in numbers to such an alarming extent that the Bureau of Biological Survey sent Dr. Alexander Wetmore, author of the new bulletin and now assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, to South America to investigate the conditions and report. For our shore birds in their winter homes.

Legislation for the protection of birds in the republics of southern South America, it was found, is in general the same state as that in the United States thirty years ago. A number of conservation laws have been placed on the statute books, but the public generally has not as yet been educated sufficiently to their importance. This laxity, says Dr. Wetmore, is due partly to the fact that extensive settlement and development, with consequent excessive hunting, have been comparatively recent, and partly to the large proportion of residents from the south of Europe, in parts of which killing is still a sanctioned custom and where sentiment for the protection of birds, particularly the smaller species, is notably wanting. Consequently a number of the most valuable and desirable of the shore birds that seek winter homes in South America are being destroyed in inordinate numbers, a condition that renders it effective to a certain degree the protection afforded them in this country and Canada.

OIL FROM SEA-SOIL.

Source Beds of Most of Our Oilfields Are Marine In Origin.

If all the world's oil wells should run dry it is likely that oil would be obtained from the bottom of the sea. Samples of mud and sand taken off the coasts of Southern California and North Carolina are being distilled to find out their oil-producing capacity.

Geologists say that the source beds of most of our oilfields are marine in origin, deposited millions of years ago. Through the ages oil of these sea-deposits was concentrated into pools that are now being drained. Therefore there seems no reason why the bed of the ocean should not be a source of future oil supply.

So far, tests of ocean material show that all types of sediment, from clay to sand, produce oil in some quantities after distillation, ranging from nearly three gallons from a ton of clay silt to almost nothing from sand.

The amount of oil obtained from sea-soil at present is only about 1 to 10 per cent. of the yield from high-grade oil-shale, which sometimes gives as much as fifty gallons a ton. Should sea-soil be found the only or a sufficiently high percentage of oil this new source may cause a situation that will revolutionize the industry.

Grain Free From Insects.

Entomologists have solved for the farmer the problem of keeping seed grain over the winter free from insect infestation, says Science Service.

Dr. W. P. Flint and Justus Frankenfeld, of the U. S. Bureau of Entomology, reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science that a mixture of crude creosote and hydrated lime mixed with wheat would keep grain practically free from damage from insects. This combination does not injure the germination qualities of the wheat and has a repelling as well as actually poisonous effect on weevils and other insects injurious to grain, several other chemicals mixed with wheat in the form of a dust were found to give fairly adequate protection.

ENTERPRISE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The February meeting of the Enterprise Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. Covert, on Friday last. Although the unfavorable weather conditions kept a number of the members at home, the programme presented was an excellent one, and the meeting one of the most successful we have held. It was opened by the singing of a new song, called "Our Institutes", composed by one of the members, followed by the Lord's Prayer. In answer to the roll call, "A beautiful thought of prose or poetry", a great number of helpful and inspiring quotations were given.

The usual routine of business was gone through, and it was decided to present the new Community Hall with a lamp for the lighting of the stage behind the curtain; also a brass plate for the clock donated by the society some time ago.

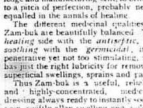
Arrangements were made for the making of a pennant to represent our Enterprise Women's Institute at the district annual convention. An enjoyable "Provincial Contest" was also held, and a paper on the "Life of Longfellow" was given by Mrs. Stanley Bell. The Apron Tea was a great success. The pretty little aprons were duly exhibited, and admired, and although the attendance was so small, the tiny pockets yielded the sum of $3.26. The lunch which followed was a delightful one, for which such lavish preparation had been made, that it left room for a nice little donation after.

The afternoon closed with the singing of Community songs, and everyone departed, voting the meeting a grand success.

Zam-Buk ITS ROMANTIC STORY

A World Search for Rare Medicinal Herbs.

It is not commonly known that countries so far apart as China and Spain, Japan and England, and Tasmania and France have to be searched for the choicest herbs used in the manufacture of that world-famed healing balm ZAM-BUK. These herbs are many of them, rare and costly. They need to be gathered just at the right season when their juices and medicinal contents are at their very best.



Gathering medicinal herbs in Tasmania.

Zam-buk is the true successor of the herbal healing balms of Ancient Rome; with this important advantage Zam-buk, in addition to its rare herbal composition, has twentieth century medical knowledge and manufacturing skill to bring it to a point of perfection probably never equalled in the annals of healing.

The different medicinal qualities in Zam-buk are specially balanced. The healing side with the antiseptic, the soothing with the germicidal, in it penetrates yet not too stimulating, and has just the right lubricity for removing superficial swellings, sprains and pains.

Thus Zam-buk is a useful, reliable, and highly-concentrated medicinal dressing always ready to instantly soothe pain, swiftly allay swelling and inflammation, expel deep-seated disease, and gain new healthy skin. Moreover, users of Zam-buk have perfect confidence in which also comes from the knowledge that it is a refined herbal preparation and not an animal ointment composed of pore-clogging fats and crude drugs.

Zam-buk is invaluable in all itching, inflamed, and discovered conditions of the skin, whilst its swift antiseptic healing makes it the ideal first-aid dressing for burns, scalds, cuts, etc. It is also the soothing remedy for piles. Of dealers everywhere 50c. the box; 3 for $1.25, or Zam-buk Co., Dupont St., Toronto.

The happy merchant

Never before in the history of the world has it been possible for a merchant in good credit to do so much business with so little capital locked up in stock.

One important reason for the present prosperity is, that instead of having to buy a big stock at the beginning of each season, he is now able to buy small stocks and replenish them promptly by Long Distance.

Keep your customers for miles around coming to you for whatever they need. Invent ways of inducing them to visit your store, or to order from you by Long Distance and — they tell us —you will not be seriously bothered by competition.

Long Distance is making happy merchants in some towns. Don't overlook its great possibilities.

Lecture by J. Fraser Smith, M.D

Dr. J. Fraser Smith, who for many years served in China and India as a medical missionary, addressed a large audience in St. Andrew's Church, on Wednesday evening. Grace and Trinity Churches united with St. Andrew's for the occasion. Dr. Smith lectured on "China, Past, Present and Future". The address was a masterly survey of the past of China, religiously, historically and racially. This was followed by an analysis of the various factors leading to the present confused state. The lines along which the future might develope were carefully and interestingly traced. In between the various sections lantern slides were shown. They were well chosen and exceptionally clear. Those who took advantage of the opportunity of hearing Dr. Smith heard one of the best accounts of this most interesting country ever heard in Napanee.

TYPEWRITING CONTEST

On Thursday, March 15th, a contest in typewriting for Napanee and district will be held at the Collegiate Institute. The contest will be in charge of Mr. Fred Jarrett, who is the Contest Judge for the Canadian Contest in Toronto, and who was Canadian champion for seven years. Mr. Jarrett will also speak to the Commercial Class at the Collegiate, and the school is fortunate in securing him for next Thursday.

Three handsome challenge cups have already been donated by Mayor Roy, Alderman J. G. Daly, and Mr. J. E. Robinson, and special medals will be given for the various events. The Senior Cup is open to any typist in Napanee or district. The Intermediate Cup is open to typists who have not been regularly engaged in an office, and the Novice Cup is open for those who started typewriting since last August. Prizes will also be given for accuracy and setting up business letters.

All typists who intend entering should notify Mr. L. S. Beattie, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, as soon as possible, and the time for each will be arranged for next Thursday afternoon or evening. The object of this yearly contest is to raise the standard of typewriting in the school and office of Napanee and in the future send up representatives to the Canadian Contest in Toronto.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Eliza Bartley.

The death took place on Tuesday, February 28th, of ag old and highly-esteemed resident of North Fredericksburgh, in the person of Eliza Douglas, relict of the late Capt. Robert Bartley, in her 88th year.

Deceased was born in Ireland in 1840 and came to Canada with her parents at the age of seven.

She was well known in Napanee and the surrounding district, where she had a host of friends, who will regret to learn of her passing.

Deceased had been a patient sufferer for a number of years and all that loving hands and medical aid could do was done to relieve her suffering. Her life has been a long season of faithful, loving service to her home and family.

The funeral was held from her late residence on the York Road, Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, to Riverview cemetery, Napanee, and was largely attended. Rev. W. P. Woodley, of Grace United Church, conducted the service after which the remains were placed in the vault to await burial in the spring.

The pall bearers were Messrs. James and Albert Bartley and A. Decker, of Erie, Pa.; J. Samson, of Newburgh; E. Bartley, of Napanee, and W. Brasn, of Gananoque.

Surviving are two sons and one daughter, Albert and Robert, of Erie, Pa., and Mrs. Jennie Smith, at home.

A BIG INCREASE

Over sixty per cent of the 668,383 Bell telephones in service in Ontario and Quebec at the end of 1927 were in service in homes, says the annual report of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

To provide the net gain of 38,222 telephones during 1927, the company installed 130,307 instruments and removed 92,085. These figures give some idea of the problem involved in keeping telephone users supplied with service in spite of many changes of location.

SHIBLEY BOYES PLAYING

The following was taken from a Los Angeles paper:—

Shirley Boyes, one of the most interesting of the younger pianists representing the modern ideas, is to give a Sunday concert late in the afternoon of March 4th, at the California Art Club on Olive Hill. The president of the Arts and Crafts Society, Mrs. Edward Perry Clark, and several other prominent leaders in arts related to music are sponsoring the event and the program is an especially promising one.

Miss Boyes originated in Alaska where her Canadian parent was stationed in a government position. Her musical talent was marked early in her life and she was brought down to San Jose, where she began her studies under such well known musicians as Prof. King and Howard Hanson. At a very tender age she came to Thile Becker of Los Angeles, whom she introduced herself with an amazing repertoire of Bach, all memorized.

Her recital appearances in Los Angeles prior to European study and concertising created much interest among the discriminating judges and her subsequent successes in Paris, where she studied with Lazare Levy and Alfred Cortot, and later in Munich, where she spent the winter of 1926-27, were notable. Concerts in these two cities, in Copenhagen and in Holland earned for her the praise of the critics and public.

She has from her own choice identified herself with the modern trend of composition although the remarkable talents are not entirely displayed on her program. Debussy, Ravel, Scriabine, Bartok and Griffes often appear on her lists and it is known that she has a flair for these composers and imbues them with a remarkable understanding and vitality.

Miss Boyes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Boyes, formerly of Napanee.

NAPANEE POULTRY ASSOCIATION

A regular meeting of the Napanee Poultry Association was held in the Agriculture Hall, Napanee, on Monday, March 5th, 1928. Owing to the absence of the President, Mr. Ray Perry, Mr. A. N. Fraser, Morven, occupied the chair. Arrangements are being made this year to again work with the Lennox Fair, and it is hoped that the Association* will be able to have an exhibit of at least a thousand birds. This will give Napanee the largest Poultry Show outside of Toronto and Ottawa, Ontario, and with the well known reputation Napanee already has for the horse races held in connection with the annual fair, will give the Fair Directors without doubt, the strongest exhibit of any fair in Ontario. The Poultry itself will be a big attraction.

This will be just another item of the Association's work in maintaining Napanee as the premier Poultry centre of Canada. The show is principally for the benefit of the Lennox and Addingten poultry keepers, and by inducing them to become members, it keeps and brings the best strains and blood into the County, and also in order to have pullets and cockerels fit to show in August, means early hatching. Of course, all birds hatched are not show birds, so the surplus will be of good size for the fattening crates in December. The habit thus formed of early hatching will invariably continue, and others seeing the extra money going into the pockets from prizes and from the additional weights of the early hatched birds, is hoped that early hatching will be the rule, not the exception.

This early history of Napanee Poultry Days makes interesting reading, and great credit is due to those merchants who had the courage and courage to inaugurate the system of having the dressed birds brought in on a given date. Farmers used to bring their poultry in any time in the fall they considered most convenient. Among the merchants mentioned were the names of J. Lester Boyes, Thomas Robinson, John Hubbard, Thomas Wallace, Wm. Boyle and Harry Hunter. It was a success from the beginning, and no place of each buyer having his own day and no competitive bidding, consequently a low price to the poultry man, larger quantities were brought in, more buyers, and from more distant points were present, and more important to both the poultry man and the Napanee merchants, better prices were obtained. Too much credit cannot be given to the early Agriculture Representatives of Lennox and Addington, who were keen and enthusiastic poultry men. They were not only poultry enthusiasts themselves, but worked hard to get others interested and able to participate in the financial benefits. Through the influence of the late T. G. Carscallen, M.P.P., George B. Curran, a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College was brought to Napanee in 1911. It has been told that Mr. Carscallen, when Curran reported at Queen's, refused to believe that the boy was the newly appointed representative for the district. However, the boy soon showed that he knew the poultry business, and was willing to use all he had. The farmers of the county were shown how crate fattening paid, and how the correct method of killing, feeding, and dry picking brought extra price for poultry. The educational work started by Mr. Curran was continued by his successor, Mr. C. C. Main, until his removal, (not promotion), much to the regret of all poultry men in Lennox and Addington, with whom he was associated. Mr. Fitzgerald, poultry man sent to make preparations for the next Royal Winter Fair, was another of the cubistors and brooders, considerable business in what is known as custom hatching is done. Among the most successful of the latter is Mr. Harold Wright, of Frederickburgh, with his Mammoth Incubator. Mr. Pringle is a member of the Napanee Poultry Association.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Jas. B. Weese

Mrs. Jas. Weese, of Centreville, passed away very suddenly on February 29th, 1928, at the home of her eldest son, Wm., of Wesley, where she had been visiting for a short time. She had been in her usual good health when she was taken suddenly ill on Tuesday evening, February 28th, becoming unconscious, and remaining so until her death the following afternoon.

Deceased, Amanda Ordaric, was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Asselatine, of Camden, who were of Dutch descent. She was born in Camden, where she desided all her life, and was in her seventy-fourth year. She was married in 1878, and is survived by her husband, two daughters and four sons, three brothers and two sisters. Her family all reside in Camden, except her eldest daughter, Mrs. Russell Long, of Napanee. Her sisters and youngest brother, Wm., reside in the West, the eldest brother, Oscar, in Marlbank, and Whitney in Napanee.

Mrs. Weese was a good neighbor, and in sickness was always a willing helper, and will be very much missed by her many friends and neighbors.

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon, March 2nd, from her late residence, to the Centreville United Church, of which she was a member. Her Pastor, Rev. H. A. Bunt, B.A., officiated. The pall bearers were Messrs. Fred Brown, Wesley Wagar, Charles Ingoldsby, George McGill, Ed. O'Connor and Wm. McKeown. The remains were placed in the Centreville vault for burial later.

EBENEZER W.M.S.

The first meeting of the Ebenezer W. M. S. for the year 1928 was held at the home of Mrs. E. T. Anderson, on the evening of January 13th. A Missich Band was organized, and after the meeting a social time was spent. A large number were present, and an invitation was given by Mrs. Kinnear for the February meeting.

The second meeting of the Ebenezer W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. F. Kinnear, on Wednesday evening, February 15th. The meeting opened by Hymn, "Rescue the Perishing", followed by Prayer by the President, Mrs. Jenkins. Roll call. Scripture reading, Gen. 24, 34-48, 61-67. Devotional leaflet by Mrs. Kinnear, "Sharing the Unsearchable Riches". Reading by Mrs. Jenkins. Questions and answers were read by Mrs. W. J. Asmith, Mrs. Whiteman, Mrs. Jenkins, and Mrs. J. Brown. Mrs. Jenkins read the report of the Presbyterial held at Picton, in January. Collection. Hymn, "Take the Name of Jesus With You". Business. Silent prayer for chosen Missionary for the year, Miss Virgo. The meeting was closed with the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison.

During the Mission Band, Miss Ella Whiteman and Master Jimmie Whiteman sang a duet, and after the Mission Band meeting Miss Ella and Master Jimmie Whiteman sang an encore duet at the W. M. S. meeting, which was greatly appreciated.

"THE BANDBOX JUNIOR"

IS ASTONISHED AT THE PRICE!

It is inconceivable, even to-day, that a Radio possessing the neat appearance, the wonderful performance and mechanical fineness of "THE BANDBOX JUNIOR" can be purchased at so low a prtce.

It introduces more features that are new, and original, and important, than any Radio built.

The use of the new Hazeltine Neutrodyne circuit, combined with regeneration, power tube, one-dial tuning, complete shielding, and accumulator control, are "BANDBOX JUNIOR" features that even the novice recognize as revolutionary in a complete set selling for less than $100.00.

GOLDEN WEDDING OF MR. AND MRS. CHAS. O. KAYLER

An event of more than usual interest to the community in which they reside took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Kayler, "Rose Villa", York Road, Napanee, on Wednesday, March 7th, 1928, when Mr. and Mrs. Kayler and their many friends met to celebrate their Golden Wedding. The happy couple have spent their lives in this immediate vicinity, and are well known and highly esteemed throughout the county. Mr. Kayler having been born on the old Kayler homestead, about two miles down the York Road from his present residence, and Mrs. Kayler having been born and reared on the farm now owned and occupied by them. They are respected as good neighbouring people, who take a lively interest in all that makes for the good of the community, and are developing a moral character.

On this Fiftieth Anniversary of the celebration of their wedding they were gladdened by the many friends and neighbours who surrounded them and who came to pay their respects, and express their appreciation to the happy couple, and to speed them on their journey with many hearty wishes for the continued happiness and prosperity.

It was a happy circumstance that Mrs. J. S. Miller, who was Mrs. Kayler's bridesmaid fifty years ago, was able to be present.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Kayler were the recipients of many bautiful gifts. Among those present were Mrs. J. B. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Kayler, Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Grant, Toronto; Ray Kayler; Master Reginald Kayler; Master Reginald Kayler; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bell; Miss Elizabeth Rae, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Miller; the Misses Miller; Mrs. Thos. Wallace and Miss Helen B. Wallace; Mr. J. G. Daly; Miss Eleanor Herrington; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Boyes; Mr. A. V. Tomlins, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Garrison; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Fitchett; Mr. and Mrs. Sherff Vandervoort and wife; Mrs. L. M. Wartman; Mrs. Perry Detlor; Mrs. J. R. Asselstine, and Mr. Roy Garrison.

Many telegrams and letters of congratulation and good wishes were received from far and near.

CAMDEN EAST

Mr. Frank Briscoe, of Newburgh, took charge of the service in the United Church on Sunday last, in the absence of Rev. Jos. Anderson, who is ill.—The people of Camden East are very sorry to hear of the removal of Mr. Ross Anderson. During his residence here as Bank manager, we have found him very obliging and prompt and attentive to his patrons. We wish him success in his new field of labor.—Mr. A. Perry and daughter, of Oshawa, was visiting her mother and brother, Mr. Victor Edgar, and other relatives.—Mr. and Mrs. Black entertained a number of their friends to dinner on Thursday of last week.—Mrs. Orvell Stewart visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Rose, at Westbrook, last week.—Mr. and Mrs. Martin, of Napanee, spent a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Alkenbrack, last week.—Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Sharpe, of Tweed, a business caller in the village on Monday.—Quite a few in the village are sick with colds.—There will be Lenten service in St. Luke's Parish Hall, on Thursday, at 8 p.m. Rev. Well Steward called on Mrs. Chas. Histed, on Tuesday.—Mr. Chas. Histed spent Saturday afternoon with his brother, George Histed.—Don't forget the social in the Union Church Hall, on Friday, March 16th.—Several from here attended the funeral of Mr. James Curren, at the home of Mr. James Sewell, at Bicknell's Corners, on Tuesday afternoon.—Mrs. Chas. Histed spent Monday evening with Mrs. Fred Snider.—We had a heavy rain here on Tuesday night, and it has made the roads very slushy.—Mrs. Sherlock spent a day recently at the home of Mrs. Austin Switzer.—Mr. Elgin McWilliams, of Bethel, at Mr. Garnet Jeffrey's, recently.—Miss Maude Russell, of Tweed, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Saul.—The play, "Lighthouse Nan", so successfully produced by the Camden East St. Luke's A. Y. P. A. a few weeks ago, will be repeated in the Parish Hall, on the Thursday evening of Easter week—April 12th.

OBITUARY

J. G. McConnell.

James Gilmore McConnell, who passed peacefully away at Nanton, Alberta, on February 28th, 1928, at midnight, was born in Dromdaff, County Letrim, Ireland, eighty-six years ago. New Years Day. He called to Canada with his parents when a small boy, and often remarked in the latter years, were trip across the ocean. They settled on Wolfe Island, later moving to the vicinity of Napanee, where Mr. Mathias Switzer, of Napanee, was a neighbour. Mr. McConnell was a life long member of the Anglican Church, and his funeral which was held from Christ Church, Nanton, conducted by his Pastor, Rev. W. Barlow, at 2.30 p.m., March 1st, was largely attended. The burial was in Nanton cemetery by the side of his wife.

NEWBURGH

The Young People's League meeting on Tuesday night, in the school room of the United Church, was under the direction of the Missionary Vice President, Miss A. Keough, and the programme was an unusually interesting one. The missionary work in Angola, Africa, was made very real to all by Miss M. Keough. Mr. H. Simpkins, Miss Alice Milligan and the Vice President, as they told the story of the missionary work. The chorus by the young ladies and a Biblical contest completed a very fine programme.

The Y. P. L. are preparing for a social evening on the evening of the 20th in honour of St. Patrick.

Mr. Frank Briscoe took the service at Camden East last Sunday morning, in the absence of Rev. Jos. Anderson.

A largely attended Ladies' Aid meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Briscoe on Monday evening. The ladies are enthusiastic in their practise of the play to be given shortly.

The Right Hon. Philip Snowdon says "There is nothing in the revenue argument because it would be a perfectly idiotic thing on the part of any Chancellor of the Exchequer if he were to defend or attempt to defend the raising of five shillings worth of revenue by the expenditure of 1 pound in collecting it, and that is really the fact in regard to the revenue from intoxicating liquor."

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Switzer and baby, Francis, spent the week end with friends at Perth Road.

Judge Madden called on Mrs. A. Madden during the week.

Mr. W. P. Deroche, of Napanee, visited his sister, Mrs. S. Shorey, on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Orison Benn, of Sillsville, were at Mr. Bowerman's, on Sunday.

Mrs. Sexsmith, of Bicknell's Corner, called on her sister, Mrs. Dunwoody, on Tuesday.

Miss Beatrice Switzer, of Kingston, spent Sunday at home.

Miss Stella Switzer, of Kingston Business College, was home for Sunday.

Mrs Emily Yeomans is attending the Kingston Business College.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walker were in Napanee on Monday, attending the funeral of Mr. Wallace Walker.

The Mission circle met at the home of Mrs. Percy Gerow on Monday, March 5th, with an attendance of 25. After the usual devotional exercises, a short program was given, which consisted of readings by Mrs. F. Switzer and Miss Francis Shiler, and a piano solo by Mrs. Gerow, all of which were well rendered and enjoyed by all. The meeting closed with the Mispah benediction. Then followed a social hour when games were indulged in.

Miss Nellie Allen, of Moscow, spent a few days with her cousin, Miss Joy Paul.

One of Newburgh's best boys left this week for his home at Bogart. He will be welcomed should he return at a time.

Messrs. Gilbert Milligan and Sidney Fox, of Kingston, renewed acquaintances in Newburgh during the week.

Services in the Mission Hall continue to be held each evening.

Rev. E. J. Lee was a guest at the Bray home over the week end while conducting the quarterly services in the Mission Hall.

Mrs. Allen, of Odessa, was in Newburgh on Sunday last.

A large number from Newburgh attended the funeral of the late Mr. Curran on Tuesday afternoon, at Camden East.

Psalm 91 :15—"Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound. They shall walk, O Lord, in the light of Thy countenance."

A little girl, living 48 miles from Vita Man., developed general peritonitis. The parents were advised that an operation might save her life. What a trip they had to undertake—eight miles by team to the nearest station in a mid-winter blizzard. Starting out from there they thought that a gasoline speeder would get them to the hospital, but, unfortunately, the snow was drifting badly, and after pushing the speeder and shovelling the snow for miles, the trip was abandoned. Fortunately a freight train came along, and the little patient, after twelve and one-half hours of travelling, arrived at the hospital. The operation was successful, and although after two months' fight for life she was still very weak, eventually she will go home well.

Mrs. Russell Craig, of Switzerville, visited her grandmother, Mrs. James Wales, during the week.

Little Bernice Benn, of Sillsville, spent last week with her grandmother, Mrs. D. Bowerman.

We are pleased to welcome Mr. F. Frost, of Innerkip, who succeeds Mr. Ross Anderson as manager of the Standard Bank.

Miss Hazel Sexsmith returned to Niagara Falls on Tuesday, after spending two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sexsmith, Wesley.

Another very bad case was a young Canadian who was delirious, with a temperature of 105. He had been working in the district 17 miles east of Vita for only a short time and was a stranger to everyone. He had been on his boarding house, they sent him to the hospital, which was a fortunate thing for him. After a very trying siege of illness, being delirious for nearly nine days, he made a good recovery. This hospital is serving to relieve a very real need in that section of new Canadians.

The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Newburgh United Church held its March meeting on Wednesday afternoon, the 7th inst., at the home of Mrs. Courtney. The President, Mrs. (Rev.) Anderson, conducted the meeting, the special study for the day being Trinidad Mission. As this year is the sixtieth anniversary of the establishment of the work in that Island, several of the members brought interesting items telling of the origin of the work and the wonderful success that has followed the teaching and preaching of the word to the East Indians in that colony of Great Britain, and of the interesting Jubilee celebration, which the Moderator, Rev. Jas. Endicott, D.D., represented the United Church of Canada, and Mrs. G. R. Forbes and Mrs. (Rev.) F. Sanford the Woman's Missionary Society. Mrs. Ramsay sang in her own sympathetic way "The Lilies of the Valley in His Garden"; and it was decided to hold an Easter Thanksoffering service in the church basement.

CROYDON

On Saturday morning, March 3rd, 1928, a gloom was cast over the vicinity of Croydon, when the sad news was received that death had claimed the youngest child and daughter, Jean, of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Doupe. Jean was taken suddenly ill on Wednesday, February 22nd, and after examination by Dr. O'Connor, was rushed to Kingston General Hospital and operated on the same night for appendicitis. Apparently had set in, and although the best medical assistance was procured, and every care that loving hands and nurses could administer was hers, but death had set its seal on her young face away on Saturday morning, March 3rd. The remains were brought to her parental home Saturday noon. The funeral took place on Monday morning at 10.30 at the United Church, Reidville, when Rev. Mr. Beckstead paid a very impressive sermon to a crowded church of friends and neighbours. The remains were put in Centreville vault to await burial in the spring. Jean was a bright little girl of seven years and four months, and was a favourite and loved by all. She leaves to mourn her loss her dear mother, Jessie, one brother and three sisters. The casket was covered with flowers. Large circle, parents; sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Doupe; heart, teacher and school pupils; pillow, L.O.B.A. and L.O.L.; sheaf Women's Institute. The pall bearers were Sidney Griffin, Leonard Martin, George Sharpe, Earle King, Glenn Lochhead and Harold Hughes. The sympathy of the whole community goes out to the parents and family in their sad bereavement.

ERNESTTOWN

The week end storm eclipsed all others for the winter. There is no mistake in March being blusty. On Friday last it showed us how blustry it could be.—A number attended the funeral of Mr. H. Vanalstine, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Hoyle, on Friday last.—The sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.—Mrs. Norman Hamm has returned home, after spending the winter with her sons, B. and A. Hamm, Denver.—Mr. and Mrs. Perry Parks and Miss Parks, of Hawley, spent Tuesday at Mr. Joel Kellar's.—Mr. Bert Smith spent Saturday in town on business.—Don't forget the next meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Spring, on March 21st.—Mrs. Clarence Thompson and daughters, Norma and Francis, spent the week end with Mrs. Wm. Closs, Violet.—Much sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Leo Crowe, in the death of his father, Mr. E. Crowe, of Cobourg. His many friends here will be sorry to hear of his death, he being a resident of this place as station agent for about forty-five years.—Mrs. Fred Hamm returned home from Toronto last week.—Mrs. Martin Wiseman spent a few days at Mr. Wm. Armstrong's.

REVIEW OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Toronto, March 9th, 1928.

Administration of the Ferguson Government is meeting with approval in all quarters of the Legislature. Speaking in the debate on the budget, Hon. Harry Nixon, former Provincial Secretary for the Drury Government, expressed his approval of the business-like administration of the government.

"Partyism never meant a great deal to me," stated Hon. Mr. Nixon, "and at this government gives, the province economic and honest administration and legislation I would not care how long they stay in office. I can assure this government that this group will render every assistance possible by our constructive suggestions."

With the view of again giving the public an opportunity to read and discuss the measure, Premier Ferguson has again introduced the Ontario School Board Bill in the legislature. At three previous sessions it was introduced, discussed and withdrawn in deference to opposition, which arose in some quarters, and to permit further study of its measures. This time, Premier Ferguson announces, the bill will be pressed for enactment but it is proposed that it will not be proclaimed until everyone has had an opportunity to become familiar with its provisions.

Statements made by members of the Opposition during the course of their remarks in the legislature on the Liquor Control Act is considered have been subjected to thorough reputation in the House during the past week. Recent remarks by F. W. Pearson, Liberal member for North York, alleging an increase in drunkenness in Northern Ontario as a result of the operations of the L. C. A. were vigorously denied by Attorney-General Price through the medium of the Crown Attorney of Sudbury.

* * * * *

In a letter to the Attorney-General, Crown-Attorney McKessock states that drunkenness has decreased under the new law and states "the fact that men are now able to get liquor at the stores seems to have made most of them determined to give the law their moral support."

Statement of T. F. Slack, Progressive member for Dufferin, that two or three truckloads of bootleg liquor were distributed in Shelburne every night also brought denial from the local police authorities. In a letter to the Attorney-General the police state that thorough enquiries will be substantiate the charge. Officers of the Court and Mr. Steve of Shelburne also add their denials to Mr. Slack's statement.

Following representations made to the Department of Game and Fisheries and the Legislative Committee, the government will again adopt the shorter season for the hunting of deer in the Province. Last year the season was lengthened from 15 to 30 days, but it has been decided to again confine the open season to practically the same dates as before.

Addressing the Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature, Hon. Charles McCrea stated that the government was not favorably disposed to increasing the bounty on wolves. While it was realized that immediate steps should be taken to stop, out the wolf as far as possible, an increased bounty was not considered a necessary adjunct. He pointed out that at present one pelts were being received with a bounty that there was in 1924 only the bounty was $40.00. Hon. Mr. McCrea felt that the bounty could not be raised without running the danger of having wolves turned in that had been imported through Ontario. At the present time the bounty is $20.00 in Ontario.

An intensive study of the wolf situation is to be taken on the raising of farm stock and the protection of game, is to be undertaken by the government.

Vocation guidance of the Ontario Government is course in connection with the Old Age Pensions plan which leaves the House by K. K. Hesmith Conservative, who for many years has been actively identified with the labor movement. Mr. Hesmith stated that the government of Ontario realized the tremendous debt that was owing to the aged people of the Province and that the matter was receiving their careful attention of the government.

He charged that the Dominion government was trying to throw the responsibility upon the province and was, at the same time, dodging its share of the old age pensions. The Dominion government, he said, had studied the question for many years before they introduced legislation and then in the hope that it would be defeated by the Senate. The Ontario Government, he said, did not intend to be rushed into the matter but wanted to study the situation for a year. He pointed out that the establishment of the scheme would be a heavy burden on the resources of the province and that adequate provision would have to be made for the finding of the monies needed.

Commenting editorially on the Ontario Budget, the Chronicle-Telegraph of Quebec says: "The financial position of Ontario seems to be sound with the lightest prospects for the future and the Ferguson government has every reason to be satisfied with its record."

Premier Ferguson has announced to the Legislature that the government will not countenance the taxation of buildings and land of municipal public utilities. Two bills introduced with this step in view, on behalf of the City of Toronto, were withdrawn in the face of the premier's announcement. One of the bills was for the purpose of eliminating buildings used by public utilities operated by municipalities from exemption while the other provided for the establishment of taxation on land so occupied. Premier Ferguson stated that the bills could only result in increased power costs and stated that the government would not be prepared to give the measures any support.

After a comprehensive survey of the situation the government has introduced in the Legislature a measure to check the selling of fraudulent stocks in Ontario. The legislation provides for the registration of brokers and salesmen, and gives the Attorney-General wide powers to institute investigation into any security placed on the market. All persons who sell securities, whether acting as officials or salesmen, are included in the Act subject to certain specific exemptions.

Clauses in the Bill defining fraud and fraudulent action are very comprehensive, including "generally any course of conduct or business which is calculated to put forward with intent to deceive the public or the purchasers of any security as to the nature of any transaction or as to the value of such security."

The measure was drawn from the experience gained in the various laws in operation in the United States, as well as those in operation in Western Canada. Under the proposed law every broker must file a bond of $500 with the government. This action was taken to give the Attorney-General's Department an opportunity of controlling the assets of a defunct broker who has defrauded the public. The government may also demand substantial bond to cover cases where doubt as to the legality of the business is in the mind of the government.

Among the exemptions to the Act for which registration is not necessary are the following :—Judicial sales; sale by pledges for debt; distribution of stock dividends; transactions where one party is a public official, or a bank, loan, insurance or trust company, or registered; exchange on stock or merger; prospector's grub-stake; trustees' securities; secured bonds or notes; negotiable paper; securities based on conditional sales; shares of educational, benevolent fraternal or recreational bodies where there is no pecuniary profit.

* * * * *

With the view of increasing the scope of the legislation the government has introduced an amendment to the Workmen's Compensation Act. The amendment provides for the payment of compensation in whole or in part to those who are dependents of workmen, who, while entitled to the remuneration, have either left the country or have separated from their families.

Provisions of the legislation apply to cases where the family or dependents are without adequate means of support and likely to become a charge on the municipality. In such cases the Board may divert such compensation in whole or in part to the benefit of the dependents.

Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, has presented to the House a bill to amend the Weed Control Act, which requires road inspectors to see that weed cutting along the roads is carried out. Provision is made that highway grants shall not be paid in the event of the work not being done.

Reports presented to the Legislature indicate that during the past year the Department of Public Health has distributed free 11,196,200 units of insulin valued at $47,477. Free biological products dispensed by the government for the same period were valued at $152,-043. A decrease in the number of deaths from tuberculosis is also shown. Total number of cases reported was 1,534 with 732 deaths being reported. Figures for the previous year show that there were 1,669 cases and 821 deaths.

A little fellow, shut in on account of illness, found life very monotonous one. One day he said to his mother, "Mamma, do you know what I wish I was?"

"No, dear. What?"

"Well, I just wish I was two little puppies, for then I could romp with myself."

COSEY NOOK

(For last week.)

We are glad to know that those who are under the Doctor's care are improving.—Master Howard Hawley is sick at time of writing. We hope to see him around again soon. — Mr. Amos Storey and family and his father and mother have moved to Newburgh. Before leaving for his new home he treated his friends and neighbours to an oyster supper, which was much appreciated by all who were there. Before returning to their homes all sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow". Mr. Noah Kimmerly is working his farm this year.—Thos. Storey is moving to Odessa this week.—Mr. Stevens and family are moving off the Purdy farm to their new home on the River Road.—Miss Marion Storey has secured a position attending the switch board and telephone office at Newburgh.—Mr. Lawrence Baird has moved on the Charles Wilson farm, which he bought.—Mr. and Mrs. Hallett have spent Sunday at T. Storey's. — We are having real cold weather, but not much snow. The ice is very thick at the time, and a daily buss runs from Kingston to Belleville which is a great convenience to the public. People can go to town in the morning and return in the afternoon.—Mr. Curran is very low at time of writing. Just a year ago he was taken sick and has continued ill since then. All that could be done to restore his health has been done. We hope to see him around again soon.

FIGHTING FOR BABY'S HEALTH

Is the Constant Care of Every Young Mother.

The young mother has a constant care in looking after the welfare of her little ones. Childhood ailments are not to be underestimated—for even a minute's warning — the mother may have a very sick baby on her hands before help can be obtained. That is unless she has a remedy in the house which she can safely give the baby for any of the many minor ailments of babyhood and childhood.

Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets. Thousands of mothers throughout the country always keep a box of the Tablets on hand and they proclaim them to be without an equal for sweetening baby's stomach; regulating his bowels, and thus driving out constipation and indigestion, colds and simple fevers, and making the dreaded teething period easy.

Baby's Own Tablets are an absolutely safe remedy. They are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any other narcotic drug which are so harmful to the future welfare of the baby. Mothers, if you value the life of your little ones give him Baby's Own Tablets when he is ill, or, better still, give him an occasional dose of the Tablets to ward off illness. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or will be sent to any address, post paid, for 25 cents a box by writing to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Address and Presentation

On Sunday, March 4th, at the United Church Sunday School, the following presentation and address was given to Reta Thompson, who is moving away from here to live in Oshawa, Ont.

Dear Reta.—We, the officers and members of Tamworth United Church Mission Band, wish to convey to you our hearty appreciation for the willing help you have given us in our Mission Band. We have always found you a great help, and no matter when we called upon you for assistance, we have found you both ready and anxious to assist in any way you could.

Dear Reta, we would ask you to accept this Bible as a slight token of our appreciation, and hope and pray that you may always find guidance and comfort within its pages. Hoping we do not like to let you go, we sincerely hope that you will continue in this good work, and that God will aid and prosper you in your new home.

Signed on behalf of the Mission Band,

MARION RICHMOND, President.
ALEXANDRIA GILMORE, Secretary.

The Honor of the Big Snows

By James Oliver Curwood

Author of "The Danger Trail"

A Cree trapper had found Jan's victim in the snow and had brought it to Mabella. Before Cummins finished his supper the boy began to play, and he continued to play until the lights at the post went out and both the man and the child were deep in sleep. Then Jan stopped. There was the fire of a keen wakefulness in his eyes as he carefully unfastened the strings of his instrument and held it close to the oil lamp, so that he could peer down through the narrow aperture in the box.

He looked again at Cummins. The man was sleeping with his face to the wall. With the hooked wire which he used for cleaning his revolver Jan fished gently at the very end of the box, and after three or four efforts the wire caught in something soft, which he pulled toward him. Through the bulge in the "F" hole he dragged forth a small, tightly rolled cylinder of faded red cloth.

For a few moments he sat watching the deep breathing of Cummins, unrolling the cloth as he watched, until he had spread out upon the table before him a number of closely written pages of paper. He weighted them at one end with his violin and held them down at the other with his hands. The writing was in French. Several of the pages were in a heavy masculine hand, the words running one upon another so closely that in places they seemed to be connected, and from them Jan took his fingers, so that they rolled up like a spring. Over the others he bent his head, and there came from him a low, sobbing breath.

On these pages the writing was that of a woman, and from the paper there still rose a faint, sweet scent of heliotrope. For half an hour Jan gazed upon them, reading the words slowly until he came to the last page.

A new and strange longing crept into his heart. He stretched out his arms, with the papers and his violin clutched in his hands, as if a wonderful spirit was calling to him.

For the first time in his lonely life it came to him—the call of the great world beyond the wilderness—and suddenly he crushed the woman's letter to his lips, and his voice burst from him in whispering, thrilling eagerness:

"I will come to you—some day—when ze leetle Melisse come, too."

He rolled the written pages together, wrapped them in the faded red cloth and concealed them again in the box of his violin before he re-entered the cabin.

The next morning Cummins stood in the door and said:

"How warm the sun is! The snow and ice are going, Jan. It's spring. We'll house the sledges today and begin feeding the dogs on fish."

Each day thereafter the sun rose earlier, the day was longer and the air was warmer. With the warmth there now came the sweet scents of the budding earth and the myriad sounds of the deep, unseen life of the forest awakening from its long slumber in its bed of snow.

The post fell back into its old ways. Now and then a visitor came in from out of the forest, but he remained for only a day or two, taking back into the solitude with him a few of the necessaries of life. Williams was busy preparing his books for the coming of the company's chief agent from London, and Cummins, who was helping the factor, had a good deal of extra time on his hands.

Before the last of the snow was gone he also began dragging in logs for an addition which they planned for the little cabin. Basking out in the sun, with a huge bearskin for a floor, Melisse looked upon the new home building with wonderful demonstrations of interest. Cummins' face glowed with pleasure as she kicked and scrambled on the bearskin and gave shrill voiced approval of their efforts.

Jan was the happiest youth in the world. It was certain that the little Melisse, nearly six months old, understood what they were doing.

As the weather grew warmer and spring changed into summer Jan took Melisse upon short excursions with him into the forests, and he picked for her great armfuls of flowers and arctic ferns. The grave was never without fresh offerings, and the cabin, with its new addition complete, was always filled with the beautiful things that spring up out of the earth.

Jan and Melisse were happy, and in the joys of these two there was pleasure for the others of the post, as there had been happiness in the presence of the woman. Only upon Cummins had there settled a deep grief. The chances of spring and summer, bringing with them all that this desolate world held of warmth and beauty, filled him with the excruciating pain of his great grief, as if the woman had died but yesterday.

At last, his gaunt frame thinned by sleepless nights and days of mental torture, he said that in the autumn he would leave calling him to Churchill, and early in August he left for the bay. He left Melisse in care of Jan, and the child seemed to recognize the guardianship.

When Cummins came back from Fort Churchill in the autumn he brought with him a pack full of things for Melisse, including new books and papers, for which he had spent a share of his season's earnings. As he was freeing these treasures from their wrapping of soft carbon skin, with Jan and Melisse both looking on, he stopped suddenly and glanced from his knees up at the boy.

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"They're wondering over at Churchill what became of the missionary who left with the mail, Jan. They say he was last seen at the Etawney."

"And not here?" replied Jan quickly.

"Not that they know of," said Cummins, still keeping his eyes on the boy. "The man who drove him never got back to Churchill. They're wondering where the driver went too. A company officer has gone up to the Etawney, and it is possible he may come over to Lac Bain. I don't believe he'll find the missionary."

"Neither do I," said Jan quite coolly. "He is probably dead, and the wolves and foxes have eaten him before this—or mebby te feesh."

Cummins resumed his task of unpacking, and among the books which he brought forth there were two which he gave to Jan.

"The supply ship from London came in while I was at Churchill, and those came with it," he explained. "They're schoolbooks. There's going to be a school at Churchill next winter, and the winter after that it will be at York factory, down on the Hayes." He settled back on his heels and looked at Jan. "It's the first school that has ever come nearer than 400 miles of us. That's at Prince Albert."

For many succeeding days Jan took long walks alone in the forest trails and silently thrashed out the two problems which Cummins had brought back from Churchill for him. Should he warn Jean de Gravois that a company officer was investigating the disappearance of the missionary?

At first his impulse was to go at once into Jean's haunts beyond Pond du Lac and give him the news, but even if the officer did come to Post Lac Bain how would he know that the missionary was at the bottom of the lake and that Jean de Gravois was accountable for it? So in the end Jan decided that it would be folly to stir up the little trapper's fears, and he thought no more of the company's investigator who had gone up to the Etawney.

CHAPTER VI.
The Red Terror.

CUMMINS' word of the school at Churchill had put a new and thrilling thought into Jan's head, and always with that thought he coupled visions of the growing Melisse. This year the school would be at Churchill and the next at York factory, and after that it might be gone forever, so that when Melisse grew up there would be none nearer than what Jan looked upon as the other end of the world. Why could not he go to school for Melisse and store up treasures which in time he might turn over to her?

The scheme was a colossal one, by all odds the largest that had ever entered into his dreams of what life held for him. It was not until the first cold chills of approaching winter crept down from the north and east that he told Cummins of his intention.

Once his mind was settled Jan lost no time in putting his plans into action. Mukee knew after that it might be completed

SELBY Y. P. BRANCH

The meeting of the Selby Young People's Branch was held at the home of Mrs. A. Frakin, on the evening of March 2nd. There was the average attendance and the meeting was very interesting. A splendid programme was carried out under the leadership of Miss Hazel Martin.

The meeting opened in the usual way, with the singing of a hymn, followed by Prayer; then Miss G. Grange read the Scripture lesson. There were also readings by Miss G. Dudgeon and Miss M. McMillan, consisting of "Alcohol in Experience and Experiment", and "Ones Greatest Hero". The 65th chapter of Life and Defense was read by Miss H. Martin, which was greatly appreciated. A recitation was given by Miss Velda Henderson. A very interesting and well prepared paper on "Total Abstinence" was given by our President, Miss B. Hudgins. Several business matters were discussed.

It was moved and seconded, that our Y. W. C. T. U. would be changed to Young People's Branch.

The minutes were then read by Miss L. Davis, and approved.

The meeting closed by the Benediction.

The social part of the programme consisted of contests and games, after which a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Frakin. All went home regretting an enjoyable evening.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Wilde.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad and loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Allan Sager, who departed from this life March 15th, 1927.
As we loved her, so we miss her,
In our memory she is dear;
Loved, remembered, thought of always
Bringing many a silent tear.
She bade no one a last farewell,
We said good-bye to none;
The heavenly gates were opened wide
A loving voice said "come !"
Sleep on, dear Mother, your cares are ended;
Rest in peace, your work is done;
You are gone where those who loved you,
Will meet you one by one.
11ap —Ever remembered by Family.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear brother, Percy Young, who entered into rest March 19th, 1927.
No one knows the heartache,
Only those who have lost can tell,
They have left that is borne in silence
For the one we loved so well.
Sadly missed by Sister and Brother-in-law, Harry and Pearl Blakely. 11ap

IN MEMORIAM

In ever loving memory of Percy, dearly beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Christie Young, who departed this life on March 19th, 1927.
He gave no one a last farewell,
He said good-bye to none;
His spirit flew before we knew
That from us he had gone.
So sweet is the word remembrance,
As these few lines will show;
Percy will always be remembered
In the years that come and go.
Take him in thine arms, O Lord,
And ever let him be
A messenger of love
Between our lonesome hearts and thee.
Lovingly remembered by Mother and Dad, Brothers and Sisters.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our dear son, who passed away March 15th, 1921.
We often think of days gone by,
When we were all together;
The shadow of our lives is past,
Our loved one gone forever.
To-night the years are shining
Upon a lonely grave;
There sleepeth there without dreaming,
One we loved but could not save.
The rolling streams of life pass on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the smile, the love, the voice
Of one who once sat there.
Sadly missed by Father, Mother, Sister, Brother. 11ap

A VAST OUTLAY

The Bell Telephone Company of Canada, in one item of its annual report, puts at $18,206,239 the 1927 expenditure for gross additions to its property in Ontario and Quebec, land, buildings, central office equipment, outside plant and subscribers' apparatus. Plans for 1928 will involve an outlay of more than 22 millions. This is said to be the largest continuous expenditure for extension of facilities made by any Canadian enterprise.

Your immediate selection is cordially solicited.

The Coat — SPRING 1928

For Sports

Are exceedingly clever Coats, fashioned from Kasha and Tweed materials. Coats in colors that blend with Spring sunshine and warmer days. On many of these coats scarf collars have replaced furs in trimmings. Materials are both imported and domestic.

Priced from $16.50 to $49.50.

For School

Are immensely practical coats in "Prince of Wales" tailored styles. These come impeccably tailored from imported Tricotine and Poiret-Twill materials that give unquestionable great wear. Frequently a touch of color is supplied by placing a flower on the lapel.

Navy Blue is the outstanding color.

Priced $16.50 to $35.00.

For Dress

And all formal occasions come coats beautifully created from dependable twill finished materials. Every coat features a new interpretation of the mode which may be expressed in a flattering scarf, off the shoulder fur collar, intricate insets of satin, tucks and stitching in sunburst effects. All are beautifully finished.

Priced from $16.50 to $44.50.

The Dress — SPRING 1928

Sport Dresses

Continue to favor two-piece modes and to show a marked preference for light-weight Woollens or Silk and Wool combinations. Pleats are used in diversified ways to create variety in skirts, while contrasted fabric insets, varied neck-lines, belts and buckles produce unusual and satisfying effects in tunics.

Priced from $13.95 to $35.00.

For Afternoons

Come a host of pleasing styles in semi-tailored effects. For these practical type dresses, Fashion has chosen "Silk Crepes" in various delightful weaves. These materials possess splendid weight and rich finish. Straight-line styles predominate, while exclusiveness and variety are exemplified in numerous pleasing ways.

Priced from $13.95 to $27.50.

For Occasions

Where formality plays a part, are dresses most feminine in conception and construction. Delicately woven Georgette Crepes come combined with laces in matching color combinations. Many dresses are in self tones with skirts artistically draped, tiered or uneven at the hem-line. Shown in a wide range of new colorings.

Priced from $22.50 to $47.50.

The Hat — SPRING 1928

A Felt of Course

Not one, but two or even three, will be necessary this season, one to crown every costume. And here they are in all the newer variations of the mode, beautifully combined with other materials, all in readiness and especially suited as escorts for Spring coats.

Priced from $2.69 to $3.95.

From Manufacturers' Workrooms

Come specialized hats, each portraying some successful new turn in the mode as originated in Paris and New York. In this collection "hat brims" tell the story, for they come rolled, slashed, curved over the eye-brow, turned in.

Shapes continue small with, crowns lower than former seasons. Moderately priced.

For Matrons

Are hats especially created and especially proportioned. Care has been taken to incorporate prevailing style features and to make them becoming to older faces. Silk and Straw combinations are effectively used here, while Black is the prevailing color.

Priced $4.50 to $10.50.

The Accessories — SPRING 1928

Crepe Scarfs

Provide that dash of color so necessary with every spring-time costume. The oblong scarf finds a rival in the new square effects. Both come created from beautifully toned silks, gayly stencilled in two and three toned color combinations.

Priced from $1.79 to $4.95.

Fine Silk Hose

To wear with finest frocks. Hose made from silks exquisitely soft in weave and texture, yet strong and dependable. Hose perfectly knitted, with silk to the top, and accurately proportioned so as to be perfect in fit and appearance. Choose from a magnificent range of new and attractive colorings.

Price, $1.50 and $2.00.

Foundation Garments

Play a star role in the Spring Fashion Revue. They provide the proper foundation for your outward appearances. The cleverest of frocks won't look their part unless worn over correctly styled and properly fitted foundation garments. There's a model for every figure type. Be sure to choose these necessities first. At all prices.

COSSA BASKETBALL.

Albert College 21; N.C.I. 29.

On Friday evening last, in the Collegiate gym., N.C.I. defeated Albert College by the narrow margin of 29-21. Only the Senior teams played, it being the first home game of the Bay of Quinte league.

The visitors have greatly improved since N.C.I. beat them at Albert, and had it not been for the smooth combination of the local forwards, the score might have been reversed. The college quintet were particularly unfortunate, as two of their men were unable to come, and their crack forward, Doug. Marrett, had to retire early; Jack Wright was not up to usual form either. Napanee easily ran up eighteen points in the first half to Albert's 4, and the locals displayed excellent combination which their opponents couldn't break up. In the second half, however, Manager Scott brought "Sy" Williams down from the gallery, and he proceeded to tally fifteen points in about ten minutes. He is short and fast, and only missed two shots during his entire playing time. He was the leading scorer on the floor and perhaps the best player. For a while it looked as if the locals' laurels were endangered, but they held their own. The game was good but not rough, and was not won until the final whistle.

The visitors have improved vastly. "Sy" Williams was the pick, although the entire team played well and showed good team spirit. D. Muir, at forward, was quite effective, and J. Wright played a good defensive game. No one member of the locals stood out. Team play and combination were their strong points. Gilbride scored many difficult shots in the first session, registering 10, while Black, playing well throughout, scored 12 points. The spare forwards held their own when on, and the defense worked well.

The following is the line-up, the numbers representing the points scored :—

Albert College—Centre, J. Wright; right forward, D. Muir, Capt., 6; left forward, D. Marrett; right defense, J. Downie; left defense, B. Thompson; spares, J. Rea, H. Purcupile, H. Horton, S. Williams 15.

Referee—C. Evoy, Belleville Y.M.C.C. Scorers—S. A. Murray, G. E. Gibbard Timer—Don. Mulholland.

A good crowd witnessed the game in spite of the inclement weather. After the game, Stevens' Blue Jacket Orchestra supplied the music for a thoroughly enjoyed dance.

Belleville Collegiate are expected to play here to-night (Friday), and the game should be a good one. It will likely be the last exhibition of the cage game this year, and so don't miss it.

EXHIBITION BASKETBALL.

Athenians 32; Spartans 31.

In a close and most exciting game of basketball, the Athenian Girl Basketeers defeated the Spartans by the narrow margin of 32-31. The Spartans led the score until the last two or three minutes, when the Athenians forged ahead to win by a basket. The Laconians had the game won but let Kay Gleeson get away once too often and lost it. Everyone thought that the Athenians would have a walk-over, but it was not so. The Athenian forwards played well and made good most of their rare chances to shoot. The rest of the team played as well as could be expected, considering they were Athenians. The Spartans had a bit the edge of the play throughout and it was a hard game to lose. Mona Graham put up a mighty good fight, and was responsible for most of the baskets, Dorothy Wilson played well too. She has a deadly shot, and if she would take more time in shooting she could equal any forward in the school. The defense and centres worked well and held their opponents almost throughout the game.

The following is the line-up :—

Athenians—Centres, M. Grass, K. Dickson; forwards, K. Gleeson, Marion Douglas; defense, E. Harrison, M. McHowell; spare, M. Embury.

Spartans—Centres, E. Aylsworth, D. Wilson; forwards, M. Graham, J. McKawan; defense, M. Gibbard, Margaret Douglas; spares, H. Drake, G. Joyce.

STUDENTS' COUNCIL MEETING

The postponed regular March meeting of the N.C.I. Students' Council was held at 3.30 p.m. on Tuesday, in the library. Mr. Beattie was in the chair, and fourteen members present.

In the absence of the Secretary, the reading of the February minutes was put off until the next meeting, and the President appointed Dorothy Daverin secretary pro tem.

Chairman Merritt read the report of the Property Committee, which was adopted. The matter of placing suitably engraved shields on the basketball trophies was placed in the hands of the Girls' Athletic Society. Also moved by President Gibbard, that the Property Committee report at next meeting about placing pictures of the school teams in the halls. Carried. The Chairman also read of the Principal's financial report of school properties which showed a deficit of about $15.00, which is amply covered by commencement.

The Library Committee had no report other than the way in which the library grant had been used. The matter of purchasing the "Source Book" was referred to the Committee.

Chairman Munroe Beattie of the Literary and Dramatic Committee reported the "Torch" was going to press shortly, and would be read about the first week in May.

The Public Speaking Committee reported the results of the contest in the school, and said that the winner, Monroe Beattie, would compete for the district championship in Kingston on Friday.

The Boys' and Girls' Athletic Societies, the Social and Music had no report.

The Easter Dance was discussed, and the date of April 20th was suggested, but the Social Committee was asked to report at the April meeting.

Moved by President Gibbard, seconded by G. Gibson that the Secretary send Mr. C. Waite a letter of appreciation for his services in training the Glee Club, which he did without charge. Carried.

Meeting adjourned.

Curran was smiling to himself in court one day, until he goaded the judge into the indiscretion of asking :

"Do you see anything particularly ridiculous in my wig, Mr. Curran?"

"Only the head, my lord," he retorted.

Curran caught Lord Norbury very neatly at a legal dinner. In front of the advocate was a large joint of beef, and the judge asked :—

"Is that hung beef, Curran?"

"It's sure to be if you try it, my lord !" said he.

THE BEST THAT'S MADE IN EVERY GRADE

The Honor of the Big Snows

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD. Author of "The Danger Trail"

Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs Merrill Co

Bain early in the winter Henderson was factor there, and he passed up the warning that had come to him from Nelson House and the country to the southeast.

"There's smallpox on the Nelson," his messenger informed Williams, "and it has struck the Cree on Wilmotton lake. God only knows what it is doing to the hay Indians, and we don't want it to ship out the Chippewayans between the Athasy and the Churchill." He left the same day with his sledge and dogs. "I'm off for the Frenchmen to the west with the compliments of our company," he explained.

Three days later word came from Churchill that all of the company's servants and her majesty's subjects east of the bay should remain themselves for the coming of the plague. Then Williams' thick face went as white as the paper he held as he read the words of the Churchill factor.

"It means dig graves," he said. "That's the only preparation we can make."

He read the paper aloud to the men at Lac Bain, and every available man was detailed to spread the warning throughout the post's territory. There was a quick harnessing of dogs, and on each sledge that went out was a roll of red cotton cloth.

Jan went over the Churchill trail and then swung southward along the Hasabala, where the country was crisscrossed with trap lines of the halfbreeds and the French. First he struck the cabin of Croisset and his wife and left part of his cloth. Then he turned westward, while Croisset harnessed his dogs and hurried with a quarter of the roll to the south. Between the Halabala and Klokol lake Jan found three other cabins, and at each he left a bit of the red cotton. Forty miles to the south, somewhere on the Porcupine, he found the cabin of Henry Laniglois, the post's greatest for hunter.

Over it, hanging limply to a sapling pole, was the red signal of horror.

With a terrified cry to the dogs, Jan ran back, and the team turned about and followed him in a tangled mass. Then he stopped. There was a thin smoke rising from the clay chimney on the little cabin. Its one window was white with frost. Again and again he shouted, but no sign of life responded to his cries. He fired his rifle twice and waited with his mittened hand over his mouth to hold back grits. There was no reply. Then, abandoning hope, he turned back into the north and gave his dogs the rest until he had reached Lac Bain.

His team came in half dead. Both Cummins and Williams rushed out to meet him as he drove up before the company's store.

"The red flag is over Langlois cabin!" he cried.

"I fired my rifle and shouted. There is no life! Langlois is dead!"

"Great God!" groaned Williams.

His red face changed to a sickly pallor, and he stood with his thick hands clinched while Cummins took charge of the dogs and Jan went into the store for something to eat.

Mukee and Per-ee returned to the post the next day. Young Williams followed close after them, filled with terror. He had found the plague among the Cree of the Waterfound. Each day added to the gloom at Lac Bain. Death leaped from cabin to cabin in the wilderness to the west. By the middle of the month of June Bain was hemmed in by the plague on all sides but the north.

Ten post's trap lines had been shortened; now they were abandoned entirely, and the great fight began. Williams assembled his men and told them how that same battle had been fought nearly two decades before. For sixty miles about the post every cabin and wigwam that flouted a red flag must be visited and burned if the occupants were dead. In learning whether life or death existed in these cabins lay the peril for those who undertook the task. It was a dangerous mission. It meant facing a death from which those who listened to the old factor shrank with dread, yet when the call came they responded to a man.

Cummins and Jan ate their last supper together, with Mellase sitting between them and wondering at their silence. When it was over the two went outside.

"Mukee wasn't at the store," said Cummins in a thick, strained voice, halting Jan in the gloom behind the cabin. "Williams thought he was off to the south with his dogs. But he isn't. I saw him drag himself into his sank. There'll be a red flag over Lac Bain in the morning."

Jan sighted the empty cry on his lips. "Ah, there's a light!" cried Cummins. "It's a pitch torch burning in front of the door!"

He gripped Jan's arm in a sudden spasm of horror. "The flag is up now!" he whispered huskily. "Go back to Mellise. There is food in the house for a month and you can bring the wood in tonight. Bar the door. Open only the back window for air. Stay inside—with her—until it is all over. Go!"

"To the red flags, that is where I will go!" cried Jan fiercely, wrenching his arm free. "It is your place to stay with Mellise!"

"My place is with the men."

"And mine?" Jan drew himself up rigid.

"One of us must shut himself up with her," pleaded Cummins. "It must be you." His face gleamed white in the darkness. "You came—that night—because Mellise was here. Something sent you—something—don't you understand? And since then she has never been near to death until now. You must stay with Mellise—with Fon violin"

"Mellise herself shall choose," replied Jan. "We will go into the cabin, and the one to whom she comes first goes among the red flags. The other shuts himself in the cabin until the plague is gone."

He turned swiftly back to the door As he opened it he stepped aside to let Cummins enter first, and behind the other's head Jack he leaped quickly to one side, his eyes glowing, his white teeth gleaming in a smile. Unseen by Cummins, he stretched out his hand and gently lifted the pistol with the strings of his violin on the table.

He had done this a thousand times, and Mellise knew what it meant—a kiss and a joyous toss halfway to the ceiling. She jumped from her stool and ran to him.

"I am going down among the sick Cree in Cummins' place," said Jan to Williams half an hour later. "Now that the plague has come to Lac Bain, he must stay with Mellise."

CHAPTER VII.
Almost a Woman.

THE next morning Jan struck out over his old trail to the Hasabala. The Cree were gone. He spent a day swinging east and west and found old trails leading into the north.

"They have gone up among the Eskimos," he said to himself. "Ah, Kazan, what in the name of the saints is that?"

The leading dog dropped upon his haunches with a menacing growl as a fine figure emerged across the snow toward them. It was Croisset. With a groan, he dropped upon the sledge.

"I am sick and starving," he wailed. "The flend himself has got into my cabin, and for three days I've had nothing but snow and a raw whisky jack."

"Sick" cried Jan, drawing a step away from him.

"Yes, sick from an empty belly, and this, and this!" He showed a forearm done up in a bloody rag and pointed to his neck, from which the skin was peeling. "I was gone ten days with that red cloth you gave me, and when I came back, if there wasn't the devil's own feasting at me from the top of my own shanty! I tried to get in not my wife barred the door and even tried she would shoot me if I didn't get back into the woods. I tried to shoot in at night through a window, but she stretched me in hot water. I built a wigwam at the edge of the forest, and stayed there for five days. Starved, blessed saints, I had no medicine, no grub; and when I got close enough to tell these things to her she kept her word and plunked me through a crack in the door, so that I lost a pint of blood from this arm."

"I'll give you something to eat," laughed Jan, undoing his pack. "How long has the red flag been up?"

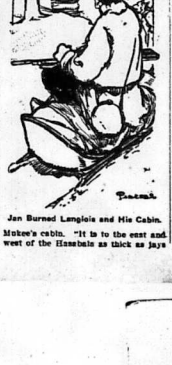
"I've lost all count of time, but it's twelve days, if an hour, and I swear I'm going to take all winter to get it down!"

"It's not the plague. Go back and tell your wife so." But Croisset said he would go to Lac Bain.

Jan left him beside a good fire and turned into the southwest to burn Langlois and his cabin. Then he continued westward. At the head of the Porcupine he found the remains of three burned wigwams, and from one of them he dug out charred bones.

Croisset reached the post forty-eight hours after he had encountered Jan.

"The red flag is every place!" he cried, catching sight of the signal over



Jan Burned Langlois and His Cabin.

Mukee's cabin. "It is to the east and west of the Hasabala as thick as jays in springtime!"

A Cree from the Gray Otter drove in on his way north. "Six wigwams with dead in them," he reported in his own language to Williams. "A company man, with a one eyed leader and four trailers, left the Gray Otter to burn them." William took down his birch bark moose horn and bellowed a weird signal to Cummins, who opened a crack of his door to listen, with Mellse close beside him.

"Thoreau is in the thick of it to the south," he called. "There's too much of it for him, and I'm going down with the dogs. Croisset will stay in the store for a few days."

The days brought quick changes now. One morning the moose horn called Cummins to the door. It was the fifth day after Williams had gone south.

"There was no smoke this morning, and I looked through the window," shouted Croisset. "Mukee and the old man are both dead. I'm going to burn the cabin."

A stifled groan of anguish fell from Cummins' lips as he went like a dazed man to his cot and flung himself face downward upon it. Mellise could see his strong frame shaking as if he were crying like a child, and, twining her arms tightly about his neck, she sobbed out her passionate grief against his rough cheek.

The next morning when Cummins went to awaken her his face went as white as death. Mellise was not asleep. Her eyes were wide open and staring at him, and her soft cheeks burned with the hot glow of fever.

"You are sick, Mellise," he whispered hoarsely. "You are sick!"

He fell upon his knees beside her and lifted her face to his hands. The touch of it sent a chill to his heart, such as he had not felt since years ago, in that other room a few steps away.

"I want Jan," she pleaded. "I want Jan to come back to me!"

"I will send for him, dear. He will come back soon. I will go out and send Croisset."

He bid his face from her as he dragged himself away. Croisset saw him coming and came out of the store to meet him. A hundred yards away Cummins stopped.

"Croisset, for the love of God, take a team and go after Jan Thoreau," he called. "Tell him that Mellise is dying of the plague. Hurry, hurry!"

"Night and day!" shouted Croisset.

Twenty minutes later from the cabin window Cummins saw him start.

"Jan will be here very soon, Mellise," he said, running his fingers gently through her hair. Toward evening there came a change. The fever left the child's cheeks. Her eyes closed and she fell asleep. Through the night Cummins sat near the door, but in the gray dawn, overcome by his long vigil, his head dropped upon his breast and he slumbered.

When he awoke the cabin was filled with light. He heard a sound and, startled, sprang to his feet. Mellise was at the stove building a fire!

"I'm better this morning, father. Why didn't you sleep until breakfast was ready?"

Cummins stared. Then he gave a shout, made a rush for her and, catching her up in his arms, danced about the cabin like a madman. Mellise laughing the chairs and allowing the room to fill with smoke in his wild joy.

"It's what you saw through the window that made you sick, Mellise!" he cried, putting her down at last. "I thought—" He paused and added, his voice trembling, "I thought you were going to be sick for more than one day, my sweet little woman!"

He opened one of the windows to let in the fresh air of the morning.

When Croisset returned he found not a red flag over Cummins' cabin, nor did he bring word of Jan. For three days he had followed the trails to the south without finding the boy. But he brought back other news. Williams was sick with the plague in a Cree wigwam on the lower Porcupine. It was the last they ever heard of the factor, except that he died some time in March and was buried by the Crees.

Croisset went back over the Churchill trail and found his wife ready to greet him with open arms. After that he joined Per-ee, who was in from the north, in another search for Jan. They found neither trace nor word of him after passing the Gray Otter, and Cummins gave up hope.

It was not for long that their fears could be kept from Mellise. This first bitter grief that had come into her life fell upon her with a force which alarmed Cummins and cast him into deep gloom. With growing despair Cummins saw his own efforts fall.

As the days passed Mellise mingled more and more with the Indian and half breed children and spent much of her time at the company's store, listening to the talk of the men, silent, attentive, unresponsive to any efforts they might make to engage her smiles. From her own heart she looked out upon a world that had become a void for her. Jan had been mother, brother and everything that was tender and sweet to her, and he was gone. Mukee, whom she had loved, was gone. Williams was gone. The world was changed, horribly and suddenly, and it added years to her perspective of things.

Each day, as the weeks went on and the spring sun began to soften the snow, she became a little more like the wild children at Lac Bain and in the forest. They were eating dinner one day in the early spring, with the sunshine flooding in upon them, when a quick, low footfall caused Mellise to lift her eyes in the direction of the open door. A strange figure stood there, with bloodless face, staring eyes and garments hanging in tatters, but its arms were stretched out, as those Mellise had been held out to her a thousand times before, and, with the old glad cry, Mellise darted with the swiftness of a sun shadow beyond Cummins, crying:

"Jan, Jan; my Jan!"

Words choked in Cummins' throat when he saw the weak, fevered figure clutching Mellise to its breast.

At last he gasped "Jan!" and threw out his arms, so that both were caught in their embrace.

For an instant Jan turned his face up to the light. The other stared and understood.

"You have been sick," he said, "but it has left no marks."

Then Jan God breathed Jan.

Peace followed in the blighted trails of the Red Terror. Again the forest world breathed without fear, but from Hudson's bay to Athabasca and as far south as the thousand waters of the Reindeer country the winds whispered of a terrible grief that would remain until bones were men and men went to their graves.

The plague had taken a thousand souls, and yet the laughing, dancing millions in that other big world beyond the edge of the wilderness caught only a passing rumor of what had happened.

"Jan, Jan; my Jan!"

Lac Bain suffered least of the far northern posts, with the exception of Churchill, where the icy winds, downpouring from the arctic, had sent the Red Terror shivering to the westward. In the late snowy weeks came that Cummins was to take Williams' place as factor, and Per-ee at once set off for the Fond du Lac to bring back Jean de Gravois as "chief man." Croisset gave up his fox hunting to fill Mukee's place.

The changes brought new happiness to Mellise. Croisset's wife was a good woman who had spent her girlhood in Montreal, and Iowaka, now the mother of a fire eating little Jean and a handsome daughter, was a soft voiced young woman, who to Mellise seemed sweeter and prettier with no Indian blood in her but usually the case with half breed women.

"But it's good blood in her, beautiful blood," vaunted Jean proudly whenever the opportunity came. "Her mother was a princess and her father a pure Frenchman whose father's father was a chef de batallion. What better than that, eh? I say, what better could there be than that?"

So, for the first time in her life, Mellise discovered the joys of companionship with those of her own kind.

This new companionship, pleasant as it was, did not come between her and Jan. If anything they were more to each other than ever.

She no longer looked upon Jan as a mere playmate, a being whose diversion was to amuse and to love her. He had become a man. In her eyes he was a hero who had gone forth to fight the death of which she still heard word and whisper all about her. Croisset's wife and Iowaka told her that he had done the bravest thing that a man might do on earth.

Together they resumed their studies, devoting hours to them each day, and through all this winter he taught her to play upon his violin. The storm months were a time of idleness at Lac Bain, and Jan was the most of them in his teaching of Mellise. She learned to read the books which he had used at Fort Churchill, and by midsummer she could read those which he had used at York factory. At night they wrote letters to each other and delivered them across the table in the morning, while Cummins looked on and smoked, laughing happily at what they read aloud to him.

PRESERVE THE PIONEER HAY BAY CHURCH

By Allan Ross Davis.

Seven years after the advent of the United Empire Loyalists to the shores of Quinte district of Upper Canada, the plucky wilderness-settlers of Fourth Town, afterwards named Adolphustown, with a subscription list out of their penury, in the year 1791, set to build a chapel for the worship of Almighty God. They supplemented this early in the following year by giving their services in the chopping, sawing and framing of the majestic oak, pine and cedar, growing along the south shore of Hay Bay—an arm of the Bay of Quinte, a mile wide and fifteen miles long, dividing the township into two parts. The choicest material was used, and the solid, rustic edifice, with galleries and a high pulpit, was completed and dedicated in 1792, from which time until 1860, great throngs of people from far and near, of all denominations, including many Indians of various tribes, mustered in this Methodist chapel from Sabbath to Sabbath, by means of boats and forest-pathways in summer, and over the ice in winter. Then, when roads had improved, and clearings had enlarged, and prosperity had rewarded faithful service, a more central church was built in that community by the Methodist, who robbed their mother-church of her pulpit and furniture; sold her for a paltry fifty dollars, and abandoned her to bats and rats and all the trumpery of a general farm storehouse.

The present writer came upon the scene about that time; and soon, with the other lads of the community, often went fishing and swimming off the old church-dock, and lunched and slept on the green sward in the shade of the stately, mother-of-Methodism. Like many others I worshipped in the new church, near my father's door, until I saw it give way to the beautiful, brick, Centennial Church of 1884, which still adorns the site. But I could not forget the place where my United Empire Loyalist forefathers had worshipped; and when I moved back from the Western prairies to Toronto, in 1910, I found a sympathetic friend in dear old Chancellor Burwash; and together, we disturbed the good Methodists of Toronto for a Hay Bay Church restoration fund. With the aid of a liberal contribution from the Bay of Quinte Conference we realized $1,500, which enabled us to purchase the property, renovate the structure, build a new wharf and place the clear title in the possession of the Methodist Church of Canada. Re-opening services were held by Rev. Dr. Carman, with throngs of people in attendance, transported by several steamers, motor-boats, cars and horse-carriages. Dr. Burwash and others, followed with other largely-attended services in following years, and then came the World War, and all else was forgotten. The lonely sentinel on Hay Bay, defying wind and rain and frost, valiantly stood throughout those anxious years, with few visitors to lift the latch-string, always hanging on the outside of the front door. Meanwhile the elements are causing decay, and soon the mother-church of Methodism in Canada must perforce, fall in ruins, after 136 years of service, unless immediate action is taken to preserve it.

Adjoining the Hay Bay Church is the boyhood home-site of the late Sir John A. Macdonald, who worshipped there with his good Presbyterian mother for several years when a lad, soon after their arrival as immigrants from Scotland. John A. and his two sisters attended the village school, from which he returned to school in Kingston, and soon became articled in a law office. I heard him speak from time to time, in later years, concerning his happy school days when living with his parents on Hay Bay, frolicking with the boys of the neighborhood, of whom my father was one, and always being good on Sunday by going to the Methodist church with his mother, and listening to the wonderful sermons of those grand old preachers of the early days. I well knew the stone foundations of the Macdonald home, when a lad, and in later years, as a surveyor, I ran a line through the concession to Hay Bay, along the westerly boundary of the Macdonald plot. I bought that half-acre plot in 1910, and offered it to the Federal Government, on which to erect some suitable memorial to mark the Macdonald boyhood home. I persisted in this endeavor with each succeeding premier until last year, when the Mackenzie King Government, in rounding out their Confederation-Jubilee plans, erected a beautiful cairn on the site, just of the foundation stones of the Macdonald home. That cairn, adjoining the Hay Bay Church plot on the east, and near the water's edge, has been enclosed with an iron fence, and will be preserved by the Government as a historic site for all time to come.

It now seems to me that many former Methodists in the Bay of Quinte district, in the City of Toronto, and in fact throughout all Canada, must feel as I do: that we should at once raise a sufficient sum to restore and fit up the Hay Bay Church in such a manner, as will preserve it for another century or two, and make it a useful and attractive place of worship for the United Church, in general, and an interesting historic spot, which tourists will visit in increasing numbers, when boating on the Bay of Quinte, or motoring from Lennox to Trenton, Edward County, and crossing the ferry over the bay, on the picturesque Napanee-Picton route. Reeve Johnson, of Adolphustown, declares that since his council erected a signboard on the Macdonald plot in 1925, many strangers have inquired the way to the place. The Government's cairn is certain to attract an increasing number every year, who will also be interested in the adjoining shrine, where Methodism had its genesis in Canada. The township council will make a grant of at least one hundred dollars towards fencing and fitting up the grounds of this historic part of their community. The County Council of Lennox and the Town Council of Napanee will be equally generous, and possibly other municipalities will desire to share in the good work.

How much will it cost? Five thousand dollars, in my judgment as an engineer, should be sufficient for the purpose. The original hand-sawed clapboards have weathered down to the thickness of wafers, and in order to preserve the rustic appearance, these will need to be carefully taken off, the studding solidly boarded with new material, and the clapboards replaced over the latter, and closely nailed. New windows and doors will be needed and, for the most part, a new roof. Repairs to foundation, floors, galleries, etc., with renewals, here and there, will be necessary. While preserving the rustic, open-roof appearance, the whole interior will need renovating, with new platform, railing, pulpit, chairs and a full set of modern, comfortable seats. The grounds should be fenced, cultivated and planted with trees, shrubs and flowers, and the shore-line for about a thousand feet in length cleared, and the banks graded and seeded, and a concrete, boat-landing platform built at the rear of the church. Other minor demands will naturally arise, as the work progresses, when such a work is undertaken; but the above outline roughly measures the extent of the actual expenditure necessary to preserve the Hay Bay Church for another century; make it a delightful place for worship; visitation of Conferences of Presbyteries, church and Sunday School excursions, and, as in all Roman Catholic churches, a quiet retreat for meditation and prayer by individuals during that way.

Now, in order to bring this matter to a final issue, I would suggest that the editor of every good weekly in the Church, Rev. Dr. J. H. Arnup, who is intensely interested in this matter, name a committee of six or seven representative men, including himself, and the present writer, who in 1910 was elected chairman of the trustee board of the Hay Bay Church, appointed by the Methodist Church of Canada, who still feels the responsibility of seeing his task completed. That committee will begin to function immediately, and, with the cordial assistance of The New Outlook, will make an immediate appeal to the old-time, Methodist families of Canada to give us five thousand dollars for the work in hand. I am glad to be able to say that one firm in the City of Toronto has granted five hundred dollars already to this fund; and also that the United Church hold in trust several hundred dollars from the Bay of Quinte Conference of 1924-25 for the endowment, or maintenance, as the case may be, of the Hay Bay Church.

Should our committee not require all the money given us to carry out the work outlined above, then, possibly, we may be able to build a decent bungalow on the acre and a half, Hay Bay Church property, for a home for some worn-out missionary and family, where, on a small salary, with free house and garden, he, or she, would become the custodian of the Church, holding neighborhood services there, if desirable; admitting visitors and welcoming everybody. Who knows but that this spot, where Methodist was planted 136 years ago, may not thus become a veritable Mecca to returning missionaries from all parts of the world, long before another century has passed away. The spirit of William Case, the New York missionary who first preached there, would, if then free, certainly come back and revisit the scenes of his early ministry.

If the Government would be glad to grant an allowance in the summer season for looking after the cairn on the Macdonald home-site. Pictures, writings and bric-a-brac, concerning both the Hay Bay Church and Canada's greatest statesman, could find ample room in the galleries of the church, which would become in time of interest to tourists and of educational value to the youth of our country. The local historical society could naturally aid in developing this feature of the proposal.

A start in this direction might induce the other United Empire Loyalist denominations—Presbyterian and Congregational—to select representative churches on which as memorials, they would concentrate in a similar way, and thus there would be erected one of them in The United Church, each with its distinguishing features. That might stimulate other denominations in the same direction and awaken a keener interest, generally, in our country in the old churches we are apt prone to forget and forsake. Of what use will all our Canadian prosperity be, if we neglect veneration for the spiritual instincts of our natures, in the mad hunch for material things, whereby we may gratify our desires for pleasure? The Metropolitan Church Board display a brave and reverent spirit when they declare that a new Metropolitan, phoenix-like, will arise from the ashes of the old, destined for a wider spiritual influence in Toronto, Canada, and the world than ever before in its vigorous crusade of half a century.

Same Symptoms In Many Cases

An Anaemic Condition Easily Recognized — Calls For a Blood Builder.

In most cases of anaemia the symptoms are almost the same. The sufferer grows pale and is easily tired after the least exertion. The appetite is fickle and the patient loses in weight. Sometimes there are headaches, and often inability to sleep well. As the blood becomes thinner the symptoms become more pronounced and often there are fainting spells. All this shows that the blood is thin and watery, and the very first symptom of this condition the patient should take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the most reliable blood-builder and nerve tonic known. The mission of this medicine is to enrich the blood, and when that is done all the distressing symptoms disappear. Among those who have reason to praise this medicine is Mrs. M. E. Patterson, Shanklin, Ont., who says :—"About four years ago I became very much run down. I could get no rest day nor night, and grew so nervous that the smallest things would annoy me. Eventually I grew so weak that I did not have strength to move about without help. I was just a miserable wreck, and became very much discouraged as I had taken many medicines which failed to help me. In this wretched state a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so and before long found they were helping me. Gladly I continued taking the pills until I fully regained my health and strength and I have since enjoyed the best of health. Later my daughter became anaemic and the use of the pills restored her to health, strength and color. Naturally I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a blessing to weak, run-down people."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CARRIED WIFE TO BED

Suffered So She Could Not Walk. Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Minesing, Ontario.—"I am a practical nurse and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to suffering women. For three months I was almost helpless and could not sit at the table long enough to drink a cup of tea. Many a time my husband carried me to bed, I would be so weak. Then he read in the paper of a woman suffering as I did who got better after taking the Vegetable Compound, so he went and got it for me. When I had taken three bottles I was just like a new woman and have had splendid health ever since. When I feel any bearing-down pains I always take it, sometimes a half bottle or whatever I need. It is my only medicine and I have told many a one about it. Any one wanting to know more about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I will gladly write to her. I do all I can to recommend it for I feel I owe my life and strength to it." — Mrs. NEAL BOWSER, R. R. 1, Minesing, Ontario.

Do you feel broken-down, nervous, and weak sometimes? Do you have this horrid feeling of fear which sometimes comes to women when they are not well? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent to take at such a time. It always helps, and if taken regularly and persistently will relieve this condition.

ENEMIES OF FRESH-WATER FISH

Snails Devour the Eggs Even of Pugnacious Variety.

The humble pond snail has been indicted as one of the criminals whose activities have interfered with the peace and welfare and the family life of our fresh-water fishes, says a Science Service Bulletin. Ichthyologists generally have been unable to explain why so few of the hundreds of thousands of eggs laid by each female among the fresh water fish ever reach maturity.

In a life history study of the long-eared sunfish carried on at the Indiana University biological station at Winona Lake, Indiana, observations were made each day of the troubles of a vigilant male sunfish trying to guard his nest with its precious eggs.

Long war, who is rather long on pugnacity, had very little trouble with the larger fish. They had seemed to learn their lesson of the purpose and use of the Long Ear's fin spines and remained at a respectful distance. Minnows interested in a pet-nest swarm and darted into the nest every time the warrior's attention was diverted, but their activities were more of a nuisance than a vital menace.

The greatest difficulty the harassed father sunfish had was the insidious advance of the tank corps of snails. The sunfish could not kill the snails because of protective shells, but had to pick them up and carry them away from the nest one at a time. But by the time he was transporting one half a dozen others would crawl in among the eggs and eat their fill.

Several thousand eggs and a few snails were put in a bucket over night. In the morning all the eggs had disappeared and an examination of the snails' stomachs did not leave even a scientific doubt as to where they had gone.

A RED MAN'S RIDDLE.

Indian Chief Put It Up to Teddy Roosevelt.

In his old age Quanah Parker, the Indian chief of the Comanches, adopted many of the white man's ways; but in one important respect he clung to the custom of his fathers. He continued to be a polygamist, says Kermit Roosevelt, son of the former American President.

He was a great friend and admirer of my father, and on one occasion when the President was touring Texas he drove out to Parker's home camp to see the old warrior.

With pride Parker pointed out that he lived in a house like a white man, was sending his children to a white man's school, and wore the garb of a white man. Whereupon my father was moved to preach on the subject of moralities.

"See here, Chief," he said, "why don't you set your people a still better example of obedience to the laws of the land and the customs of the white? A white man has only one wife. Here you are living with five squaws. Why don't you give up four of them and remain faithful to the fifth?"

"You could continue to support the four youngest aside, but they need no longer be members of your household. Then, in all respects, you would be living as a white man lives."

Parker thought for a moment, then, with a twinkle in his steady old eyes, answered:—

"You are my great white father, and I will do as you wish — on one condition."

"What is the condition?"

"You pick out the one I am to retain, and then go and tell the other four."

A New Cotton for China.

A new variety of cotton, to which has been given the American-sounding name "million-dollar cotton," has been bred in China, and promises to make that country at least partly independent of foreign sources of high-quality, long-stapled cotton, which must now be imported. The native varieties now universally cultivated in China all have short staple or fibre, which does not permit the weaving of high-grade fabrics of normal strength.

Dr. J. B. Griffing, of the University of Nanking, reports the new variety to the Journal of Heredity, of Washington. He states that the new variety originated with a single plant which he discovered some years ago, as the result of a search among the much mixed fields of Chinese cotton.

Chinese Frugal of Paper.

The Chinese reverence for the printed word is profound. Throughout the International Settlement are thousands of small wooden boxes or sloth bags attached to poles. Foreigners generally ignore these receptacles for refuse but not so with the Chinese. It is not uncommon sight to see respectable, well-dressed Chinese pick up bits of paper from the street and place them in the receptacles. This is especially true of old newspapers or any paper on which words are printed. As a result of this the streets of the settlement are remarkably free from waste paper.

Largest Paper Machine.

The Backus-Brooks Company, of Minneapolis, has just placed a contract with the Bagley & Sewall Co., Watertown, N.Y., for the construction of what is said will be the largest paper machine in the world. The machine will be 264 inches wide and will be over thirty inches wider than the largest paper machine yet made.

Mirrors 3,000 Years Old.

When the modern girl picks up a hand-mirror to admire herself, she is only following the example of young women of three thousand years ago.

Archaeologists at Media, in Greece, have discovered in tombs of the Mycenaean period several hand-mirrors, one with an ivory handle. Silvered glass was unknown in those days, and mirrors were made of sheets of polished metal.

Even before2 polished metal was used, girls had their mirrors. They used polished stone, dipping it into water so that this film of liquid would serve as a reflecting surface.

Electric Signs In Palestine.

A decreasing rate of illiteracy in Palestine has permitted the use of electric moving signs for the first time. Tel Aviv is the first town in which the devices were used, the signs appearing in English, Arabic and Hebrew in order to present an appeal to the races using different languages. American and European products are advertised, and illustrations are employed to reach those who still cannot read.

Better Than Front Seat.

Radio listeners really get a radio cent message a fraction of a second sooner than the audience of the speaker because electric waves travel faster than sound.

GRACE CHURCH W. M. S. RALLY SUPPER

Thursday evening, March 8th, the W. M. S. of Grace United Church, Napanee, held their Rally Supper, the aim being "Every Woman at the Church and every Girl of 'Circle age' present."

Their hopes were gratifyingly fulfilled and a large audience of interested women and girls stayed to hear the speaker of the evening, Mrs. H. M. Lavell, Past President of the Dominion Board of W. M. S., but now Vice President of the Federated Boards for Foreign Missions of North America.

Mrs. Lavell, in her address, "Missionary Appeal", presented the necessity, the opportunities, and the results of the missionary efforts, to the audience in such a capable, convincing manner as to hold their sympathetic interest to the end of the evening, and several new members were added to the Auxiliary.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Lavell by Mrs. Woodger, in which she expressed the belief that the work of the W. M. S. would go on this year with renewed interest owing to Mrs. Lavell's inspiring address.

Other items of interest besides the address, were a piano solo, by Mrs. B. Black; vocal solos, by Mrs. B. Elliott and Mrs. H. Denison, and a chorus by six of the Circle girls.

Next regular meeting of the W. M. S. will be held on March 30th.

Hear Mr. A. E. Greenlaw, Colored Basso; Mrs. Kathryn Powell, Reader; Miss Catherine Baird, Pianist, and Miss Dorothy Scott, Violinist, next Tuesday night at Grace Church, 8 o'clock. Admission, 35c. 11a

Gretna and Anderson W.M.S.

The Women's Missionary Society of Gretna and Anderson held a very successful meeting on Thursday p.m., March 8th, at the home of Mrs. W. Baird, with a goodly number in attendance. The chief feature of the programme was the report of the Presbyterial held at Picton. Much credit is due Mrs. R. L. Card for the excellent report which was given in a very able manner. A pleasant afternoon was spent in quilting two quilts for the missionaries, after which Mrs. Baird served the ladies with a dainty buffet lunch.

THE THREE C BIBLE CLASS BANQUET

A very pleasant and profitable evening was spent on March 8th, when the members of the Three C Bible Class, assisted by the Beacon Lights, gave a banquet in the Sunday School room of Selby United Church. About eight o'clock nearly seventy sat down to well-filled tables, and partook of oysters and other good things provided. When all were fully satisfied, we were called to order, and the programme commenced. Mr. Stanley Sexsmith made a very efficient chairman and toastmaster. The toasts were proposed and responded to, as follows: "The King", by Mr. Bert Martin; "The Church", by Mrs. Arthur McLeod and Rev. Jas. Batstone; "The Sunday School", by Mr. Vernie Booth and Mr. Chas. Anderson, superintendent; "The Warden", by Mr. Donald Fitzpatrick and Dr. Tummon, and "The Beacon Lights" by Mr. Arthur McKnight and Mrs. Dudgeon, teacher of that class. The last toast was given by Mr. Arthur McLeod, and took the form of an address to Mrs. Batstone, teacher of the Three C Bible Class, at the close of which she was presented with a three-piece living room suite of Rattan. Although taken by surprise, Mrs. Batstone made a very suitable reply, thanking her class for their generous gift, telling them how much she had enjoyed the discussion of the lessons with them, and inviting each to visit her in her new home. The programme continued with a reading by Mrs. Chas. Vandusen; vocal solo by Mr. Ernest Lack, and piano solo by Mrs. Tummon, after which Rev. H. Pawson gave an address on "Building", which was greatly appreciated by his audience. A duet followed by Mrs. Vernie Booth and Mrs. Luman McCutcheon, and a most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by Rev. Jas. Batstone.

Following is the address:—

Dear Mrs. Batstone,—Our banquet this evening has been arranged in honour of our teacher, Mrs. Batstone, and we, as members of your class, feel that this is an appropriate opportunity of expressing to you our appreciation of your teaching for the past three years. We realize it has required much study, and meant sacrifice on your part, to be as faithful as you have been to the class, along with all your other church and home duties.

Your life, not only in the class, but at all times, has clearly exemplified our class motto, "Others". I think, even those of us who are familiar with these verses, they will bear repeating.

"OTHERS"

Lord, help me live from day to day
In such a self-forgetful way,
That even when I kneel to pray
My prayer shall be for others.

Help me in all the work I do,
To ever be sincere and true,
And know that all I've done for You
Must needs be done for others.

Let self be crucified and slain,
And buried deep, and all in vain
May efforts be to rise again
Unless to live for others.

And when my work on earth is done,
And my new life in Heaven begun,
May I forget the crown I've won,
While thinking still of others.

Others, Lord, yes, others,
Let this my motto be.
Help me to live for others,
That I may live for Thee.

The sad part of our evening's gathering is that it brings to our minds the fact that the time is fast approaching when you feel that you must leave us.

We ask you to accept these chairs and settee, not for their intrinsic value but as a token of the esteem in which you are held by your class. Our very best wishes go with you and Mr. Batstone to your new home, and may you long be spared to help others as you have helped us.

Signed on behalf of the Class,
VERNIE BOOTH, Pres.

"THE BIG PARADE"

STARRING

JOHN GILBERT

With RENEE ADOREE

Story by Laurence Stallings

Directed by King Vidor

Astonishment, awe, world-shaking laughter, sweetest romance, tears, thrills and throbs—in a picture epochal in film history. In its second year in New York, playing to over five million people in its record-breaking runs the world over, here is the most spectacular success in the annals of stage or screen.

NAPANEE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular monthly meeting of the Napanee Women's Institute was held on Tuesday, March 13th, in the Agricultural Class Room, with eighty-three members present.

Mrs. R. Ham, delegate to the L. C. of Women convening recently in Kingston, gave an interesting report, emphasizing the strong movement on foot that we, the citizens of Canada, born in Canada, are going to be recognized abroad as Canadians.

Miss Cline, of the Dennison Crepe Paper Co., was heartily welcomed by the Society. She is no stranger, as her pleasing personality has endeared her to this large circle during the free courses in Wax and Paper Craft held in previous years at Neely's Bookstore. She very kindly gave a demonstration of a "Table Setting for St. Patrick's Afternoon Tea". Some beautiful shades of the "Emerald Isle" were repeated in a crepe paper table runner, each end of which boasted a huge shamrock leaf. The centre decoration was a "Jack Horner Pie", under a sheaf of nodding shamrocks (paper). Serving and nut baskets, with handles bent trefoil, also boasted flutings with shamrock edge. The making of the decorations was demonstrated, and many suggestions given. By the way four large green candles stood stately and tall in as many potatoes—real Irish potatoes, each with a hollow cut in one side into which fitted a candle. If any member could not boast Irish blood I am sure she was sorry.

A demonstration of "Salads and Salad Dressing" given by Mrs. T. V. Anderson, was most successful and much appreciated. A "Vitamine Salad" was demonstrated and an "Oil Dressing" prepared. A recipe for a "St. Patrick's Fruit Salad", and the method of preparing it was also given, in harmony with the day's programme. Mrs. Anderson also gave other recipes and many suggestions for decorating salads for various occasions.

Each demonstration received a sincere vote of thanks from the members.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

A LONDON TRIBUTE

The extent to which Canadians rely upon the telephone is a matter of comment even the exception for the humbler walks of life is hardly as important as the English correspondent intimates. Over sixty per cent of the 686,382 Bell telephones in Ontario and Quebec at the end of 1927 were in homes. Few Canadians, no matter what their circumstances in life, but what home is complete without the service which in Canada, as the English paper remarks, is "admirable: efficient and inexpensive."

PRATICAL PATRIOTISM

The emigration of Canadians to the United States is a subject of frequent lament throughout the Dominion. Where the evidence produced bears on the southward movement of the highly trained groups which graduate yearly from Canadian Universities, the search for a remedy is most vigourously prosecuted.

It is worthy of note that the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, in its annual report for 1927, states that in the past five years it has selected from the graduating classes of Canadian Universities no fewer than 220 members of its staff. The excellent work done in all departments of the service by these men and women has marked this policy as highly commendable from all points of view.

TOWN COUNCIL

Council Chamber,
March 19th, 1928.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor E. J. Roy presiding.

Present—Reeve Boyes and Councillors Simpson, Daly, Ungar, Loucks and Tustin.

Minutes of last session were read and confirmed.

Capt. A. S. Hughson, Secretary of the Napanee Poultry Association, addressed the Council, asking that a grant of $100 or $150 be made the Association for the purpose of buying coops to be used in the exhibition of poultry at the Lennox Fall Fair. These coops cost one dollar each, and the Association purpose securing 500 of them. The members of the Association are trying to make the exhibition of poultry at the Fair one of the main features, and one of the largest in this Province of Ontario, and are aiming at the showing of at least 1000 birds. The membership of the Napanee Poultry Association is around two hundred, and the principle object of the Association is the improving of the standard and quality of poultry in the County of Lennox and Addington. He stated that an endeavor was being made to educate poultry raisers to the fact that March and April chicks meant a much heavier poundage of chicks on Poultry Days than May and June chicks. Napanee Poultry Fair is the largest in Canada, and the quality of the dressed poultry is of a high standard. A greater quantity, and an improved quality of dressed poultry for poultry days is the goal aimed at.

On motion of Councillor Daly and Reeve Boyes, the question of a grant to the Poultry Association was referred to the Finance Committee to report.

Mr. W. J. Doller addressed the Council concerning the usual grant made to the Victorian Order of Nurses. He also asked that the V. O. N. be given permission to hold a tag day on the second day of the Lennox Fair.

On motion the request of the V. O. N. to hold a tag day was granted.

The question of a grant to the V. O. N. was referred to the Finance Committee to report.

Mr. Sam Smith addressed the Council, asking permission on behalf of himself and Mr. Stan Lindsay, to pasture their horses in the vacant lot surrounding the Disposal Works. They also agreed to keep the weeds out on the property.

Request granted.

A communication was read from the Board of Education, requesting that traffic signs be placed on the streets near all schools in town, and that said signs be so erected where designated by the principals.

Request granted.

On motion the purchase of traffic signs asked for by the Board of Education was referred to the Police Committee, and that they be erected as soon as possible.

A communication was read from Mr. J. G. Fennell, stating that if the Council saw fit to appoint him Assessor for 1928, he would like his salary raised from $250 to $350.

Ordered laid on the table.

Coun. Simpson, Chairman of Finance Committee, presented the monthly statement of the Town Treasurer.

Report adopted.

Coun. Simpson also presented to the Council the report of the Town Auditors, which was referred to the Finance Committee.

Coun. Ungar presented a verbal report in reference to some new equipment for the fire department. Prices were being secured for some new ladders and other appliances, and the construction of a trailer for carrying the ladders was under consideration. A report as to cost of same would be presented at the next meeting of Council.

Coun. Daly, Chairman of the Town Property Committee, presented the following report in reference to the remodelling of the Town Hall:

1. Recommend that Messrs. James Proctor & Redfern's account be paid.

2. That Messrs. Thomson & Johnson, of Belleville, be engaged as architects for this work on a 5 per cent. basis, which will include inspection of the work as it progresses.

3. That Messrs. Thomson & Johnson be asked to prepare plans for the interior alterations, along the lines of the blue prints attached, and for the exterior as near as possible to the sketches submitted by Messrs. James, Proctor & Redfern.

Report adopted.

Coun. Tustin, Chairman of Police Committee, reported that the work of placing signs on Dundas street in reference to parking, was being looked after and that the work would soon be completed. Also that the Chief of Police had called his attention to the dog nuisance in town, and asked that the Council take some steps to regulate this question. The number of dogs running around the town had become a very serious nuisance.

During the discussion of the dog nuisance some very drastic steps were advised, and the question was finally referred to the Police Committee with power to act.

Coun. Loucks, Chairman of Social and Light Committee, reported that electric lamps had been placed at the south side of the river, near the suspension bridge, and also on Thomas street, just east of the C.N.R. crossing.

Report adopted.

A By-law was passed appointing John G. Fennell as Assessor for the Town of Napanee for the year 1928, at a salary of $350.

The question of the licensing of butchers, and prohibiting the cutting up of meat on the market square, was left over until next meeting of Council.

Mayor Roy asked the Council for their opinion in reference to the question of a day-light saving time for the Town of Napanee.

A committee, composed of Mayor Roy and Councillors Daly and Tustin, were appointed to investigate and report.

Accounts.

The following accounts were ordered paid —

C. I. Maybee	$ 34 00
V. Cowling	35 00

Report adopted.
Council adjourned.

TAMWORTH

C. G. Coxall, one of Tamworth's oldest residents, passed away on Monday, aged 78 years. Funeral was held on Wednesday, at Christ Church, and was largely attended. Remains were placed in the vault, interment to take place in the spring. Mr. Timothy Hunt has moved from the Jamieson farm into town, in Mr. South's house. — The Young People's Union of Tamworth United Church held a successful meeting on Monday evening last, under the leadership of Mr. Wallace. — George Reid, of Belleville, was in town in attendance at C. G. Coxall's funeral. Mrs. Clarence Lochhead is visiting in Belleville.—Mrs. Ed. Huffman, Misses Stanley Haggerty and Clarence Lochhead are attending Grand Lodge of the Orange Order, at Lindsay.—Mrs. Redden visited in Peterboro', last week. —Misses Bernice White, Beatrice and Bernice Milligan spent the week end at their homes.—The services appointed for Sunday on the Tamworth Circuit of the United Church, are, Tamworth, Reidville, and Maribank, morning, afternoon and evening, in the order named.—Members of Enterprise W.M.S. will give the religious drama, "The Conquest of Love," at the Reidville service of the United Church, on Sunday afternoon next. The Reidville W.M.S. are making this the occasion of their Easter Thankoffering. A very helpful time is expected. — A debate will be held on Monday evening next, the 26th inst., between teams selected from the A. Y. P. A. and the Y. P. U. of the Anglican and United Churches, in the Town Hall, Tamworth.—Mr. Orval Richmond, of Belleville Business College, spent the week end with his parents at Tamworth.

DORLAND

Mrs. T. N. Davis was hostess to the Y. P. S. last Thursday evening. The dainty decorations and the contests were all suggestive of St. Patrick's Day. This idea was further carried out in the delicious ice cream served in place of the usual cake and sandwiches. —The missionary pageant, being prepared under Mrs. Wm. Hall, is expected to be presented on the evening of Good Friday.—Enemies is to be something worth viewing.—Mrs. J. W. Dorland, of Kingston, is the guest of Mrs. J. W. Duffett.—Mrs. Ross Allison has recovered from her recent operation sufficiently to leave the hospital, and is convalescing at her father's home.—The W. I. Dramatic Club practised at the home of Mrs. Russel Cousins on Monday evening.—Mrs. Wm. Hall and Miss A. Magee were recent guests of Mrs. and Mrs. Gilbert Hall.—Mrs. J. Duffett and children are visiting her parents in Ottawa.—Mrs. Geo. Spith is spending a couple of weeks with her sister, Mrs. Roy Smith, Watertown.—Mr. Herbert Purchand and Miss Annie Lewis were united in marriage on Wednesday afternoon in St. Alban's Church by Rev. A. Struthers. The happy young couple will reside at Conway.—A large crowd attended the court held in Adolphustown on Judge Madden on Monday. Keen interest centered in the suit between A. M. Bogart and J. L. Hall, Hatter Hall being representing the township. When the 1927 Council engaged Mr. Bogart as Collector they omitted to pass a by-law stating his salary. When he completed his duties the present Council offered him $50.00, as paid in 1926, but refused to pay his additional bill of expenses amounting to $49.90. The Judge awarded Mr. Bogart the $50.00 the Council had voted him, he to pay the cost of the court.—Everyone is looking forward to seeing "The Slickers", at the Temple Hall, under the auspices of the Adolphustown Ladies' Aid, on Tuesday evening, March 27th.

ERNESTTOWN

A good number braved the storm on Sunday to attend our church service, and were well repaid by the inspiring address by Rev. Daniel Kellar.—Mr. Ross —We are sorry to report those on our sick list are Mrs. Harry Hayworth, Mrs. Ralph Smith and Mrs. Anderson. We hope for a speedy recovery.—Miss E. Gleen spent the week end at her home on Bath road.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weese, of Belleville, visited with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Davidson, on Sunday.—Mr. Lloyd Weese spent Saturday in town.—Rev. Mr. Ross was a caller in our vicinity recently.—Mr. Allan Smith and daughter, Greta, also Mr. Hubert Smith motored to Bath and Kellar's, Mr. Fenwick and Mr. J. Cousins, of Enterprise, moved the household goods of Mr. Wm. Haines, Bath road, on Monday last. Mr. Haines, having been a former resident of this place, has now purchased a garage at Rolslin.

COUNTY COUNCIL

Council met in the Council Chamber, in the Court House, for the March session, on Tuesday afternoon. Warden A. C. Tummon presiding.

Rev. Mr. Batstone, of Selby, opened the session with prayer.

Capt. Hugfison, Secretary of the Napanee Poultry Association, appeared before the Council on behalf of the Association, asking for a grant to aid the Association in buying coops to furnish the addition to be built to the poultry house at the Lennox Fair. The Association is going to make an effort to greatly improve the exhibits of poultry at the Lennox Fair.

On motion of Messrs. Johnson and Elliott, the Association was granted $100 in aid of their efforts.

Mr. E. J. Corkill, Inspector of Public Schools, presented his annual report, which was read, and on motion received and filed.

OBITUARY

Jonas Chambers.

The funeral of the late Jonas Chambers, who passed away very suddenly on Sunday morning, March 4th, was held on Wednesday afternoon, from his late residence, in South Pelham, thence to Fenwick United Church, at 2 o'clock. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Walter Almack, who spoke very fittingly to the occasion.

The late Mr. Chambers had been in failing health for the past two years owing to a slight stroke he had at that time, but his death came as a shock to all those who knew him. He was born in the Township of Wainfleet sixty-five years ago. He was the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Chambers.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, Alice E. Chambers, formerly of Napanee; four brothers and one sister, Robert and Henry, of South Pelham; John and James, of Wainfleet, and Mrs. Edgar Davis, of Gainsboro.

The following beautiful floral tributes were sent by relatives and intimate friends:—Casket spray, from wife; broken circle from brothers and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chambers and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers and family, Mr. James Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Davis; wreath from brothers-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. William Shane, Miss Lizzie Chambers; sprays from Mr. George Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chambers and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Farr, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Fry, Mr. and Mrs. James McDowell.

The pallbearers were Frank Jennings, N. H. Brown, Norman McLellan, Norris Leidy, William Holmes, George Beckett. The flower bearers were Amos Holmes, Roy Chambers, Orlen Chambers and George Chambers.

The funeral was conducted under the management of Mr. Metler, undertaker, of Fenwick. Interment in Pontbill cemetery.

Dr. Milton A. McQuade.

Dr. Milton A. McQuade, formerly of Yarker, Ont., specialist in diseases of the eye, nose and throat, and formerly house surgeon in the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital, New York, died at Newburgh, N.Y., on March 13th, 1928, of a cerebral hemorrhage. He had suffered the stroke while treating a patient on Friday night.

Mr. McQuade was born on Sept. 23rd, 1877, in Alberta, Canada. After attending Albert College and Toronto University, he was in general practice in Canada for five years. Later he served the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital in various capacities for three and shall years, until he became house surgeon.

After spending two years in London and Vienna in study, he came here fourteen years ago and developed a large practice.

Dr. McQuade was a Mason and a member of the Powelston and City Clubs of Newburgh and of the Newburgh Bay Medical Society. He was consulting ophthalmologist, hrinologist and laryngologist of St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh. There are no surviving relatives. Funeral services will probably will be held on Tuesday.

Isaac Fraser.

On Friday, March 2nd, 1928, there passed away at his late residence, Isaac Fraser. Mr. Fraser was born in Ernestown, eighty-seven years ago and spent his long life within this township. He was the son of the late Charles Fraser and Catherine Amey. Sixty-three years ago he married Sarah Perry and lived with her by his side till last October when God took her. His great longing to be with her is answered for he died a peaceful death, having the assurance that his pathway to heaven was clear.

He leaves to mourn his loss five children, Mrs. G. W. Lucas, of Odessa; Mrs. Allen, of Newburgh, and Mrs. Scott, Montreal; also William and Almon, of Alberta. The funeral was held Monday, March 5th, by his friend, Rev. George McQuade, in the presence of his relatives and friends. The remains were placed in Morven vault to await interment in Violet cemetery.

CAMDEN EAST W.M.S.

The Camden East, W.M.S. met on Thursday afternoon, March 14th, at the home of Mrs. Ceo. Black. Meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. Sherlock, by singing the hymn, "The Fields Are White Unto the Harvest". Then all repeated the Lord's Prayer. Miss A. Williams read from John 10-11-16; also gave a reading of Study Book by Jean F. Chant, which we all enjoyed very much.

Letters and correspondence were read and discussed. Hymn, "Sing Them Over Again". Prayer by Mrs. Dickson. Letters of appreciation in Fiction was given by Mrs. J. S. Yeamans. Hymn, "Close To Thee and Trinity Handed". Mrs. Geo. Black, Mrs. L. D. Williams played a few selections on an accordion which she used in her girlhood days which was appreciated very much. Mrs. Sherlock was given the duty of cutting a birthday cake.

Mrs. Black, the hostess, served an old fashioned lunch, which every one enjoyed.

Lisbon

The City of Lisbon is situated on the Tagus river, a few miles from the sea. As the boat moves up the river the stranger is thrilled with the beauty of the scenery, especially if the day is sunny., The waters of the Tagus appear as blue as the sky overhead, and the innumerable fishing vessels with their white sails, make a pretty picture. On the right are dark palm-crowned hills with here and there villages nestling among them. On the left is Lisbon, a city of gleaming white buildings with red tile roofs. The city is built on seven hills, and if the visitor is fond of walking he must prepare for many hard climbs.

When one enters Lisbon it appears less attractive than when viewed from the sea for many of the cobble-stone streets are extremely narrow with side-walks where two pedestrians can scarcely pass, and in some places street-cars are dangerously close. The houses are white limestone decorated with glazed tile of many colours and patterns. The people live mostly in apartments three to six stories, built close to the street, without lawns or verandahs. The family who lives on the ground floor may be fortunate enough to have a tiny walled garden with a few flowers and a tree or two. Wealthy people sometimes have a fine residence surrounded by lawns and gardens and partially hidden from the public gaze by a thick high wall. The very ornate doors and the bars across the lower windows appear strange to the Canadian. In contrast with the narrow streets, Lisbon has some very beautiful wide ones. The "Avenida Liberdade", which is near the main business section would be a credit to any city. This fine avenue has a motor drive in the centre with four double rows of trees on each side. The street-cars operate on the left and right. There are six wide sidewalks for pedestrians with seats for resting under the trees. The sidewalks are laid out in an attractive pattern of grey and black. Fountains and statues beautify the avenue which commemorates the freedom of Portugal from Spain. There is another similar avenue built in honour of the establishment of the Republic.

Lisbon is beautified by many public gardens varying in size from a tiny square with a few flowers to gardens containing ten or more acres. These gardens are delightful retreats from the heat of midsummer, and are very interesting to the visitor from the north because of their sub-tropical trees and plants. In them one finds palms, giant rubber plants, many cacti, the eucalyptus tree and many others. There are fountains and tiny artificial lakes with swans and gold-fish. The flowers are lovely and the beds are laid out in extremely artistic style. Winter does not destroy the delight of these gardens, for there are many beds and roses to delight the eye in January.

The streets present many sights which seem strange to the visitor. The farmer drives his great horned oxen through the streets and the creaking wagon with its heavy load bumps over the cobble-stones. One sees many tiny donkeys almost hidden under their loads of vegetables, while the owner walking near, shouts out the names of his wares. The farmer wears a wooden toque even on a hot summer day, and frequently his feet are bare. One of the familiar sights is the fish-peddler, a strong woman who balances a huge basket of fish on her head in a very graceful manner. She wears a full skirt, coloured blouse, a wide sash, and on her head a bright-coloured square scarf which falls gracefully at the back. Her feet are either bare or encased in bright coloured slippers. Often these women are youthful and fine-looking, and one cannot help admiring at the way they are able to carry a huge load. Here and there one finds public fountains where people go to get their water. The women chat as they fill their large jars and then usher balance them on their heads and walk gracefully away. In some places there are stone tubs where the women may do their washing, slapping the clothes on stone wash-boards. Often one sees a farmer driving a few turkeys or a sheep, or a goat through the streets. As you pass along the street you may look in a window and see two or three fine Holstein cows. This is a milk-shop, and the cow will be milked while you wait, if you want it strictly fresh. There are many beggars in Lisbon, and there are terrible evidences of poverty everywhere. It seems very strange at first to see great numbers of poor dirty people mingling with beautifully-dressed men and women.

The history of Portugal is extremely interesting, and a knowledge of it adds greatly to the pleasure of a visit to Lisbon. Portugal was once a great and powerful nation and her daring sailors were world famous. This was in the day when a water-route to India was being sought eagerly because of the value of spices. The Portuguese were leaders in this enterprise. In their efforts they discovered and explored practically all the West coast of Africa, and rounded the Cape of Good Hope in the year 1497. In 1498 Vasco de Gama discovered the route to India. It was also a Portuguese navigator who discovered Brazil. Portugal was the adopted land of Christopher Columbus, the king made the mistake of refusing him ships, and Spain gained the honour of discovering America. At this time gold, silver, and precious stones pouded into the treasury and luxury abounded. The most interesting Cathedral in Lisbon was built by King Manuel I. in this period of national greatness. St. Jeronymos is a real work of art. It was built in the year 1500 and dedicated to the Virgin Mary. The whole building is of limestone and the West door is a masterpiece of sculpture in bas relief. The vaulted roof is supported by four massive pillars carved from top to bottom. The many cloisters have gold and silver from India and South America. The tombs of some of Portugal's great men are in this church, including the tomb of Vasco de Gama. The old Jesuit convent in connection with it is now a home for eight hundred boys. We walked through the marvellous cloisters and were almost deafened by the noise of the children at play. The Church of St. Vincent is also interesting to the visitor. In its wide corridors one walks over the graves of Jesuit priests and sees pictures of events in Portuguese history depicted in blue tile on the walls. The chapel of this Church is a wonderful work of art in tile hand-coloured and cut. The completion of the work took many years. In a magnificent soleum adjoining the church lie the bodies of many of the Portuguese kings, the coffins being ranged along the sides and down the centre of the long room. The coffins are decorated with ribbons, wreaths, flowers, and richly embroidered scarfs and coverings, some of the oldest being in tatters. The face of Dom Carlos and of the young prince who were assinated in 1908 are only covered by glass and until a short time ago the public were allowed to gaze upon their faces—a sad and haunting sight.

The many churches of Lisbon are nearly all Roman Catholic. Protestantism has a start however, and is growing. The English brethren were among the first Protestant workers in this country. There are also some Baptists, Anglicans and Presbyterians. The Portuguese Protestants are very devout, sincere Christians, and their services are inspiring and helpful. In this country there was very little of the struggle between Catholicism and Protestantism from which England suffered so greatly. In the 15th century Jews, who were being persecuted in Spain, fled to this country for protection, which was granted to them for a time. Then came the dark blot on Portuguese history which preceded her decline in greatness. To satisfy the desire of his Spanish wife, the king of Portugal ordered the expulsion of the Jews. When it was seen that these industrious people would carry much of the wealth out of the country many were compelled to adopt Christianity. Their suffering and persecution was terrible and it was on these "new Christians" that the horrors of the Inquisition fell some time later. Following this tradedy Portugal's national greatness rapidly declined. Generally speaking, the Portuguese are a kindly, hospitable people and foreigners are well treated. The "expulsion of the Jews" was the expression of the religious ideas of the fifteenth century.

The climate of Lisbon is very attractive, and at one time was a favorite winter resort of English people. One never freezes and fresh fruits and vegetables are secured the year round. The winter is rather chilly, however, especially in the homes, since they have no fire-places or kitchen. The Canadian feels the need of warm clothing. In the summer there is very little rain, and the heat often becomes hot and dry. Portugal produces all the garden vegetables and fruits of Ontario, and oranges, lemons, figs and olives in addition. Grapes grow luxuriously, and the making of wine is one of the chief industries. The country is more of less mountainous and many sheep and goats are raised. Cattle are raised, but not in great numbers. The ploughing is done almost entirely with oxen. Grains grow well in some sections.

In order to learn the language we are boarding with a Portuguese family and that is not so easy as might be imagined. It is difficult to get accustomed to the strange ways of cooking food, and Canadians are apt to suffer with hives.—The language is difficult, too, especially the pronunciation. Many of the words sounds are quite foreign to English. There is no good English-Portuguese text which adds to our difficulties. However, we are looking forward to the time when we shall speak, read and write well enough in Portuguese to go to our real work in Angola, West Africa.

Mrs. M. A. Harrison was formerly Miss Minnie Parks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Parks, Napanee.

DEATH TAKES A LOVED RESIDENT

Grand Traverse Region Knew and Honored Frank Stafford For Many Years

Traverse City mourns the loss of another beloved resident, Frank Stafford, 61 years old, who passed away Tuesday at midnight at his residence, 1720 Washington street, following a prolonged illness.

Mr. Stafford was born August 28th, 1865, in Lonsdale, Ontario and came to this region 38 years ago, making his home in Leelanau County and Traverse City since that time. On January 1st, 1900, he was united in marriage to Miss Mary M. Hoxie, of this region.

Mr. Stafford was an esteemed and valuable member of East Bay Masonic Lodge, No. 293, and the I.O.O.F. Lodge of Northport. He was a man of sterling character, a devoted husband and father and trustworthy citizen whose life will be greatly missed in the community in which he had lived for so many years.

Left to mourn their loss are the bereaved widow, one son, Arthur Stafford, of this city, and a daughter, Mrs. C. M. Spalding, of South Haven; two grandchildren, four sisters and three brothers, all of whom, with the exception of John Stafford, of Northport, reside in Canada, besides loads of friends throughout the region.

Funeral services will be held at the family home, Friday afternoon, at 2:30, Rev. William Chapman, pastor of the Central Methodist Church, officiating. The East Bay Lodge will have charge of the services at the mausoleum where the body will remain until spring when burial will be made in Oakwood cemetery.—Traverse City Record-Eagle Traverse City, Mich., February 29th, 1922.

Judge (to Irish prisoner)—Well, and what brought you here?

"Two policemen, your honor."

"Drunk I suppose?"

"Begorra, they were, both of them!"

"Ten shillings or a month in jail."

"Thank you kindly; I'll take the money."

Avoid the Pains Of Rheumatism

This Trouble Comes Through Weak, Watery Blood.

Many people suffer rheumatic pains that could be avoided by building up the blood. Rheumatism comes with thin, watery blood, and can only be driven out of the system by enriching and purifying the blood. To make rich, red blood no medicine equals Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new blood, driving out all poisonous secretions, and creating a condition of robust health. Thousands of rheumatic sufferers can testify to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Among them is Mr. Jos. A. Tully, Bobcaygeon, Ont., who says:—"As a worker in the woods for years I was exposed to all kinds of rough wintry weather. The result was that I was finally laid up with rheumatism. I could hardly stir, and was confined to bed. Medicine seemed to have little or no effect and the best encouragement the doctor gave me was that with the coming of warm weather I would be better. But instead of getting better, I grew worse. My joints were badly swollen, and my legs so stiff they would hardly support my body. At this stage I read that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended for rheumatism, and decided to try them. The results were beyond my expectations. After a few weeks the swelling had disappeared, and the stiffness gradually wore away, and much sooner than I expected all traces of rheumatism had disappeared. The next winter when I went into the wood I took a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with me, and they kept me in the best of condition. My experience should give encouragement to other rheumatic sufferers."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Kind of Eggs Poultrymen Want

Every poultryman wants lots of large, uniform, strong-shelled, and HATCHABLE eggs. And more and more are finding that Quaker Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash is just the feed to get the BEST eggs, as well as MOST eggs.

The ingredients of this good feed are of proven merit—oatmeal, most digestible of all grain products; cod liver meal, that tones up the digestive system; minerals, essential to egg building.

Greater hatchability—and stronger, healthier chicks—make Quaker Ful-O-Pep eggs just the eggs for the poultryman, breeder and hatchery man.

The Honor of the Big Snows

By James Oliver Curwood

Author of "The Danger Trail"

One night, late enough in the season for a fire to be crackling merrily in the stove, Jan was reading one of these letters when Mellase cried:

"Stop, Jan—stop there!"

Jan caught himself, and he blushed mightily when he read the next lines:

"I think you have beautiful eyes. I love them."

"What is it?" cried Cummins interestedly. "Read on, Jan."

"Don't!" commanded Mellse, springing to her feet and running around the table. "I didn't mean you to read that!"

She snatched the paper from Jan's hand and threw it into the fire.

Jan's blood filled with pleasure, and at the bottom of his next letter he wrote back:

"I think you have beautiful hair. I love it."

That winter Jan was appointed post hunter, and this gave him much time at home, for meat was plentiful along the edge of the Barrens. They continued at their books until they came to the end of what Jan knew in them. After that, like searchers in strange places, they felt their way onward, slowly and with caution. During the next summer they labored through all the books which were in the little box in the corner of the cabin.

It was Mellase who now played most on the violin. One day she looked curiously into the F-hole of the instrument, and her pretty mouth puckered itself into a round, red "O" of astonishment when Jan quickly snatched the violin from her hands.

"Excuse me, my pretty Mellase," he laughed at her in French. "I am going to play you something new."

That same day he took the little cloth covered roll from the violin and gave it another hiding place.

Every fiber of his being sang in joyful response as he watched Mellase pass from childhood into young girlhood. To him Mellase was growing into everything that was beautiful. She was his world, his life, and at Post Lac Bain there was nothing to come between the two. Jan noticed that in her thirteenth year she could barely stand under his outstretched arm. The next year she had grown so tall that she could not stand there at all. Very soon she would be a woman.

CHAPTER VIII.

Renunciation.

IT was on the girl's fifteenth birthday. They had come up to the top of the ridge on which he had fought the mieschum, to gather red sprigs of the bakneesh for the festival that they were to have in the cabin that night. High up on the face of a jagged rock Jan saw a bit of the crimson vine thrusting itself out into the sun, and, with Mellase laughing and encouraging him from below, he climbed up until he had secured it. He tossed it down to her.

"It's the last one," she cried, seeing his disadvantage, "and I'm going home. You can't catch me."

Jan slackened his steps. It was a joy to see Mellase springing from rock to rock and darting across the thin openings close ahead of him, her hair loosening and sweeping out in the sun, her slender figure fleeing with the lightness of the pale sun shadows that ran up and down the mountain.

He would not have overtaken her of his own choosing, but at the foot of the ridge Mellase gave up. Never had he seen her so beautiful, still darling him with her laugh, quivering and panting, flinging back her hair. Half reaching out to him as she cried:

"Mellase, you are beautiful—you are almost a woman! If you did your hair up like the pictures we have in the books you would be a woman," he answered softly. "You are more beautiful than the pictures."

"You say that I am pretty and that I am almost a woman," she pouted, "and yet"— She shrugged her shoulders at him in mock disdain. "Jan Thoreau, this is the third time in the last week that you have not played the game right. I won't play with you any more!"

In a flash he was at her side, her face between his two hands, and bending down, he kissed her upon the mouth.

"There," she said as he released her, "Isn't that the way we have played it ever since I can remember? Whenever you catch me you may have that."

"I am afraid, Mellse," he said seriously. "You are growing so tall and so pretty that I am afraid."

"Afraid! My brother afraid to kiss me! And what will you do when I get to be a woman, Jan, which will be very soon, you say?"

"I don't know, Mellase."

She turned her back to him and flung out her hair, and Jan, who had done the same thing for her a hundred times before, divided the silken mass into three strands and plaited them into a braid.

"I don't believe that you care for me as much as you used to, Jan. I wish I were a woman, so that I might know if you are going to forget me entirely."

Her shoulders trembled, and when he had finished his task he knew that she was laughing and that her eyes were swimming with a new mischief which she was trying to hide from him. In that laugh there was something which was not like Mellse. Slight as the change was he noticed it; but, instead of displeasing him, it set a vague sensation of pleasure trilling like a new song within him.

When they reached the post Mellase went to the cabin with her bakneesh and Jan to the company's store, where he met Jean de Gravois.

"Blessed saints, man, but is she not growing more beautiful every day?" said Jean.

"Yes," said Jan.

"She will soon be a woman."

"A woman!" shouted Jean, who, not having his caribou whip, jumped up and down to emphasize his words. "She will soon be a woman, did you say, Jan Thoreau? And if she is not a woman at thirty with two children—God send others like them!—when will she be, I ask you?"

"I meant Mellse," laughed Jan.

"And I meant Iowska," said Jean. He hopped out like a cricket overburdened with life, calling loudly to his wife, who came to meet him, and saying to Jan:

"Hurry to the cabin, Jan, and see what sort of a birthday gift Mellase has got for you."

The big room was empty when Jan came quietly through the open door. He stopped to listen and caught a faint laugh from the other room and then another, and to give warning of his presence he doubled loudly and scraped a chair along the floor. A moment's silence followed. The farther door opened a little and then it opened wide, and Mellase came out.

"Now, what do you think of me, brother Jan?"

She stood in the light of the window, through which came the afternoon sun, her hair piled in glistening coils upon the crown of her head as they had seen them in the pictures, her cheeks flushed, her eyes glowing questioningly at Jan.

"You are prettier than I have ever seen you, Mellse," he replied softly.

"If I am prettier and you like me this way, why don't you"—

She finished with a sweet, upturned pouting of her mouth, and with a sudden, laughing cry Jan caught her in his arms and kissed the lips she held up to him. It was but an instant, and he freed her, a hot blush burning in his brown cheeks.

"My dear brother!" she laughed at him, gathering up the bakneesh on the table. "I love to have you kiss me, and now I have to make you do it. Father kisses me every morning when he goes to the store. I remember when you used to kiss me every time you came home, but now you forget to do it at all. Do brothers love their sisters less as they grow older?"

"Sometimes they love the sister less and the other girl more, Mellse," came a quick voice from the door, and Jean de Gravois bounded in like a playful cat, scraping and bowing before Mellase until his head nearly touched the floor. "Lovely saints, Jan Thoreau, but she is a woman, just as my Iowska told me!"

"You're terribly in love, Jean," cried Mellase, laughing until her eyes were wet; "just like some of the people in the books which Jan and I read."

"And I always shall be, my dear."

They Keep You Free From Kidney Trouble

B. C. Lady Used Dodd's Kidney Pills With Good Results

Mrs. S. D. Coates Was Relieved of Rheumatism and Backache.

West Demara, B.C., March 22rd (Special)—"I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills for Rheumatism and Backache and cannot say too much in praise of this splendid medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it to anyone." So writes Mrs. S. D. Coates, a well-known and highly respected resident of this place.

Rheumatism is not exactly a kidney disease. It is the result of kidney derangement. The aches and pains commonly known as rheumatism are caused by uric acid in the blood. If the kidneys are doing their duty there should be no uric acid in the blood. But if the kidneys are tired, worn out, or out of order, the amount of this poison in the blood will increase daily. It crystallizes at the joints and muscles and then comes those agonizing pains so many people know and dread. The remedy is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They strengthen the kidneys so that they do their full work of removing the uric acid from the blood.

Mellase flung the red shawl over her head, still laughing.

"I will go to see her, Jean."

"Well," said Gravois, looking searchingly at Jan when she had left, "shall I give you my best wishes, Jan Thoreau? Does it signify?"

"Signify—what?"

The little Frenchman's eyes snapped.

"Why, when our pretty Cree maiden becomes engaged she puts up her hair for the first time; that is all, my dear Jan."

He stopped suddenly, startled into silence by the strange look that had come into the other's face. For a full minute Jan stood as if the power of movement had gone from him.

"No; it—means—nothing," he said finally, speaking as if the words were forced from him one by one. He dropped into a chair beside the table like one whose senses had been dulled by an unexpected blow.

"Jan Thoreau," whispered Jean softly, "have you forgotten that it was I who killed the missioner for you, and that through all of these years Jean de Gravois has never questioned you about the fight on the mountain top? Is there anything Jean de Gravois can do?"

He sat down opposite Jan, his thin, eager face propped in his hands, and watched silently until the other lifted his head. Their eyes met, steady, unflinching, and in that look there were the oath and the seal of all that the honor of the big snows held for those two.

Still without words Jan reached within his breast and drew forth the little roll which he had taken from his violin. One by one he handed the pages over to Jean de Gravois.

"My God!" said Jean, when he had finished reading. He spoke no other words. White faced, the two men stared, Jan's throat twitching, Gravois' brown fingers crushing the rolls he held.

"That was why I tried to kill the missioner," said Jan at last. "And that—that—is why it could not signify that Mellse has done up her hair."

He gathered up the papers so that they shut back into the little cylinder shaped roll again.

"I understand," replied Jean in a low voice. "I understand and I praise the blessed Virgin that it was Jean de Gravois who killed the missioner out upon the ice of Lac Bain!"

"But the other," persisted Jan, "the other, which says that I"—

"Stop!" cried Jean sharply. He came around the table and seized Jan's hands in the iron grip of his lithe, brown fingers. "That is something for you to forget. It means nothing—nothing at all, Jan Thoreau! Does any one know but you and me?"

"No one. I intended that some day Mellse and her father should know, but I waited too long. I waited until I was afraid, until the horror of telling her frightened me. I made myself forget, burying it deeper each year, until today—on the mountain!—

"And today in this cabin you will forget again, and you will bury it so deep that it will never come back. I am proud of you, Jan Thoreau. I love you, and it is the first time that Jean de Gravois has ever said this to a man. Ah, I hear them coming!"

With an absurd bow in the direction of the laughing voices which they now heard, the melodramatic little Frenchman pulled Jan to the door. Halfway across the open were Mellase and Iowska carrying a large Indian basket between them and making merry over the task. When they saw Gravois and Jan they set down their burden and waved an invitation for the two men to come to their assistance.

"You should be the second happiest man in the world, Jan Thoreau," exclaimed Jean. "The first is Jean de Gravois!"

He set off like a bolt from a spring gun in the direction of the two who were waiting for them. He had heard the basket upon his shoulder by the time Jan arrived.

"Are you growing old, too, Jan?" bantered Mellase as she dropped a few steps behind Jean and his wife. "You come on slowly!"

"I think I'm twenty-nine."

He looked at her steadily, the grief which he was fighting to keep back tightening the muscles about his mouth.

Like the quick passing of sunshine the fun swept from her face, leaving her blue eyes staring up at him, filled with a pain which he had never seen in them before. In a moment he knew that she had understood him, and he could have cut out his tongue. Her hand reached his arm, and she stopped him, her face lifted pleadingly, the tears slowly gathering in her eyes.

"Forgive me!" she whispered, her voice breaking into a sob. "Dear, dear Jan, forgive me! Today is your birthday, Jan—yours and mine, mine and yours—and we will always have it that way, always, won't we, Jan?"

Jan was glad when the evening came and was gone. Not until Jean and Iowska had said good night with Croisset and his wife and both Cummins and Mellase had gone to their rooms did he find himself relieved of the tension under which he had struggled during all of his playing and that which followed in the cabin.

From the first he knew that his nerves were strung by some strange and indefinable sensation that was growing within him—something which he could hardly have explained at first, but which swiftly took form and meaning and oppressed him more as the hours flew by.

After the others had gone Cummins sat up to smoke a pipe. When he had passed, "I will never do up my hair again!"

He kissed her, and his arms dropped from her shoulders.

"Never, never again—until you have forgotten to love me," she repeated. "Good night, Brother Jan!"

Across the open, through the rimmed edge of the black spruce, deeper and deeper into the cold, unquivering loneliness of the forest, Jan went from the door that closed between him and Mellase, her last words still whispering in his ears, the warm touch of her hair on his cheeks and the knowledge of what this day had meant for him swiftly surging upon him, bringing with it a torment which racked him to the soul.

He went on until he came to where the beaten trail swept up and away from a swamp. He plunged into it, picking his tangled way until he stood upon a giant ridge, from which he looked out through the white night into the limitless barrens to the north.

She was no longer the little Mellse, his sister, he thought. And yet—

He was almost saying her last words aloud:

"Good night, Brother Jan!"

She had come to him that day to let him kiss her as she had come to him a thousand times before, but he had not kissed her in the old way. It was a different love that his lips had given, and even now the hot blood surged again into his face as he thought of what he had done. In that which had stirred his blood, thrilling him with strange joy as he held her in his arms, he saw more than the shadow of sin—sacrilege against a thing which was more precious to him than life.

CHAPTER IX.

The New Agent and His Son.

JAN thrust a hand inside his coat and clutched at the papers that Jean de Gravois had read. Then he drew them forth slowly and held them crumpled in his fingers, finished he went to his room. Jan was now sleeping in a room at the company's store, and after a time he rose silently to take down his cap and coat. He opened the outer door quietly so as not to arouse Mellse, who had gone to bed half an hour before.

As he was about to go out there came a sound, a low, gentle, whispered word:

"Jan!"

He turned. Mellase stood in her door. She had not undressed, and her hair was still done up in its soft coils, with the crimson bakneesh shining in it. She came to him hesitatingly until she stood with her two hands upon his arm, gazing into his tense face with that same question in her eyes.

"Jan, you were not pleased with me tonight," she whispered. "Tell me why."

"I was pleased with you, Mellse," he replied.

He took one of her hands that was clinging to his arm and turned his face to the open night. Countless stars gleamed in the sky, as they had shone on another night fifteen years ago. Suddenly there slipped up from Jan Thoreau's breast a breath that bored from his lips in a low cry:

"Mellse! Mellse! It was just fifteen years ago that I came in through that forest out there, starved and dying, and played my wiles when your mother died. You were a little baby then, and since that night you have never pleased me more than now!"

He dropped her hand and turned squarely to the door to hide what he knew had come into his face. He heard a soft, heartbroken little sob behind him.

"Jan, dear Jan!"

She laughed, happy and trembling, her lips held up to him.

"I didn't please you today," she whis

ST. ANDREW'S CONCERT

During the past few years St. Andrew's congregation have been fortunate in securing a number of musicians of note for their annual concerts, and on Friday evening of last week, they were again delighted with their success. The solo-artist for the occasion was Mrs. Pearl Steinoff-Whitehead, of Toronto, who possesses a mezzo-soprano of unusual clarity, width of range, and sweetness of tone. Mrs. Whitehead is endowed also with that greatest of attributes, a charming personality which creeps into her music and makes it doubly interesting.

The music was well chosen, beginning with a group of sacred numbers, which included a rythmical hymn of the seventeenth century, reminiscent of chanting monks, a difficult Tschaikowsky number, entitled "A Legend", and the beloved aria from the Messiah, "Oh Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion", sung with exquisite phrasing. It was characteristic of the singer that she enacted her role or told her story with such expression that she held her listeners with every note.

The second group was entirely by living composers, Terry, Willan and Rachmaninoff, "The Answer" was one of the finest selections of the evening, beautifully rendered and most heartily encored. The transition from the solemnity of the Rachmaninoff number to the dainty fairy tales of Healy Willan, demonstrated the versatility of the singer. Mrs. Whitehead concluded her very interesting programme with some charming folk-songs, Irish, German, Scotch and English. We think the audience greatly appreciated the singer's courtesy in singing her songs in English, especially as her pronunciation made it possible for every word to reach the very back of the auditorium, which is not frequent talent. Two little Irish songs, daintily and liltingly rendered; a German folk-song, one of the star numbers of the evening; the solemn beauty of the "Earl of Moray", most impressive, were all delightful. Mrs. Whitehead graciously responded to insistant encores three times.

Mrs. J. E. Madden, the talented pianist, played the accompaniments with sympathy and skill, and also gave a brilliant piano solo. She played two duo numbers, with Miss Beatrice Baughan at the organ, while the opening selection, the majestic "Marche Triomphale" by Guilmont, was played by Mrs. Madden at the organ, and Miss Baughan at the piano. Miss Baughan is the Organist of St. Andrew's Church.

DISTRICT ORATORICAL CONTEST

Munroe Beattie, representing Napanee Collegiate Institute, won first place in the Toronto Star District semi-finals at Kingston on Friday evening, March 16th, and thus qualified to enter the Provincial Finals at Toronto in April.

Five high school orators competed at Kingston from the following schools of the district:—Brockville C. I., Brockville St. Mary's, Belleville C. I., Deseronto H. S., Kingston C. I., Napanee C. I., Prescott H. S., Seeley's Bay C. S., Westport C. I., Cardinal H. S. and Trenton H. S.

All the orations were of a high type, and each speaker presented the subject, "Canada's Future", in glowing terms and from different viewpoints. The winner's easy and natural style, combined with a very clear and logical development of his subject, was the deciding point in the decision.

Mr. Craig, of Kingston, presided, and at the conclusion of the evening's orations presented the District Silver Cup to the winner, to be held by the Napanee Collegiate for one year. The gold pin presented by the Star was given to the three highest contestants, Miss Shirley Colclough, Deseronto, and Chris Kumzar, Belleville, won second and third place respectively.

The Napanee Collegiate winner will be sent by the Star to Toronto to compete with thirteen other district winners in the Provincial finals, in which the prize is one hundred dollars, and the right to represent the Province in the Dominion Finals. The winner of the Dominion Finals will be given a free trip to Europe this summer, and will represent Canada at the International Contest in Washington in the autumn.

Spring Fashions 1928

You are cordially invited to attend our Formal Presentation of New Spring and Easter Fashions, being held this Friday and Saturday, March 23rd and 24th. Special merchandise and wearing apparel displays throughout the store will characterize this event. Consider this your personal invitation to be present.

The Brisk Days of Early Spring

Call forth a tailored mode in Misses' Top Coats to keep pace with nimble feet and bristling wit. Such tailored coats are on display in our Coat section. Their chic lies deeply embedded in superior quality materials and superb tailoring. For sport and occasion wear come other coats equally as tempting in their exclusive styles and superb materials.

Choice Smartness in Easter Hats

Hats expressing numerous delightful feminine features. Hats that have clear ways of introducing new notes of elegance. Hats that are illustrative of the inimitable genius of Canadian designers and manufacturers. Many new and important colors are in Spring's color chart this season.

Chic in Terms of Spring Frocks

Various new skirt tendencies hang from snug hips this season. Softer and more feminine lines are being suggested. These newer variations take the form of drapes, jabots and tiers. The new necklines are exceedingly original and daring. Pleats come forward and appear in groups. Every new garment possesses many captiving features.

1928 Fashions in Sport Attire

Here we find color and fabric doing their utmost to lend chic to smart little frocks which steadfastly maintain that the straight, plain way is the way to smartness in sports apparel. The two and three-piece mode is still important, with an ever increasing vogue for ensemble colorings.

REVIEW OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Acting on the instructions of Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, representatives of the department are to be sent to the United States to make a study of "cereal trest", or gas in it per cream, that has been placed on the market in certain cities of the Province. Recently the sale of the product has been engaging the attention of the Committee on Agriculture. Milk producers of the Province complain that it is a manufactured product and not the product of the farm. Present legislation holds that 16 per cent butter fat is the lowest cream that can be sold on the market. Opinions expressed before the committee have led the department to make a thorough investigation into the product.

Following up the splendid programme of social legislation that has been introduced by the government, Premier Ferguson has brought down in the legislature a Bill to protect widows and orphans from the action of the father and husband in failing to provide for them adequately under their wills. Introduced under the title "The Widows and Orphans Maintenance Act of 1928" Premier Ferguson's measure will give the right to the Judge of the Surrogate Court to alter the last will and testament of husbands who leave their families insufficiently provided for. Power is given the Surrogate Court Judge to make provision for the family but such provision is not to exceed the amount that would normally be received by the wife if the husband had died intestate.

Introducing his measure, the Premier stated that the principle of the bill was not new as far as the Province of Ontario Legislature was concerned. "It is pretty well recognized", he stated, "that modern methods of business have changed in such a way as to change the character of a man's estate. Formerly an estate consisted largely of real estate and under the law a widow was protected by dower. To-day the bulk of the estate is in securities. In the case of persons who die intestate the widow is protected, but the husband may make a will which deprives her of her rights."

The Bill, the Premier explained, provides that the widow may make application before the Surrogate Court Judge, who would take all the evidence and determine whether or not the widow was entitled to a greater amount of the estate than had been left to her under the will. The Premier stated that the government fully realized the importance of interfering with a man's will, but he expressed the opinion that it was better to have the estate remain in the family rather than have them fall back as charges on the municipality.

* * * * *

A. G. Letthbridge, Progressive Leader, congratulated the government on introducing the legislation and predicted that his group would give the government its strong support in placing the Bill on the Statute Books of the Province.

* * * * *

Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, has introduced legislation providing that the Minister may have power to fix the size and kind of trees and timber that may be cut on unpatented public lands and on patented lands where the timber remains the property of the Crown. The measure applies to all grants that have been made by the government in the past.

Attacks that have been made on the distribution of Hydro by Members of the Opposition Groups of the Legislature were more than met and adequately disposed of by Hon. J. R. Cooke during the course of his contribution to the Budget Debate in the House. He deprecated in no uncertain tones the "critical and unreasonable" attitude shown by some of the opposition members of the Hydro enterprise. The government, he stated, was moving as rapidly as was humanly possible toward supplying power to the rural districts of the Province. As an instance of this, he pointed out that the sum of $6,000 per day had been expended on rural installations and extensions during the past year and drew the hearty applause of the House when he declared that $8,000 per day would be the amount to be expended in the same direction this year.

The government, stated Mr. Cooke, had no apologies to make for the purchase of the Ontario Chautauqua development. It was, he contended, the best contract that could be secured on the North American continent. He pointed out very strongly that within 20 years, despite the three great sources of power on Niagara, Ottawa and the St. Lawrence, that the power resources of the Province would be overtaxed if the leadings increased at the present yearly rate.

* * * * *

J. A. Pinard, Liberal Member for Ottawa East, was loud in his congratulations in connection with the government's administration of the Hydro question. While he admitted that personally he was a supporter of private ownership, he felt that the Ontario Hydro was doing a great work which should have the support of the people of the Province at large.

Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Highways, has introduced in the Legislature amendments to the Highways Traffic Act, which will prohibit the use of the spotlight on motor cars when the law becomes operative. For the safety of persons using the public highways at night, an amendment has also been introduced compelling operators of vehicles over 80 inches in width to carry red and green lights on the front and rear of the truck. The legislation also contains a provision making it necessary for all cars to have two distinct sets of brakes, one of which may be locked when the car is parked. Change has also been made in the Bill which allows a police officer to force a driver of a truck to drive two miles to a scale if the truck is thought to be over-loaded. Formerly the officer could only direct the driver to a scale within one mile of the scene of the offense.

* * * * *

Of particular interest to rural localities is the announcement of Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Highways, made during the course of his contribution to the Budget Debate, that the government is prepared to provide additional relief to the townships and counties from taxation for provincial and other highways. Relief will be in proportion to the increase in traffic that is not of a local nature. In making the announcement, Mr. Henry at the same time made it clear that the Province was not prepared to assume full financial responsibility for the provincial highways.

Mr. Henry pointed out that for the Province to assume the entire burden of all provincial highways that it would mean, in fairness to all, the taking over of the entire road system of the Province. This would mean that the highways would have to be supported by direct taxation and suggestion that did not meet with the approval of the government.

With all the Progressive members of the House, with the exception of three adding their voices of approval to the government's Budget the motion to go into Committee of Supply was carried in the Legislature by a record vote of 67 to 16. Something in the nature of history was made in the passing of the Budget. For weeks the House has weathered a storm of debate, but not on a single occasion was the financial status of the province subjected to question.

Not one member of the Opposition groups had any criticism to make of the government's system of finance or borrowing. Action of the government following out a system laid down by a special committee of independent financial experts precluded any suggestion that certain items should have been charged to capital account rather than ordinary or vice versa. G. Lethbridge, Progressive Leader in dressing himself to the House expressed the view of his party when he stated that there was a general expression of satisfaction among the members of the Progressive Group that the Budget had been balanced.

Liberal amendment that the Province should assume the entire cost of Provincial Highway costs was lost on the same division as the Budget. Progressive members of the House voted with the government on the ground that the proposal would not be fair to counties that had already paid their share of the highways within their borders.

Mrs. G. W. Coppage, who spent a few days in Toronto recently, has returned home. — Miss Margaret Rose spent the week-end with friends at Wellington. — Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Thompson, Napanee, spent Tuesday at Fred Hagerman's. — Mr. and Mrs. George Stevenson and family, of Windsor, have moved here. Mr. Stevenson having taken over the mail route from Bath to Ernestown. — The many friends of Gerald Ball, a young man who was formerly a resident here, were shocked to hear of his tragic death at Winterhaven, Florida, on March 19th, as the result of injuries received when the motorcycle he was riding was struck by an automobile. He was a son of the late Overton Ball. He had been residing in Florida with his mother, Mrs. Charles Trotter, for some time. Besides his mother he leaves to mourn his loss one sister, Mrs. Gordon Young, who lives just a few miles from this village. The sympathy of the community is extended to them both. — Mr. W. H. Hall is spending a few weeks with his mother, Mrs. Martha Hall, at Essex, Ont., who has been quite ill.—Burglars broke into the home of Mr. Charles Hoseltou about four o'clock on Tuesday morning, and after a struggle with Mr. Hoselton, in which he was quite badly cut about the face, made good their escape with $90.00. Mr. Hoselton was awakened by a noise early that morning, and went downstairs. He heard someone moving and finally engaged the intruder in battle. The burglar was quite a big man and proved to be more than a match for him, although he finally took to his heels and ran. Mr. Hoselton followed in his night attire and saw the man get into an automobile coupe, which was waiting about a block from the house, but was unable to get the license number. Mr. Hoselton only has a vague description of the burglar, owing to the darkness which prevailed throughout the struggle, as he did not have time to light a lamp. No clues have as yet been found.

CAMDEN EAST

The weather is much milder here at time of writing, and the snow is disappearing fast. When we hear the sound of the robins spring sure must be near at hand.—Mrs. J. Yeomans is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. F. Switzer, at Desmond.—Mrs. Percy Histed and two children arrived on Wednesday of last week, after spending three months with her husband at Buffalo, N. Y.—Mrs. R. Clow, of Croydon, was a week-end visitor of her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George Black, and attended the social on Friday night in the United Church Hall. —A number from here attended the farewell party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hamilton at Bethel street on Monday night.—The stork visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Blakely's on Monday and left them a baby boy. Congratulations.—Mr. Rowsel Click has moved in Mrs. D. Williams house on Main street. —The monthly meeting of the Women's Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. Acteo Robinson on Thursday, Mar. 29th, at 2 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all ladies interested in Institute work.—The Woman's Missionary Society held a very successful meeting on Wednesday evening, Mar. 14, at the home of Mrs. Geo. Black, with a goodly number in attendance. The chief feature of the programme was the report of the Presbyterial held at Picton. Much credit is due Mrs. J. Yeomans for the excellent report which was given in a very able manner, after which Mrs. G. Black served an old time delicious lunch—apple pie, doughnuts, maple sugar, bread and butter and coffee and tea, which was appreciated. Next meeting to be held at the home of Miss A. Williams.

YARKER SOUTH

Quite a few crows have arrived lately, which makes us think spring is near at hand.—Lassen Davey has employed his job in the woods getting out logs, and is now engaged in getting them to the saw mill, which is quite a task, owing to the roads, which are in a bad condition.—Mr. and Mrs. John Love spent Thursday last with their son Milford near Wilton.—Mrs. Harold Huff and two children spent a few days last week with Mrs. Fred Reid of Reidville.—Mr. and Mrs. Cassen Davey entertained a number of neighbors on Saturday night of last week.—Mrs. John Love and Clarence called on Mrs. Cassen Davey and Mrs. Martha Love on Friday last.—Mrs. Harold Huff spent Thursday last with Miss Bazie Babcock, Yarker.—Mr. A. Sam Switzer, of Wilton, moved his family and household effects on Thursday into the house owned by Cassen Davey on the gore road.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Love spent a day recently with their cousin, Mr. Newman.—Mrs. Martha Love and Walter Huff spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Jas. Huff.—Miss Gladys Wilson spent Sunday afternoon at J. Babcock's.

—Mrs. Ira Davison, of Oxbow, Mass., spent last Saturday night at C. Davey's.

See Wall Papers at Hooper's before buying elsewhere.

MORVEN

The funeral of the late Mrs. Huldah VanLaven, a one time resident of this place, was held on Saturday afternoon in the White Church. Mrs. VanLaven was in her nine-ninth year, and has lived in Kingston for a number of years.—Mr. W. R. Henwood spent the week-end with her daughter in Kingston.—Mr. Bert Wilson, Norma and Hilda Proctor spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Huson.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Baird, Anderson, called on Mr. and Mrs. L. Baird on Sunday.—Miss Anna Cannon spent the week-end with Mrs. J. F. Lake.—The play, "Headstrong Joan," was given in the Brick Church on Wednesday evening, and was followed with good attention unto the end of "Joan's" swift reign.

Seeds That Grow

New Garden and Flower Seeds, at Hooper's Drug Store.

Protection for Ontario grown fruit has been promised by the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature that is dealing with the Hawkers and Pedlars Bill. Expressions of opinion during the course of the Committee's deliberations indicated that as far as Ontario fruit products were concerned the measure should not be allowed to affect their sale. The Committee voted unanimously that Ontario fruit should not be affected by any of the measures contained in the bill.

OBITUARY

Charles George Coxall

Entered into rest on Monday, at 5.30 p.m., March 19th, 1928, after a short illness. The late Mr. Coxall was born on Wolfe Island, January 16th, 1850. In his young manhood he settled in Tamworth, in the mercantile business from which he retired in November, 1917.

An Anglican in religion, he gave the same enthusiastic support, to his church that he did to his business, serving as Church Warden for many years. The community at large will miss his optomistic spirit and his generous response to all the appeals made to him.

Besides his sorrowing wife, he leaves to mourn him three sons and three daughters, Mrs. J. W. Sloan, Tamworth; Mrs. George A. Reid, Belleville; Mrs. N. Wilson, Windsor; Stanton, at home; Walter S., Kingston, and Lawrence P., Wellington; a sister, Mrs. G. Curran, Lindsay; Mr. John Coxall, Wolfe Island.

Miss Madelon Hinch.

On Friday evening, February 3rd, 1928, the Angel of Death gathered into his cold embrace one of Newgh's fairest and most talented young girls, when he called to her eternal reward Anna Madelon, eldest daughter of Mrs. John Hinch, and the late John Hinch.

Returning from Ottawa Normal the previous Friday on account of heart trouble, which quickly engendered pneumonia, her demise was so sudden it completely incapacitated those around her. Before her heart-broken mother and sisters fully realized it, her sweet spirit had very calmly and peacefully taken flight.

A few hours before dying she received the last imposing rites of the R. C. Church, in perfect conciousness. She requested her sorrowing mother to recite her favourite prayers, and to the end was heard repeating pious ejaculations.

Madelon was of a particularly sweet and lovable disposition, always maintaining a high ideal of character and achievements. By dint of downright application and perseverance, she had climbed the ladder to a high professional and social-attainment, having obtained her First Class certificate at the Napanee Collegiate last July.

No selfish thought ever degraded her sweet intercourse with her host of girl friends, relatives and acquaintances, who were stunned and bewildered on hearing of her sudden death.

Besides her grief-stricken mother, she leaves two heart-broken sisters, Estella and Margaret, who mourn the loss of a cherished daughter and sister.

The high esteem in which she was held was testified by the unusually large funeral cortege on Monday to St. Anthony's Church, Centreville, where Rev. Fr. C. J. Mea celebrated the solemn requiem mass, afterwards delivering an impressive and eloquent sermon. The remains were then placed in the vault to await interment in the spring. The pall-bearers were J. Byrnes, G. McGuire, O. Fenwick, S. Candler, O. Hinch and P. Doyle.

Placed on the casket were floral tributes from Ottawa Normal School, Newburgh High School, and friends and Mrs. M. Vandevoort, as well as spiritual bouquets and spiritual offerings.

James S. Curran.

James S. Curran died on March 11th, 1928, following an illness of some months. Although a great sufferer he was always cheerful and patiently awaited the Master's call.

He was born in Kingston, and moved when nine months old, with his parents, to their farm near Harrowsmith, where he resided until several years ago, when he moved to Morven, where he made many kind friends.

The funeral was held on Tuesday, March 13th, at the home of his father-in-law, James Sewell, where a large number of friends gathered to pay their last tribute to a good neighbour. His Pastor, Rev. Mr. Merrick, took charge of the service, and the words of comfort he left with the mourners were "He wipes the tears from every eye". He is survived by his widow and four children, Harry, of Calgary; Mrs. Ed. Wales, Scotia, N.Y.; John, of Sillsville, and Mrs. Ray Reid, of Morven; also two brothers and one sister.

DESERONTO

The Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario paid an official visit to the Parish of St. Mark's, Deseronto, on Sunday last. He celebrated the Holy Communion and preached at the 11 a.m. service, addressed the Sunday School at 3 p.m., and administered the Rite of Confirmation at 7 o'clock, in the presence of an overflowing congregation.

The Bishop preached a powerful sermon in the morning on our Lord's Temptation in the Wilderness, and at 7 o'clock gave a splendid address to the people and a heart to heart talk to the Confirmation Class. The Organist and Choir well sustained their musical reputation at both services. The hymns at Evensong were most suitable, and the anthem, "Seek Ye the Lord", stressed the devotional spirit which could be felt and especially when the young men and women went forward to receive "The Laying on of Hands", Mr. C. F. Knight, Jr., took the Tenor solo accurately and in good voice. Eighteen were confirmed, seven girls and eleven boys. The services were marked by a beautiful spirit of reverence and order, and enjoyed by all present who came in the words of the anthem, "Seek Ye the Lord While He may be Found. The Rev. H. Pringle was present at the 7 o'clock service.

Services on Sunday next, March 25th at St. Mark's, Deseronto, will be —11 a.m. Holy Communion for the newly confirmed, and 7 p.m., Rev. Canon Hubert Dumbrille, L.Th., will be the special Lenten preacher.

VALUABLE TRAINING.

The growing recognition of the importance of first aid knowledge among industrial workers is exemplified in the annual report of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

Employees of the company's construction forces and other branches of the service have received a thorough training in first aid work. As a result, they have been able to render help in critical circumstances, not only to fellow employees, but to other victims of accident or misfortune, to the saving of both life and property. Of the company's male plant staff, numbering upwards of 4,600, over seventy-six per cent are now qualified first aiders.

TYPEWRITING CONTEST.

Napanee's first typewriting contest was held at the Collegiate Institute, on Thursday, March 15th. The local contest was put on by Mr. Fred Jarrett, the Canadian Contest Judge. The conditions read rules under which the speed contest was held were the same as the International Contest, and the test was conducted strictly according to these rules.

The nervousness which is usually incident to an initial test affected the speed of nearly all the contestants to whom such a test was new, and the records made were somewhat below the usual speed of the winners. Mr. Jarrett complimented the Collegiate pupils and graduates on the splendid showing made on the opening test, and suggested that the winners enter the Canadian Contest on the 24th of March.

The results of the contest were as follows:

Novice Class.

Open to typists who have taken no instructions in typewriting previous to last August.

Prizes: Highest net speed—The J. E. Robinson Cup—Miss Lenore Black, 61 net speed for 15 minutes, 40 words per minute.

Highest accuracy with minimum speed of 40 words per minute—Silver medal donated by Mr. R. C. Root—Miss Marion Cairns, speed 42. Accuracy, 99.5%.

Intermediate Class.

Open to typists who were novices last year.

Highest Net Speed—The J. G. Daly Cup.

Highest Accuracy—Silver Medal donated by Mr. C. A. Wiseman.

Miss Gladys Parrott, speed 50 words per minute. Accuracy, 99.7%.

Senior Class.

Open to any typist resident in Napanee for six months.

Highest Net Speed—The E. J. Roy Cup—Miss Mary Rogers, net speed, 63 words per minute.

Highest Accuracy—Silver Medal — Miss Nina McKim, speed 58 words per minute. Accuracy, 99.5%.

Mr. Jarrett, who was for several years the champion of Canada, gave a talk and demonstration to the commercial pupils at the Collegiate in the afternoon.

ST. ANDREW'S W. M. S.

The March meeting of St. Andrew's W. M. S. was held on the afternoon of March 9th.

The President, Mrs. Laughland, opened the meeting with "Some Thoughts on Prayer," after which followed a session of sentence prayers.

Mrs. Beattie read the Scripture lesson, and Mrs. Mabel Kelly voiced the meeting in prayer. The regular reports and communications were read.

This being the Diamond Jubilee year of our mission work in Trinidad, Mrs. Went gave an interesting account of the Island of Trinidad and its people. Mrs. Howitt followed with an account of the missionary work during the sixty years, and Mrs. Ker gave a report of the present work carried on by the various schools and colleges and the several places of worship. A very pretty musical selection, "This Is My Father's World" was sung by the members of the Programme Committee. Mrs. MacGregor gave a most interesting account of the last chapter, "Give and Take", of the study book, "New Paths for Old Purposes."

The meeting closed with a social half hour, tea being served by the Programme Committee, Mesdames MacGregor, Went, Howitt and Ker.

The Honor of the Big Snows

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD.
Author of "The Danger Trail"

while for many minutes he stared straight out into the gray gloom of the treeless plain.

His eyes shifted. They went from rock to rock and from tree to tree until at last they rested upon a giant spruce which hung out over the precipitous wall of the ridge, its thick top bowing and sighing to the black rocks that shot up out of the snow 500 feet below. Mukee had told Jan its story. In the first autumn of the woman's life at Lac Bain he and Per-ee had climbed the old spruce, lopping off its branches until only the black core remained, and after that it was known far and wide as the "lobstick" of Cummins' wife. It was a featureless pole, with which signified that all the honor and love known to the wilderness people had been given to her.

To it went Jan, the papers still held in his hand. He had seen a pair of whisky jacks storing food in the butt of the tree two or three summers before, and now his fingers groped for the hole. When he found it he thrust in the papers, crowded them down and filled the hole with chunks of bark.

"Always my sister, and never anything more to Jan Thoreau," he said gently in French as if he were speaking to a spirit in the old tree. "That is the honor of these snows; it is what the great God means us to be. I swear that Jan Thoreau will never do wrong to the little Melisse!" With a face white and set in its determination he turned slowly away from the tree.

When he came into the cabin for breakfast next morning Jan's face showed signs of the struggle through which he had gone. Cumulus had already finished, and he found Melisse alone. Her hair was brushed back in its old, smooth way, and when she heard him she flung her long braid over her shoulder, so that it fell down in front of her. He saw the movement, and smiled his thanks without speaking.

"You don't look well, Jan," she said anxiously. "You are pale, and your eyes are bloodshot."

"I am not feeling right," he admitted, trying to appear cheerful, "but this coffee will make a new man of me. You make the best coffee in the world, Melisse."

"What are you going to do today, Brother Jan?" she asked.

"Drive out on the Churchill trail. Ledoq wants supplies, and he's too busy with his lines to come in."

"Will you take me?"

"I'm afraid not, Melisse. It's a twelve mile run and a heavy load."

"Very well. I'll get ready immediately."

She jumped up from the table, darting run at him with her eyes, and ran to her room.

"It's too far, Melisse," he called after her. "It's too far, and I've a heavy load"—.

"Didn't I take that twenty mile run with you over to— Oh, dear! Jan, have you seen my new lynx skin cap?"

"It's out here, hanging on the wall," replied Jan, failing into her humor despite himself. "But I say, Melisse—"

"Are the dogs ready?" she called. "If they're not I'll be dressed before you can harness them, Jan."

"They'll be here within fifteen minutes," he replied, surrendering to her.

Her merry face, laughing triumph at him through the partly open door, destroyed the last vestige of his opposition, and he left her with something of his old cheerfulness of manner, whistling a gay forest tune as he hurried toward the store.

When he returned with the team Melisse was waiting for him, a gray thing of silvery lynx fur, with flushed cheeks, lips and eyes aglow, her trim little feet clad in soft caribou boots that came to her knees, and in her arms a bunch of the brilliant bakneesh fastened jauntily in her cap.

"I've made room for you," he said in greeting, pointing to the sledge.

"Which I'm not going to fill for five miles at least," declared Melisse. "Isn't it a glorious morning, Jan? I feel as if I can run from here to Ledoq's!"

With a crack of his whip and a shout, Jan swung the dogs across the open, with Melisse running lightly at his side. From their cabin Jean and Iowaka called out shrill adieus.

"The day is not far off when they two will be as you and I, my Iowaka," said Jean in his poetic Cree. "I wager you that it will be before her next birthday!"

And Melisse was saying:

"I wonder if there are many people as happy as Jean and Iowaka!"

She caught her breath, and Jan cracked on the dogs in a spurt that left her panting, a full dozen rods behind him. With a wild shallop he stopped the team and waited.

"That's unfair, Jan! You'll have to put me on the sledge."

He tucked her in among the furs, and the dogs strained at their traces, with Jan's whip curling and snapping over their backs, until they were leaping swiftly and with unbroken rhythm of motion over the smooth trail. Then Jan gathered in his whip and run close to the leader, his moccasined feet taking the short, quick, light steps of the trained forest runner, his chest thrown a little out, his eyes upon the twisting trail ahead.

Mile after mile slipped behind, and not until they reached the mountain on which he had fought the missionary did Jan bring his dogs to a walk. Melisse jumped from the sledge and ran quickly to his side.

"I can beat you to the top now!" she cried. "If you catch me"— There was the old witching challenge in her eyes.

She sped up the side of the ridge. Panting and breathless, Jan pursued with the dogs. Her advantage was too great for him to overcome in time, and she stood laughing down at him when he came to the top of the ridge.

"You're as pretty as a fairy, Melisse!" he exclaimed, his eyes shining with admiration. "Prettier than the fairy in the book!"

"Thank you, brother mine! I believe you do still love me a little."

"More than ever in my life," replied Jan quickly, though he tried to hold his tongue.

As they went on to Ledoq's he found that the joyousness of the morning was giving way again to the old gloom and heartache. "Brother Jan, Brother Jan!" Melisse had repeated the words incessantly in his brain until they seemed to keep time with his steps beside the sledge.

Ledoq was stripping the hair fat from a fox skin when the team pulled up in front of his cabin. When he saw the daughter of the factor at Lac Bain with Jan he jumped briskly to his feet, flung his cap through the door of the shack and began bowing and scraping to her with all his might.

Melisse laughed merrily as Ledoq continued to bow before her, rattling away in a delighted torrent of French.

"Ah, thes ees wan gr-r-reat complemen', M'selle Melisse," he said. Then he turned to Jan. "Did you meet the strange team?"

"We met no team."

Ledoq looked puzzled. Half a mile away the top of a snow covered ridge was visible from the cabin. He pointed to it.

"An hour ago I saw it going west-ward along the mountain—three men and six dogs. Whom have you out from Lac Bain?"

"No one," replied Jan. "It must have been the new agent from Churchill. We expect him early this winter. Shall we hurry back, Melisse, and see if he has brought our books and violin strings?"

"You must have dinner with me," objected Ledoq.

Jan caught a quick signal from Melisse.

"Not today, Ledoq. It's early and we have a lunch for the trail. What do you say, Melisse?"

"If you're not tired, Jan."

"Tired!"

He tossed the last package from the sledge and cracked his long whip over the dogs' backs as they both cried out their farewell to the little Frenchman.

"Tired!" he repeated, running close beside her as the team swung tightly into the trail and laughing down into her face. "How could I ever get tired with you watching me run, Melisse?"

"I wouldn't mind if you did—just a little, Jan. Isn't there room for two?"

She gave a coquettish little shrug of her shoulders, and Jan leaped upon the moving sledge, kneeling close behind her.

"Always, always, I have to ask you!" she pouted. "You needn't get too near, you know, if you don't want to."

The old, sweet challenge in her voice was irresistible, and for a moment Jan felt himself surrendering to it. He leaned forward until his chin was buried in the silken lynx fur of her cap, and for a single breath he felt the soft touch of her cheek against his own. Then he gave a sudden shout to the dogs—and knew that it startled her—and his whip writhed and snapped twenty feet above their heads like a thing filled with life.

He sprang from the sledge and again ran with the team, urging them on faster and faster until they dropped into a panting walk when they came to the ridge along which Ledoq two hours before had seen the strangers hurrying toward Lac Bain.

They did not lunch on the trail, but drew into the post in time for dinner. Jean de Gravois and Croisset came forth from the store to meet them.

"You have company, my dear," cried Jean to Melisse — "two gentlemens fresh from Londoo no the last boat and one of them younger and handsomer than your own Jan Thoreau. They are waiting for you in the cabin, where your father is getting them dinner and telling them how beautifully you would have made the coffee if you were there."

"Two!" said Jan as Melisse left them. "Who are they?"

"The new agent, M. Timothy Dixon, as red as the tongue, and fatter than a spawning fish. And his son, who has come along for fun, he says; and I believe he will get what he's after if he remains here very long, Jan Thoreau, for he looked a little too boldly at my Iowaka when she came into the store just now."

"Can you blame him, Jean? I tell you that I look at Iowaka whenever I get the chance."

"Is she not worth it?" cried Jean in rapture. "You are welcome to every look that you can get, Jan Thoreau. But the foreigners—I will skin him alive and spit him with the devil thorn if he so much as peeps at her out of the wrong end of his eye."

Croisset shrugged his shoulders. "There are two of the foreigners at Nelson House, and two on the Whitefish, and one"—

An hour later Jan went slowly across the open to Cummins' cabin. As he paused for an instant at the door he heard a laugh that was strange to him, and when he opened it to enter he stepped perplexed and undecided. Melisse had risen from the table at the sound of his approach, and his eyes quickly passed from her flushed face to the young man who was sitting opposite her. He caught a nervous tremble in her voice when she said:

"Mr. Dixon, this is my brother, Jan."

The stranger jumped to his feet and held out a hand.

"I'm glad to know you, Cummins."

"Thoreau," corrected Jan quietly, as he took the extended hand. "Jan Thoreau."

"Oh, I beg your pardon, I thought"— He turned inquiringly to Melisse. The flush deepened in her cheeks as she began to gather up the dishes.

"We are of no relation," continued Jan, something impelling him to speak

"Mr. Dixon, this is my brother, Jan."

the words with cool precision. "Only we have lived under the same roof since she was a baby, and so we have come to be like brother and sister."

"Miss Melisse has been telling me about your run this morning," exclaimed the young Englishman, his face reddening slightly as he detected the girl's embarrassment. "I wish I had seen it."

"There will be plenty of it very soon," replied Jan, caught by the frankness of the other's manner. "Our runners will be going out among the trappers within a fortnight."

"And will they take me?"

"You may go with me if you can run I leave the day after tomorrow."

"Thanks," said Dixon, moving toward the door.

Melisse did not lift her head as he went out. Faintly she said:

Mother—But why a Dutchman?

Little Edith—Oh, I so want to be a duchess.

An Oil of Merit.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is not a jumble of medicinal substances thrown together and pushed by advertising, but the result of the careful investigation of the healing qualities of certain oils as applied to the human body. It is a rare combination and it won and kept public favor from the first. A trial of it will carry conviction to any who doubt its power to repair and heal.

"When I order poultry from you again," said the man who quarrelled with his provision dealer, "I don't want you to send me any of those aeroplane chickens."

"What kind do you mean?"

"The sort that are all wings and machinery and no meat."

Ready-made Medicine. — You need no physician for ordinary ills when you have at hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. For coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchial troubles, it is invaluable; for wounds, scalds, bruises, sores it is unsurpassed; while for cuts, sores, and the like it is an unquestionable healer. It needs no testimonial other than the use, and that will satisfy anyone as to its effectiveness.

The sergeant-major had invited his friends to a party.

"Now, Pat," said he, at the conclusion of his speech, just treat the refreshments as if they were your enemies."

About a minute later he saw Pat O'Hara striding towards the floor with a bottle sticking out of each pocket. "Here, what are you doing?" yelled the sergeant-major.

"Well, and bedad, sor," replied Pat, "I'm doing as you said. I've just taken a couple of prisoners."

Relieves Asthma at Little Expense. Thousands of dollars have been wastefully spent upon remedies for asthma and seldom, if ever, with any relief. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy relieves its assurance of benefit, costs so little that it is within reach of all. It is the national remedy for asthma, far removed from the class of doubtful and experimental preparations. Your dealer can supply it.

A great musician was on a visit to a monastery. During mass he listened impatiently to the feeble execution of the organ-player, and could scarcely sit out the service. After mass, the Prior asked the musician to dinner, and took the opportunity to inquire how he liked the playing of the organist. "He plays quite in Biblical fashion," said the guest. "How is that?" asked the Prior. "His left hand does not know what his right hand is doing," was the reply.

Health cannot be looked for in the child that is subject to worms, because worms destroy health by creating internal disturbances that retard development and cause serious weakness. Miller's Worm Powders expel worms and are so beneficial in their action that the systems of the little sufferers are restored to healthfulness, all the discomforts and dangers of worm infection are removed, and satisfactory growth assured.

A clergyman was speaking to his congregation on the subject of faith. He mentioned the blind child of faith. "Don't be too confident of the mercy of the lawyer in preparing important documents and the confidence of invalids in entrusting themselves to a physician."

"Here is a case of blind faith," he continued. "The doctor writes out a prescription. You cannot read it, you don't know what it is. He tells you to take it. Yours not to reason why, yours but to do and die."

Then he wondered why a distinct ripple of laughter was heard throughout the church.

Ontario Farmers'
Seed Cleaning Week
March 26th to 31st 1928

To further encourage the production of better crops and in fighting the deadly weed menace, Farmers are urged to set aside the week of March 26th to 31st as Ontario Farmers' Seed Cleaning Week.

Do your part in ridding the Province of noxious weeds, which destroy Ontario's crops to the extent of millions of dollars every year. The Ontario Department of Agriculture is prepared to co-operate to the fullest extent.

Clean seed means larger dividends in dollars and cents, freedom from weeds, and a finer appearance of your crops. Use this coming week to have clean seed ready for sowing at the earliest suitable date.

WEDDING BELLS

O'Neil—Taubman.

Mr. Percy O'Neil and bride, who were recently married in Belleville, have been spending a part of their honeymoon with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil, and receiving the congratulations of numerous Newcastle friends.

Belleville Daily Ontario, March 7th, has this account of the wedding: "A very pretty wedding took place at Christ Church this afternoon when Miss Mona Taubman, eldest daughter of Mrs. A. Taubman, 59 Albion St., became the bride of Mr. Percy O'Neil, also of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. O'Neil, Newcastle. The ceremony was performed at 1.30 p.m. by Rev. C. E. Clarke. The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. B. Stevenson, looked charming in a frock of white crepe-de-chene, trimmed with orange blossoms and white ribbon. She wore a small white hat and carried a bridal bouquet of American Beauty roses. Miss Florence Taubman, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a pretty frock of poudre blue satin with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of tulips. Mr. Wallace Workman, of Brighton, was groomsman. After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's mother. Although fifty guests were present. Later Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil left on a wedding trip to western cities, the bride travelling in a smart frock of pencil blue with hat to match and navy wrap trimmed with gray fur. Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil will reside in this city."

We may add that among the list of guests were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. O'Neil; his sister and two sons, Mrs. Ray Keech and Masters Kenneth and Jimmy, Brighton, (although Jimmy is now living here for company for his grandparents), and his brother, Mr. Frank O'Neil, and lady friend, of Philadelphia; also relatives from Napanee and other points; while by far the larger number were relatives and friends of the bride and groom in the City of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Lake Young, Mrs. L. Gould, Mrs. George Grass, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Deschane, of Napanee, were in attendance at the wedding, the groom being their nephew.

THE RASPBERRY PLANTATION

(Experimental Farms Note)

Given proper attention the raspberry plantation will continue to produce profitable crops for many years. A well drained loam is the most suitable soil, and a heavy soil with poor drainage should be avoided. Many plantations are ruined by weeds or other grasses becoming established during the first year or two, and during this period most careful cultivation and hoeing is necessary to prevent the development of grass or weeds. After the plantation is well established it can be kept free from such weeds with little difficulty.

The ground should be well manured, and the manure ploughed in before planting. Commercial fertilizers may be depended upon for maintaining the fertility after the plantation is established. An annual spring application of 500 to 800 pounds per acre of a 4-8-6 fertilizer (4% nitrogen, 8% phosphoric acid, and 6% potash) will maintain the fertility.

Cultivation during the early part of the first season may be deep and thorough, but as the canes become stooled, the roots push out into the soil shallow cultivation is necessary. As the plants extend in growth from year to year, and the roots occupy the space between the rows the cultivation should be shallow, just sufficient to keep down weed and sucker growth and provide a mellow surface.

The plants are set out in early spring, as soon as the soil can be prepared, in rows 6 feet apart and 1½ to 2 feet apart in the rows, or they may be grown in clumps spaced 5 by 5 feet apart, permitting of cultivation both ways. The first plan, known as the hedge-row system, permits of a continuous row, confining it to a width of about 14 inches, which is left undisturbed by the cultivator, all growth pushing up in the area between the rows being kept down.

After fruiting, the old canes and many of the weak ones are removed, the aim being to have one good cane to each 6 inches of row. The pruning out at once after fruiting is necessary to avoid crowding and to permit of the best development of the canes that are to give the fruit the following year.

The Herbert is a hardy and desirable variety, also Newman.

Mr. James Milligan shipped five select hogs, which averaged two hundred pounds at four months old.—Our list of Sunday visitors are : Mr. John Willie McCullough at Mr. R. J. Wilson's; Mr. Arthur Keech at Mr. G. Wagar's; Mr. George Fynlander at Mr. L. Snider's; Mr. Percy Lyons at Mr. Robt. King's; Mr. A. Smith at Mr. W. Lyman's.

Friday's storm was the worst of the season. Our roads were completely blocked.—Geo. Hyland continues to gain under the skilful care of Dr. Horton.—Messrs. Fingland and Hamilton shipped two carloads of hogs and one of calves from here on Saturday last. —Messrs. Harold and James Hughes passed through here on Saturday last en route for Enterprise.—Mrs. Geo. McLaren had the misfortune to fall on the ice and break her arm. We hope for a speedy recovery.—Mr. John Wilson and Miss Helen Amey spent Saturday and Sunday at Yarker, the guests of Mr. Chas. Amey.—We are sorry to learn that little Robert Doupe had the misfortune to fall on the ice and break his arm.—We are glad to see Mrs. Harold Brown able to resume her duties as teacher of Lens school again, after a severe case of la grippe. —Nath Reid and sister, Elizabeth, spent Saturday at Enterprise.—Mr. and Mrs. Eli. Hannah and daughter, Margaret, and Miss Edna Wilson and brother, Lorne, spent Saturday evening at Geo. Hyland's.—Mr. and Mrs. Warren Rawley at J. W. Milligan's, on Sunday last.—Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Milligan spent Saturday evening at Geo. Clancy's, Centreville.—Geo. Fingland and Arthur Keech called on Mr. Geo. Hyland's, on Thursday evening last.—Mr. Don Hannah returned from the north country last week, and reports seven feet of snow on the level. — Mr. and Mrs. Robert King spent Saturday afternoon at Enterprise. — Mr. Albert Smith is spending a few days with friends around Lens.—Elmore Hyland called at Lens Station last week.—Geo. Wagar paid a flying visit to Tamworth last week.

MORVEN W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Miller, with a good attendance of members and visitors present. The meeting opened by Hymn 282; Scripture lesson by Mrs. Winters, and prayer by Vice President, Mrs. Fralick. The usual amount of business was attended to. Plans were made for our Easter Tea on Easter Monday night at the White Church.

An appeal was read for help for the Ukranian Mission at Oshawa, and it was decided to send a donation later.

Hymn 243. Then a very interesting paper on Christian Stewardship by Mrs. Lake. The Heralds all responded by reading something of interest on different countries. Hymn 236. Then the meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. Sharp, after which Mrs. Miller served delicious candy.

EASTERN CANADA GARDENING SERVICE

Selecting Vegetables.

The safest practical method to employ in deciding on varieties of vegetables is to consult the most successful gardener in the community. What have proved the best with him, will generally suit your own location, although it is always advisable and interesting to try one or two new kinds each year. Depend upon standard varieties which have stood the test of several seasons, however, for the main crop. Do not try to grow too many kinds in a small garden, but only grow those for which a taste has been developed. Order plenty of good seed—the seed cost is the smallest factor in gardening—so that there will be plenty to replant is some accident such as a flood or a frost spoils the first. In the average garden, it will pay to plant a few rows of the hardier sorts very early, even if there is only a fifty-fifty chance of these coming through. The earliest and most quickly grown vegetables are the best, and because they are early they are relished more than those which come later. To hasten growth, provide a supply of nitrate of soda, which should be applied at the rate of about one ounce to four square yards of soil every two weeks for the first month or two after the garden is put in.

Study the Catalogue.

While the modern seed catalogue is even more attractively and colorfully illustrated than those issued years ago, which constituted a stock joke for cartoonists and special writers, the book of today is an up-to-date manual of accurate fund of information for any gardener. Descriptions can be scientifically depended upon, and illustrations are from actual photographs. Amateur gardeners would be well advised to supply themselves with a catalogue before attempting to commence operations. Many of their questions will be answered and varieties will be fully explained. In most of the catalogues to-day will be found very useful articles in the flower section which will give the height, time of flowering, and the adaptability of the plants to certain conditions. A selection of different types of the same vegetable will also be found in that one can have a succession of peas, corn, and similar vegetables which will extend his season well beyond the average of a few years ago.

Some Handy Annuals

Even the busy person who cannot afford to spend very much time on the garden, can have a garden containing many brilliant annuals. Of course, these must be easy to produce—require little care and not much in the way of special location or soil. They must bloom freely, furnishing a good supply of flowers throughout most of the season. They must not be too particular in the way of steady watering because we are planning now a flower garden for the busy person. Studied from all of these points, the following list seems to come as close to the requirements as one could possibly expect : Snapdragons, Marigolds, Poppies, Larkspurs, Nasturtiums, Scabiosas, Zinnias and Salpiglossis. For a hot sunny location, Portulaca is unexcelled. This low spreading bright flower will thrive even when neglected. With these annuals and perennials, mignonette added for fragrance sake, because only Nasturtiums and Scabiosas in the above list have any noticeable perfume, the garden will last from mid-June until Autumn, and about the only requirement will be the keeping down of the weeds early in the season, and cutting off fading blooms later on. With the exception of the poppy, which does not last well in water, and the portulaca, which is radically too small a pill, all these flowers will furnish an abundance of bloom for the vases indoors. They can be planted in clumps or beds, depending on color and size.

Starting a Lawn.

One of the first jobs to be carried out after a new house is built is that of making the lawn. The soil must be put in fair condition, as grass requires food just the same as flowers. Make the surface level. To do this it is well to rake over evenly a couple two or three times, giving rains and perhaps a freeze or two a chance to settle the soil in between times. Remove all broken bricks, stones, sticks and similar material just as soon as you can get on the soil in the spring without getting your shoes muddy. It is best to sow the seed in the morning on a dull day when there is no wind. One pound of seed is required for every two hundred square feet, and where the place is shaded special seed should be used. Roll in thoroughly, or no roller is available use a pounder. The grass should be cut with a sharp mower as soon as it is a few inches high. One of the best fertilizers to use on the new lawn or on any lawn in the Spring is nitrate of soda. The best way to apply this is to broadcast at the rate of about one tablespoonful to the square yard during or just after a rain. If the shower does not materialize, water the fertilizer in with the hose, so that there will be no chance of it burning the young plants. Some people prefer to dissolve the nitrate in water, about one ounce to the gallon, one gallon of this mixture being sufficient for about eight or ten square yards, the application being made weekly during the rest of the season. This is also a good way to apply the fertilizer in the vegetable or flower garden. In the Fall, just before the heavy snow arrives, a light dressing of strawy barnyard manure is advisable. This should be raked off after the snow and frost disappear in the Spring.

Some Points to Consider.

In this country, the demand for flower seeds is overtaken that for vegetables, because invariably the amateur, and even the very practical one, who starts in a vegetable garden, with a few flowers attached, will gradually swing to the lighter and more beautiful side of gardening. On account of this heavy demand for flowers, and the multitude of varieties from which one can make a selection, it is important to place seed orders early. Remember one will arrive at the seed store sometime in late May only to find that his favourite seeds or bulbs are no longer in stock. First of all, get those seeds that need to be started in boxes indoors. Select your standard varieties first, but include a few novelties for sake of gaining experience. It is better to order improved strains of favourite old plants than the old and plainer strains we knew in earlier years. Practically every well known flower has been improved recently, this being particularly true of zinnias, asters, sweet peas, and scabiosas. Have your order balanced, that is include flowers for cuttings, bedding effect, and for fragrance. A few nicotine should always be included, not for their beauty of foliage of flower, which is not striking, but for the penetrating and spicy scent after evening has fallen. Seed of annual poppies, larkspurs, and bachelor's button may be sown outside on the last garden. Descriptions can be abundantly depended upon, and illustrations are from actual photographs. Amateur gardeners would be well advised to supply themselves with a catalogue before attempting to commence operations. Many of their questions will be answered and varieties will be fully explained. In most of the catalogues to-day will be found very useful articles in the flower section which will give the height, time of flowering, and the adaptability of the plants to certain conditions. PAINS ALL OVER BODY

Two More Cases of Feminine Illness Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Barrington, N. S.—"I had terrible feelings, headaches, back and side aches and pains over my body. I would have to go to bed every month and nothing would do me good. My husband and my father did my work for me as I have two children and we have quite a big place. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then got a little book about it through the mail, and my husband sent to Eaton's and got me a bottle, and then we got more from the store. I am feeling fine now and do all my work and am able to go out around more. I tell my friends it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that makes me feel so well."—Mrs. VICTOR RICHARDSON, Barrington, Nova Scotia.

Dull Pains in Back

St. Thomas, Ont. —"I took four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found great relief from the dull, heavy pains in the small of my back and the weakness from which I suffered for five years after my boy was born. After taking the Vegetable Compound and using Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash I am feeling better than I have for the past seven years, and advise my friends to take it."—Mrs F. JOHNSON, 49 Moore Street, St. Thomas, Ont. C

Robbery at Bath.
About 3.30 a.m., on Tuesday morning, Mr. C. J. Hoselton, baker, of Bath, was aroused from his sleep by hearing a noise down stairs. He arose from his bed and on descending the stairs found a burglar in the act of ransacking a bureau in a room in the front of the house. A struggle ensued and Mr. Hoselton was beaten over the head with some kind of an instrument in the hands of the burglar. The burglar made his escape with $540 in cash. Mr. Hoselton followed him out on to the road, where he saw the man enter a closed car and drive swiftly away in an easterly direction. He then aroused some neighbors and with their assistance followed the burglar as far as Kingston, where all trace of him was lost. Chief of Police Barrett, of Napanee, was notified, and every effort is being put forward to effect an arrest.

Local Boy Does Well in Oratorical Contest in Kingston

A. Munroe Beattie, of the Napanee Collegiate Institute, won the right to enter the Provincial Championship Oratorical meet in a district contest held at the Kingston Collegiate last Friday night. There were eleven contestants in the competition all speaking on the subject "Canada's Future". Second prize was awarded to Miss Shirley Colclough, of Deseronto High School, and third prize went to Clarke Kinnear, of Belleville Collegiate Institute.

The competitors were :—Clarke Kinnear, Belleville Collegiate; Robert Miller, Brockville Collegiate; J. Kearney, McAdams, St. Marys, Brockville; Miss Gertrude Ransom, Cardinal Continuation School; Miss Shirley Colclough, Deseronto High School; A. Munroe Beattie, Napanee Collegiate; Joseph Delaney, Prescott High School; Miss Margaret Young, Seeley Bay Continuation School; Miss Dorothy Service, St. Peters, Trenton, and Herbert Goodfellow, Westport Continuation School.

Mayor W. H. Craig, of Kingston, officiated at the meeting, and the prizes were awarded to the winning students by him.

N. C. I. NEWS

N.C.I. WINS BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP
N.C.I. 42; B.C.I. 37.

On Friday night, in the Collegiate gym., the unexpected happened, when N.C.I. downed the powerful Belleville Collegiate basketball squad by 42-37. The game was excellent basketball and those who missed it, certainly missed a treat. Belleville presented the same team as last year, and opened the game with a whirl, a wonderful combination and some very effective plays. But there was something wrong, they didn't sink the ball as rapidly as they did in other games. The play in the first half was about evenly divided, both teams baffling the other at times. At the end of the first session the score was 20-18, only three fouls having been made.

The second period opened like the first, except that the locals scored first. Belleville seemed to slow down, and the Yellow and Gold clad warriors were speeding up. They cut down the lead and at the end of eight minutes were tie. Gilbride broke the tie with a free shot and from then on the game was never in doubt. Belleville simply couldn't hold Black and lost a regular defense through four personals; Black is a hard man to guard, and still keep within the rules. Belleville made several brilliant rushes from then till the end of the game, but only four resulted in scores.

The visitors displayed excellent combination and shooting, but were decidedly out of condition which spelled defeat for them. At the end of the game every man was completely played out, even the often-used subs. "Flea" McFee was probably their most outstanding player. He scored 17 points and turned in a fine game. Farley Faulkner couldn't seem to get going, and had hard luck on many of his shots. The rest of the team played well and only lacked condition.

The locals, on the other hand, only substituted one forward for 1½ minutes, which is truly remarkable. True, the men were tired, but were not nearly so near exhaustion as their opponents. While B.C.I. perhaps had slightly better combination, N.C.I. could more than equal them in every other department of the game. It took them longer to get going, but "stayed with it" longer to come out on top. No man stood out. Black scored 27 points but his forwards fed him the ball. He turned in an excellent game, however, and Belleville couldn't stop "the big Fellow". The forwards missed a few easy shots, but there are few forwards who don't. They broke up plays all over the floor. The defense did likewise, and B.C.I. had to shoot fast to get the ball away before Nugent or McPadden was bothering them.

Coach Murray should receive much credit since every man on the floor was practically new to the game, whereas Belleville have played almost the same team together for four years now. Quite a contrast, four months and four years. Then, too, Belleville's coach has no connection with the school whatsoever.

The following is the line up :—

B.C.I.—R.F., M. Davison, 10; L.F., A. McFee, 17; C., F. Faulkner (Capt.), 1; R.G., J. Chadwick, 1; L.G., G. Redfern, 2; Spares, L. Byrne, H. Ridley, C. Smith.

N.C.I.—R.F., P. Gilbride, 11; L.F., H. Robinson, 2; C., J. Black, 27; R.G., C. Nugent, 2; L.G., D. McFadden (Capt.), Spares, B. Asselstine, W. Reid, W. Smith, J. Johnston.

Referee—L. Murray, Napanee.
Timer—J. Rooney, Belleville.
Scorer—G. E. Gibbard, Napanee.

Last week one local sport-writer was lamenting the fact that Napanee had recently had several teams in playoffs, but that they never seemed to win out. This is the second time this year that a Collegiate team has been in play-off. In the fall the Junior N.C.I. Girls' Basketball team won their league after a good fight with Trenton. And now the boys conduct themselves in a similar manner. It is harder for small town teams to come out on top because the best coaches naturally go to the cities, and a coach only handles one sport as a rule. At the Collegiate Mr. Murray coaches them all, and the teams he turns out always make a good showing.

EXHIBITION BASKETBALL.
Athenians 44; Spartans 36.

Before the hockey game on Friday night, the Athenian girls' basketball team nosed the Spartans out by 44-36. The game was very close and exciting and the outcome in doubt until the final whistle.

The Spartans had good combination and only a little bad luck in shooting kept them the game. They opened the scoring, and were only 3 points behind at the end of the first period, and were four in arrears at the end of the second, and six in the last. They were very systematic about losing it anyway.

The Athenians presented the school senior team, and one would think that they would have avenged the Spartan teams who had four juniors and two intermediates. Miss Douglas did some excellent shooting, and was responsible for more than half of the baskets. The rest of the team upheld her admirably, however.

The line-up was :—

Athenians—Defence, M. Embury, A. Harrison; forwards, K. Gleeson, M. Douglas; centres, M. Grass, M. Daly.

Spartans—Defence, E. Gibbard, Margaret Douglas; forwards, M. Graham, J. McKewain; centres, E. Aylsworth, D. Wilson.

A. MUNROE BEATTIE WINS DISTRICT ORATORICAL CONTEST.

On the same night that the Basketeers brought honor to the N.C.I. another representative was busy bringing home the silverware too, A. Munroe Beattie successfully competed with contestants representing ten other secondary schools at Kingston, in the district finals of the "Toronto Star Oratorical Contest". The schools were :—Brockville C.I.; Brockville St. Mary's; Trenton H. S.; Belleville C. I.; Deseronto H. S.; Napanee C. I.; Seeley's Bay C. S.; Kingston C. I.; Cardinal H. S.; Westport C. I.

This entitles the winner to compete in Toronto for the provincial championship, and then for the Dominion finals. The prize for the latter is a free trip to Europe this summer.

A beautiful silver cup is the trophy won by Munroe, and N.C.I. truly has cause to be proud of her Deseronto-ites. The clear logical way in which he treated the subject, "Canada's Future", his excellent delivery and enunciation were the deciding factors. Everyone joins in wishing Munroe luck in future contests, and hope that he will be the "Fredrick Hotson" of 1928.

B. & H. English Varnish White Paint is without doubt the finest product on the market for inside use. For a really fine job painters prefer it even to the very expensive enamels. It sells at $1.30 quart, and will cover easily one-third more than any ordinary white. Recommended and sold at Wallace's.

The Famous Sheffield Strain White Leghorns is the product of 20 years careful selection and breeding for larger fowl—larger white eggs—higher production over a longer period—more vigor and health—all that goes to make more profit for the poultry keeper.

Do not be satisfied with inferior or untried stock. Our prices are unusually reasonable for high quality body chicks.

Every egg we hatch is from yearling or older hens of Sheffield Strain, on our own plant.

We are breeding from over 400 hens this season. Each of these birds has passed our rigid tests. All weigh 4 lbs or more, are good type and lay large numbers of large white eggs.

The price of Sheffield Baby Chicks for April is $18.00 per hundred. 10% reduction in quantities of 300 or more.

STRATHCONA

We had a severe electric storm on Monday night, and since then we have been reminded that we still may be visited by Jack Frost. —The m ang meeting of Mr. Henry Lusher was sorry to hear of his accident while sawing wood on Monday. We all hope for a speedy recovery. — Mr. and Mrs. A. Hanes, of Belleville, spent Sunday visiting at Mr. Ed. Hanes'.—Mrs. Everett Evans, of Moscow, spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Harold Hoare. — Mr. Ed. Rook has a new radio. — Mrs. Geo. Wartman, of Newburgh, spent a day last week with her sister, Mrs. W. J. Pinch.—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ballance spent the week-end in Toronto.—Mr. J. A. Jones, of Belleville, has secured a position as mechanic with the Strathcona Paper Co., Limited. — Mr. Hastings, of Gall, is in the village working on the new steam plant which is being installed in the mill.—Church Service next Sunday at 11 a.m. Sunday School immediately after. All invited to attend.

March has been giving her farewell party this week. We can't say that we are thoroughly sorry to see it. Perhaps she is only doing her spring housecleaning. The cob-webs should be all swept away.—Miss Muriel Wilson arrived at home on Tuesday evening, suffering from an attack of mumps. The measles are still in our midst. Margaret Sutton has them now.—Mrs. McLean spent the week-end with her daughter, Mrs. Jackson, at Chaffey's Locks, and brought Bernard home with her.—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ballance motored to Toronto on Saturday last, returning on Monday.—We are glad to learn that Mrs. Gall is recovering as well as can be, and that her suffering is not so great as during the early part of her illness. The neighbors are all very sorry for the misfortune of Mrs. Haines.—The Easter meeting of the W. M. S. will be held on Thursday, April 5th, at 2.30 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Geo. Hanes. Hostess: Mrs. Fowler, former Superintendent of Napanee Division, will be with us and give an address. The Easter envelopes will be brought in at this meeting. All the ladies of the congregation are invited.

CROYDON

Mrs. Chas. Williams has returned to her home at Tamworth, after spending some time at Mr. John Kring's.—Mrs. Albert Hughes and daughter, Ruth, are attending Provincial Grand Lodge at Lindsay.—Also Messrs. Jacob Snyder and Leslie Haggerty.—Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Close spent a day recently at Mr. Rufus Lewis'.—Mr. Albert Hughes has undertook tea with Mrs. W. B. Close, on Saturday evening.—Mr. Noel Hannah is holidaying at Mr. Wm. Galbraith's.—We are glad to hear that Mrs. John Kring and Mrs. Herbert Bass are improving, after a long illness.—The school children are enjoying a new gramophone.—The scholars of the T. C. S. spent the week end at their homes here.—Miss Margaret Close is visiting relatives around Tamworth.

ODESSA

On March 14th, the Ladies' Aid Society held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Orange Babcock. The meeting was opened in the usual way by the President, Mrs. Amy Snider. The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Loyd. There were twenty-two members present, and the minutes of the former meeting were read and adopted. It was decided by the members to withdraw the social evenings and hold the next one in the school room. After the business part had been transacted, there was an Irish programme arranged, and the first number was a chorus by the L. A. S., followed by vocal selections by Miss Nesbitt, Mr. W. J. Smith and Mr. H. Snider. Readings by Mrs. Wm. Jones and Mrs. J. H. Babcock. Refreshments were served to forty persons, including eight gentlemen; and all wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Babcock for their delicious treat of ice cream.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Wilfred C. Upper, formerly Miss Eileen McCormac, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCormac, was held from her late home in St. Catherines, last Tuesday afternoon. At the same hour her grandmother, Mrs. Sherman Bond, arranged a memorial service at her home here, and a large number of her relatives and friends assembled to offer sympathy, all of whom Mrs. Bond wishes to thank very much for their kindness. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Linstead, who took his text from the 4th chapter of Thessalonians and the 13th verse. Mr. Bond, the deceased's grandfather, and Mr. and Mrs. James Keen, aunt and uncle, attended the funeral in St. Catherines, where interment was made. Besides her husband, parents and grandparents, to mourn her loss is an infant son, Jack Sherman Upper.

The funeral of the late Alexander Hyram Laughlin was held Saturday afternoon from his late home. Rev. Mr. Moffatt, Wilton, officiated. The remains were placed in Cataraqui vault to be interred later in Cataraqui cemetery. To mourn his loss are one daughter, Miss Agnes Laughlin, at home, and one son, Harry Laughlin, Portland, Maine. The deceased was in his eighty-fifth year, and a highly respected citizen.

H. J. Smith has sold his residence on Ferguson Ave. to Mrs. William Tolls, Inverary, who expects to take possession on or before May 1st, and has purchased Mrs. George Watts' residence, on Centre St. Mr. Smith plans on making this an ideal home, and the work of wiring for the installation of electric lights is on.

W. R. Lake, late of Trenton, has purchased the Nelson Booth residence on Main St., probably better known as the P. A. Mabee property. Mr. Booth bought this place for a summer home, and his residence and place of business are both in Brooklyn, N.Y. He contemplates spending the summer months at his new summer home at Collins Bay.

Mrs. E. R. Davis, who passed away at her daughter's Home, Mrs. James Baxter, Pittsburg, on March 18th, was born and brought up about three miles from here, at Sharpton, and was a member of this village for a number of years. The deceased was formerly Miss Jane Sharpe, and an aunt of Ernest Parrett and Mrs. Channa Smith, and will be remembered by many.

Miss Frankie Asselstine has returned from spending the winter months with her sister, Mrs. (Rev.) Shaver and Rev. Mr. Shaver, Winnipeg. Her many friends are delighted to see her.

Mrs. Charley Timmerman has been spending the past week with her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) H. E. Day, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Babcock are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Charley Babcock.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Reid and family, of Belleville, spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Sharp, at the Dominion.

Mrs. Wesley Sharp spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Sharp, Bath.

Mrs. Gifford Mowery is preparing to move to his farm home.

At Wonderland, on Monday and Tuesday, 'Roses of Picardy', One show only at 8 o'clock. Adults 35c., children 20c.

CAMDEN EAST

The Ladies' Aid will hold their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Geo. Scott, Bicknell's Corners, on Tuesday afternoon, April 3rd, at 2 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all ladies to attend.—Mrs. E. Alkenbrack, Bethel Church, has returned home after visiting Mrs. Norman Blakely and baby for the past week.—Mrs. C. Hannah returned home on Saturday last from Kingston General Hospital, after an operation for appendicitis, and is getting along as well as could be expected. Mrs. Chas. Hannah spent Sunday evening at the homes of Mrs. J. Henderson and Mrs. A. Dickson, who are ill at time of writing.—We are pleased to report that Mrs. F. E. McWilliams is improving nicely.—Mr. Wm. Sowerby, after spending a month in Napanee, returned home on Monday.—Mr. O'Neil at Mrs. C. Rogers', on Monday.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Hamilton visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Jeffrey, on Tuesday.—Pearl Oster spent a few days in Kingston, recently.—Don't forget the play, "Slickers", in the United Church Hall, on Friday night, March 30th, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid.

NEWBURGH

Mr. Harold Peters, of Sillsville, spent Sunday evening in Newburgh.

Mrs. E. Boyce entertained a number of her friends on Saturday evening, in celebration of her birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Rogers, of Kingston, visited Mr. Rogers' parents here during the week.

Mr. Albert Vanluven, of Prescott, visited friends in this vicinity during the week. Mr. Vanluven spent several months at Red Lake.

Mrs. Orr, of Toronto, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Pillar, and sister, Mrs. Adams.

Reserve Monday evening, April 9th, for the grand concert to be given in the new town hall, under the auspices of St. John's (Anglican) Church. See posters.

Mr. Newton Pillar, of Toronto, was called to see his mother, Mrs. Pillar, who has been quite seriously ill. She is some better at time of writing.

Mrs. Bray has returned from Kingston, where she spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. Lee.

The monthly meeting of the W. A. of the Anglican Church was held on this Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Harry Sutton.

The annual meeting of the Newburgh congregation of the United Church was held on Thursday night, the 22nd. There was a fairly good attendance. Reports from all the different organizations and activities of the congregation were presented. Judging from the work done and the money raised, the affairs of the congregation are in a very satisfactory condition, and there is cause for encouragement to both Pastor and people. There was a movement introduced to simplify and condense congregational meets in

REVIEW OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Toronto, Ont., Mar. 23rd, 1928.

Speaking volumes for the administration of the government the Legislature this week approved supplementary estimates to the extent of $7,546,154 without a single vote being altered. Item of $25,000 for wolf bounty services and expenses was used by members of the House as a vehicle to suggest an increase in the bounty.

"We have found that the money indirectly spent is not effective," stated Premier Ferguson. "We have been able to get more wolves when paying $15.00 than when we were paying $40.00. When Quebec and Manitoba were paying $15.00 we were paying $40.00, and we got all the wolves from these provinces. Since then we have reached an understanding so that the treasury will not be defrauded."

* * * * *

Having reached the stage where medical treatment was no longer necessary, Premier Ferguson explained to the House that there were 1,000 to 1,200 persons in Ontario mental hospitals who were now ready for family or municipal care. Discussion followed the introduction of a vote of $2,000 in the estimates to provide for the removal of such patients. Many of the patients, the Premier felt, would be provided for by the family. The Premier disposed of the idea that special homes should be erected. "The government does not intend to do anything heartless," stated the Premier, but mental hospitals are not in any sense boarding houses, but curative institutions; if patients were not in a certain condition they would never have been taken in."

* * * * *

Amendment to the Hospitals and Charitable Institutions Act, providing that the government per diem rate for indigent patients be increased from 50 to 60 cents a day, has been introduced in the Legislature. The measure also provides an increase in the municipal grant from $1.50 to $1.75 per day. The Ontario Hospitals association had urged the government that the grants be raised to 75 cents and $2.00 respectively. Provisions of the bill are to be operative from April 1st.

Introducing the bill, Premier Ferguson stated that a general revision of the Act had been contemplated, but owing to the fact that during the last few days further questions had cropped up, which, if considered, would lead to long delay, it had been decided to hold the general revision over until next session.

* * * * *

Having passed legislation through the second reading stage, the government, through Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, is well on the way towards the protection of the public against fraudulent security salesmen and dubious stock issues. The legislation, in brief, gives the government power to bring about the registration of brokers and security salesmen and grants authority for the suspension of brokers from operation for a period of 10 days pending investigation when it is felt that there is ground for suspension.

Introducing the measure, the Attorney-General announced the ambition of the department to bring about the abolition of papers known as "tipster's sheets", which purport to give advice on good investments and market speculation. These sheets, contended the Attorney-General, in reality proved a serious menace to the gullible investor. The Attorney-General pointed out that the regulation of such sheets was not within the purview of the Ontario government, but urged that the Dominion Government, through the Post-office Department, be requested to take action which would result in their distribution and entrance into Ontario being prohibited.

The legislation has been received with favor by the entire legislature, the leaders of the Opposition Group tendering their voices of approval to the measure.

* * * * *

Designed with the view of being a material aid to agriculture and industry, Premier Ferguson has introduced in the Legislature his bill to establish a Research Foundation in the Province. Under the terms of the legislation the Province will pay the sum of $200,000 annually for five years towards the amount needed to carry on the work and industry will contribute $1,000,000 by subscription. Following the introduction of the measure the Premier stated that he had secured the services of Sir Joseph Flavelle as Chairman of the Foundation.

Vast importance of research as it applied to farming and industry was stressed by the Premier in announcing his purpose. The study of elimination of waste was of primary importance. In addition, modern research would result in many savings and make ample return to the province for the money so invested.

"We cannot overestimate the importance of Ontario taking this step," stated the Premier. "The proposition is not to put the undertaking under the direction of the University but to nominate by a Research Council, which will be made up of university men, representatives of various industries, agriculture, mining, manufacturing of different kinds, pure science, perhaps insurance men—men directly interested in the problem."

The Premier pointed out that there would be no conflict with the Federal scheme along the same direction; one being complementary to the other.

* * * * *

Supplementing the Frauds Prevention Act, Attorney-General W. H. Price has introduced a measure which, when passed by the House, will oblige all companies whether incorporated provincially or by Federal charter, or in a foreign country to file certain information with the Provincial Secretary. The change comes in the form of an amendment to the Companies Act, and provides for the filing of a prospectus by all companies. In the past companies incorporated by the Dominion Government have refused to file information with the Ontario Government. The object of the bill is to provide further facilities for the checking of fraudulent schemes designed to exploit the public.

Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature has fixed the following dates for deer hunting in the Province, following the deliberations of a special committee on the subject:—

1. In the district south of the French and Mattawa Rivers, Nov. 5th to Nov. 20th, both days inclusive.
2. In the district north of the French River and south of the Canadian Pacific Railway, from North Bay to Heron Bay on Lake Superior, Nov. 1st to Nov. 25th.
3. From the Mattawa River north of the C. P. R. from North Bay to Heron Bay and south of the north line of the C. N. R., with the exception of that section from Heron Bay to the French River, Oct. 20th to Nov. 25th.
4. North of the north line of the C. N. R., Sept. 15th to Nov. 25th.
5. St. Joseph's Island, Nov. 10th to Nov. 25th.

The Committee, voted a closed season for muskrats south and east of the Mattawa for 1929. It will also recommend to the Federal authorities that 15 days be cut off the present duck season for that section of Ontario south of the French River. This, if approved at Ottawa, would cause the season to open on September 15th instead of September 1st.

Changes and additions of importance have been made in the Highway Traffic Act amendments before the Legislature. The spotlight clause now reads as follows:—"No spotlight or searchlight or other auxiliary light shall be attached to any part of a motor vehicle higher than the headlamps of such vehicle, and the ray of light from such spotlight, searchlight or auxiliary lamp shall be directed to the extreme right of the travelled portion of the highway in such a manner that the beam of light shall strike the highway within 75 feet of the vehicle; provided that this shall not prevent the use of what are commonly known as cowl or side lamps or clearance lamps nor shall this section apply to a motor vehicle of a municipal fire department or a motor vehicle used by a public service corporation for locating breaks in, or trouble with, over-head wire."

A Tired Feeling In Springtime

Not Sick, But Not Up To The Mark—You Need the Help of That Sterling Tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—They Give New Vitality.

With the passing of winter many people feel weak, depressed and easily tired. The body lacks the vital force and energy pure blood alone can give. In a word, while not exactly sick, the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon them. A blood-building, nerve-restoring tonic is needed to give renewed health and energy. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an all-year-round blood builder and nerve tonic, but are especially useful in the spring. Every dose helps to make new, rich, red blood and with this new blood returning strength, cheerfulness and good health quickly follow.

If you are pale, easily tired, or breathless at the least exertion, if your complexion is poor or you are troubled with pimples or eruptions, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are just what you need to put you right. If you have symptoms of rheumatism, are subject to headaches and backaches, if you are irritable and nervous, if your sleep does not refresh you, your appetite is poor, you need the treatment Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone can give—you need the new blood, new strength and new energy this medicine always brings. Mr. A. Marcotte, North Ham, Que., writes:—"I have found great benefit from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I began using them I was in a badly rundown condition, and at times felt scarcely able to work. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have changed all this and since taking them I am enjoying the best of health. Every man who feels rundown and easily tired should give this great medicine a fair trial."

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, indigestion or nervousness. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WILTON W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Wilton W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. J. Babcock, on Wednesday, March 21st.

The Programme Committee, Mrs. J. Frink and Mrs. E. Perry, had charge of the meeting, which was opened by singing Hymn 66. Mrs. Frink led the Scripture reading responsively, which was taken from the 16th Chapter of John. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved; also the Treasurer's report. The Stranger's Secretary gave a wonderful report of fruit and flowers sent to the sick in the neighborhood and hospital; also many letters written and post card showers given. We plan on a letter shower Friday, March 23rd, for Mr. Carter Davidson, who has been ill in the Bird Ward for many weeks.

A reading was given by Mrs. Greta Anderson entitled "The Conversion of Aunt Susan to Missions". Hymn 159 was sung, followed by a reading by Mrs. W. Amey, "Shut In But Not Shut Out".

A religious drama, "The Challenge of the Cross" will be given in the Church on Good Friday evening, March 6th, with suitable music.

Treasurer's report of Penny 157 was sung and the meeting closed by repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison, led by Mrs. Babcock.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

Her Kidney Ailment Has Now Disappeared

That's Why This Quebec Lady Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills

Madame T. Thurston Suffered With Kidney Trouble for Three Years — Dodd's Kidney Pills Relieved Her.

Acton Vale, P.Q., March 26th, (Special).—"For three years I suffered from Kidney trouble," writes Madame T. Thurston, a well-known resident of this place. "Having read your almanac for many years, I decided to give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial. I only took five boxes and found relief. Today I am very well, but I always keep a box in the house. I recommend them to all my friends."

The relief that Madame Thurston found has come to thousands of other Canadian women through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Only a few people realise the great importance of keeping the kidneys in good order at all times. The kidneys are the purifiers of your blood. If the kidneys become clogged with impurities they cannot perform their functions properly. The blood, instead of being purified, is poisoned and, in turn, poisons the whole system, with the result that a condition may develop very serious.

TO RETIRE IN JUNE

Rev. E. Farnworth Closing Seven Years' Successful Pastorate on Cannifton Charge.—Rev. W. R. Merrick Accepts Call to Progressive Charge.

Cannifton charge of the United Church has closed a very successful year. It is the closing of a seven year term of the pastor, Rev. E. Farnworth, who expects to retire in June of this year. During the seven years of his pastorate great changes have taken place. The parsonage has been decorated and furnished with a beautiful oak floor and extra furniture, a new kitchen has been built which has added much to the convenience and appearance of the property, also a new barn making it one of the finest properties in the rural section of the Presbytery.

The four churches have all been decorated, and the decorating expenses met, excepting the Cannifton church, where the expenses have been unusually heavy. This appointment, in addition to decorating their church, inside and out, at a cost of about five hundred dollars and purchasing a new piano at $250, built an enclosed shed costing $200 and this year a new Sunday School room with folding partitions and doors, perfectly up-to-date, a new furnace was installed at a cost of $2000, which expenses have all been paid excepting $1,000.

There are many very liberal givers on this charge. Besides meeting the expenses it is one of the three rural charges in the Belleville Presbytery to support a Maintenance and Extension Fund. This year, after paying the Presbyterial dues, the charge has raised $1500 for maintenance which is $50 more than it paid last year in the full twelve months.

At the February meeting the Board extended an invitation to Rev. W. R. Merrick, Morven, who has accepted, subject to the Settlement committee.

Rev. Mr. Farnworth was very popular in Cannifton, Newburgh and Selby Circuits.

ERNESTTOWN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The elasticity of Mrs. Claude Thompson's house was fully exemplified when the Ernesttown Women's Institute gathered there for the March meeting. Fully sixty-five members and visitors were present, those from Odessa including Mrs. Nelson Smith, the president; Mrs. Sproule, Miss Clarke, Mrs. Sharpe and Mrs. Maybee. Regret was felt at the absence of both the President and the 1st Vice President, Mrs. F. Hamm and Mrs. A. Miller. Miss M. Miller, the 2nd Vice President, presided.

In answer to the roll call "What would you do with a million dollars?" one member said she would have a good time for an hour or so and let the other that she would start a model farm, possibly the latter would be the quicker way of dissipating the income. Mrs. Crowe's report of the meeting of the National Council of Women at Kingston was so interesting that everybody wished they could have been there with her. An unexpected pleasure was a recitation by Miss Gertrude Glen, entitled "The Courtship of Sandy McLaughlin". His colloquies as he pondered over a list of six possible helpmeets were very amusing, especially when he regretted that the "sillier" and the charms do not lie in the same quarter. In response to continuous applause, Miss Glen gave "The Veil of G. Reyne" as an encore. A pianoforte solo by Miss Myrtle Post, "Sicilian" was also well applauded, and brought forth an encore. Miss W. Clarke kindly acted as judge in the towel contest, and pronounced Mrs. G. Young's as being the best.

A mock trial "Mrs. O'Hafferty versus Lin Lung", was a tremendous success. It was gratifying to see so much dramatic talent displayed by the members of this branch. The costumes provoked much merriment. Mrs. L. Crowe was a hoary irascible old judge, Mrs. Clarence Thompson looked very "demoniac" with her black hair and pointed Chaplin moustache, Mrs. T. Creighton was a solemn brother lawyer, Mrs. A. C. Sharpe an Irish washerwoman with an eye compelling feather, Mrs. Gordon Young a Frenchmaid, Miss Pinky was every inch the part, and Mrs. E. Priest was complimented on her impersonation of the Chinaman.

Refreshments followed and included some delightfully piquant sandwiches which had a filling of chopped onions. Mrs. Claude Thompson defied the rules by providing ice cream, but no one refused it on that account. A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Thompson for so kindly lending her house, and also to all those who had taken part in the programme. The roll call for April will be "Gardening Hints".

Angry Householder—"Stop your infernal noise, will you, or I'll fetch the policeman!"

Leader of Village Band—"You can't do that, guv-nor. We've got 'im 'ere playin' the cornet."

"I've kept your dinner for you, Jan. Why didn't you come sooner?"

"I had dinner with Gravois," he replied. "Jean said that you would hardly be prepared for five, Melisse, so I accepted his invitation."

He took down from the wall a fur sledge coat, in which Melisse had mended a rent a day or two before, and, throwing it over his arm, turned to leave.

"Jan!"

He faced her slowly, knowing that in spite of himself there was a strangeness in his manner which she would not understand.

"Why are you going away the day after tomorrow—two weeks before the others? You didn't tell me."

"I'm going a hundred miles into the south," he answered.

"Over the Nelson House trail?"

"Yes."

"Oh!" Her lips curled slightly as she looked at him. Then she laughed, and a bright spot leaped into either cheek. "I understand, brother," she said softly. "Pardon me for questioning you so. I had forgotten that the Mac Veighs all lives on the Nelson trail. Iowaka says that she is as sweet as a wild flower. I wish you would have her come up and visit us some time, Jan."

Jan's face went red, then white, but Melisse saw only the first effect of her random shot and was briskly gathering up the dishes.

"I turn off into the Cree lake country before I reach MacVeighs," he was on the point of saying, but the words hung upon his lips, and he remained silent.

A few minutes later he was talking with Jean de Gravois. The little Frenchman's face was ominously dark, and he puffed furiously upon his pipe when Jan told him why he was leaving at once for the south.

"Running away?" he repeated for the tenth time in French, his thin lips curling in a sneer. "I am sorry that I gave you my oath, Jan Thoreau, else I would go myself and tell Melisse what I read in the papers. Pish! Why can't you forget?"

"I may—some day," said Jan. "That is why I am going into the south two weeks early, and I shall be gone until after the big roast. If I remain here another week I shall tell Melisse, and then"—

He shrugged his shoulders despairingly.

"And then what,"

"I should go away forever."

Jean snapped his fingers with a low laugh.

"Then remain another week, Jan Thoreau, and if it turns out as you say I swear I will abandon my two Iowakas and little Jean to the wolves!"

"I am going the day after tomorrow."

The next morning Iowaka complained to Melisse that Gravois was as surly as a bear.

CHAPTER X.

A Kiss and the Consequences.

MELISSE saw little of Jan during the day. At noon, Dixon told her that he had made up his mind not to accompany Thoreau on the trip south. The following morning, before she was up, Jan had gone. She was deeply hurt. Never before had he left on one of his long trips without spending his last moments with her. Outside of her thoughts of Jan, the days and evenings that followed were pleasant ones for her. The new agent was as jolly as he was fat, and took an immense liking to Melisse. Young Dixon was good looking and brimming with life, and spent a great deal of his time in her company. For hours at a time she listened to his stories of the wonderful world across the sea.

One day, a week after Jan had gone, he told her about the women in the world which had come to be a fairy land to Melisse.

"They are all beautiful over there?" she asked wonderingly, when he had finished.

"Many of them are beautiful, but none so beautiful as you, Melisse," he replied, leaning near to her, his eyes shining. "Do you know that you are beautiful?"

His words frightened her so much that she bowed her head to hide the signs of it in her face. Jan had often spoken those same words—a thousand times he had told her that she was beautiful—but there had never been this fluttering of her heart before.

There were few things which Iowaka and she did not hold in secret between them, and a day or two later Melisse told her friend what Dixon had said. For the first time Iowaka abused the confidence placed in her and told Jean.

"The devil!" gritted Jean, his face blackening.

He said no more until night, when the children were asleep. Then he drew Iowaka close beside him on a bench near the stove and asked carelessly:

"My angel, if one makes an oath to the blessed Virgin and breaks it what happens?"

He studied the startled look in his wife's big black eyes.

"It means that one will be forever damned unless he confesses to a priest soon after, doesn't it? And if there is no priest nearer than 400 miles it is a dangerous thing to do, is it not?"

A fierce snarling and barking of dogs brought Gravois to the door. They could hear Croisset's raucous voice and the loud cracking of his big whip.

"I'll be back soon," said Jean, closing the door after him, but instead of approaching Croisset and the fighting dogs he went in the direction of Cummins' cabin. He gritted his teeth as young Dixon's laugh sounded loudly in the cabin. "Two fools!" he went on communing with himself. "Cummins—Jan Thoreau—both fools!"

During the week that followed Jean's little black eyes were never far distant from Cummins' cabin. Without being observed he watched Melisse and Dixon, and not even to Iowaka did he give hint of his growing suspicions. Dixon was a man whom most other men liked. There were a fascinating frankness in his voice and manner, strength in his broad shoulders and a general air of comradeship about him which won all but Jean.

The dog line runners began leaving the post at the end of the second week, and after this Melisse and the young Englishman were more together than ever. Dixon showed no inclination to accompany the sledges, and when they were gone he and Melisse began taking walks in the forest when the sun was high and warm.

It was on one of these days that Jean had gone along the edge of the caribou swamp that lay between the Barrens and the higher forest. He heard the sound of voices ahead of him, and a moment later he recognized them as those of Melisse and Dixon. His face clouded, and his eyes snapped fire.

He peered forth from the bushes, his loyal heart beating a grateful tattoo when he saw that Dixon dared put his hand on Melisse's arm. They were coming very slowly, the Englishman bending low over the girl's bowed head, talking to her with strange earnestness. Suddenly he stopped, and before Jean could comprehend what had happened he had bent down and kissed her.

With a low cry Melisse tore herself free. For an instant she faced Dixon, who stood laughing into her blazing eyes. Then she turned and ran swiftly down the trail.

A second cry fell from her startled lips when she found herself face to face with Jean de Gravois. The little Frenchman was smiling. His eyes glittered like black diamonds.

"Jean, Jean!" she sobbed, running to him.

"He has insulted you," he said softly, smiling into her white face. "Run along to the post, my pretty Melisse."

He watched her, half turned from the astonished Englishman, until she disappeared in a twist of the trail a hundred yards away. Then he faced Dixon.

"It is the first time that our Melisse has ever suffered insult," he said, speaking as coolly as if to a child. "If Jan Thoreau were here, he would kill you. He is gone, and I will kill you in his place!"

He advanced, his white teeth still gleaming in a smile, and not until he launched himself like a cat at Dixon's throat was the Englishman convinced that he meant attack. In a flash Dixon stepped a little to one side and sent out a crushing blow that caught Jean on the side of the head and sent him flat upon his back in the trail.

Half stunned, Gravois came to his feet. He did not hear the shrill cry of terror from the twist in the trail. He did not look back to see Melisse standing there. But Dixon both saw and heard, and he laughed tauntingly over Jean's head as the little Frenchman came toward him again, more cautiously than before.

It was the first time that Jean had ever come into contact with science. He darted in again in his quick, catlike way and received a blow that dazed him. This time he held to his feet.

"Bah, this is like striking a baby!" exclaimed Dixon. "What are you fighting about, Gravois? Is it a crime up here to kiss a pretty girl?"

"I am going to kill you!" said Jean, as coolly as before.

There was something terribly calm and decisive in his voice. He was not excited. He was not afraid. His fingers did not go near the long knife in his belt. Slowly the laugh faded from Dixon's face, and tense lines gathered around his mouth as Jean circled about him.

"Come, we don't want trouble like this," he urged. "I'm sorry—if Melisse didn't like it."

"I am going to kill you!" repeated Jean.

It was the science of the forest man against that of another world. For sport Jean had played with wounded lynx. His was the quickness of sight, of instinct—without the other's science—the quickness of the great loon that had often played this same game with his rifle fire, of the sledge dog whose ripping fangs carried death so quickly that eyes could not follow.

A third and a fourth time he came within striking distance and escaped. He half drew his knife, and at the movement Dixon sprang back until his shoulders touched the trunk. Smiling by Gravois unsheathed the blade and tossed it behind him in the trail. His eyes were like a serpent's in their steadiness, and the muscles of his body were drawn as tight as steel springs, ready to loose themselves when the chance came.

There were tricks in his fighting as well as in the other's, and a dawning of it began to grow upon Dixon. He dropped his arms to his side, inviting Jean within reach. Suddenly the little Frenchman straightened. His glittering eyes shot from the Englishman's face to the brush behind him, and a piercing yell burst from his lips. Involuntarily Dixon started, half turning his face, and before he had come to his guard Gravois flung himself under his arms, striking with the full force of his body against his antagonist's knees.

Together they went down in the trail. There was only one science now —that of the forest man. The lithe, brown fingers that could have crushed the life of a lynx, fastened themselves around the Englishman's throat, and there came one grasping, quickly throttled cry as they tightened in their neck breaking grip.

"I will kill you!" said Jean again.

Dixon's arms fell limply to his side. His eyes bulged from their sockets, his mouth was agape, but Jean did not see. His face was buried on the other's shoulder, the whole life of him in the grip. He would not have ruined his hand for a full minute longer had there not come a sudden interruption—the terrified voice of Melisse, the frantic tearing of her hands at his hands.

"He is dead!" she shrieked. "You have killed him, Jean!"

Jean looked into Dixon's eyes.

"He is not dead," he said, rising and going to her side. "Come, my dear, run home to Iowaka. I will not kill him." Her slender form shook with agonized sobs as he led her to the turn in the trail. "Run home to Iowaka," he repeated gently. "I will not kill him, Melisse."

He went back to Dixon and rubbed snow over the man's face.

"My God, but it was near to it!" he exclaimed, as there came a flicker of

"I will not kill him, Melisse."

life into the eyes. "A little more and he would have been with the missioner!"

He dragged the Englishman to the side of the trail and set his back to a tree. When he saw that fallen foeman's breath was coming more strongly he followed slowly after Melisse.

Unobserved, he went into the store and washed the blood from his face, chuckling with huge satisfaction when he looked at himself in the little glass which hung over the washbasin.

"Ah, my sweet Iowaka, but would you guess now that Jean de Gravois had received two clouts on the side of the head that almost sent him into the blessed hereafter? I would not have had you see it for all the gold in this world."

A little later he went to the cabin. Iowaka and the children were at Croisset's, and he sat down to smoke a pipe. Soon he had begun sending up blue clouds of smoke when the door opened and Melisse came in.

"Hello, my dear," he cried gayly, laughing at her with a wave of his pipe.

In an instant she had flung the shawl from her head and was upon her knees at his feet, her white face turned up to him pleadingly, her breath falling upon him in panting, sobbing excitement.

"Jean, Jean" she whispered, stretching up her hands to his face. "Please tell me that you will never tell Jan—please tell me that you never will, Jean—never, never, never!"

"I will say nothing, Melisse."

...7 of the 7000

AFTER eight to twelve years of hard exacting service, seven Canadian Experimental Farms have replaced their old Empire Milking Machines with new Empires.

Like many of Ontario's 7,000 dairymen who depend on Empire Milkers for easy, comfortable, time and money-saving milking, they stick to the Empire because it gets more milk and keeps cows in better condition. It milks all four quarters at once as the cow produces it and exactly recreates the calf's suck and three-way massage from tip to udder.

For complete information and deferred payment plan, write for the new Empire Catalog.

EMPIRE MILKING MACHINE CO., LTD.
Dept. 00, 352 Water Street
Peterborough, Ontario

Empire is Superior to Other Milkers Because

The Empire Milks As It Should. The Empire takes milk from all four quarters at once—just as the cow gives it. Thus it takes only seven minutes, more or less, to milk the cow; a longer lactation period and more milk. The Empire's three-sided tip-to-udder squeeze (a patented feature) exactly duplicates the calf's massage of the udder.

The Empire Is Easy To Operate. Cups can be quickly placed on cows. Hold firmly by vacuum, they do not climb up or drop off. No harnessing to waste the operator's time.

The Empire Cleans With Ease. Simply draw cold water, then hot, through the assembled units before the pump is stopped. Not necessary to remove inflations from cups after each milking.

The Empire Lasts Longer. Many Empires have given 20 years service, after repairs, years. Patented reinforced Empire inflations prevent scrubbing—a feature exclusive to Empire. Only Empire has patented sound-proof handling and boiling and last as many as long as ordinary inflations.

How many weeds are you sowing?

Recently one ounce of Alfalfa seed was found to contain approximately 900 weed seeds, which would have resulted in the distribution of almost a million weeds to every acre sown.

And such examples as this are not uncommon. Forestall the danger of ruined crops now! Take every precaution in selecting and cleaning your seed—because on them principally depends the ultimate success of your crops.

Under the Weed Control Act the destruction of noxious weeds is compulsory. Let us co-operate to end this menace.

Presentation and Address.

On Saturday evening, March 10th, over seventy friends from Wesley Sunday School gathered at the home of Mr. Geo. Drew, and spent a social evening with Mr. Edgar Drew, and also presented him with a purse of money, prior to his removal to Moscow.

The address was read by Miss Sine, and the presentation made by Mr. Wilmot Breault. The address was signed by three members of Edgar's Sunday School class, of which he has been a teacher for the past even years. Out of a total membership of twenty-seven of the young men's class, over twenty were present.

On the following Monday evening about fifty of Edgar's Desmond friends gathered at Mr. Geo. Drew's, and spent a social evening.

The following address was read by Mr. Fred Switzer, while the presentation was made by Mr. Richard Quinn, Jr.

Moscow, Ont., March 12th, 1928.

Dear Edgar,—We, your friends and neighbours of Desmond, have gathered in your home to have a pleasant evening before your removal from our midst, to enter into the mercantile business at Moscow. You have always had a willing heart and hand to offer assistance in any undertaking of the neighborhood. We will miss you in our social gatherings and in the church where you always took an active part; and we can all testify as to your loyal help as a neighbor.

We wish you every success in your new undertaking, and may God's blessing rest with you where ever you may choose to call your home.

We ask you to accept this purse of money as a token of remembrance from your Desmond friends.
